Senate Committee Says Ideal Tax Plan Dream

Revision Preferred To Sweeping Reform

By KEVIN DOYLE

OTTAWA (CP) — The Liberal-dominated Senate banking committee told the government Wednesday to abandon its search for an ideal taxation policy and concentrate on a careful, methodical approach to tax change.

The committee, whose 30 members make up more than one-third of the present 84 members in the 102-seat Senate, tabled a detailed report on the government's white paper proposals for tax reform.

The report, prepared after oral and written testimony from 343 businesses, individuals and groups, expressed disagreement with most of the main government proposals.

The committee gave qualified approval to the white paper proposal for a capital gains tax but said this should be in a form that was "not too onerous."

Headed by Senator Salter A. Hayden (L-Ontario), the committee flatly rejected key government proposals aimed at taxing corporations and shareholders.

Senator Hayden, a lawyer and director of a number of corporations, said the committee drew its conclusions from testimony "by people doing business."

He told a news conference the committee could not point to any particular study to support its conclusions.

The committee expressed strong disapproval of the government's proposal to increase taxes for single persons earning more than $3,000 annually and married persons earning more than $6,500.

But it applauded the government proposal to exempt about 750,000 lower-income Canadians from payment of income tax.

Nixon Meets Tito

The two leaders met for a full session of talks this morning following a shorter meeting Wednesday night.

The two presidents exchanged unusually frank toasts at a state dinner following Nixon's arrival here Wednesday from Italy on the first visit to Yugoslavia by an American president.

During the toasts Tito made no attempt to hide his criticism of American policies in Vietnam and the Middle East.

The talks today took place shortly before Nixon was scheduled to leave for Zagreb, capital of the Croatian republic in northwest Yugoslavia, and the nearby village of Kumrovec, where Tito was born in 1892.

Nixon had arranged to go to Zagreb and Kumrovec alone, but in a sudden change of plans Tito today decided to accompany him on the trip.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Mild weather from the Prairie provinces is moving gradually eastward and should spread into Ontario today and Friday. Sunny conditions are forecast for today and temperatures should rise to the 60s in most communities. A disturbance now over northern Manitoba is moving eastward and as it approaches, skies Friday will cloud over and a few showers will develop in the northern part of the province. Despite the cloudy skies, the mercury should climb to the high 60s in many regions but colder air will invade the western regions as the disturbances move past.

Rural Hydro Rates Raised

TORONTO (CP) — An increase in rates for nearly 600,000 rural customers was announced today by Ontario Hydro.

Effective on bills payable Jan. 1, 1971, the rate change will raise revenue from Hydro's rural customers by nine per cent.

Specific percentage rate increases to customers vary according to service classification. Details are being mailed directly to all customers.

It is the second general rate increase in its 17 years, with the last one effective in October, 1969.

Hydro Chairman George Gathercole said the increase is "regrettable but unavoidable. "It also brought a new Federal Power Commission investigation of utility firms practices in scheduling and co-ordinating generator maintenance. And it prompted questions about the industry's quality control procedures.

The generator failures "suggest that one of our big problems is the quality control on equipment like that," said S. David Freeman, director of the energy policy staff of the White House office of science and technology. Then Freeman added:

"In my mind, the story of last week is the story of the blackout that didn't happen. By and large it's a success story."

The fact that a general power failure such as the 1965 blackout was avoided, Freeman said, "was quite a remarkable achievement."

Last week's brownout was the country's eighth significant power shortage of the summer.

Northeastern states were hit hardest and most often, but shortages were felt at times during the summer as far west as Wisconsin.

It could have been worse. "I think we were lucky we had a relatively mild summer," said an official of the Office of Emergency Planning. "I think there was a minimum of disruption."

But why did it happen? Why is the U.S. faced with persistent power shortages?

Officials at the Federal Power Commission said utilities plan a year ahead, with monthly reviews, to perform preventive maintenance on generators. Reserves are so small that all the work must be squeezed in throughout the summer to get it done, said Cleve E. Jacobsen, chief of the FPC's section of interconnection and co-ordination.

Such long-range planning precludes last-minute changes for unexpected developments in the weather. Even so, the FPC said in a staff report to Chairman John N. Nassikas during the brownout.

"We are investigating further your request to review the maintenance schedules in each affected power pool and the co-ordination of scheduled maintenance between pools."

Jacobsen called last week's events something which happens perhaps once in a generation, then added: "The facts are there. I can't dispute them."

MOURNERS CARRY portrait of Gamal Abdel Nasser along thoroughfare in Cairo. Nasser died of a heart attack Monday. Funeral is today. (AP Photo)

Nasser Buried In White Sheet

CAIRO (CP) — Gamal Abdel Nasser, hero of the Arab world, was laid to rest wrapped in a simple white sheet today after a funeral that provided an emotional explosion for millions of adoring Egyptians.

Nasser's body was taken from the coffin after prayers by Egypt's top religious leader, Sheik Mohammed Fahfan, preacher at the centuries-old Al Zahar Mosque.

Verses from the Moslem Koran were read by religious leaders as they placed Nasser's body in the grave in the garden of the Mansheit el Bakry mosque in a Cairo suburb.

Outside the mosque thousands of distraught Egyptians cried and shouted as their adored leader was interred.

Egyptian dignitaries, not striving to hold back their tears, lined up at the graveside as the body was lowered. People broke through and rushed into the mosque garden to see the final moments of Nasser's funeral. The flag covering the coffin was torn.

The funeral was almost certainly Cairo's biggest mass demonstration in its 1,000-year history.

Despite the confusion, the body of the man who revolutionized Egypt and towered over the Arab world, was safely borne to a mosque near his home in Manshiet el Bakry.

The body was flown this morning by army helicopter over the rooftops and minarets of Cairo on the first stage of the funeral journey.

Four other helicopters provided an escort on the flight from the Kobbeh presidential palace to Nasser's old revolutionary headquarters on Gezira Island in the Nile, starting point of the six-mile procession to the mosque.

If any proof were needed of Nasser's hold over the Egyptian people, this was it.

Original plans for the procession completely collapsed and all attempts at maintaining order were swamped by a fighting, struggling sea of humanity which almost overwhelmed the gun carriage on which the Egyptian leader's body was being drawn through the streets.

Plans for the official part of the ceremony were swept aside, and visiting heads of state remained in a large tent on Gezira Island in the Nile, from where the cortege had set out.

Steel-helmeted police and troops struggled to hold back yelling and screaming crowds fighting to get a last glimpse of the man they affectionately called El Rais (the boss).

OMB Approves New Rink Here

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

Belleville city council will meet this afternoon in a special session to give what is hoped to be the final go-ahead for construction of the city's proposed new $300,000 ice rink on Harder Drive.

Yesterday city hall officials were notified by the Ontario Municipal Board that a 1967 letter objecting to construction of a community centre had been withdrawn and that approval of the rink project had been given.

Accordingly council will meet today to pass the construction by-law and also a by-law establishing the new rink as a community centre. Both by-laws had been tabled at Monday's council session.

Mr. Harry J. Carr-Briant, general contractor for the new arena, said today that he was ready to go ahead with construction.

"I can start tomorrow if council desires," Mr. Carr-Briant said.

And with good weather he was still hopeful of the proposed February 1 completion date.

Guerrillas Are Flown To Cairo

CAIRO (Reuters) — Seven Arab guerrillas held in Europe since the Cairo airport raid by RAF plane today. It was the closing episode of a bizarre and drawn-out hijack drama which began Sept. 6.

The seven were released in Europe Wednesday as five of the last six American hostages detained in three hijackings arrived in New York. A sixth American was expected to fly later in New York from Athens, where the Americans arrived from Amman.

The Americans were the last of more than 400 hostages held by Palestinian Arab guerrillas for the release of the seven commandos.

The RAF Comet jetliner left London Wednesday with one commando and picked up three others each in Rome and West Germany, and Zurich, Switzerland, before heading for Cairo.

Telesat Contract Signed With Hughes

OTTAWA (CP) — Telesat Canada and Hughes Aircraft Company of California s'gned a $31,000,000 contract Wednesday to build this country's first domestic communications satellite.

The signing came just two months after the federal government turned over to the American firm, which outbid RCA Ltd., of Montreal.

Hughes has signed agreements with Northern Electric Company Ltd., of Montreal and Spar Aerospace Products Ltd., Malton, Ont., covering components.

Three Held For Murder In Blast

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP) — Two truck drivers and a woman have been charged with second-degree murder in the death of a truck driver whose load of cargo of dynamite exploded when apparently struck by a bullet.

Facing arraignment today were Bobby Lee Snider, 29, Gerald Lee Bowers, 28, and his wife, Sharon Lynn Bowden, 27, all of Joplin. Two other men and a woman were being held for investigation.

John Gall, 48, of Oklahoma City, driver of the truck, was killed early Wednesday in the blast which left a hole 20 feet deep and 50 feet wide in Interstate 44 about 12 miles west of Springfield.

The truck was operated by Tri-State Motors, Inc., of Joplin, which has continued operations despite a strike by a Teamsters union local that began Sept. 9.

Washington Worries About Reliability of U.S. Electric System

WASHINGTON (AP) — The widespread power shortage on the eastern seaboard of the United States last week has left federal officials fretting over the reliability of the country's electric power system.

Adjourn Inquiry

A Canadian Transport Commission inquiry yesterday into the causes and circumstances of a CNR freight derailment at Port Hope Aug. 6 was adjourned to a later date because of the unavailability of a witness.

Learning Begins at Night

If you wonder what that funny knock under the hood means, the high schools are the place to find out. Motor mechanics is only one of many courses offered this year at four county schools as part of the night school adult education program. Classrooms, laboratories and shops like this one at Moira Secondary are open for public instruction two nights a week beginning next Monday at 7 p.m. Equipment like that used by Percy Givins and David Randle, is available for instruction under the supervision of acting night school principal Robert Henderson.

Night School -- A Real Bargain

For anyone trying to beat the system, Hastings county board of education is offering a way of squeezing out full value, or a little more, for the education dollar.

The method is simple — and many years old.

Use the schools.

They are available, complete with expensive equipment and high-priced staff, after regular school hours.

The gimmick is called night school, and it is available to anyone with $10 and two nights a week to spare.

With community use of the schools and community college adult education projects taking the limelight, the public has lost sight of a long-standing service still in operation at the same spot.

Night schools in four secondary institutions in Hastings county still offer academic upgrading and interest courses for adults under the supervision of the Ontario department of education.

At $10 a course, it is probably the biggest educational bargain in the world.

The term around forces has discovered the way to promotion and pay — people from CFB Trenton, looking for advancement, have swelled Trenton High School night classes into the largest in the county, operating four nights a week.

But people in the rest of the county have failed to take advantage of the service offered them.

Using the neighborhood school after hours hasn't captured the public fancy here to the extent it has in metropolitan areas, where the schools swing with activity every night of the week.

This year, two Belleville schools, Moira and BCI, are offering 14 high school credit courses and 19 or 20 interest courses.

They are the only places where adults can obtain high school credits — Loyalist College cannot lead a student through to a grade 13 diploma.

Commercial subjects, technical courses and the basic academic subjects are all offered, and the interest subjects — leisure time activities — include everything from auto mechanics, through sewing and tailoring to French, drawing and physical fitness.

This year, the night school is offering a course in air navigation, through the Belleville Flying Club, to meet the growing local interest in aviation.

But local people remain conservative in their approach to learning, finds Robert Henderson, this year's acting principal of the night school at Moira.

Courses in snowmobiling, immensely popular in other centres, never caught on here. The entire concept that an adult will face retraining three to four times in a lifetime, to keep up with advances in modern technology, is slow in dawning on the public mind.

Meanwhile, the old workworld, the public schools, stand ready to serve. They can provide any course requested by 15 or more people.

The department of education, in an effort to cover some control over the spending of the tax dollar, has set a ratio of one teacher to 15 students in night school courses.

In other centres, night school enrolment is fast becoming the fashionable leisure - time activity. So important is the movement to adult education that educational officials are now recommending a strong and systematic approach to the subject, through appointment of an administrative officer to co-ordinate adult education.

Coming in the future is a co-ordinated body comprising the school, United Community Services, the YMCA, community colleges and Canada Manpower Centre, all working together in adult education, upgrading and retraining.

In the meantime, night school registration takes place next week, on Oct. 5 and 7 at Moira, and Oct. 6 and 8 at BCI, beginning at 7 p.m.

Trenton and Centre Hastings Secondary School in Madoc will also conduct registration next week. Most classes are offered two nights a week, but some interest courses are taught only one night a week.

Information can be obtained by calling the schools. Brochures are being distributed through secondary school students and course lists will appear in The Intelligencer every night this week.

Winter Carnival Planning Starts

There are only 12 weeks until Christmas. Winter will be soon upon us.

Now that may be rushing things a bit, but no moss is gathering around the feet of the Belleville Winter Carnival Committee.

Plans for the 1971 Carnival were set in forward gear last night when the committee met with representatives of clubs, service organizations, interested citizens and schools at the Royal Canadian Legion Hall on Pinnacle Street.

Although originally organized by the Belleville Chamber of Commerce, the Winter Carnival Committee is an independent agency. The chamber did, however, initiate and organize the plan which will form the basis of the 1971 carnival, which will be held from Fe. 4 - 7 inclusive.

The four - day event will include a carnival queen contest, a torchlight parade, a beer garden and dozens of other events.

Chamber of Commerce president Frank C. Murray expressed optimism for the upcoming event and pledged the "fullest support and keenest interest" of the C of C.

Alderman Donald Soutter stated that the "the Recreation and Arena Committee and city council are more than willing to do everything we can to aid events such as the winter carnival."

The organizing of such an event is "indicative of a new philosophy of recreation in the citizens seem to be endorsing in Belleville," he added.

He explained that toques, pins and banners would be placed on sale at the time of the carnival. Each weekend a snowmobile will be displayed at strategic shopping points throughout the city with draw tickets being offered for sale. The winner of this draw will be chosen at the Belleville Hawks hockey game on Dec. 18.

A special contest for the design of carnival symbols will be held in the elementary and public schools as soon as possible.

A permanent design will be chosen to be used on stationery, carnival buttons and banners.

Houlden Inquest Postponed

TRENTON (Staff) — The on - again off - again investigation into the cause of death of Trenton police constable Mark Houlden are off again.

Decision was made yesterday afternoon by the Attorney General's Department that the inquest scheduled to open here this morning with coroner Dr. David Listern of Brighton in the chair should be deferred.

Preparations for the proceedings today were in an advanced state when the high-level decision was released.

Dennis Latten, president of the Ontario Provincial Police Association, subpoenaed to appear before the coroner's inquest was in his car driving to Trenton when the announcement reached his Toronto office.

The OPA had planned to conduct its own investigation into the constable's death but this was called off due to the decision of August 31 that an inquest should be held.

An inquest will be held, according to crown attorney Bruce Affleck of Oshawa, but not until after the trial of individuals involved in the disturbance complaint preceding constable Houlden's death.

Facing charges arising out of the College St. altercation of July 29 are Gordon Welsh, 19, Helen Kerr, 22 and Carl Anderson, 29.

Mr. Affleck told The Intelligencer that the decision of the Attorney General's Department was based on a desire to hold the inquest after the trial of those accused in the disturbance complaint — slated to open November 25.

"If there is a trial before the inquest it could be prejudicial to the accused," Mr. Affleck said, adding that a new coroner's inquest date will be determined in mutual agreement with the parties concerned for some time after November 25.

The Attorney General's Department, according to Mr. Affleck, is determined to avoid pre - trial judgments and publicity against those involved in the disturbance complaint.

In his autopsy report, coroner Listern judged that the cause of Houlden's death was natural - pressure on an ulcer.

"The coroner was asked to consider having an inquest", Dennis Latten said on Sept. ember 1, although he refused to state if the OPA had made the request.

When the inquest is held, "it is not going to be long" Mr. Affleck said yesterday, adding that he expected that it could be finished in a one - day session.

Two Possible For Jackpot

Two Belleville people will be holding their breath Saturday, awaiting the running of the Cambridgeshire at Newmarket, England.

They are among the 211 Canadians who could win from $1,000 in the grand prize of $120,000 in the event.

The norm-de-plume of the two local sweepstake ticket holders are Bejay, with ticket FTC 82303 and Penelope, with ticket SKE 74982.

Three Canadians drew tickets on the favorite, Princely Star, and six had tickets on Elton Rambler, and another three on Mendil, second choice.

First prize in the sweeps is $120,000, second $40,000 and third $24,000. Canadians holding tickets on non - starters or backed finishing out of the money will receive about $1,-100 apiece.

Total amount of money put into the sweeps pool by Canadians cashed be estimated because sale of sweepstake tickets is illegal in Canada.

Catechism Class Begins Tonight At Nicholson

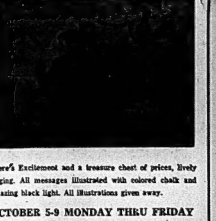
Seventeen sessions will be held every Thursday evening at 7.30 on scripture, moral theology, liturgy and anthropology and their application to the religious education of children.

Sponsored by the Hastings and Prince Edward separate school board, the series of lectures and discussions will be conducted by the staff of the catechetical office under director Basil Arbor and visiting authorities in their fields.

Escaper Surrenders

TRENTON (Staff) — Dennis Hiscox, the 19-year-old Workworth inmate at large since Sept. 28, is back in custody today at the medium security institution here.



The escaper turned himself over to the Guelph police department yesterday and returned to Trenton from Workworth to retrieve him.

A charge of being unlawfully at large has been filed against Hiscox, a prison spokesman said this morning, adding that no date is set for his appearance in Brighton Provincial Court to face the charge.

Serving three years for robbery, the prisoner was on three days leave to visit relatives in Belleville when he decided not to return to the institution at 9 p.m. Monday when leave expired.

Belleville, Trenton Men In International Meet

EDMONTON — Brightly colored parachutes have been opening high above Canadian Forces Base Edmonton and a nearby sports parachutist drop zone for the past three weeks as a Canadian Forces team of skydivers practised for an international invitational military meet being held in Fontainbleau, France, from October 5 to the 15th.

This is the first time that Canada has been officially invited to attend this meet even though Canadian military sports parachutists have taken part in various international meets in the past.

Sixteen m e n , assembled from all across Canada, have been training under Captain John Hasek of the Air Support Operational Training Unit in Edmonton. Weather permitting they have been jumping from 6 a.m. each day with each man doing five to six jumps per day. They were competing among themselves for the places on the five-man team that will be taking part in the actual competition.

"The hardest part of the training" said Capt. Hasek "has been for the accuracy portion of the competition. Here the men attempt to hit dead centre on the target and to do this they have to come in with the wind or 'Downwind' as we call it. For an international meet of this kind a man jumps at 2,300 feet and should be able to land within three metres of the centre point."

The other part of the competition is the "style". The men jumping from the Otter aircraft of 418 Air Reserve Squadron have been jumping 7,000 feet and once they attain a speed of 125 m.p.h. make a series of intricate manoeuvres as quickly as they can. They do a 360-degree turn, first one way then back the other, a back loop, then another series of 360-degree turns and another back loop. The team does these in about 10 to 12 seconds but a championship jumper can do these manoeuvres in a time of six to seven seconds!

The team that was finally selected are all experienced sports sky divers and have taken part in other international or national competitions. One of the strongest competitors will be Sergeant Simon F. Wykenham - Martin of Edmonton who has just returned from the annual international sports skydiving competition in Europe where he was coach of the Canadian national team. This team placed third and much of the team's success was due to the efforts of the Canadian sergeant.

Another member of the forces team is Corporal Doug Harasymko of Belleville, who is the 69-70 Alberta and Pacific Northwest champion. Other competing members are team captain Sergeant Pierre Blanchet of Sherbrooke, Que., Corporal Gee Freeman of Canadian Forces Base, Trenton, and Corporal Roland Benoit of Ottawa. Three alternates have been chosen in case of any last minute injury to anyone on the team. These are Corporal Bob Gallant of Sheldrac, N.B., Corporal Don Skipper of Windsor, N.S., and Master Corporal Noel Desrosiers of Trois Rivieres, P.Q.

Accompanying the team will be Lieutenant Colonel N. P. Northrup as head of delegation and Captain Hasek of Fredericton, N.B., as a team leader.

Contracts Awarded

The H. J. McFarland Construction Company has been awarded the construction contracts for $746,000 worth of highway improvement in Prince Edward County.

Norris Whitney, MPP for Prince Edward-Lennox, explained in announcing the contract, that the highway project would involve some resurfacing and road-widening as well as grading and drainage work.

The project, to begin sometime this month, will consist of work on Highway 33 in Bloomfield to the limits of Picton. Work on Highway 33 will continue from the limits of Picton all the way to the Glenora Ferry.

From Highway 33, along Highway 49, work will be done for 8.7 miles connecting with the freshly completed section of Highway 49.

A Thousand Clowns Original, Touching

By BARRY GRELLIS
Staff Reporter

The Belleville Theatre Guild opened its 1970-71 season last night to the music of enthusiastic applause as the guild's first play this season unfolded on the stage at the Pinnacle Playhouse.

The occasion was the opening performance of A Thousand Clowns by Herb Gardner, one of the most original pieces of comedy that the guild has presented in the past f e w years.

The play's director, Lawrence A. Evashen, guild resident artistic director, described it best himself in the program.

"While most community theatres concentrate on jaded salacious bedroom farces and shopworn mysteries, it is a pleasure for us to present a comedy that is not only funny, but sensitive and touching as well."

Funny and sensitive and touching is exactly what A Thousand Clowns is. Due mainly to an outstanding performance by Michael Barrett who plays Murray Burns, an unemployed writer, actor, and drop-out, a social gladiator who does battle with the working conformists of the world, one of them being an excellent foil for Murray, Arnold, his brother, played with competent sincerity by Ernst Kneisel.

Mr. Barrett's son, Nicholas, portrayed Nick, his young precocious and far too intelligent nephew, the central figure in plot manipulation.

The boy is the illegitimate son of Murray's sister and has been living with the eccentric writer for seven years. His education includes the sights of New York and the affairs and characteristics of women. Trouble arises when two representatives of the York Welfare Department, Mr. Ray Clarke and Mary Gierich, are assigned to the nephew's "case". Complications ensue with romantic interest between Sandra, the psychologist, and Murray.

The set was designed by Tony Lessing and constructed by Ted Fletcher, Bill Gander, Fred Gorrka and Ian Robertson. Costumes were by Bonnie Maidment.

A Thousand Clowns runs through Sunday and begins again Oct. 6, running through Oct. 10.

Mr. Evashen will also commence auditions for the guild's second production, The Fantasiks, next week, holding readings Sunday afternoon and Monday night.

Education Is Big Business

If the cost of education in Hastings County is a subject with which citizens have not yet come to grips then this week's school board meetings should serve to bring the matter forcibly to every one's attention.

In projection of school needs, the board was told the provision of accommodation for students will cost over $2 million dollars a year for the next five years.

School board trustees and officials have been forthright in the past in telling the citizenry that if it demands the quality of education established as the standard for Ontario then they have to be prepared to pay the price.

On more than one occasion director of education Eric Runacres has brought it to the attention of those living in Hastings that they are spending many dollars less per student per year than comparable places in Ontario.

Who can quarrel with the facilities suggested as required? From a retarded children's school in the north to a secondary school by 1973 for the burgeoning Sidney-Thurlow townships area, the case for the additional facilities is documented and supported by statistics.

The school board's analysis and projection is of more interest than just applying its figures to school needs.

They support the argument that others have raised that the Quinte area particularly is undergoing a development pattern that is not comparable to all other areas of Ontario.

The total school enrolment is still on the increase in Hastings and likely to continue. This is contrary to many parts of the province where enrolment has flattened out or started on the downhill.

What it means from a school point of view is that a building program is not just required here, at a time when many other school boards are being able to retrench.

Accepting the school board figures as being well researched, it means that the strip across the foot of the county will have all the ancillary problems of a need for housing, roads, services and solid planning.

It goes without saying that the obvious need for school facilities is not a mandate for a free-wheeling spending program. It is not fair to suggest that even one trustee or board official has interpreted the situation in this fashion.

What it does mean is that the competition for the taxpayer's dollar is going to be intense over the next five years. School trustees know this — after all they are more than aware of this December's elections — so it behooves those persons who elect that board to pay the bills to realize that education is now big business and not a once every two years thing.

Community at Work

Community involvement is becoming more of a way of life in municipal politics. A case in point is the second covered ice surface on which the city of Belleville should start construction tomorrow.

It is not necessary to review in detail the circumstances of the past year. Suffice to say council, which has as one of its prerogatives the responsibility to interpret the needs of the community, was able in the span of a year to put into action the desires of a large percentage of the residents of this community.

It would be remiss, however, if that action was not appropriate time to recognize that the physical presence of this arena in the community stems in large part from the efforts of citizens who saw the need and were prepared to do something about it. Three such persons who deserve mention are Quinte Action Committee cochairmen Richard Hurst and David Coates and last year's Belleville Minor Sports Association president Cyril Coulson. The community is in their debt.

Moira—Pride or Disgrace?

Alderman Arthur Keegan, in a statement to city council this week, once again raised a question that begs for an answer.

Is a scene a point of view; from the aspect of charm and individuality, the city of Belleville is blessed — or should be — by a natural and potentially beautiful river that flows through it.

Our Moira River should be the envy of our neighbors and the delight of our citizens.

While Ald. Keegan did not come up with an answer, he is to be commended for once again drawing attention to a local eyesore and a situation that should no longer be either ignored or shrugged off as an "act of God."

The condition of the Moira is man's work and can be corrected by man. The Moira is — or was — God's work and it remains man's responsibility to restore.

Narcotic Case History on Parliament's Door

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — When Parliament gets around to deciding whether more — or less — the Criminal Code should do about the nightmarish drug sub-culture in the wild world of the drug-pusher, it will find a compelling narcotics case history at its very door.

For not more than 20 feet ceased for their three-month from the Commons where the Honorable Members will ponder the problem soars the Peace Tower from which recently a drug-involved youth plunged 200 feet to his death.

Do something, Parliament must.

For when the Members reholiday last June, they left on their House desks the LeDain Commission report on drugs, recommending a softer, even more permissive parliamentary answer to the urgent question of narcotics and the law.

It was given still more urgency by the crisis it caused in the Cabinet.

You will recall Health Minister John Munro saying the government had decided on asking Parliament to soften the drug laws.

You will remember Justice Minister John Turner saying the Government had decided only on "considering" the possibility of putting the question to Parliament.

A straight contradiction. Open Cabinet conflict.

It was quickly resolved by Prime Minister Trudeau who, on the drug question, is with John Turner and stands by him. John Munro as few Cabinet Members are even standing.

Publicly humiliated, John Munro was forced to apologize in Parliament.

And so the Cabinet crisis vanished — but not the LeDain report on war the pot problem.

They are both still there on those desks, and to the file — of which there has to be a Commons decision one way or the other — has been added Parliament Hill's own narcotics case history.

Evidence of 12 witnesses before a five-member Coroner's jury has established the case facts.

Ronald Hastley, 21, a school dropout involved in drugs, went to Parliament Hill with his girl friend, Joyce Dunn, 17, and together they ascended to the top of the Peace Tower. There he squirmed through the protective screen and jumped.

Ronald Hastley's mother, in some of the most agonized of the 45 minutes of testimony, backgrounded this story on her son.

He had left school soon after 13, began getting into "trouble" and had many convictions of trafficking in narcotics, was sentenced to the reformatory for six months.

But he did keep in periodic touch with his parents.

He was expected home to get on with some painting he was doing for his mother, but went, instead, to the Peace Tower.

Joyce took up the story at that point, returning from a medical appointment to the apartment they shared with her mother, where she had left him, still asleep, at 9.30 a.m. she found Ronald up and dressed two hours later.

Although, as she had confessed, they were both in a normal high" on hash, Dr. Hidefumi Dengerr of the Ottawa General Hospital, who sent tests of Ronald Hastley's blood to the Forensic Science Centre in Toronto for analysis, told the Coroner's jury that "to date no satisfactory method of post mortem detection of hallucinogens has been developed."

Coroner Dennis Acland's jury to consider whether, when he jumped to his "normal high" from the Peace Tower, Ronald Hastley had any drug-induced hallucinations as to his safety fate.

Was he under hashish - inspired delusions that he would not die?

How was the jury to know? So they gave the cause of death as "multiple severe injuries consistent with such a fall."

But the jury did know about that "normal hashish high," and so will Parliament when it debates — as soon it must — whether, as Dr. Gerald LeDain has reported, "soft" drugs are no more dangerous than alcohol and should be decriminalized like laws regulating their use and abuse changed.

"That Women's Liberation Movement's gone too far this time."

Montreal Gazette

The new defence minister scarcely had time to settle into office before he began talking about the need to take a fresh look at NORAD and the possibility of Canada joining the U.S. anti-ballistic-missile system.

What has produced this sense of urgency, a feeling conspicuously missing from the government's recent white paper on foreign policy? Has any reason arisen why Canada should not continue to do nothing about the ABM system?

Canada cannot stop the United States from installing ABMs on its own soil. As Mr. Macdonald has stated, Canada's range of choices is limited to ignoring the ABM system or joining it and trying to establish some degree of control over the installation and use of these missiles in Canada.

Installation of ABMs on Canadian soil need become a serious possibility only if the United States begins to insist upon it. And if it ever comes to that, one can only hope that the Canadian government will be fully resolved to resist the pressure. The most that can be said for the ABM is that it may have a deterrent value if both the United States and the Soviet Union have ABM systems protecting their major centres. Even this is a questionable proposition, for it is based on the tenuous idea that nations can prevent wars by pressure for fear.

Neither major power would increase the deterrent value of its ABMs by installing any of them on foreign soil.

Editorial Briefs

Ottawa Journal

Canadian population projections estimate that by the year 2000 this country will contain 34-40 million people. Between 40 and 45 percent of 53 percent are expected to be living in either Toronto, Montreal or Vancouver. Twelve major centres, including those three, are expected to hold 75 to 80 per cent of the total population. And it's a safe bet that a good number of them will spend a lot of time dreaming about a quiet little place in the country.

St. Thomas Times - Journal

It was recently reported that Swiss soldiers on army exercises accidentally fired a mortar shell into Liechtenstein territory. The Liechtenstein government informed that the shell had been fired by accident decided to issue only a "mild" protest. This must have brought sighs of relief from all over this tension filled world. But with each other, The United Nations should have brought them together months ago than the danger was already plain to see.

Daily Mail, London

We should remember that without the meddling of the great powers these poor neighbors of the desert would never have in such numbers. Arms shipments first to one side, then to the o ber, have built up a fren zy which had to end in war. The Russians surely realized to make mischief. The Americans vaguely wanted to prop up Israel and Hussein. But neither wanted any clear aim. And they will regain control only by long and determined bargaining with the leaders of both sides each other. The United Nations should have brought them together months ago than the danger was already plain to see.

Montreal Star

Some safety groups, and naturally the manufacturers, deny claims that the studs are not all the boss which buyers assumed they would be. Tests here indicated, however, that while they were 30 per cent more efficient on ice at normal temperatures, they were worse than ordinary tires at low temperatures or on bare pavement. Many individuals swear by them for, provided they are correctly fitted, they do work as well as on ice. Nova Scotia's own verdict is that they have their uses. Obviously more research is required into the safety claims

Sir William Mulock died 98 years ago today—in 1944. Pioneer of the empire-wide penny postage rate, Sir William entered Canadian politics in 1882 and became minister at the age of 52. He became a legend in his own time—he died at the age of 100—because of his alert mind and great age. He selected W. L. Mackenzie King as the civil service head of the federal department of labor, which Mulock created.

1962—Unsuccessful Communist rising began in Indonesia.

1960—Nigeria won independence.

1946—Top-ranking Nazis were convicted as war criminals and sentenced to death, including Hermann Goering who later committed suicide.

Although, as she had confessed, they were both in a "normal high" on hash, Dr. Hidefumi Dengerr of the Ottawa General Hospital, who sent tests of Ronald Hastley's blood to the Forensic Science Centre in Toronto for analysis, told the Coroner's jury that "to date no satisfactory method of post mortem detection of hallucinogens has been developed."

Nasser Was Stumbling Block

China's Influence in Mideast Could Be on Upswing

By JOHN RODERICK

TOKYO (AP) — Now that Gamal Abdel Nasser is dead, Mao Tse-tung will try to extend China's influence into the Middle East.

For months the Chinese Communist party chairman and his associates have encouraged the Palestinian guerrillas to be sabotage attempts to reach a peaceful settlement of the Middle East conflict. They have urged the Arab states to adopt Mao's policy of protracted war—a fight to the finish—against Israel.

Nasser who accepted a ceasefire with Israel and arranged one in Jordan, stood in the way.

Nasser's successor probably will have to adopt a hard line toward Israel if he wants to survive.

This will be in contrast to Nasser's position. Although he talked tough, he was a pragmatist. He was the most moderate of the leaders of an Arab world dominated by feudal sheiks and left-wing revolutionaries.

Mao and his men see the Middle East as something larger than an Israeli-Arab cockpit. For them it represents a battlefield on which Peking's twin enemies—U.S. "imperialism" and Soviet "social imperialism"—can be harassed and perhaps, with persistence, defeated.

The Russians had the war of Nasser because they supplied the firepower with which to confront the Israelis.

Unable to rival the Soviet influence with the Arab governments, Mao has concentrated on the guerrillas. He has armed them with Maoist slogans and almost certainly has supplied them with guns and guns. Chinese invective against the United States and, more subtly, against the Russians, fails on willing guerrilla ears.

Cast adrift without Nasser, turning toward a more belligerent attitude, the Arab governments could also begin to face toward Peking rather than Moscow.

Mao believes that a small force if united, can overcome a bigger, better-armed foe through protracted war.

Vice-President Tsung Pi-wu and Premier Chou En-lai closed their 1966 message of condolence on Nasser's death with the sentence: "We are deeply convinced that the people of the United Arab Republic will turn grief into strength, strengthen their unity, persevere in struggle and carry through to the end the struggle against U.S.-Israeli aggression and win complete victory in their struggle against imperialism."

Dundas Street Reconstruction Takes Shape

Lightfoot Construction Ltd. is making good headway on the rebuilding off Dundas Street West which now has a scheduled opening date of November 18. Rock excavation at the Devil's Elbow Hill is nearing completion and grader is seen levelling gravel base. Work on the approaches of the new Dundas Street bridge over the Moira is also underway.

Apples Need Weather For That Rosy Look

PICTON (Staff) — The apple crop this fall presents a less than "rosy" picture in some areas of Prince Edward County. Weather conditions preventing the apples from ripening uniformly have necessitated spot picking in several orchards.

One South Bay farmer dismissed his pickers earlier this week because of the prohibiting cost of this type of harvesting. He pointed to red, fully ripened apples on the top boughs of his trees comparing them with green ones hanging from the undersides of the limbs.

A large quantity of grounders are already lying beneath the trees. The farmer noted that it is a real problem to decide whether to pick now or to wait for the green apples to ripen. "One good wind storm would finish my crop," he predicted.

In a neighboring orchard pickers were at work harvesting the apples that have ripened, leaving green fruit on the trees. "We just haven't had the cold nights and the bright days that we need to give the apples color," said the orchard owner.

Picking came to an abrupt halt with a sudden shower accompanied by hair yesterday afternoon.

Several farmers this fall have experienced difficulty in hiring competent pickers and graders in their orchards. This labor shortage coupled with the need for spot picking has created problems for some local apple growers.

Collision Injures Fort Erie Driver

PICTON (Staff) — A Fort Erie motorist is in Belleville General Hospital today following a car - truck collision in Rossmore yesterday that caused $1,300 damage.

Injured was Donald Penlington, 34, 92 Bertie St., Fort Erie. He was driving a small foreign car which collided with a truck driven by James Landry, 47, RR 1, Belleville.

A spokesman for the Picton detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police said Mr. Penlington was taken to Belleville Hospital with head injuries. His condition this morning is reported as fair.

Damage to his car was estimated at $800 while damage to the Laundry truck was set at $500.

Pension Plan Contributions to Rise Jan. 1

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada Pension Plan contributions and benefits will go up another two per cent next Jan. 1, but a more serious day of reckoning will come when the plan's funds will need a major overhaul.

The increase next year will bring as a maximum employer and employee contributions to the fund to $86.30 a year from the present $84.60. Self-employed persons will be required to contribute up to $172.60 a year, instead of $169.20.

These rates were originally $79.20 and $158.40, when the pension plan was started in 1966. They have been increased each year because of the rising consumer price index, which is used in the plan to compute maximum pensionable earnings, contributions, and, as a result, maximum pension benefits.

But the fact that pension contributions and benefits are geared to the cost of living—though limited to increases of two per cent a year—is insufficient to overcome the main hurdle: When fully matured, the plan won't take in enough money to pay the cost of all the benefits to be paid out.

However, it appears that a decision about that moment of truth lies well down the road, about the 1980s.

As originally conceived, a person retiring in 1976 at the age of 65, after having made maximum contributions to the fund for a period of 10 years, would receive, as compared now, a monthly pension of $111.66 for the rest of his life — assuming rates continue to go up two per cent a year with living costs. Survivor benefits would be paid to his widow.

Maximum contributions and benefits apply to those with incomes of $5,000 or more in 1966 and 1967, increased each year by the two-per-cent formula as long as the consumer price index goes up by that much or more. The maximum pensionable earnings figure this year is $5,300, and it will go to $5,600 next year.

Lesser contributions—and lesser benefits—apply to those earning less than the maximum pensionable amount. People have to be at least 18 and have earnings of $600 a year if employed, or $800 a year if self-employed, in order to participate in the plan.

As of June 30 this year, the Canada Pension Plan investment fund held more than $2,662,500,000, representing contributions from employers, employees and the self-employed, plus interest earnings. This is in excess of what the plan needs for today's benefit pay-out and administrative expenses.

The fund is growing more rapidly than the experts anticipated when the plan was drafted in 1964. As enacted in April, 1965, with operations starting in January, 1966, it was believed contributions would exceed benefit payments and expenses by $400,000,000 a year and build up to $4,900,000,000 by the end of 1975.

Lately, contributions have exceeded payments and expenses by more than $700,000,000 a year.

The greater influx of funds is due to population growth, higher employment, and more people in higher income brackets than anticipated.

At present, about 150,000 people are drawing some benefits. These are people who retired at age 68 in 1967 after one year's contributions, and others who retired at 67 in 1968, at 66 in 1969, or at 65 this year.

Benefits are also paid to widows, orphans, or disabled widowers of pensioners, and to contributors who have such a mental or physical disability that they cannot get regular gainful employment.

The average retirement pension being paid in June, 1970, to persons who had retired up to that date from the start of the plan was $19.45 a month. Widows' pensions averaged $28.87, and the average death benefit was $436.34.

For a person who retired in June this year and began drawing his pension under the Canada Pension Plan, the average payment was $36.39 a month. A person who made maximum contributions from 1966 through 1969 now would be receiving $43.33 a month.

These earnings-related Canada Pension Plan payments are in addition to the basic old age security pension of $79.58 a month, now paid to everyone at age 65, and a guaranteed income supplement of $31.83 a month for those in need. These pension payments are also subject to an annual cost-of-living adjustment of up to two per cent.

The Canada Pension Plan is based on contributions amounting to 3.6 per cent of annual earnings between 1020 and $5,200 in the base year of 1966, shared 50-50 by employers and employees, and on a pay-out after age 65 of 25 per cent of average annual pensionable earnings during the 10 years before retirement.

The experts estimated in 1964 that, on the basis of intermediate cost estimates, the Canada Pension Plan fund would reach $2,000,000,000 in 1985. By then, however, pension pay-outs would amount to more than annual contributions, and by the year 2000 the fund would have only $200,000,000. By the year 2005, it would have a deficit of $6,500,000,000.

On the basis of lower costs, the experts estimated that the fund would reach $3,600,000,000 in 1980, but the excess of pension benefits over contributions would leave a deficit of $200,000,000 by the year 2005.

The actuaries said a higher rate of contributions would have to take effect between 1985 and 1995.

"Under the existing plan," says a statement prepared for the Canadian Press by the welfare department which administers the pay-out, "it was anticipated that the contribution rates would be increased some time in the late 1980s or the early 1990s.

"The timing of the increase would depend on a number of considerations, including the degree to which the plan is to be funded in the future. At the present time, it is a partially-funded plan.

"Funding performs two functions. It makes reserves available to the provinces for investment in social capital. At the same time it lowers the future contribution rate through the interest earned on the reserves.

"Those who favor no funding except for a contingency reserve prefer to gear the contribution rate as closely as possible to the actual benefit being paid in any time. This means a very low contribution rate in the initial period, followed by a rising contribution rate as the plan matures."

The minimum wage is going up.

An announcement on the new Minimum Wage and some improvements of Employment Standards in the area of Job security.

As of October 1, 1970, the general minimum wage goes up to $1.50/hour, and the construction minimum to $1.75/hour. Then, on April 1, 1971, the general minimum jumps to $1.65/hour, and construction to $1.90/hour.

If your wage depends on the established minimum, get the whole story on the rising minimum wages by writing or phoning the Regional office of the Ontario Department of Labour nearest you.

At the same time the minimum wage goes up, new regulations come into effect to improve your job security.

For example, if you work for one of an associated group of companies and are assigned to another company in the group for a period of time, you'll get paid for any overtime you work just as if you were still working for the original company. All the other provisions of the Act apply the same way.

If, for any reason, your company closes down, all wages owed to you (up to $2,000) have preferred claim against the assets of the employer.

The same rule covers any vacation pay you may have coming (vacation pay must never be held in trust for you by your employer).

How much vacation are you entitled to? The law says you must get at least one week's paid vacation after your first twelve months of employment, and two week's paid vacation after each of the next twelve months.

Some new teeth in the Law.

The Employment Standards Branch has the power to assess any money owing to you, either wages, overtime or vacation pay, and to collect it from your employer on your behalf.

Employers must also pay the Department a 10% penalty for withholding any money from you.

For the whole story on what these changes mean to you, write or phone your nearest Employment Standards Branch.

HON. DALTON BALES, Q.C., MINISTER.

Ann Landers
Widow Requests Info On Homosexuality

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a widow, age 70 years, and I live in Orlando, Florida. I had never heard the word homosexual until two or three years ago. Now that's all I hear. The movies are full of it. No matter what kind of paper or magazine a person picks up it's homosexual this and homosexual that. Even accounts have their own church out in California and their own clubs all over the world.

I read that they had a big parade in New York City. They must the laws changed so they can marry each other and adopt children.

Is homosexuality a new trend or what? I [illegible] want to educate myself but where do I start? I have four children, six grandchildren and three great-grandchildren — but I don't go to them.

Last week I went to the public library and asked the librarian for a book on homosexuality and she nearly fainted. When I saw how flustered she became I said, "Skip it." and I walked out. Now I'm too ashamed to go back there.

Please tell me what to read. Ann, I want to educate myself.

DUMB DORA

DEAR DORA: Go to another library where the librarians don't faint so easily. Ask for a copy of "Sex and Gender" by Dr. Robert Stoller, Professor of Psychiatry at U.C.L.A. and get yourself educated.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please say a word about friends who drop in, as you are sitting down to eat. They were "passing by" and thought dinner would be over. Then they go into that old song and dance, "I don't eat liver but I'll sample the vegetables and salad." Or, "Gee, that stew looks good. I always say a home-cooked stew is better than a sirloin in the most expensive restaurant." (Of course it is. It's free.) Another liner: "I'm not going to eat until later but if I can't resist those rolls and maybe a small bowl of that yummy looking soup."

I'd hate to tell you how many times a person who "wasn't going to eat till later" put away three pork chops, my husband's second helping of applesauce and MY dessert.

If you know of a solution to this problem I'd like to have it. My husband and I are sick to death of being used in this shameless manner. — THE ODD COUPLE.

DEAR COUPLE: The only solution is a closed door, drawn shades and total deafness to the sound of the doorbell.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Last year my wife and I were divorced. I could have taken my three children but she pressured she'd behave if I let her have them. It made sense that children belong with their mother. I live in a small place and I would have had to buy a large home and hire a housekeeper which I can't afford.

My wife has a trampy girl friend who leeches off her. Together they make the bars around town and Lord knows what else they do. Last Friday my oldest boy, age 8, called me at 7:30 to say his mother had not come home from work and there was no supper. He had given the four-year-old some soup and put her to bed. I went over and brought some hamburgers, milk, cole slaw and ice cream.

At 2:00 a.m. my wife and her girl friend rolled in. They were higher than a couple of kites and looked like something the cat had dragged in. My wife was mad because I was there. She insisted the kids could have managed without me.

Now I'm concerned that my children aren't being taken care of properly. What can I do? — BOCA RATON.

DEAR B.R.: Your can see a lawyer. An unfit mother should not have custody of her children. A woman who would leave three kids under 5 years of age alone until 2:00 a.m. doesn't sound very fit to me.

Successful Living
Announcing Neurotics Anonymous

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: We would appreciate it if you would announce through your column that a group for people with nervous breakdowns is being planned here in Belleville.

It is called Neurotics Anonymous, and it meets every Wednesday night at 8:30 at Holloway Road United Church. These meetings are open to anyone wanting to learn about this program, or, of course, wanting personal help.

For the purpose of N.A. a neurotic is defined as "a person whose emotions interfere with his functioning in any way as recognized by him." This could be shyness, anxiety, loneliness, etc.

N.A. is simply a group of people who are banded together to solve their common emotional problems. There are no dues nor fees for N.A. membership and only first names are used.

Through this program I have found real help and understanding; a new way of life and many new friends.

— A Member of N.A.

Dear Member: Congratulations on getting your fine program started. I hope the idea spreads.

Dear Doris: My 21 - year - old daughter, unmarried, became pregnant and quit school. Now she has an idea of bringing a baby into the world. I've opposed abortion but was performed due to her physical and emotional state.

Now I'm facing the experience for all of us.

She had only known this fellow about a month before; now she is writing and phoning him long distance. She claims she loves him, but Doris, what do they mean by love? They say love for no reason — things like that.

I understand he has lost several jobs and has been in trouble with the police. I think his parents both died when he was little and that my daughter is sorry for him.

He is going to move back to this town. What should our attitude be? — Horrible Mess.

Dear Horrible: The terrible thing happened which has happened to so many unmarried girls recently. We fail to realistically assess the terrific pressure which is put on our teen - agers to be free, feel free, to do the things they want to do and enjoy all sensations.

Possibly she is in love — but there is a good chance that physical attraction is what draws these two young people together. Yet he deserves his chance to turn over a new leaf.

Better play it cool. If and when he comes to town, have her invite him to your home. Let her know her happiness is what counts and what happens will be her decision.

Dear Doris: Many thanks to you and also to the kind ladies who have sent spare parts for my very old Singer sewing machine. It works O.K. now.

May God bless you all. — Old Granny.

Dear Old Granny: Glad you got fixed up. We had several letters, from Saskatchewan, Manitoba, Ontario and Montreal, all offering help with parts that were lacking.

Thank you, everybody!

Kitchen Tested Recipes
Blender's Many Uses

By MARY MOORE

"There's that expensive blender sitting on my counter and all I use it for is making bread crumbs and chopping nuts!" This is a local complaint from a reader-friend who called long distance to ask me to put more blender recipes in my column.

My home economist cousin, Irene, uses her blender like crazy to make quick soups from leftovers. So did I.

BLENDER TOMATO SOUP

NOTE: This is a creamy tomato soup that does not curdle.

1 cup leftover sliced tomatoes (or canned)
¼ tsp. baking soda
¼ tsp. oregano
1 tbsp. flour
2 tbsps. soft butter
½ slice fresh white bread — broken up
2½ cups hot (not boiling) water
¼ cup skim milk powder
Into blender goblet put all but skim milk powder and blend on "high" 30 seconds. Add skim milk powder and blend on "high" 15 sec. Tip into pot and heat and serve. Quick and irresistible.

CREAM OF CAULIFLOWER SOUP (blender serves 4)

1 tsp. instant chicken bouillon
1 tbsp. flour
¼ tsp. salt
Shake of pepper
2½ cups hot (not boiling) water
¼ cup skim milk powder
Add to 1-3 cup grated old Cheddar cheese
1 cup chopped fresh or fresh dried chives

Press cauliflower down onto blades of blender and add instant chicken bouillon, flour, salt, pepper and hot water. Blend on "high" for 30 sec. Add skim milk powder and blend on "high" 15 sec. Tip into boiling, then stir in cheese and heat just to melt cheese and blend through but do not boil. Add chives and serve at once.

Confusion Re Quality Of Beef

LACOMBE, Alta. (CP) — What is good beef and how can you decide?

A. H. (Archie) Martin, the station's meat research specialist, said there is confusion about beef quality in the mind of the breeder, the feeder, the packer and the retailer, so it's not surprising there's confusion in the mind of the consumer.

Mr. Martin said it would benefit all segments of the meat industry if some of the present misconceptions about what constitutes good beef were eliminated.

Mr. Martin, in charge of quality research work involving carcasses used in the station's massive carcass evaluation project, said much confusion and erroneous information exist today about beef quality.

Rightly or wrongly, the consumer had been accustomed to relating meat quality to such factors as color, appearance, texture, flavor, juiciness, tenderness and lean-to-fat ratio.

This posed a threat to the beef industry as a whole, said for this reason it was important that all segments of the trade agrees soon on what is meat quality.

"Until they do agree, the real story of beef cannot be told to the consumer in a logical, factual and convincing manner."

For example, is it necessary to have heavy deposits of fat or marbling for beef to be tender, juicy and flavorful? Is aging a requisite for tenderness and if so, how much aging is best?

The Lacombe researchers have found there is no justification for discriminating against darker-colored meat.

No evidence was found to suggest that external fatness or finish contributed in any way to tenderness. The Lacombe tests revealed that steak with little or no visible marbling contained about 12 per cent intramuscular fat.

Youthful beef from lean, muscular carcasses and beef with little fat or marbling is as tender, juicy and flavorful, they found, as beef from highly finished, heavily marbled carcasses. And because lean carcasses yield better they are economically more acceptable to the retail trade.

MR. AND MRS. PAUL V. FOLEY

Foley – Laughlin

Rev. Alexander McDowell officiated at the wedding ceremony in Examiner United Church, Belleville on Friday, September 25, when Lorena Mae Laughlin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Laughlin, Belleville, became the bride of Paul Vincent Foley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Foley, Cortyville, R.R. 1.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor length gown of white crystal crepe in A-style with panels of appliqued lace extending down the gown from the round neckline. The leg of mutton sleeves were trimmed with matching lace. A wedding ring headband of peau de soie edged with seed pearls was caught to a four-tier shoulder length veil. She carried a bouquet of yellow roses.

Cousin of the bride Miss Reta Gray was maid of honor wearing a floor-length gown of aqua nylon over taffeta enhanced with pink flowers at the waist and bodice. She wore aqua tinted flowers in her hair and carried a bouquet of white baby 'mums sprayed to match her gown. Miss Sharon Brownlee as bridesmaid wore a floor-length gown of pink brocade with matching pink flowers in her hair and she carried a bouquet of white baby 'mums sprayed to match her dress

A reception was held at the bride's home where her mother welcomed the guests wearing a nylon over taffeta pink floral dress, pink flowered hat and a corsage of white baby 'mums. The bridegroom's mother assisted wearing a mint green rayon crepe dress, matching hat and a corsage of white baby 'mums sprayed mint green.

For the wedding trip to points north, the bride chose a dress of figured nylon jersey with wet look coat and accessories and a corsage of white baby 'mums.

One of Key Things in Day Care Program Is Involvement: Director

EDMONTON (CP) — Asked by her Sunday school teacher why Joseph and Mary took Jesus to Jerusalem with them, one modern miss, age 8, replied: "I imagine it's because they couldn't find a baby-sitter."

Howard Clifford, director of Edmonton day care services, who tells this story, says the little girl obviously made her conclusions based on her own experiences in society.

Mr. Clifford is directly responsible for about 270 children attending Edmonton's five city-subsidized day care centres and is both knowledgeable and concerned about the need for adequate supplementary care for children, especially those of working mothers.

Working mothers are not greedy people who needlessly take advantage of day care services, Mr. Clifford said.

"The typical day care program in Canada has over 70 per cent of spaces given to children of mothers who are the sole support of their family."

It makes good economic sense for governments to provide good day care services, the 32-year-old director said. He takes pride in the job of director of the city's day-care services 3½ years ago, he spent three years as director of social welfare services at a provincial mental hospital.

"The cost of treating mentally ill people in our various hospital settings is staggering," he said. He thinks good community services in the early years especially will prevent a lot of mental illness later.

"In the long run it's going to save them money—and not only in the long run, but right now. For example, the difference between supporting a child in a day care centre while the mother works and supporting the whole family on welfare."

Day care might also mean the difference between a mother staying at home with her family instead of having to be placed in a mental hospital because she can't cope with the stress of a "full-time" family, he said.

Day care often looks like one of the social service frills to people who don't know how necessary it is, he said.

"The greatest opposition to day care centres is by people who are ignorant of what it is all about. Some people believe that day care takes the child away from the family, but good day care strengthens the family."

Mr. Clifford would like to see higher standards for day care centres in Alberta. The provincial social development branch does have standards, but mostly with the physical aspects of care. Quality of care must be high also, he said.

"What scares me more than anything is the argumen. that anything is good enough in day care. But there are so many instances in the past that show that's wrong—children who were placed in orphanages two decades ago ..... and just given food and shelter.

"I've heard some people who run centres say they would rather look after infants because they can look after more of them at a time."

He said that these people will merely keep the infants in the cot and keep them fed and dry—like little vegetables all in a row.

An American researcher has found that children who were considered slightly mentally retarded but were placed in a good day care centre had shown advancement beyond children considered normal when they began school.

The standards for the city-subsidized centres that Mr. Clifford administers are higher than non-subsidized ones. For example, each of the five centres has staff that have had special training in care for children aged 3 to 6.

"We don't hire primary school teachers usually. The school system is often too rigid. We're not trying to push Grade 1 down a year.

"In fact, we think the early grades might learn something from our approach."

Mr. Clifford has been assisting with a special report on day care centres that will form part of the report of the royal commission on the status of women. He also presented a paper at the Vanier Institute on the Family seminar on day care last year.

"One of the key things in a good day care program is community involvement. I like to see parents and other interested citizens from the community on the boards of day care centres."

When he first took over the program in Edmonton, there was only one city-subsidized centre taking 56 children. The program now has five centres, with about 270 children attending. Another 30 children —graduates or brothers and sisters of children in the programs—come to the centre after school.

"The time was ripe for a government-subsidized day care program. But there is a real interest in more day care in this province and in all of Canada."

The only opposition was ignorance of the aims of the programs and of what good day care could do for children in the community.

But rising unemployment might bring out further opposition. "If unemployment was to mushroom, you'd find a pretty large number of people saying that since there aren't enough jobs to go around then women should stay home and allow men to take the jobs."

But this did not work.

"Most women that are working are either in jobs that require skills and talent that the unemployed men just don't have or they are in such low-paying jobs that men wouldn't be interested in them."

And even when there were no day care centres, women had gone to work. "It has simply meant women have gone to work finding secondrate, often inadequate, and sometimes damaging care for their children.

"It costs society dearly, if we provide inadequately for these children."

DAY CARE CENTRES GOOD ECONOMIC SENSE — Howard Clifford, 32-year-old director of Edmonton day care services, talks with a group of children at one of the five city-subsidized centres he supervises. Mr. Clifford says it makes good economic sense for governments to provide day care services and the greatest opposition to such centres comes from "people who are ignorant of what it is all about. Snowmobiles Banned

OTTAWA (CP) — The National Capital Commission's decision to ban powered snow vehicles from the Gatineau Park this winter will provoke strong protest from snow vehicle clubs, one club president said Wednesday.

Guy Morin said his club would have supported severe penalties for vehicle operators who broke the law had the NCC established a set of stringent regulations short of closing the park.

Mr. Morin said he was organizing a mass meeting to "create a strong counter-wave" to the decision.

'Duke Had Repaid His Debt'

Assistant Commissioner Ordered Silk Ignored

TORONTO (CP) — OPP Assistant Commissioner John Whitby testified Wednesday he told a junior officer to disregard an order from the head of the provincial police because "I thought it was rubber stuff."

Mr. Whitby said he personally could see nothing wrong with continuing social contacts with Oakville, Ont., businessman George Clinton Duke, despite explicit instructions from Commissioner Eric Silk.

Mr. Silk gave the order in August, 1958, when he learned that Mr. Duke was deported from the United States in 1949 after serving a 12-year sentence for first-degree robbery.

"Duke had repaid his debt," Mr. Whitby told an inquiry investigating alleged relationships of Mr. Duke with senior OPP men and persons of known criminal activity. "He was rehabilitated. After 40 years, I thought it was rather cruel."

He said he subsequently phoned either Supt. Albert Wilson or Staff Supt. A. M. Roger and suggested a brief visit to a display of lawn equipment being held by the millionaire's firm.

He said he could not remember which one he phoned.

The two superintendents have been suspended and face charges under the Police Act of disobeying Mr. Silk's order.

The inquiry also was told:

By-Supt. Wilson that he considered Mr. Duke's social contacts with Mr. Duke despite the commissioner's order.

That Supt. Wilson called the Port Credit detachment to inquire about a speeding charge against Mr. Duke, had he denied giving any instructions that the charge be withdrawn or replaced.

That though Supt. Wilson learned of Mr. Duke's criminal record in March, 1958, he did not intervene when he learned Commissioner Silk had been invited to Mr. Duke's home the following month. He said he assumed Mr. Silk would know about the criminal record.

That Mr. Duke twice called police and told them her husband had assaulted her but declined to lay charges.

By a private detective that Mr. Duke may have sat in on a poker game with John Papalia and his cronies toward them.

Mr. Whitby said he was not.

"If you had been aware of those facts would you have been so solicitous about maintaining social contacts?"

"No."

He agreed with Mr. Robinette he was wrong in making the suggestion.

Supt. Wilson testified he met Mr. Duke at a lawn equipment display in 1955. They began to meet socially three years later when their wives became associated in charitable work.

He learned of the commissioner's instructions to stop associating with Mr. Duke from Supt. Rodger on his return from vacation on Sept. 1, 1958, and the two officers decided not to attend a display of Duke lawn equipment to which they had been invited.

A little later, Supt. Wilson said, Supt. Rodger received a telephone call from Assistant Commissioner Whitby proposing that one of the two senior officers of Burlington district should make a brief appearance at the function "to allay any suspicion Mr. Duke might have about everybody's non-appearance."

"Why should you be worrying about it?" asked Mr. Robinette.

"You didn't want to hurt Mr. Duke's feelings?"

"That's about the size of it," said Supt. Wilson. "He had been a friend of senior members of the force. Suddenly no one showed up and he would wonder why."

"I suggest that the commissioner knew nothing about it and would have been shocked if he had heard of it," said Mr. Robinette.

"I don't know whether he knew it and I don't know whether he would have been shocked," replied Supt. Wilson.

He said his last social contact with Mr. Duke was at a dinner later this month. He went because he couldn't think of a reasonable excuse for not accepting the invitation.

The superintendent said he was not aware of reports that Mr. Duke was associating with Papalia or that he had been assaulting his wife until Mr. Silk told him about them in December.

Another witness, Police Chief Fred Oliver of Oakville, told the inquiry his men had investigated two calls by Mrs. Duke in June and July of 1957 in which she said she had been beaten by her husband and that she had suffered many previous assaults.

He said she was advised to consult a lawyer. She had never laid any complaints.

Private investigator Raymond Archer said Mrs. Duke hired him to have Mr. Duke under surveillance sporadically for three years. He had discovered Mr. Duke had relationships with other women.

His operative on one occasion followed Mr. Duke's car to a downtown area of Hamilton, where he met contact. Two cars parked nearby were identified as belonging to Papalia and LeBarre.

Mr. Archer testified poker games were held regularly in a nearby house. Because he was not interested in Mr. Duke's gambling activities he did not follow up the matter.

Arrests At Border Illegal

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP) — A judge ruled Wednesday that city police cannot arrest persons accused of purchasing small quantities of drugs when entering the United States from Canada.

Judge John T. DeSantis said in city court such arrests at international bridges were illegal because the arresting officer has not passed when drugs allegedly were found.

It has been the practice of customs officials to notify city police when they find drugs on persons coming into the U.S. from Canada. The police then show up and make the formal arrest.

DeSantis made his ruling in throwing out charges against four U.S. residents accused of possessing a small quantity of marihuana when they entered the U.S. at the Rainbow Bridge July 19. The district attorney's office said an appeal "can be anticipated."

OMB Will Review Land-use

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Municipal Board agreed Wednesday to a request by Municipal Affairs Minister Percy McKeough that it review its approval of land-use plans drawn up by Caledon Township.

The municipal affairs department says the plans conflict with the Ontario government's plan for the Toronto-centred region announced in May as government policy.

In a written statement, OMB chairman J. A. Kennedy and member A. L. McCarus suggested that this is the first time in years that the issue of the OMB's function is affected by government policy.

Mr. McKeough's request was opposed by Caledon Township, acting on the petition of Barrie, and by several landowners.

Oil Drills Wait End Of Hunting

WALPOLE ISLAND, Ont. (CP) — Oil drilling operations on this Indian reserve island at the mouth of the St. Clair River which recently brought expression of pollution fears from both sides of the border, has produced only a dry drill hole after two months.

Cam McFeely, president of Calstar Oil Ltd., Calgary, said Wednesday that operations have been stopped until December when the island's duck-hunting season has closed.

He said drilling will begin further inland from the present well which is about a half mile from the St. Clair River.

Life Returning to Normal in War-torn Amman

AMMAN, Jordan (AP) — Life was almost back to normal today in war-torn Amman, but an Arab truce team was dispatched to investigate Palestinian guerrilla charges of renewed fighting in northern Jordan.

A ceasefire agreement between Jordanian army troops and Palestinian Arab guerrillas followed by the lifting of the curfew brought dozens of people into the streets. Civilian cars appeared again, many with windshields and windows blasted out.

By mid-afternoon, most Jordanian army units had moved out of the centre of town in accordance with the ceasefire agreement.

Amman radio said army troops withdrew to positions three miles from the city's outskirts and guerrillas in Amman gathered at their headquarters and surrendered their arms.

However, Damascus Radio broadcast a guerrilla charge that Jordanian troops had launched artillery and ground attacks against Irbid and Ramtha, five miles from Syria.

Irbid, Jordan's second largest city 55 miles north of Amman, was the scene of violent fighting during the nine-day civil war between King Hussein's forces and Palestinian guerrillas led by Yasser Arafat.

Sunday, Hussein and Arafat met in Cairo, and under the auspices of Nasser and other Arab heads of state, agreed to halt the fighting and allow an Arab truce commission to supervise the ceasefire.

The Cairo talks left observers Wednesday to investigate the situation in Irbid and Ramtha, which are 18 miles apart and are considered guerrilla strongholds.

The Israeli statement hoped the way could soon be cleared for the second phase of the Jarring agreement, which calls for the return of government troops to their bases and the withdrawal of guerrillas from cities and villages.

The commission also said the Amman airport was open to civilian flights, interrupted with the outbreak of fighting Sept. 17.

On Jebel Hussein, site of savage fighting in the civil war, not one pane of glass remains in the area where Jordanian army troops moved in to smash guerrilla groups.

Wild Fight Erupts in Edmonton Courtroom

EDMONTON (CP) — A wild fight erupted in Supreme Court Wednesday when four self-avowed Maoists, including a 24-year-old woman, refused to leave the courtroom.

The melee between the four and RCMP and city police started in the prisoners' dock and was continued in the corridors for several minutes before the defendants were subdued, handcuffed and led off as they protested "fascist justice."

Frederick Herzog, 35, his wife Susan, 24, Roger Ten Trey, 23, and Ian Walker, 22, were appearing on charges of criminal libel. They were brought to court because the Crown wished to request a stay of proceedings.

Crown prosecutor William Stanton said he requested the stay of proceedings partly because the four "wished to be martyrs—and why co-operate with this?"

The request was granted quickly but the four, who have been in jail for the last three months, refused to leave the prisoners' dock and demanded to be heard.

The four were taken into custody but released shortly afterwards. The RCMP and city police said no charges would be laid because of the melee.

The stay of proceedings does not mean that the libel charges are withdrawn, only that the Crown does not intend to proceed with them at this time, a court spokesman said.

Admitted to Canada

TORONTO (CP) — Prof. Gabriel Kolko of York University said Wednesday he has received landed immigrant status from the Canadian government, putting an end to a possible legal battle.

Prof. Kolko said his lawyer, Paul Copeland, received the news by telephone from Ottawa earlier in the day.

Prof. Kolko had been hired by York and moved to Toronto from Buffalo, N.Y., but received a letter from the department of manpower and immigration July 23 saying his presence in the country would be "contrary to Canada's national interests."

"We went to get that on paper, in writing," said Prof. Kolko Wednesday, about the news he has received landed immigrant status.

"I still don't know why I was excluded but I think it was because of my anti-war opinions," he said.

Oktoberfest Posters Banned

KITCHENER (CP) — The chairman of the Kitchener-Waterloo Oktoberfest said Wednesday that 1,000 posters announcing the event have been ordered removed from city streets by the Liquor Licence Board of Ontario.

Darwin Clay said in an interview the board issued the order Wednesday because it thought the posters unreliable advertising.

Mr. Clay also said the board has decided against issuing special permits for four beer tents to be used for the Oct. 9-18 festival.

James Mackey, former police chief of Metropolitan Toronto and now board chairman, said the posters advertising "Canada's great beer festival" may be shown inside licensed tents only—and only if the word "beer" is removed.

Mr. Mackey said the posters could not be used in the street in any case because they show a girl carrying pitchers of beer.

He said the main factor in refusing to allow the beer tents was safety, but did not elaborate.

Publicity chairman Owen Lackenbauer said removal of the posters will not damage attendance because "people are aware of what's happening and they're going to come to town anyway."

Nuclear Heat Soon Dissipated

CHICAGO (AP) — A University of Michigan researcher said Wednesday his studies do not reveal adverse effects from thermal discharge into Lake Michigan and that alternate cooling schemes would have no beneficial effect on the lake.

Dr. John C. Ayers of the Great Lakes Research Division of the University of Michigan made his remarks at the weeklong Lake Michigan Enforcement Conference workshop.

Dr. Ayers made independent surveys of nuclear power plants under construction at Bridgman and South Haven, Mich. He said his studies showed that heat from power plant discharges does not remain in the lake, but is rapidly dissipated to the atmosphere.

He also said that the thermal discharge tends to float on the surface "with little if any heat being actually incorporated into the aquatic environment."

IT'S BEDTIME FOR MANY GARDEN PLANTS

Tuberous begonias should be harvested after the first frost in October when cool weather has ended their growth. Horticulturists with the Ontario Department of Agriculture and Food recommend that the entire plant with adhering soil be lifted and placed in a cool, well-ventilated room. When the stem separates easily from the tuber they should be cleaned by the removal of the soil.

The tubers store best when they are cured for two weeks, then stored in dry sphagnum moss in a cool place.

Dahlia roots can be best dug for storage after the first killing frost. The plant should be cut to within 2 to 3 inches of the soil and the roots dug and exposed to the sun. They should be left exposed to the sun until at least partially dry and then moved to a cool, frost-free storage. They store best in peat moss or other material which prevents them from drying out.

(Lilies and Cannas may be treated in much the same way.)

Annual flowers should be removed now, too, but

Replace them all with SPRING FLOWERING BULBS: TULIPS • DAFFODILS • CROCUS • HYACINTHS • ETC. (See our complete display)

NDP Leadership Convention Starts on Friday

TORONTO (CP) — The largest convention in the history of the Ontario New Democratic Party gets underway Friday with more than 2,000 delegates on hand to elect a new party leader and vote on more than 100 resolutions.

The three-day convention also will elect a new slate of senior party officers, an area in which different party viewpoints come most sharply into conflict.

The leadership issue is basically a two-way contest between Stephen Lewis, 32-year-old member of the legislature for Scarborough West, and Walter Pitman, 41, MPP for Peterborough. Little has been heard of the third candidate—Douglas Campbell, a 49-year-old Toronto cab driver.

Throughout their campaign, Mr. Lewis and Mr. Pitman have offered little contrast when it came to views on party issues, but they have differed in their stated approach to bringing the party to power in Ontario.

Mr. Lewis called for a "direct, convinced, no-nonsense position" in putting the party's case before the voters. He described the electorate as "restless" and suggested that it's good to excite people a little."

"I offer you a responsible extremist," he said, adding that if the party gives "the appearance of moderating now they (the electorate) will reject us."

Mr. Pitman said he sees an electorate which is restless but not frustrated, angry or semi-revolutionary. He said he believes people in Ontario want to be assured change will come "in a common-sense rational way."

Ontario's Progressive Conservative premier, John Robarts, said this week he doesn't care who wins the Ontario NDP leadership.

"Whoever wins, we will take them on," the premier said, adding that his government has no plans for an early provincial election. However, an election is expected some time next year.

While public attention is concentrated on the choosing of a new leader, about 60 per cent of the convention time will be taken up with the handling of party resolutions.

A resolution on economic nationalism, prepared as a policy statement by the party's provincial council, is expected to take precedence over several other resolutions of the same topic submitted by party riding associations, and over resolutions on the other major issues—education, labor relations and women's rights.

The federal government's announcement this week of increased exports of gas and oil to the United States likely will provide the party with further fuel for its nationalistic fires.

Resolutions are listed in a booklet containing 317 on education, 34 on labor, 33 on women's rights, 11 on planning and land use and four on treatment of animals.

Other resolutions concern agriculture, child welfare, community care, consumer affairs, pollution, external affairs, health services, housing, individual rights, Indians and Eskimos, labor relations, minority groups, communications, police and courts, road safety, taxation, urban affairs and party matters.

One resolution calls for a way to be found to reduce the number of resolutions submitted.

The election of at least two of the seven party officers will bring about a confrontation between the old-guard party members and the party's far-left wing.

The waffle group, which supports unconventional economic and political policies, has Krista Maeots of Kingston running for party president and John Smart, also of Kingston, a candidate for provincial secretary.

Gordon Brigden, a veteran organizer and campaign manager, announced this week he would oppose Mr. Smart for the post being relinquished by John Harney, secretary since 1956.

A party spokesman said Wednesday it was expected that Gordon Vichert, party president, would seek re-election.

Schools Ask Aid

ST. THOMAS (CP) — The Ontario Alliance of Christian Schools begins circulating petitions in Elgin County today to enlist its members' financial inequality in education.

The alliance, which operates 46 schools in Ontario, believes its schools should receive the same financial support from the government as public schools.

Motivation for the schools started with immigrants from Holland.

Lakefront Corridor Crowded

CIVAC, which has 11 elected officials on Metro councils, said Wednesday it will suggest the changes in a brief to Premier John Roberts.

The party gives general approval to the provincial plan, which divides land around Metro Toronto into three zones —heavily-populated lakeshore zone and a fringe zone.

But CIVAC says the proposed 4.7 million population for the first zone is too large and "could create undue stress, resulting in problems faced by the larger American cities."

CIVAC suggests an advisory board of municipal officials to amend the plan and help the province concentrate on a larger regional plan.

Probe Held On Moving Of Tree

CALGARY (CP) — Aldermanic John Kushner told a public inquiry Wednesday that it was wasting its time and the taxpayers' money by investigating his involvement in the removal of an apple tree from city property.

Testifying before Mr. Justice W. G. Morrow, heading the inquiry into civic affairs, Ald. Kushner suggested at one point that the whole intent of the inquiry "is to destroy me politically."

Last July Ald. Ed Dooley called for an investigation to the removal of a tree from city property by Ald. Kushner, who had it replanted at his son's home.

Ald. Dooley told city council in July that the tree was removed and replanted "without the permission of anyone I know of."

Wednesday, Ald. Kushner testified that he had obtained permission from Ed Burgoyne, project manager for the city housing and urban renewal department.

The apple tree incident continues today with mayor Sykes and Mr. Burgoyne expected to testify. The commission then adjourns to Oct. 22.

Earlier Wednesday, a witness who admitted he gave false testimony last week at the inquiry was fined $200 for contempt.

Dennis McIvor, a former city cashier, said statements last week that he never took coins from the city cash room and knew nothing of others who had stolen were incorrect.

ENDS WITH FALL

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — Blake Rutherford's attempt to break Rhodesia's flagpole-sitting record of 13 days ended when he "slipped, tried too far while hoisting his dinner up on a rope and fell from his perch. He broke a vertebra.

Perfect Tax System Just Dream Say Senators

sonal exemptions—$1,400 tax free instead of the present $1,000 for individual taxpayers —should be applied only to individuals earning less than $3,000 and families with less than $6,500, rather than for all taxpayers.

Committee Leader Robert Stanfield welcomed the committee's report because it supported the stand taken by the Conservatives on the white paper.

The New Democrats said it was difficult to comment on the committee's report because of the "one-sided" nature of the hearings and those involved. The senators and most witnesses are businessmen with business interests, the NDP statement said.

Attached to the New Democrats' statement was a list of the business affiliations of the senators on the committee.

Rejecting "the over-all major changes in the income tax structure recommended by the white paper," the committee added:

"Your committee feels that it would be far more sensible and safe to introduce gradually amendments to the existing tax system, such as limited capital gains tax and partial amendments to the dividend tax credit and natural resources allowance, rather than take the chance of perhaps adversely and seriously affecting the whole economy of this country."

The 26-member committee embarking, "after careful consideration" —more than one-third of the present 94 members in the Senate—received oral and written testimony about the white paper from 243 businesses, individuals and groups in meetings from January to June.

Committee Chairman Sallee A. Hayden, 74, Toronto Liberal, lawyer, and director of a number of corporations, and Vice-Chairman Lazarus Phillips, 71, Montreal Liberal, corporate director and former president of the Canadian Tax Foundation, conducted the hearings. Montreal tax accountant Arthur W. Gilmour was special adviser to the committee.

Referring to the ethics papers' avowed aim of designing a fairer tax system while avoiding undue interference with business growth, the committee says:

"It is not enough to achieve equity in taxation if it takes place at the expense of reduced economic growth.

"We have been afraid to put a chill on the initiative of our industry and on those people who are the source of increased economic growth possible."

It rejects the suggestion that the government's idea is altogether too pioneering, cautious moderation, and says social justice will come naturally.

"Equity and justice do not necessarily require undue experimentation and utopian dalliance," the committee says.

"Perfect tax systems are the fabric of dreams—not of human endeavor.

"Even though the motivation in seeking for perfection may be high-minded, Canada . . . will reach its goal by following the dictates of reason, tempered by the realization that the quality of its people and its natural resources will guarantee the attainment of fair, equitable and just goals applicable to all Canadians."

The committee applauds the government proposal to exempt about 750,000 lower-income Canadians from payment of income tax, but rejects plans to raise personal tax rates for others.

The proposal to increase personal exemptions—$1,400 tax free instead of the present $1,000 for individual taxpayers —should be applied only to individuals earning less than $3,000 and families with less than $6,500 a year rather than all taxpayers.

The committee opposed any change in personal tax rates, except for the proposed reduction in the top rate of tax to about 50 per cent from over 80 per cent. That should be done immediately, the senators say.

Contrary to the government's calculations, the committee says the loss of revenue by relieving those in the lowest and highest income brackets should be more than offset from the introduction of capital gains tax and from natural growth of corporation profits and tax.

The report says it takes a middle line on capital gains tax between the white paper's proposal to tax such gains as ordinary income at the recipient's personal tax rates and the present system of not taxing stock-market and property gains at all.

It suggests that short-term gains and losses from purchases and sale within one year should be taxed as personal income, but long-term gains from transactions conducted over a period of more than a year should be subject to maximum tax of 35 per cent.

The longer-term gains should be taxed at the lesser of a 35-per-cent rate or half the gainer's personal tax rate. Any longer-term losses should be allowable to be set against any such gains in calculating capital tax through an 11-year period, the committee says.

Further, the committee proposes tax exemption of gains on sale of personal property up to a value of $5,000 instead of the $500 exemption proposed by the government.

On sales of homes, the senators suggest lifetime tax exemption on gains of up to $50,000 for residences and $25,000 for farms instead of the cumulative exemption of about $7,000 a year proposed by the government.

The committee rejects any plan for an unrealized gains of any nature. The government proposed taxing capital gains on stock-market shares held in portfolios.

The senators also reject outright a central feature of the white paper that links the rates of income tax paid by corporations and those levied on shareholders receiving profits as dividend.

For private corporations, profits would be taxed the same as any ordinary profit or as personal income in the hands of the owners. For public corporations, shareholders would get an allowance on dividend income for the corporate tax actually paid on the profits before they were shared out.

The senators propose retention and improvement of the present system whereby a flat 25 per cent of dividend income is tax free, regardless of how much, if any, tax has been paid by the corporation.

The tax-free credit should be increased to 35 per cent on dividend income up to $300 a year, stay at 30 per cent on the next $4,000 of dividend income and drop to 15 per cent on all such income above that, the senators say.

In other fields, the committee rejects the white paper proposals for taxing foreign earnings of Canadian-based companies, says the government should not abandon the present three-year tax holiday for mines, and opposes proposals to tax scholarships as income.

The present, low rate of capital tax on the first $25,000 of company earnings should be retained to encourage small businesses, although bigger companies should no longer benefit, the committee says.

The low rate—about 21 per cent instead of the standard 56 per cent—should be extended to widespread and extensive as the present allowance.

It rejects the government's proposal to disallow entertainment expenses as tax-deductible business costs.

Pornography Report Not Our Baby - - Agnew

WASHINGTON (AP) — A presidential commission's call for repeal of U.S. adult antismut laws has been blasted as "the Denmark option" by three dissenting members—but two others say it doesn't go far enough.

Vice-President Spiro T. Agnew dismissed the 18-member commission on obscenity and pornography report out of hand during a speech in Salt Lake City Wednesday night. He called it a product of former president Johnson's administration.

"It's not our baby," Agnew said of the 12-member majority's report. "This commission was not named by President Nixon. . . . As long as Richard Nixon is president, Main Street is not going to turn into Sexual Alley."

However, two members of the commission, both sociologist said the group should have recommended repeal of all U.S. anti-smut laws, including those banning the sale of pornography to children.

"There is no substantial evidence that exposure to juveniles is necessarily harmful," said Prof. Otto N. Larsen of the University of Washington and Marvin E. Wolfgang, chairman of the University of Pennsylvania's sociology department.

"There may even be beneficial effects," they said. "If for no other reason than the encouragement of open discussion about sex between parents and children relatively early in young lives."

The commission's recommendations Wednesday to repeal adult censorship laws but enact laws against publicly displaying obscene pictures or selling them to children would parallel Denmark's liberal sex laws.

No Bottle Curb

Ben Hafey of Toronto tried to get Premier John Robarts of Ontario to ban non-returnable bottles by order-in-council after his six-year-old son, Christopher, cut his foot on a broken bottle earlier this year. Senate Committee Wants Tax Incentives for Small Business

OTTAWA (CP)—The Senate banking committee said Wednesday that tax incentives must be maintained for small businesses in Canada—but could be withdrawn from larger firms.

In a report on the government's white paper on taxation tabled in the Senate, the committee said the present system of taxing the first $35,000 in annual business income at 21 per cent and the remainder at 51 per cent should apply only to small businesses.

The committee also offered a definition of small business for government consideration—a subject that has puzzled legislators for some time.

A small business, the committee, said, is one with annual net profits not exceeding $100,000 and which does not offer shares on listed or unlisted markets or come under the direct or indirect control of a public corporation.

The white paper proposes to remove the two-tier tax system, placing small corporations in the same tax position as their competitors, many of which are not incorporated.

The white paper said the two-tier system produced abuses where taxpayers were incorporating several corporations to take advantage of the low rate of tax.

"It is our view . . . that a case has not been made for the abolition of the low corporate rate as respect of the small business corporation," the committee says. "The reasons given in the white paper are found wanting."

The committee dismissed an alternative to the two-tier system suggested several times during earlier hearings on the white paper that called for accelerated capital cost allowances to small businesses to compensate for loss of the tax concession.

This proposal fails to take into account the many businesses that do not require substantial depreciable assets and thereby receive little benefit from capital-cost allowances, the committee said.

Government loans to small businesses was not a good idea either, "since it would involve the public sector in making decisions which properly belong in the private sector."

Horseshoes Anyone

Greg Rapson, 23, of Burlington, Ont., discovered that shoeing horses is no dying business. He quit studies at the University of Guelph and took a two-month course in shoeing horses in Oklahoma. It's now a full-time job for him and he does up to 14 horses a day at $20 a horse. (CP Photo)

'Man and World' May Be Free Park

MONTREAL (CP) — A proposal that Man and His World, Montreal's continuing summer exhibition, be turned into a permanent public park with free admission to the site was presented to city council Wednesday.

The proposal, tabled by Lucien Saulnier, the city's executive committee chairman, is expected to be ratified by councillors, almost all of whom are members of Mayor Jean Drapeau's Civic party.

Charges to enter pavilions at the financially-troubled exhibition would remain, Mr. Saulnier proposed that the city withdraw from presenting its own displays.

Admission charges will continue at La Ronde amusement area and will for the first time be levied on persons using certain transportation facilities and attending entertainment events.

Mine Tax Changes Called 'Long Step'

OTTAWA (CP) — The Senate banking committee says in a report tabled Wednesday in the Senate that Finance Minister Edgar Benson has taken "a long step forward" by recognizing the inadequacy of proposals on mining in the government's white paper on taxation.

The committee, headed by Senator Salter A. Hayden (L—Ontario), urged the government to abandon plans for a major revision of the tax system outlined in the white paper.

Mr. Benson, by announcing in August substantial revisions in the proposals related to mining, had shown how weak the white paper is in many areas, the committee says.

The minister Aug. 26 announced measures to soften the white paper's proposed withdrawal of present tax concessions for mines—including a three-year tax holiday for new mines and automatic tax-free depletion allowances.

The committee adds, however, that Mr. Benson's proposals do not recognize the need to offer more than simply a chance for profit in order to attract investment in the mining industry.

There should be a kind of continuing depletion allowance to help support financial commitments and attract "risk capital" to the industry, the committee says.

"It is significant, too, that the reaction from the mining industry has not thus far produced uniform support for these proposals."

The committee says it "fully expects" Mr. Benson's broadening of eligible expenditures and incentives for the mining industry will be extended to oil and gas.

Senators on Tax Reform

Banking Committee Reports on White Paper

The Senate banking committee in a report tabled Wednesday in the Senate expresses strong disagreement with essential parts of the government's white paper on taxation but endorses other proposals and makes numerous counter-recommendations.

The Senators Agree With the White Paper That :

—Measures are necessary to grant relief to lower-income taxpayers, remove about 750,000 taxpayers from the income-tax rolls and increase basic income-tax exemptions;

—Steps be taken to reduce top rates of combined federal and provincial income tax to 50 per cent;

—Deductions up to $2,000 be granted for child-care costs in families where both parents work or where there is only one parent and that parent works;

—A capital gains tax be introduced but recommended several changes in this proposal.

The Senators Disagree With Government Proposals to :

—Increase tax rates on single persons with incomes over $3,000 and married persons with incomes over $6,000, representing about 44 per cent of individual Canadian taxpayers

—Grant increased personal exemptions to all individual taxpayers;

—Require more detailed reporting of income by professionals, to show accrued rather than cash incomes, including discounts owed them by clients;

—Give shareholders dividend tax credit only for the amount of tax already paid by the corporation concerned instead of the present 20-per-cent credit extended to all dividend recipients regardless of the amount of tax paid by the issuing company;

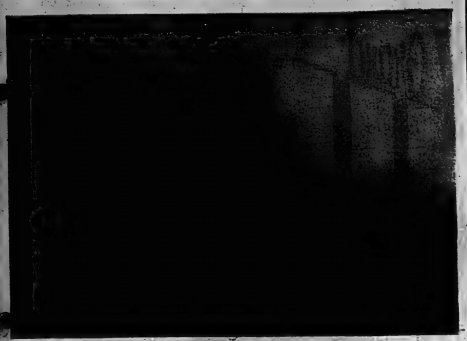
—Change the present system of taxing corporations and their shareholders

—Change the present three-year tax exemption for new mines.

The Senators Recommend That :

—Increased basic exemptions be given only to lower-income taxpayers with the loss of revenue to be offset by a capital gains tax without any increase in existing income tax rates;

—The marginal rate on individual taxpayers from the combination of both federal and provincial taxes should be limited immediately to 50 per cent;



—A capital gains tax, rather than being set at progressive rates, should treat short-term gains and losses as ordinary income and that long-term gains and losses should not be taxed at a rate exceeding 25 per cent;

—Present laws governing distribution of corporate surpluses be altered to make the system simpler and penalties be established for unreasonable accumulation of surpluses;

—Capital gains tax not be levied on foreign holders of Canadian securities who do not have a business or permanent establishment in Canada;

—The Income Tax Act be amended without undue disruption to bring about changes needed in the income tax system.

Sydney J. Harris Says

We Are Taught to Fear

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

There ain't hardly no sight funnier than Harris making out that he is "swimming" in the lake — because Harris refuses to put his head in the water and paddles around ineffectually, looking like a poodle in a rain barrel.

Like so many persons, I have an excessive fear of putting my head under water and will choke convulsively if a spoonful of spray goes down my throat. I've tried to overcome this phobia for many years, but with little success. You can't teach an old poodle new tricks.

Some years ago, at Johns Hopkins, Dr. John B. Watson put two groups of infants — all 18 months old — into two separate rooms and let snakes and rats (properly disinfected) run around the babies' legs.

The infants from regular homes scrounged with fright, but the other group, which consisted of babies reared in the hospital and protected from fears that are planted by parents, watched delightedly while the snakes coiled around their arms and legs.

Other experiments have shown that children are born with only two natural fears — of falling and of loud noises. Nothing else will frighten a baby no matter how horrible or threatening it seems to any older person.

Almost all of our mature fears are cultivated and not part of our psychological inheritance. The worries and anxieties we build up come from these artificial fears that older persons (with the best of intentions) transmit to us when we are young.

It is one thing to teach a child prudence; it is quite another to transfer our own irrational anxieties to an impressionable infant. A child should be taught to avoid snakes, not to cope with them realistically — but to instill a morbid fear of this sort is ruinous to the child's personality in later years.

Fears of sex — in one form or another — are probably responsible for more than half of the ruined marriages in the modern world. Sex education in the schools (which is a farce) would not be necessary if parents adopted the proper attitude toward the subject while the child is young. But how can the children learn what the parents themselves often do not know?

Plante Reneges on Faceoff Promise to Stop Dribbler

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Jacques Plante had an opportunity to make good on his promise to skate out of the net if a free faceoff was called against Toronto Maple Leafs in Wednesday night's National Hockey League exhibition—and failed.

The 41-year-old elder statesman of NHL goaltenders stood in there, stewed and true to another of his dribbling shot by Montreal's Mickey Redmond, but the Canadiens went on to notch a 4-3 victory, their fifth in pre-season play against two losses.

The free faceoff, effective only in 22 NHL exhibition games this season, can be called when a player, in the judgment of an official, hasn't gone gung-delaying tactics by freezing the puck or shooting it into the spectators.

The infraction allows the opposing centre to set up a play, unimpeded by a player on the offending team. In the faceoff circle nearest to where the infraction occurred. He cannot, however, shoot directly on the goal.

Plante, who has seen service with Montreal New York Rangers and St. Louis Blues before coming to Toronto in the off-season, said Tuesday he'd stop aside rather than face up to the situation which he described as "legislation of a human sacrifice."

The occasion to make good on his promise came at 10:28 of the second period Wednesday night with the Canadiens holding a 4-1 lead on first-period goals by Pete Mahovlich, Guy Lapointe, Fran Huck and Yvan Cournoyer.

Montreal centre Henri Richard slipped the puck back to Redmond, 30 feet in front of the Toronto goal. The Canadiens' winger unleashed a tremendous slap-shot effort but miscued and the disk dribbled into Plante's pads as he moved out of the goal area to cut down on the angle of the shot.

The Leafs, who had been holding their own after an unsteady start, gained momentum from that point and skated circles for strids with the Montrealers.

But their only reward was two third-period goals by Garry Monahan and Jim McKenny, due mainly to superb goaltending of Montreal's Phil Myre. Paul Henderson scored Leafs' other goal in the first period.

In other games, Detroit Red Wings and Boston Bruins played to a 2-2 tie at London, Ont., Pittsburgh Penguins scored three goals in the third to nip the Black Hawks of St. Louis, Cleveland Barons of the American League thumped their parent Minnesota North Stars 4-2 at Three River Falls, Minn., and Chicago Black Hawks edged Los Angeles Kings 5-4 at Victoria.

Phil Esposito's power-play goal at 19:35 of the last period enabled the Stanley Cup champion Bruins to salvage their tie. It came one minute after Alex Delvecchio, Detroit's veteran captain, had sent the Red Wings into a 2-1 lead.

Wayne Carleton tallied the other two Boston goals while Frank Mahovlich also scored twice for the Red Wings, giving him eight in six games.

Ken Schinkel, Andy Bathgate and Ron Schock wiped out a 3-1 St. Louis lead in the third period. Bryan Hextall scored the first Penguin goal. Frank Mahovlich, Gary Sabourin and rookie George Morrison notched the Hawks' goals.

McNally Tuned For Twins

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Dave McNally and Bert Blyleven breezed through a tune-up for the playoff pairs while Fritz Peterson threw a parting curve at the Green Monster.

Baltimore Orioles whipped Washington Senators 6-3 Wednesday night as McNally tossed a four-hitter for his 24th victory of the season. It was the southpaw's final fling before his scheduled start against Minnesota Twins in Sunday's second game of the American League pennant playoffs.

Blyleven, the Twins' 19-year-old fireballer, earned a starting assignment in the third game of the best-of-five title series with a solid eight-inning effort in Minnesota's 6-4 victory over Kansas City Royals.

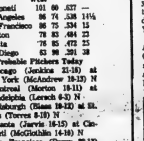
Elsewhere, California Angels topped Chicago White Sox 9-1; Milwaukee Brewers downed Oakland Athletics 4-1 and Detroit Tigers edged Cleveland Indians 4-3.

McNally, who had been bothered by elbow soreness in a previous start, went the distance without duress as the Orioles tied the club record with their 10th consecutive victory and extended Washington's losing streak to 13 games.



He struck out nine while moving alongside team-mate Mike Cuellar and Minnesota's Jim Perry, the other 20-game winners in the majors. Merv Rettenmund's two-run single and a seventh-inning triple by Brooks Robinson broke the game open in the seventh inning.

Cuellar will face Perry in the Orioles-Twins opener Saturday, with McNally opposing Minnesota southpaw Tom Hall in the second game and 20-game winner Jim Palmer going for the Orioles against Blyleven Monday.

Blyleven, who has won 10 games in half a season with the Twins, limited Kansas City to five hits and one earned run, but trailed 4-1 when he left for a pinch hitter in the eighth.

The Red Sox' Carl Yastrzemski, gunning for a fourth AL batting title, went 1-for-4 to finish his season with a .329 average. Runnerup Alex Johnson of California was 1-for-3 against the White Sox and remained at .327 with one game to play.

Wine Triples Expos to Fifth

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The National League's East Division battle for the No. 2 spot will be settled tonight when New York Mets and Chicago Cubs meet while in Philadelphia the surprising Montreal Expos can avoid a basement finish with a victory as the regular season comes to a close.

Bill Hands stifled the Mets on seven hits Wednesday as the Cubs moved into a second-place tie with their 3-0 triumph, setting up a confrontation between Chicago's 21-game winner Ferguson Jenkins facing Jim McAndrew, 18-13.

Second place is worth approximately $1,000 a man while the losing team will pick up about $300 apiece. The East Division champion Pirates have a five-game lead as they play host to Saturday's opening playoff game against Cincinnati Reds.

The Expos exploded for four third-inning runs to stop Philadelphia 5-4 and move one-half game ahead of the Phillies into fifth place.

Carl Morton, Montreal's rookie right-hander, will be on the mound today trying to push the Phils into the cellar. The youngster has taken 18 games this season and is a prime candidate for NL Rookie-of-the-Year honors.

In other NL action, Houston Astros edged San Francisco Giants 4-3, St. Louis Cardinals shaded Pittsburgh Pirates 4-3 and San Diego Padres topped Los Angeles Dodgers 3-1.

Cubs for a run and Chicago added a tally in the seventh on Tommy Davis' run-scoring double.

The Expos trailed 3-1 in the third, when with two out, Jim Gosger drove in a run with a single, John Bateman followed with a two-run hit and Bobby Wine capped the inning by driving in Bateman with a triple.

In the West, Houston clinched fourth place, beating the Giants on John Edwards' run-scoring single with one out in the ninth off reliever Don McMahon.

The Dodgers missed a chance to clinch second in the West as the Padres snapped a three-game losing string. Los Angeles leads the Giants by one-half game.

Lou Brock's run-scoring single in the ninth after Jose Cardenal had powered a tying homer, gave the Cards their victory, snapping Pittsburgh's five-game winning streak.

The Pirates had taken a 3-2 lead in the top of the inning on a run-producing single by John Jeter. Matty Alou stroked three Pirate hits, giving him 201 for the season.

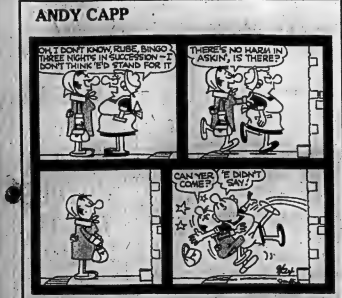
Umps Ponder Strike Call

NEW YORK (AP) — There's a chance that major baseball league umpires could call a strike against their employers Friday on the eve of the playoffs.

"I don't know what's going to happen, but we're going to ask for money," Augie Donatelli, a National League umpire and a director of the Major League Umpires Association, said Wednesday night.

More money, said Donatelli, means a minimum of $5,000 for each man who works the playoffs and $10,000 apiece for those assigned the World Series. Last year the umpires got $2,500 for the playoffs and $6,500 for the World Series.



Donatelli said the umpires association and its attorney, John Reynolds Jr., will meet Friday in Chicago and that the money situation would be discussed and voted on at that time. The playoffs open Saturday.

Donatelli would not predict what action would result from the meeting. One possibility is a boycott. Reynolds said in Chicago a boycott is conceivable.

Baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn was not available for comment.

Kuhn, Joe Cronin, American League president, and Chub Feeney, National League president, met in New York, but a Kuhn aide said the meeting involved World Series plans rather than any possible strike by the umpires.

Argos After Kapp?

NEW YORK (AP) — Pro football's hierarchy has imposed a secret freeze on Joe Kapp and is using the case to intimidate all other players, says Johnny Sample, the outspoken defensive back who said the New York Jets for $1 million after being cut prior to the 1969 season.

"I was on the West Coast recently and I had a long talk with Kapp," Sample said Wednesday. "He's made telephone calls. He wants to play. But all he gets is 'Sorry Joe.'

"Don't tell me it's guy who led Minnesota to the NFL championship isn't valuable to someone. . . The establishment is using Kapp as an example.

Kapp, who learned the new game with Calgary Stampeders and British Columbia Lions of the Canadian Football League, then quarterbacked the Vikings into the 1970 Super Bowl, asked $1,125,000 in a new long-term contract.

The Viking front office said it was too much and Minnesota opened the season without him. Rumors persist that the Canadian Football League's Toronto Argonauts are trying to land Kapp's services, but head coach Leo Cahill has been noncommittal.

Of all the shots in golf, it's most important in putting that the clubface be kept square to the swing arc. You can miss this perfect swing with other shots and conceivably still keep the ball in play. But if you get off-line in putting you've simply wasted a shot.

Square in putting can be accomplished by maintaining a firm left hand grip throughout the stroke. If your left hand and wrist do not twist and turn during the stroke, you will retain the putterface to the ball so that it will be facing exactly down the intended initial line.

Think of a door opening and closing in this reference (illustration). If the a steady axis and while it moves inside the line going back (opening), it stays square to the arc and is always that way when it is closed. That's the way to putt.

Hockey World Series Touted

TORONTO (CP) — Canada could be back in international hockey competition on a full scale next year if a plan by Hockey Canada is accepted in Europe.

Charles Hay, president of the non-profit body set up to guide hockey in Canada, said in a statement Wednesday that Hockey Canada's board had unanimously agreed to challenge the winner of the International Ice Hockey Federation 1971 world tournament to play a world series of hockey in Canada against a team sponsored by Hockey Canada."

Canada withdrew from all international competition last year, claiming that her five top members of the IIHF A pool had reneged on an agreement to allow Canada to play nine professionals below the rank of National Hockey League calibre.

Hay said Hockey Canada had not approached the IIHF on the matter and that this was "not necessary until we have approval of the teams concerned."

Other countries in the IIHF A pool at the time Canada pulled out—Russia, Czechoslovakia, Sweden, Finland and East Germany—said they felt that playing Canadian pros would endanger their Olympic Games eligibility.

Hay said Canada had received overtures from Japan to send a team to the 1972 Winter Olympics in Sapporo and that any players in Sapporo would be professional, thus forfeiting any hint of professionalism that Canada might send would-be team.

Bruins Get Prime Time

NEW YORK (AP) — The Columbia Broadcasting System announced Wednesday it will televise 12 regular season National Hockey League Sunday afternoon games this season, starting Jan. 10. The Stanley Cup champion Boston Bruins will appear four times on the schedule which runs through April 4. CBS also will televise a Stanley Cup playoff game each Sunday, starting April 11, until the playoffs are completed.

Nicklaus Close Second

GOTHENBURG, Sweden (Reuter) — French professional Jean Garaialde shot a course record 67, four strokes under par, to take the first-round lead in the $8,000 Volvo Open golf tournament here Wednesday.

Garaialde's round, which included five birdies, was all the more impressive because he played in heavy rain which hit the course in the late afternoon after many of the early starters had finished.

Jack Nicklaus of the United States fired a 68 to share second place with Donald Swaelens of Belgium.

One stroke farther back were Bob Charles of New Zealand and Tony Kugelmuller of West Germany.

Seven players were tied at 70, Gary Cowan of Kitchener shot 72 in the opening round.

Novikoff Dead at 54

SOUTH GATE, Calif. (AP) — Lou Novikoff, former National League baseball outfielder for Chicago Cubs and Philadelphia Phillies, died Wednesday en route to hospital. He was 54. Novikoff, nicknamed "the Mad Russian," had suffered from a lung ailment. He played in 256 major league games with the Cubs and Phillies and had a career batting average of .282.

Hitting Sauce Pays Horse

The cure? Whisky. The patient? A horse.

But since he started hitting the sauce in the morning, he's won two more. And his owner has hopes for many more victories.

It's all OK with the state racing commission.

John Klein is apparently the only owner who has found a solution to a problem affecting a number of horses at Tropical Park—anhydrosis. The ailment prevents a horse from sweating.

Trainers say that if a non-sweating horse is run in hot weather, he may drop dead. The boone makes Leo The Greek sweat.

"It's an old gypsy cure," Klein said. "A combination of whisky and aspirin. You give it to the horse in the morning before you send it to the track for its workout."

"Leo spit out the first mouthful but then he got to like it. Now he waits for us every morning and, so help me, he winks at me when he sees me coming down the shed row."

Klein says Leo The Greek had not run in two months before he nabbed him Sept. 5 at 7-1 odds. He came from off the pace and won going away. On Sept. 23, Leo again closed fast to win.

A NEW WAY OF UNDERSTANDING YOURSELF

According to "TA" (Transactional Analysis), everyone has three typical behavior patterns — that of Parent, Adult and Child. At any given time, one of these predominates. Sometimes, two of these patterns are actually switching from your Parent to your Child. When Parent is in the driver's seat, what you do, say, feel and think is an actual recording of what your parents used to say in your childhood. When Child takes control, you're being once again the child you were.

A revealing article in October's Reader's Digest helps you learn how to identify these patterns and make them work for you for a new understanding of yourself and achieve happy, more fruitful relationships with others.

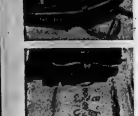
Canada's Golfing Girls Third to French Team

MADRID, Spain (Reuters) — Two superb sub-par rounds Wednesday gave France a four-stroke lead over the United States after the first round of the Espirito Santo women's world amateur team golf championships.



Canada was third with a 150 total after rounds of 75 by Marlene Stewart Streit of Toronto and Jocelyne Bourassa of Montreal. Gail Harvey Moore of New Westminster, B.C., the third member of the Canadian team, had 80 on the tough 6,221-yard par-73 Club De Campo course.

France had a 141 total, the U.S. 145.

In the individual standings, Mrs. Streit and Miss Bourassa were in a three-way tie for sixth place.

Mo-Hawk Potential Not Yet in Writing

By MAURICE SWITZER
Sports Editor

Belleville Mo-Hawks show promise of being a major OHA Senior A contender for the first time in the club's five-year history.

But players don't make promises — they sign contracts.

Signing of winger Wayne McConnell to a 1970-71 contract last night brought to only four the number of Mo-Hawks general manager Robert Temple has definitely landed, with the 40-game schedule barely a week away.

The others have been defencemen Greg Marchen and Bob Wilson, and Dave Moore, who screams he signed primarily as a coach.

Now 24, McConnell has been with the Mo-Hawks for their five years. Last winter he pick-

WAYNE McCONNELL
he is capable.

"He's got everything — speed, size, and a wicked shot he has put terrific self-confidence," Jones once skinned McConnell.

Playing alongside brother John — a 46-point Belleville Junior B producer last winter — seems to be giving McConnell a well-needed boost. "This could be what we've been looking for," agreed Jones.

McConnell was the only one of half a dozen players general manager Temple negotiated with Wednesday who signed for the upcoming season.

Right winger Al Ferguson, who led the Mo-Hawks with 22 goals last season, is not satisfied with the team's offers and has said he will be leaving the area for a job by the weekend if he isn't signed.

Goaltending standout Steve Rene missed both Tuesday and Wednesday workouts in Trenton's Community Gardens and says he will not play in Saturday's 8 p.m. Belleville exhibition with Kingston Aces unless he is signed.

Forward prospect Mickey Donaldson, who played on the Peterborough Junior A Petes first line last winter, was to attend Wednesday's workout but was absent, reportedly dissatisfied with the Mo-Hawk bid for his services.

Bob Rezo and Donaldson have offers to join Minnesota North Stars' Eastern League affiliate in Clinton.

Peterborough contenders Leo Kasowski, George Godson Lorne O'Donnell and Bill Armour were all absent Monday night, with Godson under the weather and the other three tied up by jobs.

On the plus side of the ledger, centre Doug Senior looked more and more like a shot in the club's offensive arm, and Bob Moon and tryout Callum MacPhee were handling sizzlingage goaltending chores capably.

Next Mo-Hawk workout is scheduled for 8:30 Friday night in Belleville's Memorial Arena.

BCI Senior Kickers Challenging at Top

BCI senior soccer team moved into position to challenge Moira for top spot in the Bay of Quinte high school league by battling to a 2-2 saw - off with Albert College yesterday.

Albert jumped out to an early 2-0 lead as speedy left winger Gary Mouravaris counted a pair of goals.

Peter Hillier knotted the game by sending a 20 - yard blast past the Albert College netminder. BCI continued to press for the remainder of the game but, were unable to convert a number of good scoring opportunities.

TORONTO (CP) — Hockey Canada—the non-profit body set up to guide Canada's amateur hockey destinies—is out to raise $600,000. President Charles Hay announced Wednesday that the campaign would start Nov. 1 in Toronto and move across the country. "We are not going to the public at this point, but will be concentrating on representative businessmen," he said. Campaign chairman is Ian Sinclair, president of the CPR.

Vandervoort Leads Charge Over Napanee Seniors

By ALAN TEEWORTH

The Centennial Chargers demolished play in both Bay of Quinte high school football games yesterday, with the Seniors coming up with a 27-6 win over Napanee, and the Junior Chargers whitewashing their counterparts 44-0.

The first quarter of the senior game was spent making as equalizations, as neither team came up with a point.

The second quarter proved not much more productive, however Centennial did manage to score one touchdown. The play started when linebacker Gord Phillips intercepted a Napanee pass on the the Napanee 27 yard line, and ran it to the 34.

The offensive standouts Ralph Vandervoort and Jim Matthews started to work. The two combined to run the 34 yards, to the goal in four plays, with Vandervoort scoring on an 8 - yard run through the middle. The convert attempt was incomplete.

Early in the third period, Napanee was forced to punt from deep in their own zone. C.S.S. fielded the ball on the Napanee 35 yard line, but penalties forced the ball to the 20 of Napanee.

Charger quarterback Mike Thompson then threw a screen pass to Matthews to move the ball to the 5 - yard line. After a short run by Vandervoort to the 2, Thompson ran a quarterback sneak over for the touchdown.

Again late in the third quarter, Napanee were forced to kick after a strong Charger defence stopped the Napanee drive.

Running back Steve Ford fielded the ball on the 37 yard line, and was immediately tackled. Centennial then proceeded to move the ball 73 yards in 14 offensive plays, including two quarterback sneaks by Thompson for first downs.

Ralph Vandervoort hit paydirt for the second time, capping off the charge with an 8 yard end run. The convert pass hit the crossbar on the way in.

This made the score 19-0 for the Chargers, and appeared to take the incentive from the Napanee squad.

C.S.S. then simply ran out the clock, and with 47 seconds left in the game, replacement quarterback Art Wallenberg called a reverse with Steve Ford on the receiving end of the ball. Ford ran 9 yards for the major. Jim Matthews caught a Wellsley pass for the two - point conversion.

Ralph Vandervoort carried the ball 24 times for 126 yards, Jim Matthews with 19 for 87. Napanee's primary offensive threat Larry Garrison, with the big fullback running 34 plays for over 125 yards, as well as tossing two option passes.

"The defence and offensive line won the game for us," said winning coach Doug Irvine after the game.

The junior Chargers put on an even more impressive offensive show, as they shut out Napanee 44-0. Bob Vandervoort was the big gun for Centennial, getting two touchdowns, one coming on a 60 - yard run. Other majors were scored by Dick Howe, Ed Kirlin, Doug Nash and Lorne Sparling. Two - point conversions were gained by Rodger Mountford, Danny Rainford and Howe. The other point was accounted for when Danny Fell caught the Napanee quarterback in his own end.

Trudeau Prepares Staff for 1972 Vote

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau is already getting his personal staff set for the expected 1972 election.

His newest hires surprises in the form of sudden resignations and has made it clear to his staff that he expects those in key jobs to stay until the next general election at least.

Mr. Trudeau announced some staff changes Wednesday to permit those who want to leave before the next election to do so with minimum disruption in his office administration.

Joyce Fairbairn, 38-year-old native of Lethbridge and a former newspaper woman, takes over from Fellow-Albertan Peat Head as legislative assistant to the prime minister.

Mr. Head has not only been legislative assistant, but also a troubleshooter for Mr. Trudeau on several foreign assignments such as Biafra and arctic discussions with the Russians.

Mr. Gibson is a special assistant will work more closely with Marc Lalonde, principal secretary and one of the most powerful men in Ottawa.

Mr. Gibson, from Vancouver, was one of the original promoters of Mr. Trudeau as prime minister.

One of the few new additions to the staff is Mlingaki Peter Roberts, 43, a native of Calgary who has been a foreign service officer in the external affairs department for 18 years. He becomes assistant press secretary, replacing James Wightman who has gone to the Canada Council in Montreal.

Colin Kenny, 30-year-old native of Trois-Rivieres, Que., is appointed regional desk officer for Ontario. He was manager of former defence minister Paul Hellyer's Liberal leadership campaign headquarters in 1968 and later that year was election advance man for Mr. Trudeau in Ontario.

Jean-Pierre Mongeau, 27, Montreal is the new desk officer for Quebec. He has worked as a Liberal organizer in several provincial ridings in Quebec.

He Wears Two Hats

Strap Statistics

TORONTO (CP) — A Toronto board of education report said the strap was used 760 times during the 1968-69 academic year to discipline students in Toronto city schools, the Globe and Mail says.

The report, which includes statistics for the past two school years, will be discussed tonight at a meeting of Toronto board trustees.

The article says 58 of 136 Toronto schools refrained from using the strap in the past two years. At the other end of the scale, East End high school for boys recorded 191 strappings in 1968-70 and Woodfield Road public school had the most among elementary schools with 62 in 1968-70 and 88 the previous year. Boys were subject to the strap 1,362 times to 74 for girls.

Board rules state the strap must be administered, by the hands in the presence of another teacher and each case must be recorded in a corporal punishment book along with reasons.

Macdonald To Use CF-5s

OTTAWA (CP) — Defence Minister Donald Macdonald, in office six days, has pledged to put Canada's rusting CF-5 jet planes to work and to re-examine a $230 million destroyer program.

In an interview Wednesday with The Canadian Press, Mr. Macdonald said some 70 of the jets will be hauled out of storage—where they were placed immediately after coming off the Cookshire production line—and given operational roles.

Those now in mothballs represent the bulk of a 115-plane, $215 million order placed by the government a few years ago. Only two squadrons of the ground support aircraft have been formed, one at Cold Lake, Alta., the other at Bagotville, Que.

It is understood that one of the options under consideration for putting the balance to work involves forming a squadron for assignment to NATO's northern flank in Norway.

Others could be used to help protect Canadian sovereignty in the Arctic.

Mr. Macdonald said the future of the destroyer program was "one of the principal problems on my desk as I came into the department."

Concerning its future, he said, "We are going to have to make some early decisions."

Under the program, four destroyers, each equipped to carry two helicopters, are being built at St. Lawrence River shipyards.

Recently it was disclosed that the program is a year or more behind schedule and may require more than the originally estimated $230 million before it is finished.

The destroyers are designed primarily for anti-submarine warfare. Despite the uncertainty surrounding the program, Mr. Macdonald said he could foresee no change from this primary role for Canada's maritime forces.

He could see no inconsistency between maintaining this role, aimed at protecting the approaches to Canada's Atlantic and Pacific coasts, and the government's increasing emphasis on protecting Canada's north.

Bourassa, Doctors Farther Apart Than Ever

QUEBEC (CP) — The gap between Premier Robert Bourassa's Liberal government and Quebec's 4,000 medical specialists widened Wednesday, leaving the province hanging on the brink of a doctors' strike in the dispute over medical care insurance.

Mr. Bourassa invited Dr. Raymond Robillard, president of the Quebec Federation of Medical Specialists, to appear today before the national assembly's health committee to present its position, but Dr. Robillard refused.

In a telegram Wednesday night to Mr. Bourassa, Dr. Robillard said the federation council is convinced the government has no intention of changing its position regarding the specialists' demands.

Earlier, the premier had told his weekly news conference the government is prepared to amend the medical care insurance legislation if the doctors could prove that their proposals would improve the plan.

Asked late Wednesday to comment on Dr. Robillard's statement, Mr. Bourassa said the specialists will have to take responsibility for their decision.

"I said I was open to discussion, but if they want to boycott the meeting, that is their responsibility," he said. "We will have to draw our own conclusions."

However, Dr. Gerard Hamel, president of the Federation of General Practicners of Quebec, said his 2,300-member group will make a representation before the parliamentary committee.

Mr. Bourassa's government is facing the toughest test of its first four months in power in the dispute over the medical care insurance plan.

On the one hand, the specialists' federation has threatened to strike if necessary if the medical care insurance legislation is not amended to its satisfaction.

On the other, a common front of powerful labor organizations with a total membership of 600,000 wants the plan brought into effect as soon as possible, by special legislation if necessary.

Meanwhile, the population awaits implementation of the medical care legislation, which became law July 17.

In rejecting Mr. Bourassa's invitation, Dr. Robillard said the government's refusal to change its position regarding the specialists' demands means "the legislature committee gives no hope of solution . . ."

Prior to Wednesday's news conference, the 37-year-old premier had said that the government would not change its position on the legislation, the product of five years of study.

While Mr. Bourassa's statement Wednesday appears more conciliatory towards the specialists, there has still been no real change in the government's position.

Most of the specialists' public criticism of the legislation has been aimed at the law's provisions for doctors who withdraw from the plan, although money is also an important factor.

The law says that patients who receive treatment from doctors who have withdrawn from the plan must pay their medical bills themselves.

The specialists say this makes it almost impossible for a doctor who has withdrawn to maintain a practice, since the government pays the bills of patients treated by doctors participating in the plan.

They want the government to compensate doctors who withdraw from the plan, while the government defends the withdrawal provisions as a means of ensuring that all Quebecers receive medical care at the same cost.

N.S. Campaign Nears End

HALIFAX (CP) — A low-key Nova Scotia election campaign, without the fire of past political battles is into its final two weeks with no indication it will grow livelier.

The campaign style seemed to be set early by the Progressive Conservative government of Premier G. I. Smith and the Liberal opposition under Gerald Regan, the two major parties.

Observers feel that Conservative strategists decided to drop their usual fire-and-brimstone attack against the Liberals for the Oct. 13 election because of a possible backlash of sympathy votes for Mr. Regan.

His party was badly battered in the 1967 election and had only five members to the Conservatives' 41 when the 46-seat legislature was dissolved.

At the same time, the Liberals reasoned they could be accused of being negative and repetitive if they continued pounding the campaign to hammer the government on such items as the trouble-ridden Glace Bay heavy-water plant, now nearly four years behind its production schedule; the Sidrians Sound Corp. plant, which continues to lose money, and a land-assembly scandal near Halifax.

Mr. Regan says those issues were "well covered" during the last three legislature sessions and the election campaign is a time for new matters.

Both Conservatives and Liberals have full slates of 46 candidates. The NDP is running 21 and there are two independents.

Wilson Criticized at Party Convention

BLACKPOOL, England (AP) — Harold Wilson narrowly beat back an attempt Wednesday to pit his Labor party against Britain's entry into an enlarged European Common Market.

The former prime minister sustained a prestige-damaging setback when the annual convention of the party criticized him and his fellow leaders from flouting past convention decisions when Labor was governing Britain.

At the end of the day, 1,116 delegates representing more than six million party members reaffirmed Labor's official policy to wait and see the terms on which Britain can join the Common Market before deciding whether to support the country's entry.

Delegates also deplored the refusal of the former Wilson government "to act on conference decisions" during 1964 and 1970. The issue was related to the Wilson government's support of U.S. policy in Vietnam, its bid to penalize wildcat strikers, its contraction of the social services in defiance of party programs.

We Missed Boat --Pollution Probe

TORONTO (CP) — Pollution Probe has denounced as an "ecological crime" the federal government's approval Tuesday of an increase in exports of natural gas to the United States without an accompanying demand for anti-pollution and population-control commitments.

At the same time, a statement by TransCanada Pipelines Ltd. said that company is "gratified" by the cabinet's decision to increase exports through the facilities of TransCanada.

Pollution Probe, an anti-pollution citizens' group with membership mainly in Eastern Canada, issued its statement jointly with SPEC—the Society for Pollution and Environmental Control based in Western Canada.

The statement said:

"It is an ecological crime that all we received in return for the gas is $2 billion. We had the perfect opportunity to demand a binding commitment on the part of the U.S. government for population control programs, restraint in energy consumption and an end to uncontrolled industrial growth."

It said the new gas for export will move through TransCanada's facilities at Emerson, Man., and Niagara Falls, Ont.

CGE to Shut Down Picture Tube Plant

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian General Electric Co. Ltd. announced Wednesday it will stop manufacturing black and white television tubes by the end of the year and close the Toronto plant where tubes now are made.

A company statement said CGE will continue to build black and white receivers at another Toronto plant and will acquire picture tubes for these sets, and for GE distributors selling replacement tubes, from other Canadian sources. The major supplier will be Canadian Westinghouse Ltd., which has a plant in Hamilton.

The plant to be closed is one of eight in Toronto and employs 155 of about 4,300 workers in the area.

Bette Davis Reminisces

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "In our day, stars had it lucky. The studio built our careers with care and bought vehicles or created them especially for us. Today's stars must take what comes to them. And if they make the wrong choices, they're dead."

This was Bette Davis holding forth on the star system, a subject on which she is one of the world's greatest experts. For 12 years she reigned as the fiercest queen of Warner Bros., exacting two Academy Awards and a score of memorable performances.

She was here briefly, en route from her Westport, Conn., home to locations for her new film Bunny O'Hare in Albuquerque, N.M.

Miss Davis seemed to relish the prospect of returning to work, but the trip to New Mexico didn't thrill her.

"I hate locations," she said. "I've been fortunate I had only one location picture, Storm Center, which we made at Santa Rosa, Calif.

"Yes, I know that this new crop of directors likes to shoot in actual locales, but I think it's a mistake. Locations keep acting to do with acting. You encounter so many distractions on location that the acting has to suffer.

"The studios have men who could build sets that are just as good as any location. You can shoot better inside a studio. And cheaper, too."

Bette Davis is not the kind of star to hanker for the "good old days." Ever the realist, she reflects that some of those days were pretty bad, especially when stars could be dictated to by studio bosses. Still, there were distinct advantages to the studio system.

"For all of its abuses, the studio system was pretty damned good for a lot of us," she admitted. "Those old boys knew how to build stars—not create them, because only the public could do that.

"Once a star was established, the studio could provide a modicum of career by providing pictures tailored to his talents. And it didn't forget those fantastic publicity departments. They could spend a year creating a demand for a certain picture.

"Today there is no area for failure. If an actor doesn't make it in his first big role, he's finished. If Dustin Hoffman hadn't hit big in The Graduate, he would have been out of the business by now.

Miss Davis remains as active as she would like to be—a picture a year suits her. She could work more often if she accepted the roles offered her, "mostly motty older women."

Movie of Week Is Solid Fare

NEW YORK (AP) — ABC's Movie of the Week, a series of 90-minute filmed television programs with good production values and often top rank performers, comprises network television's only regularly scheduled anthology.

The first couple of shows this season indicate there will be an ambitious mix of stories and themes. Last week Anthony Perkins appeared in a Gothic tale of blindness and pyromania. Tuesday the production was a wan science-fiction tale called Night Slaves. A convalescing man and his wife are victims of small western town which becomes strange after dark. Viewers can imagine what The Invaders will recognize the situation, even remember the plot.

James Franciscus played the hero, a man immune to the spell put on the villagers by visitors from another planet.

The series may go through a period of comparative hesitation from viewers because it conflicts with NBC's Tuesday night movie. All three networks currently are broadcasting the cream of their feature film packages, a usual start-of-the-season practice. But as the season wears on and the lesser features turn up, Movie of the Week will look better and better.

CBS's uniformly rewarding 60 Minutes Tuesday night started well with a rambling discussion by a group of New Haven police officers after seeing a couple of short "arrest films," showing fellow officers attempting to function under hostile conditions.

They told of personal reactions, of police insults and being called "pigs." Mostly it was anger.

Some footage showed Cuba's faltering economy.

NBC has cancelled Life with Linkletter and replaced it with Words and Music, another in the parade of game shows which is the network's daytime specialty. The program will win no awards for originality, but it has finally found a way to bring a singing quartet and pop music into the format of a guessing game. Even so, it is a dreary way to kill a half hour.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Man Has Change In Personality

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: He is a kindly, wonderful, loving family man. But several of us (his friends) are concerned about him because he is hurting his entire family with his sudden fits of rage.

Any situation that would produce a mild nervous reaction in others triggers an outburst. His face goes white, he yells and he raves and the house is upset for hours. Is this just a personality trait? A quick temper? Or is it possible that something's the matter with him? Sincerely — A Friend.

Comment: You have left out some important information. Completing a diagnosis is like doing a puzzle. Leave out a few important facts and it's impossible to fit in together neatly.

For example, how long has this been going on? If he has been this way since childhood, then it's likely we are dealing with an ingrown personality problem.

How old is your friend? If he's in his mid — 40s or 50s, there's the possibility that he's going through the male climacteric. Often, some change in personality occurs.

Is he in his late 60s or in his 70s? Then we have to consider changes in his brain arteries. Interference with cerebral circulation sometimes produces changes in an otherwise mild person.

I think of two other conditions that must be ruled out. Are these rages a form of epileptiform seizure? An EEG (electroencephalogram), which is a recording of the electric currents developed in the brain, may help. In a few patients I have found the reason for personality change to be due to unsuspected brain tumor.

Whatever the cause, I think you will agree it deserves study by a competent internist and neurologist. Here's hoping he reverts to his usual mild, kindly self.

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Will you please settle an argument between my husband and myself? I'll soon be 80. I weigh 163 pounds. He wants me to lose from 10 to 12 pounds. He seems to think it will make me healthier and look better, I feel fine. Shall I go on a diet? — Mrs. W.

Comment: Who was it said, "No, no, a thousand times no." Other doctors may not agree, but my advice would be don't go on a diet. Don't try to lose an ounce. Don't tamper with a good machine. Don't upset the apple - cart.

Being almost 80 you have proved that your way of life is right for you." I've known a few elderly people like yourself who began to go downhill physically after they went on diets. Nevertheless, it must make you feel good to know that your husband is still interested in your figure.

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I am puzzled what to do about my cholesterol count. I am 55 years old. A test taken last week shows it to be over 400. My doctor says my electrocardiogram and other examinations are normal. But he suggests that I take off weight — I'm about 40 pounds overweight — and cut down on ice cream, which I love, and many other saturated fats. What do you think? — Mrs. S.

Comment: A high cholesterol reading is reason enough for taking the precautions your doctor has suggested. Sometimes just taking off the excess poundage itself, will cause a sharp fall in cholesterol content. As an ice cream lover myself, I know it will be difficult, but you'll have to make the sacrifice for health's sake.

Jean Dixon's Horoscope

For October 2

Your birthday today: Practical application is the key this coming year. What you have learned in the recent past suddenly becomes very useful in unexpected contexts. Old skills are used in changing conditions. Romantic interests are less stressful, less visible, yet more alive than ever. Today's positives possess resources, seldom mobilized fully, which may show in crisis as aggressive initiative. Many have made great progress in science and the arts.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Any error you make today may widen existing gaps, push people farther from your path. Keep peace by letting others show their leadership.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Unexpected circumstances are normal. Pick up the pieces briskly and resume work without trying to find a scapegoat. Important people decide without hearing the whole story.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): A streak of luck, perhaps something that does not seem very good when it breaks, later is seen as a factor saving you much loss and distress. Personal relationships need tact.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Your home life is somewhat chaotic as you cope successfully with some disruptive condition. Relatives, friends are very helpful where older people are concerned.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Your reactions are sharp and quick. Be wary of showing impatience with friends, relatives. Long-standing family problems come to a head and perhaps sudden solution.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Decisions about money are out for today. Think back and see how lucky you've been through the week thus far.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Your mood of independence and impulsiveness keeps you from making the best use of today's opportunity. Circumstances work out in unplanned directions, and shortcuts become essential.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): A break in your regular activity seems inconvenient but actually points to a course you have not yet explored. Friends help bridge communication gaps — keep the story simple.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): The less prominent a role you play in the drama of today's turmoil the better. Business negotiations are rapid. Protect the feelings of your friends.

CAPRICORN (Dec 22 — Jan. 19): Many changes pop all around you. Accept them as temporary and largely surface; delay your reaction until you can see more of the trends.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Pooling financial resources provides one solution to family problems now. Your caution with strangers is well rewarded, as later something is not quite what you assume. Expect changes.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Today brings freaky flips of circumstance, probably fortunate but not to be depended upon for any great benefit. Harsh, consistent work pays off better than ever.

Randall Defends U.S. Firms

MONTREAL (CP) — Stanley Randall, Ontario trade and development minister, accused economic nationalists today of an hysterical campaign against the United States, "our best and perhaps only customer."

"There is no way we can sit on this vast, unexplored Canada and block about foreign investors who can in the future, as in the past, develop it for us, if we don't have the guts indoctrinate themselves," he told the Union of Quebec Municipalities.

"We have a vast land—let's not approach its development in a half-vast way."

"If, as some strident minorities seem to advocate, it is time for a new approach in our trading relations with the best partner Canada could ever have, then let us sit down, with good common sense and mutual respect, and develop new trade patterns But let's stop the current anti-American diatribe of vocal diarrhea emanating from those in our society who are looking for a whipping-boy to cover our short-comings of the past."

He said Ontario intends to continue competing for foreign investment funds.

"I also envisage the increasing growth of international corporations with headquarters in Canada, harvesting profits from abroad."

Egyptian President Overcome at Funeral

Doctors Start Partial Strike

QUEBEC (CP) — Positions hardened in Quebec's medical care insurance dispute Thursday. The province's medical specialists announced they were starting a partial strike today and Premier Robert Bourassa set a date for introduction of the program.

Mr. Bourassa told the national assembly health committee that medicare will be implemented Nov. 1 even if no agreement has been signed with doctors' professional associations.

The Montreal Gazette says Premier Bourassa met secretly Thursday night with Dr. Raymond Rohillard, president of the Quebec Federation of Medical Specialists, in an effort to solve the dispute over Quebec's medical care fogarence plan.

The newspaper says the meeting lasted less than an hour and was held in the Victoria Hotel, Mr. Bourassa's Quebec residence.

Following the meeting, the premier said there was a chance Dr. Rohillard will attend today's meeting of the parliamentary health committee.

"He told me he would consult the federation's executive overnight and might show up for the committee," Mr. Bourassa said.

Dr. Rohillard refused to attend Thursday's committee meeting because, he said, the specialists' federation was convinced that the government had no intention of meeting the federation's demands.

The 4,000-member federation called a news conference to issue its "first public warning" of what it called an imminent withdrawal of services by doctors in the province.

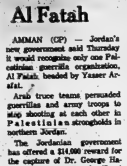
But Dr. Rohillard said advance warnings would be given of any decision by the specialists to undertake a general strike.

Premier Bourassa said negotiations with doctors cannot continue indefinitely and the government must protect the population.

The premier said, however, that the government remains ready to negotiate with the doctors.

The health committee was convened to hear representations from doctors' organizations, but the meeting was boycotted by the specialists, who have been the centre of opposition in the program.

But the government extended two conciliatory gestures at the health committee meeting:



—Health Minister Claude Castonguay said the government is prepared to "clarify" a section of its legislation dealing with supervision of doctors by the Quebec Health Insurance Board;

—The health committee re-issued its invitation to the specialists to present their views at another meeting today.

The "clarification" of the legislation — four modifications which would make clear that only the Quebec College of Physicians and Surgeons may supervise doctors' professional activities—won the support of the college itself.

Dr. Gustave Gingras, president of the college who attended the committee hearing, said the proposed modifications are satisfactory in principle.

The specialists claim that as the medicare legislation now stands, the Health Insurance Board would have power to supervise medical standards by deciding what professional services are necessary and should be paid for.

Jordan Recognizes Al Fatah

AMMAN (CP) — Jordan's new government said Thursday it would recognize only one Palestinian guerrilla organization, Al Fatah, headed by Yasser Arafat.

Arab truce teams persuaded guerrillas and army troops to stop shooting at each other in Palestinian strongholds in northern Jordan.

The Jordanian government has offered a $14,000 reward for the capture of Dr. George Habbash, head of the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine, a pro-Peking guerrilla group responsible for the recent spate of airline hijackings to the Middle East.

In Beirut, Lebanon, an Al Fatah spokesman said Amman government forces and guerrillas were persuaded to lay down their weapons at Ramtha, a Jordanian border town on the Damascus-Amman highway, the commandos' principal supply route from Syria.

The guerrilla spokesman said Ramtha and nearby Irbid, Jordan's second largest city, were quiet after reports of shelling by Jordanian troops earlier in the day.

Officers of both sides, meeting in a cellar in Ramtha, signed a 12-point agreement to end the fighting in the north.

Sadat at Home After Collapse

CAIRO (Reuters) — Interim President Anwar el Sadat and another top leader, Aly Sabry, were reported today to have had heart attacks at President Nasser's funeral — which five million grief-stricken Egyptians turned into a frenzy of popular homage.

The news about Sadat, 52, and of the 54-year-old Sabry, 58, came from the semi-official newspaper Al Ahram and other Cairo papers as Egypt painfully struggled back to normal after the harrowing scenes at the late president's funeral.

The Associated Press quoted an Egyptian government spokesman as denying that Sadat and Sabry suffered heart attacks. The spokesman said both men were overcome with depression and emotion and had to leave the funeral procession. Both were at home today and were "doing very well," he said.

At least six persons were trampled to death as waves of mourners crashed through police barriers in attempts Thursday to get a last glimpse of the coffin of the man who staged the 1952 revolution and became leader of the Arab world.

The wild scenes were not restricted to Egypt. In other parts of the Arab world there were mass demonstrations of homage to Nasser.

In Lebanon, at least 18 persons were killed, mostly by stray bullets fired in salute, and in Kuwait two died when their car collided with an ambulance hurrying to the aid of fainting funeral marchers.

Al Ahram said Sadat and Sabry, both close aides of the late Egyptian leader, were under medical care and were in satisfactory condition following the attacks. Both men have had previous heart trouble.

The attacks came at the outset of the funeral procession through the streets of Cairo to the white-walled mosque on the city's outskirts where the president was buried.

The attacks were brought on by exhaustion and emotion of the last few days since Nasser died of a heart attack Monday, Al Ahram said. Neither Sadat nor Sabry was able to take any further part in the funeral.

Sadat, vice-president until he assumed temporary leadership of the nation Monday night, was taken to hospital when he had his heart attack. But he later recovered sufficiently to visit the Nasser home near the mosque and pay his condolences.

Kosygin, however, said in a statement put out by the visiting Soviet delegation that the Soviet Union still wished to continue the search for a peaceful solution.

He warned Israel not to pin any hopes on a vacuum which might arise following Nasser's departure from the political scene he has dominated so long.

The Soviet leader assured Egypt that Russia stood behind it and would continue to supply it with all to it and other Arab states.

The United States, initiator of currently stalled Middle East peace-talks, also issued a brief statement from its delegate at the Middle East Secretary Elliot Richardson, saying it also sought peace in the area.

All the leaders of Arab leaders who had gathered in Cairo held a 45-minute summit and pledged to follow Nasser's policies on the Palestine struggle and other issues.

Sawback Shower Phoney

TORONTO (CP) — A shower of $10 bills halted traffic on the Gardiner Expressway Thursday but the money turned out to be counterfeit.

Two Metropolitan Toronto police constables in a cruiser said they saw a white plastic bundle fly from a car and burst, spewing $10 bills.

Traffic near the Humber bridge stopped as motorists chased the floating bills. The two policemen recovered 225 of the counterfeit bills.

Nixon Greeted By Gen. Franco

MADRID (CP) — President Nixon arrived here from Belgrade today for a 20-hour visit to express his approval of a renewed agreements for U.S. military bases in Spain.

Head of State Francisco Franco, 77, greeted him at Madrid's Barajas Airport. They drove into the city together along streets bedecked with the flags of the two countries.

U.S. Wins Approval For Hijacking Curbs

MONTREAL (CP) — The United States gained what was termed a "break-through decision" Thursday when the council of the International Civil Aviation Organization approved air and anti-hijacking proposal involving international sanctions.

The U.S. proposal, after important modifications by Belgium and Germany, calls for multilateral air agreements in which termination of air services would be a key aspect to dealing with countries involved in holding planes or passengers for purposes of "international blackmail."

The proposal first calls for careful consultations by a select number of countries involved in a particular hijacking incident.

Crux of the issue was whether the ICAO, as a technical body, was the proper forum to discuss problems with political overtones such as hijackings.

The 37-member delegation approved the U.S. proposal by a 14-to-3 margin with 18 countries abstaining. The 14 votes were the minimum needed for ICAO approval.

Among countries approving the measure were Australia, Belgium, Canada, Germany, Italy, The Netherlands and Great Britain. Those opposing were Lebanon, Egypt and Tunisia.

Major countries abstaining were France and Mexico.

The long debate on the contentious U.S. issue obscured a Canadian proposal approved 18-to-0 with three countries abstaining.

The Canadian measure calls for bilateral air agreements to be incorporated under ICAO aviation conventions. The agreements would contain a clause allowing a country to suspend air service if a partner country failed to honor its international obligations to prosecute hijackers and saboteurs.

British Labor Party Backs African Rebels

BLACKPOOL, England (AP) — Britain's Labor party pledged "full moral and material support" Thursday for African guerrilla movements seeking power in white-ruled South Africa, Rhodesia and the Portuguese territories.

Two resolutions adopted unanimously at the party's annual convention bitterly assailed Prime Minister Edward Heath's Conservative government for its stated intention of resuming limited weapons sales to the segregationist South Africa.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: A massive weather disturbance tracking eastward across Hudson Bay is the main feature influencing the weather across Ontario today. Cloudy cover from this system covers most of northern and central Ontario, but brisk southerly winds should warm areas near the lower lakes into the reasonable mid 60s. As the disturbance reaches the eastern shores of Hudson Bay tonight winds across Ontario will shift to brisk northwesterlies and very cool arctic air pulled over southern Manitoba will begin to push down across the province, reaching the lower lakes by mid-day Saturday.

Pollution Worse Indoors Than Out

TORONTO (CP) — Pollution is judged by a double standard —levels of chemicals considered unsafe outdoors are accepted indoors, Dr. Maurice LeClair, deputy federal health minister, said Thursday.

He asked industrial physicians at an occupational health conference:

"How does one explain, for example, that if the community standard for lead in the atmosphere is five micrograms per cubic metre, it is acceptable for men and women to spend their working lifetime in concentrations 40 times this level, or in the case of beryllium, that it is acceptable for workers in an industrial environment to breathe concentrations 200 times that which is permitted outside the plant boundaries?"

Beryllium is used in the manufacture of fuel rods for atomic reactors in plants such as those in Peterborough and Port Hope, Ont.

Concern is expressed when the pollution index reaches 58 in a community, but sulphur dioxide and particles suspended in the air reach levels above 1,000 and "are considered acceptable indoors over a working lifetime."

The depuy f health minister said in an interview later that the National Research Council is working on criteria for pollution levels. Health Minister John Munro has announced that the federal government plans to bring in a Clean Air Act, possibly this fall.

Dr. LeClair criticized doctors for failing to provide leadership saying their lack of activity in the pollution field is one of the most glaring shortcomings in occupational health.

The three-day conference is sponsored jointly by the Ontario Medical Association section on occupational health and the Industrial Medical Association of Quebec.

Pollution Probe Speakers

Tony Barrett, a founding member and the financial co-ordinator for Pollution Probe addressed business, industrialists and politicians at the fall dinner meeting of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce last night. "We are trying to stop violations of pollution laws (and in turn, violations of the law of the balance of nature)" he said. Prof. Ralph O. Brinkhurst, acted, professor of zoology at the University of Toronto, also spoke. See page 2.

Chamber of Commerce Speaker:

Pollution Fight Should Involve Everyone

Pollution Probe came to town last night as Ralph O. Brinkhurst, Professor of Zoology at the University of Toronto delivered a 20 - minute talk on pollution which, while entertaining and informative, pulled few punches.

Without proper controls, it is inevitable that effluent will rob the waters of Belleville of oxygen, the prime resource we need.

"Man is dependent on water, oxygen and the whole world around us, just like any other mammal; the study of nature is really the study of man."

Prof. Brinkhurst outlined the delicate balance of the earth and how man's ever-population can have a direct bearing on the ecology of life on this planet.

"North American demands more than per capita than the starving masses of India or Asian countries. We require more land, and more water to fulfill our needs. We have highways, large, expensive cities and vast expanses of land whereas you rarely see anything like this in the so-called uncivilized countries — unless western man has brought civilization to him," he added.

"Government of-cials have promised me that within my lifetime, there will be 20 million people living between Windsor and Montreal."

It is figures such as these upon which Prof. Brinkhurst bases his statement that "population is a basis of pollution".

Commenting on the proposed pipeline to draw drinking water from Lake Ontario, the Pollution Probe scientist drew to the attention of the gathered businessmen and industrialists the fact that the waters of the Bay of Quinte were not sufficient for the demands of the growing population.

"How many of you have sold cottages property and moved higher up the river because of the pollution and algae in your waters?

"We can't go on regarding our resources as common property. They must come under legislation and stringent controls."

Eyebrows were raised at the professor's statement that "man will have to limit the population."

"As harsh as it may seem, the average family must be limited to 1.5 children.

"Now this is, of course, only an average. It couldn't be expected that families would have to produce half a child," he quipped.

"We must have a revolution in attitudes. With medical men prolonging life, and reducing the child mortality rate, nature can't control the balance of population as she does for all other life.

"We must become very efficient technically and industrially; everything should be recycled . . . water, wastes, and anything else that can be salvaged.

"Here our government has just approved the sale of natural gas to the United States and believe me, there is no replenishment of this natural resource."

The professor was talking about the federal government's approval of the increase of more than 50 per cent in exports of natural gas to the U.S. The increase is from 4.3 trillion cubic feet of gas to 13.3 trillion cubic feet over the next 20 years.

Both the provincial financial co-ordinator Tony Barrett and local Pollution Probe worker Ed Thompson, urged the citizens of Belleville to approach all levels of government and find out who has the power to change things, enforce laws and bylaws, and pass new ones.

"Ask yourselves how large you want Belleville to be; how many more people can the area tolerate," the professor continued.

"Unless you begin immediately, the overbalance will be upset and by then it is too late . . . it is noticeable now, and now is the time to take action."

Mr. Barrett termed Pollution Probe an "environmental lobby, an educator and a go-between for scientists and the public.

"We have been called reactionaries but we're not out to hush down on industry, only attempt to stop the violators."

The business member of the team explained that Probe has two conveyed labs in which 12 full-time, 148 active workers and 50 summer employees meet to discuss and analyze findings.

He indicated the growing interest and enthusiasm in Pollution Probe by outlining the growing number of professional organizations and recognized that were backing the pollution fighters.

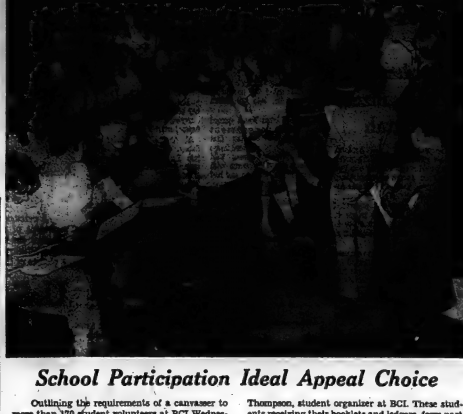
In conclusion, Prof. Brinkhurst drew attention to the pollution seminar to be conducted at Loyalist College on Oct. 17.

"This type of movement indicates the growing concern about our environment and. I urge you to attend to receive a more technical explanation of the problem. If you want to learn more about your environment and what is happening to it: If you want to take courses or have your children take courses on this subject, contact colleges, universities and government officials, it's the only way.

"With more people aware, the job can move ahead more rapidly."

East Hill Gets Chill



Many east hill residents shivered with cold water this morning due to a faulty control at their water heating system system.

A flood of complaints greeted Belleville Public Utilities workers as they arrived on the job this morning.

Source of the trouble was a faulty heater control at number 2 substation, preventing the rusted Hydro heaters in houses in the Bridge St. to Bayview area as far west as Front St.

The control switched to an off position late Thursday evening due to dust in a relay, and water tanks failed to heat up. The trouble has occurred before, said a spokesman for the PUC, but is usually caused by lightning.

The control was repaired early this morning and hot water restored to the affected areas of the city.

School Participation Ideal Appeal Choice

Outlining the requirements of a canvasser to more than 120 student volunteers at BCI Wednesday, were Ald. Ben Corke, appeal chairman for the United Community Services; Mrs. Mary McLaughlin, residential campaign organiser and Gary Thompson, student organizer at BCI. These students receiving their booklets and ledgers, form part of a team of more than 500 students across the city who have volunteered their services for next week's campaign.

What's Future of Old School?

NEWBURG (Staff) — The fate of the historic Newburgh Academy here hangs in the balance, poised between a future as an electronics workshop or a historical restoration.

C. N. Chapman has offered to buy the building for $5,000 for his electronics business. But the Lennox and Addington board of education, owners of the building, has decided to file the purchase offer until a group formed committee can bring in a report on its retention as an educational museum.

Robin Fluke of Newburgh, is trying to form a committee to save the old school, one of only two of its kind remaining in the province, and restore it to its original condition. His initiative prompted the board of education to defer a decision on the fate of the school.

The Ontario Teachers' Federation has indicated that it might participate in a restoration project if it can find the funds.

The building dates from 1839 and the passage of the first School Act in Ontario. It was a grammar school in the English tradition, offering classes to beginners through to the equivalent of high school graduation today.

After 1846, it became a model school, where teachers were trained at the same time as pupils were taught. In 1870 it became a continuation school, offering early high school courses. It continued to serve the same function until 1952, when the secondary school students were transferred to Napanee Collegiate Institute. But it continued to be used as an elementary school until 1966.

Since then the grey stone school, built in the English classical style and remodeled after a fire in 1877, has been abandoned.

Lennox and Addington's director of education, Colin McLeod, has indicated his support of attempts to retain and restore the building, commenting that it would be a worthy addition to the county.

Committee Studies Automatic Signals

Some time early next spring all traffic lights in the city's downtown area and east and west along Dundas Street, will be tied into a central traffic control system.

At least that is the hope of city council traffic committee chairman Alderman Arthur Keegan who expects the contracts for supply of the system to be let before the end of this month.

This year city council provided $20,000 in the current budget for purchase of the equipment but this figure is something of a guesthsot.

"We don't know exactly what the system will cost," said Alderman Keegan this week following a visit with traffic committee members to Eagle Electronics at Georgetown, manufacturers of traffic control equipment.

Making the trip to Georgetown to view the various control systems available were Aldermen Keegan, and E. A. Orr; City Engineer Wilbur Purcell, L. Burnham, utilities commission manager, Police Chief Douglas Crosbie and Inspector Ralph Blatchford.

Eagle Electronic Company technicians will visit the city about the middle of October to outline what the control system can be expected to accomplish.

Alderman Keegan said the central control system to synchronize downtown traffic lights would be installed at the city police station. Bell Telephone circuits will connect the control system with the individual traffic lights.

Installation costs of the control system will be additional to the purchase price.

Red Cross Courses Effective

More and more people each year are taking up aquatic recreation, but the number of drownings is on the decrease.

Part of the responsibility for the drop in water accidents goes to the Red Cross water safety program, operated in Belleville at the Kinsmen pool in summer and in conjunction with the Kiwanis and the YMCA in winter.

At the September meeting of the Belleville Branch of the Red Cross, Canterbury Workman reported that 548 awards were given in the water safety program this year.

Loyalist College students will donate blood at a clinic set aside for them Oct. 7. Another clinic will be held Oct. 8 at Club Canara. Cecil Heard, chairman of the blood donor service, told society members that one million blood donations are required annually to meet the needs of Canadian hospitals.

Scrolls presented to donors making 50, 75 and 100 donations will be framed in the future, the branch decided.

Anyone interested in joining the club will be able to do so by getting in touch with Irving Bohnsack, secretary - treasurer of the organization.

The Belleville Bridge Club was organized in 1946 and meets in the homes of its members once a week for league play. The club's president is Dr. Jack Ruspan.

F. W. Brennan To Belleville

A retired cheesemaker with a half century of experience in the trade, has made good bye to neighbors in the 5th concession of Tyendinaga township and has moved to Belleville.

Frank W. Brennan, 78, has sold the farm where he lived for 48 years and has taken up residence at 313 MacDonald Ave. Neighbors gave him a "going away" party before he moved to the city.

Mr. Brennan made cheese for 30 years at Albert Factory then moved on to Pine Grove from where he retired 18 years ago.

Snow Show Now Open

PICTON (Staff) — A three-day "snow job" begins today in the County Centre when 11 area snowmobile dealers will display their machines for winter '72.

Sponsored by the Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce, the snowmobile show is the kickoff in the county's first winter carnival program. "It's a good time to meet winter head on and enjoy it" is the motto for the fall showing of the latest in winter sporting equipment.

Featured during the snowmobile show will be 14 different makes and models of machines, all-terrain vehicles, special winter sports clothing and additional snowmobiling accessories. Tickets will be sold throughout the show on a deluxe snowmobile to be raffled later this season by the Picton Kinsmen.

Oddfellows Install Officers

The Belleville Independent Order of Oddfellows Subordinate Lodge No. 81 held its regular meeting last night and installed new officers for 1970-1971.

Rev Hackett will serve as Noble Grand. William Coveney as Vice Grand, Douglas Simpson as recording secretary, Larry Pollett as financial secretary and Arthur Gilroy as treasurer.

Following the installation, District No. 47's United Nations Pilgrimage for Youth Representative, Sharon Meyers, a student at Quinte Secondary School, was presented with a United Nations Pin by Past Grand Master Earl Pirt.

Mr. Hackett was presented with a three - linked Oddfellows pin by Mr. Pirt and an Oddfellows tie by his son, Master Scott Hackett.

Tank Drained to Paint Internal Rust Spots

City householders may not have noticed any difference in water pressure but the big elevated water tank on the East Hill has been out of use for nearly two weeks.

The big tank was drained to allow workmen to touch up rust spots which had appeared on the inside — this despite the fact the tank was repainted only a year ago.

Utilities Manager E. L. Burnham said the company which did the repair job a year ago was supplying the paint for the retouching, while utilities employees were doing the actual work.

The job is expected to be completed today and the paint will be allowed to dry over the weekend allowing the tank to be put back into use on Monday.

Without the elevated tank, the utilities has been forced to rely on direct pumping to supply main pressure throughout the city.

Mr. Burnham said this did not result in any more pumping, but could pose some difficulty should any of the pumps go out of service.

Industrial Commissioner Appointed for County

PICTON (Staff) — William J. Duggan, a Mississauga executive, this week was appointed industrial commissioner for Prince Edward County. At a caucus meeting of county council he was chosen from five applicants interviewed by a special council committee.

Mr. Duggan will arrive in Picton to begin his job within the next two weeks. Headquarters for the industrial commissioner will be established in Shire Hall. His duties include the promotion of Prince Edward County as an industrial and tourist area and the encouragement of liaison with local industries.

Search Successful

TRENTON (Staff) — A Cessna 180 amphibious aircraft was found safe yesterday afternoon soon after an air search had been organized to seek it in an area about 25 miles northeast of North Bay.

The pilot of the aircraft, Marie Mackie of Oshawa contacted North Bay tower about 10.30 a.m., reporting that he was lost, low on fuel, and heading due west.

Mr. Mackie was returning from a canoe hunting trip in Quebec with Gerald Ouellette and William Carson, also of Oshawa.

Another Caribou and a Dakota from Trenton were preparing to join the search when word came that the plane had been found safe after landing on a makeshift department of lands and forests airstrip on Smoke Lake in the immediate search area.

Pizzeria Pilfered

Police Chief Douglas Crosbie said this morning that three packages of cigarettes, $4.75 in change and 47 cents in pennies were stolen.

He said there were no signs of entry.

Their Talents Lead to Divorce

Toronto (CP) — Billy and Antoinette Edwards, stars of the controversial film A Married Couple, are planning a divorce.

"Billy and I just bring out the worst in each other," says Antoinette. "We don't put our forces in the right place when we're together."

It was the ability to "bring out the worst in each other" that made A Married Couple such a controversial film.

The documentary-style movie featured countless arguments and disputes between the Edwards, many featuring spicy language and some actual physical fighting.

Rink Start Next Week

Construction of Belleville's $250,000 ice rink on Harder Drive will be commenced next week.

The Ontario Municipal Board Wednesday notified city hall that a 1967 letter objecting to construction of a community centre had been withdrawn and that OMB approval for the project had been given.

Yesterday city council met in a special session to approve a money bylaw for construction of the rink and also a bylaw establishing the rink as a community centre.

The contract with Carr-Brisett Construction Ltd. will be signed today by Acting Mayor Robin Jeffrey.

With good autumn weather conditions, it is expected the new rink will be ready by Feb. 1.

Canada's Armed Forces

Members of Canada's armed forces are marking time these days watching with understandable trepidation as political figures play Russian roulette with the future of the military forces.

Hamstrung by political decisions placing a limit on defence expenditures and a maximum figure on the strength of the forces, Canada's military command is going around in ever tightening circles, forced to place its own finger on the self-destruct button.

As salaries and equipment costs rise each year, the military is required to lop off low priority programs in order to maintain some degree of effectiveness in its top priority commitments.

The military decisions, of course, are far from simplified by the action of the politicians. The cancellation of the Arrow was one such political decision. The authorization to proceed with the CF-5 purchases was another. Now they are to be taken out of mothballs and pressed into service, no doubt to eat up a considerable chunk of the budget in operating costs.

This is the situation in which the forces command finds itself — something akin to the animal which, perforce must chew off its own foot to escape a trap.

And the next swing around the mulberry bush is just in the offing.

Donald Macdonald, the new defence minister, hasn't given the armed services any reason yet to breathe any sighs of relief.

"The major defence problem in the next decade is what role we play in North America," was one of Mr. Macdonald's opening remarks upon his appointment.

It has many ramifications. What does it mean in relation to our NATO role and our European commitment? What does it mean as far as NORAD is concerned? What does it mean as far as any peacekeeping role is concerned — if in fact we even have that role left at this time? What does it mean as far as Canada's "sovereignty flights" are concerned — the issue on which Prime Minister Trudeau has put such emphasis?

Any answer to the last question could result in the next round of attrition as far as Canada's defence forces are concerned.

At this time the workhorse Argus airplane is undertaking the stepped up sovereignty flights in Canada's north as well as continuing its surveillance flights over the eastern and western seaboards and a major portion of the northwest Atlantic.

However, this plane is coming to the end of its serviceability and must be replaced in the near future. The mammoth investment at that time, if it has to be done within the confines of the budget calling at present in effect, will no doubt require a cutback in other areas — the losing of another foot caught in the trap.

Prime Minister Trudeau's blaise approach to the combat potential of today's forces coupled with his expressed willingness to cut back on our commitments to our allies loom as a spectre over the whole issue.

Unhappily too many decisions of past defence ministers were made on the basis of political expediency of the times rather than on any long range defence and foreign policy. Donald Macdonald, Canada's first defence minister to hold this cabinet position without any military background, has yet to indicate he is prepared to differ from his leader or from this approach.

For members of the armed forces charged with the implementation of our defence role it is a trying time. For Canadians as a whole the political vacillation — at times seemingly deliberate — has reached the acute stage where the armed services cannot be allowed to wither on the vine without a definite new sprout being nurtured into life.

The Senate And Mr. Benson

Controversy over Finance Minister Edgar Benson's white paper on taxation reform has died down to a considerable extent over the past month or so. Perhaps it was because Mr. Benson had agreed to make some concessions. Perhaps it was because many among the electorate had given up — wondering if it was at all worthwhile to "fight city hall."

Now, along comes the report of the Liberal dominated senate banking committee and the relative quietness of the past weeks appears as if it might have been just the lull in the storm.

In a biting criticism of the path being charted by the present Liberal party, the senate committee rejects the promise of sweeping reform and suggests instead a slower, methodical approach to tax change.

The committee's action will prove a very vexing one for Mr. Benson and his cabinet colleagues in the days ahead. It will no doubt be accepted with glee by opposition members who have been stumping the country trying to gain support.

The World Is Still SNAFU

Armed Forces: Situation Normal, All Fouled Up

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Something is going on now in the Armed Forces and it is worse than usual.

Which has to make it pretty awful.

Old events traditionally — but affectionately — abound, have insisted that historically in the good old services there's in the word for it.

Meaning, as everyone over maybe 40 in this modern peaceful-as-you're world should know, "Situation normal, all fouled up."

But ever since former Defence Minister Paul Hellyer tried and failed to trade in the heads of admirals, generals and air marshals for the Liberal leadership, SNAFU has to be spelled in big black block capitals.

All Paul Hellyer succeeded doing in trying to come across as the great glass-killer was to half-kill the Navy, Army and Air Force with integration that turned out to be unification.

Complete in the sense of sounding the retreat of the Armed Forces from all posts and ordered to stand down as a sort of Horse Guards.

It is not just the call - back of all but a thin, 120,000 lightly - manned, air - mobile force from the Canadian establishment in Europe, a slash in strength of more than 50 per cent.

Nor is it only the continued cut from 50,000 to 45,000 in manpower of total defence elements.

It is not even the paring to $1,815,000 bone of the national security budget.

Rather, it is all this and much, much more of the same — but most of all it is an attitude in High Places in the Government of something smacking uncomfortably close to contempt for the Armed Forces and all they have stood for through the years of war and the years of peace their existence have helped assure.

Could you imagine a Cabinet member of the Cabinet attended the annual Battle of Britain memorial ceremonies at Air Force Memorial Church in the National Capital?

Not the Defence Minister, the Prime Minister, even the Acting Prime Minister, no matter how busy or preoccupied with the veto or otherwise.

Difficult to credit if the Government, in a kind word-or-two-a-day - matters - of - fact air raid not confirmed it with little or no comment.

That the Prime Minister did not manage to show up was not much an affront to established custom and accepted tradition.

It is not even the paring to $1,815,000 bone of the national security budget.

Rather, it is all this and much, much more of the same — but most of all it is an attitude in High Places in the Government of something smacking uncomfortably close to contempt for the Armed Forces and all they have stood for through the years of Undoubtable, it, in fact, he had not flone it.

"Battle of Britain Day has followed Armed Forces Day and Air Force Day down the list of annual drabs. Battle of Atlantic Day, Remembrance, is still ahead.

Apologists for the Government have suggested that just perhaps the Cabinet might have thought that Battle of Britain Day was not British identified more with the RAF than the RCAF, and might even have sent relation to Queen Elizabeth whom since Liberals have come to want to "abolish," and State Secretary Gerard Pelletier has intended he would vote to remove from any Canadian contact.

What about the next historic day of remembrance, the 11th of November. Will the Prime Minister, the Defence Minister, other members of Cabinet be there at the National Cenotaph? Or will they be attending the Battle of British Day, to the Service chiefs?

One more slam of Cabinet contempt was the unbriefable the unconsciousness of the federal Cabinet in not meeting and briefing, not one of them, not even External Affairs Minister, on the NATO parliamentarians on their Canadian visitation tour.

Again, an outstanding explanation.

Give Liberal MP David Anderson of Victoria the credit for speaking out and saying it was a pretty shabby show, thinking of Admiral Boldy's offer to showelbows in not making briefing arrangements. After it was over, and the NATO parliamentarians were about to take off from Ottawa for the Manitoba capital, Mr. Sharp rushed in at the last gasp to spare them 30 minutes.

Poor performance, agreed Visitor Condition Boldy. They left on the NATO defence tour.

Canadian Cabinet Ministers were not the only absentees. The Americans stayed away too, forbidden by a defection to Prime Minister Trudeau's and Mitchell Sharp's anti-NATO proposition.

Pierre Elliott Trudeau

French Editorials

This is a collection of editorials on current issues, translated from the French-language press of Canada.

Quebec L'Action—The cabinet shuffle . . . by Prime Minister Trudeau may be considered very original and it lends itself to diverse commentary because of the persons and the portfolios concerned and because of the circumstances surrounding the changes. . . .

Mr. Trudeau selected Donald Macdonald as defence minister. . . . With Mr. Macdonald in defence, we may well be able to set ourselves seen if Canada really needs to maintain its impressive armed forces. If the forces are needed only to sustain alliances, . . .

We will soon see to what point Canadian defence policy will be influenced by the new minister because one of the English-Canadian dailies yesterday was responsible a while paper, in preparation now, on Canada's defence policy.

Mr. Trudeau also announced the appointment of Jean-Pierre Cote as minister without portfolio responsible for the post office. . . . There is the question, however, of what happens to Eric Kierans in this story, and for what reasons he was shoved aside.

In fact, Mr. Kierans officially remains one of the communications minister. . . .

We believe that Mr. Trudeau owes it to us that Mr. Kierans' tenacity now to work on as important problem—negotiations between the federal government and the provinces on the subject of non-resources taxations for Ottawa. It is a subject we'll be talking more about soon because we know that the province as a body strongly nationalist views on the question.

We think Mr. Kierans has been selected as a front-line soldier.

It would be hard to have it otherwise, because we can hardly imagine an Eric Kierans conciliatory sealed, calm and quiet, on a sofa lost on the summit of a department. He has far too much energy and too much fight to resign himself to such inactivity — Roger Brunson (Sept. 30)

Trois-Rivieres Le Nouvelliste—Prime Minister Trudeau did not improve anyone in carrying out his "mini" cabinet shuffle. Just the opposite. The Canadian prime minister profoundly deceived us. . . .

Naturally, the occasion was utilized to effect the departure of the former defence minister, Les Carlucci, provided an excellent trump card for Mr. Trudeau to make the changes. We would have preferred that the prime minister . . . invite directly certain MPs to take part in the federal administration instead of continuing to play second fiddle.

The most important change is the appointment of Jean-Pierre Cote as head of the post office. As a result, the portfolio of communications which he had before.

It is that happy decision, without a shadow of a doubt, that we have been waiting for from Prime Minister Trudeau. We know more and more, principally after the last parish dispute, that Mr. Kierans was not the most highly regarded man by the public. His role in his department ended in a real fiasco. Mr. Trudeau therefore had to make the change.

Despite the setbacks that Mr. Kierans has suffered in the past office, he must not be allowed to carry the brunt of failure. We may have been wrong on several occasions in throwing all the credit on Mr. Kierans. It must not be forgotten that in effect he was the scapegoat of federal authorities, and that members of the Trudeau cabinet must bear their share of blame. . . .

We wish that certain MPs such as Pierre de Bane, Jean-Pierre Goyer, may also be called to play an important role in the cabinet level. Let us hope that this . . . shuffle is but the prelude of bigger things to come. —Rejean Le Chasse (Sept. 30)

Nasser Succeeded in Restoring Egypt's Self Respect

By CY FOX
Canadian Press Staff Writer

In the years before his death, President Nasser of Egypt was much maligned in the West for his role in Cairo's nationalization of the Suez canal and as the man who paved the way for the influence now enjoyed by the Soviet Union in the Middle East.

Since his sudden death, many Western commentators have felt obliged to give Nasser credit for at least being the dominant personality on the Arab scene as well as in the domestic politics of Egypt.

This contrasts with the situation at the time of the 1956 Anglo-French invasion of Egypt when Guy Mollet, then premier of France, compared Nasser to both Hitler and Stalin.

Nasser's reputation in Britain during that era was something on a par with Mollet's evaluation, to the point where the contrast between the anti-Nasser outbursts common in the 1930s and the post-mortem respects currently being paid to the Egyptian chief of state in the West is glaringly obvious.

A British cartoon on the occasion of his death depicted a London journalist explaining how he managed to switch his line on Nasser for purposes of the obituary compliments now called for,

"All I did was dig out what I wrote about Nasser during Suez and simply reverse the adjectives" the fictional obituary writer says.

Yet it has become clear to the most passionately anti-Nasser elements in the West that the late president did much for the Egyptians, however unsuccessful some of his foreign policy ventures may have been.

Apart from the pioneer programs of long-needed welfare efforts and economic development launched by his government, he succeeded in restoring to the ordinary Egyptian a sense of self-respect rarely enjoyed during the country's long period of subservience to the Western powers.

Moreover, Nasser in his later years proved to be a moderating force in the intricate and explosive politics of that perennially-troubled part of the world.

His role in bringing some semblance of peace to a battle-weary Jordan was only one indication of the ability he recently showed in reconciling the traditional forces represented by Arab monarchs like King Hussein with the radical nationalism of the Palestinian Arab guerrillas and other representatives of the new forces stirring in the Moslem world.

Thus, reports circulating in Europe about a struggle for power in Egypt involving friends and critics of Russia's recently-won pre-eminence in that country have great significance for global politics as well as for the future of the 30 million people governed from Cairo.

Israel will be watching for signs of whether Egyptian policy will harden or become more flexible as the search for a peaceful settlement to the Arab-Israeli conflict.

And President Nasser, unable so far to make a public prediction of the outcome, will have to give developments in Egypt prime importance in measuring not only the state of the Middle East crisis but also the world-wide balance of power between the United States and the Soviet Union.

Thieu Predicts That War in Vietnam Will Soon Dwindle to Frontier Strife

By CONRAD M. BLACK
Publisher, Sherbrooke Record

SAIGON (CP) — President Nguyen Van Thieu of South Vietnam predicted Thursday that the Paris peace talks will end in failure and that the Vietnam war will be reduced to a relatively minor frontier action within three years.

He said there "aren't too many militaries" in his government but acknowledged that corruption is rampant.

The president spoke of a split developing in the North Vietnamese government and a lowering of the North Vietnamese morale and mentioned the possibility that the Hanoi regime might be overthrown one day. Reunification of the North and South was a future possibility.

Thieu also said that North Vietnam will never recover from the Southern allied incursions into Cambodia earlier this year.

The bombing of North Vietnam was a "defensible reply to aggression that had set the North back 20 years." It was a "mistake" to halt it in 1968.

These points, plus some strong remarks about world figures as United Nations Secretary-General U Thant, former president Charles de Gaulle of France and Prince Norodom Sihanouk, deposed Cambodian head of state, and his American critics, were highlights of a wide-ranging interview that Thieu granted this reporter.

The president said that the Paris peace talks will never get anywhere. This was because if the Communist regime agreed to peace it then would have to explain to its people why 950,000 North Vietnamese died in a war that they had not won.

The overthrow of Prince Sihanouk by the Lon Nol regime in Cambodia and the subsequent incursions into Cambodia sanctuaries by the Southern allies was a "decisive turning point in the war."

"Now say it will take the enemy nine months to recover. I say they will never recover."

He said the closing of the port at Kompong Soon, the loss of access to the Cambodia rice harvest and the seizure of the sanctuaries, "even more than the heavy loss of men and equipment, has caused the enemy permanent paralysis."

Increasing pressure on the Ho Chi Minh Trail would aggravate the North Vietnamese difficulties. He would vehemently oppose any unconditional cessation of the bombing of the trail which makes from North Vietnam through Laos, Cambodia and South Vietnam.

The North Vietnamese eventually would overthrow or alter their system of government with which they would bargain only from strength. This was already worrying Chinh.

Reunification was an unrealistic objective "at least for the next few years" but it was a long-term possibility. Meanwhile, he did not contemplate an invasion of the North.

He ridiculed views that his government should have a different base.

"There aren't too many militaries in it, but we have had to draw upon the army as a source of training, discipline, competence and leadership, because these qualities cannot be found elsewhere in our society."

The use of the military was common in all under-developed countries. Generals were not uncommon in American political history, from George Washington to Dwight Eisenhower.

Thieu said he has an fears of a coup and added that communism is "completely unacceptable to almost all of the South Vietnamese people."

He acknowledged that governmental corruption is rampant. But he said he has never tolerated it and is pledged to eliminate it, "both individually and radically." Its incidence would be reduced by a forthcoming economic program that would include pay increases for the military and civil servants, reduce the "temptation for corruption" — consequent of inflation — and other measures. Village and hamlet elections had "put power in the hands of the people and eliminated corruption where it had previously been worst, at the local level."

He emphasized that he believes that corruption exists in any country in wartime and often continues after hostilities end. He had stated in his Freedom in 1967 and in South Korea in 1967.

Thieu said he agreed with such experts as Gen. William C. Westmoreland, former head of the U.S. forces in Vietnam, that South Vietnam was on the verge of a general collapse when the then president Johnson partially halted bombing in April, 1968. He said he opposed the bombing halt or any other unconditional concession to the North, unless it led quickly to peace.

Although he said Johnson's halting of the bombing of the North was a mistake, he expressed gratitude and admiration for the former president. He said Johnson was "a large measure, the savior of the freedom of Vietnam."

He had some hard words for others.

Secretary-General Thant had always favored communist over nationalism in Vietnam and advocated unilateral allied withdrawal, he said. Thant's call for a broadly-based coalition government in South Vietnam was "unjust, contrary to the principles of the UN, which opposes interference in the internal matters of states, and revealed him as an unsuitable occupant of his position."

De Gaulle was an "angry and unpredictable proponent of last causes" whose policies on Vietnam had been "motivated by anti-Americanism."

Sihanouk was "angry, desperate and hopeless also."

tive, ignorant and politically motivated" and incompetent to judge South Vietnam's development s because they had never visited the country. However, he was encouraged that the majority of Americans were aware of the progress that had been made.

Coverage by the foreign media in Vietnam varied from objective to incompetent and irresponsible but there had been great improvement during the last couple of years.

Thieu said that he was elected in 1967 on a platform of a just peace, implementation of democracy and improvement of social conditions.

"Like all politicians, I believe that I could win re-election, but whether I seek another term next year or not depends on the degree to which I feel I have succeeded in the enactment of that platform."

Nguyen Van Thieu gave the distinct impression that he felt he had succeeded rather well.

Ontario NDPers Oppose Gas Sale

TORONTO (CP) — The Provincial Council of the Ontario New Democratic Party Thursday prepared a statement expressing angry opposition to the sale by Canada of additional supplies of natural gas to the United States.

The statement, which will go before the provincial party's convention this weekend as an emergency resolution, says the party is appalled at a federal decision it calls a sell-out that could seriously jeopardize the Canadian economy.

The statement says Canada needs its natural resources for its own use, and that the long-term deal will increase the price of natural gas to Canadian customers.

The council is the provincial NDP's governing body between conventions.

B. Danson, York North Trudeau's Secretary

OTTAWA (CP) — Barnet J. Danson, 46, Liberal MP for York North, Thursday was appointed parliamentary secretary to Prime Minister Trudeau.

Mr. Danson's appointment was one of 14 announced by the prime minister. Parliamentary secretaries assist cabinet ministers with their Commons and government duties and receive $4,000 a year on top of their $18,000 annual pay as MPs.

The Commons, which reconvenes Monday, will need a new deputy speaker. The previous one, Hugh Faulkner, 37, MP for Peterborough, is appointed parliamentary secretary to State Secretary Gerard Pelletier.

James A. Jerome, 37, MP for Sudbury, becomes parliamentary secretary to Privy Council President Allan MacEachen, government House leader. Mr. Jerome will have responsibility for much routine Commons business.

Other Ontario MP appointments:

Alastair W. Gillespie, 43, Toronto Eglinton, to Treasury Board President C. M. Drury.

INCREASE IN AID

TOKYO (AP) — The Japanese government spent more than $1,300,000,000 in 1969 on economic aid to foreign countries, 30 per cent more than in the previous year, the finance ministry reported.

Important notice to all certificated Motor Vehicle Mechanics, Transmission Mechanics, Auto Body Repairers, Truck-Trailer Repairers, Fuel and Electrical Systems Mechanics, Alignment and Brakes Mechanics, and Motorcycle Mechanics.

It's about your new trade certificate (above). We've sent out billing notices for renewals to every certificate-holder in the Motive Power Trades, and we've already got a lot of them back marked "Address Unknown".

So it's really about your change of address, if you've had one. Maybe it got lost in the mail. Or maybe you forgot to send it. Whatever the reason, if you hold a Certificate of Qualification in the Motive Power Trades and haven't received a billing notice yet, send us your new address immediately because the closing date for renewals is October 31, 1970.

Under the new regulations change of address must be filed within 15 days of the change. If you don't renew your certificate of qualification within a year of its expiry date, you've got to pass the exams again to become re-instated.

The New System.

We're changing the renewal system. Certificates for all compulsory-certified trades in Ontario will, in future, be renewed every two years based on the certificate holder's birthdate. We've started with the Motive Power Trades by sending out billing notices to let you know the fee to obtain your new certificate.

We hope you have received your billing notice. If you haven't, it may be because we don't know where you live.

'Any Length' to Boost City

Sorority Sisters Boost City

The delegation, representing some 100 Belleville members from six local chapters, will be boosting their home city during their stay in Kitchener, the convention centre. The local convention-ers have purchased several yards of Quinte tartan, the wool worsted made popular during Centennial year. Each member has, at her own expense, made a costume which she will wear to Kitchener.

In place of the usual jewelry, they will be all wearing "Belleville Booster Buttons," the emblem made popular during last year's "Belleville Week" promotion.

"We got very excited boosting our community with our activity in sponsoring the fashion show during Belleville Week. Our enthusiasm in boosting Belleville has carried forth to this year . . . it has prompted us to promote Belleville at the convention," noted Mrs. Anne Davey.

Belleville products are going to be shared with some of the 400 delegates at the convention. Mrs. Dorothy Day, president of Xi Alpha Mu Chapter said, "I have been assured that each room occupied by the Belleville girls will be a "mini" hospitality suite. Black Diamond cheese will be one Belleville product available to our Canadian friends".

The Belleville Industrial Commission and the Chamber of Commerce are supplying the Belleville delegation with Belleville booster buttons, brochures, and tourist travel folders, which will be available from any Belleville girl at the convention.

Another sorority sister, Pat Belyea, a Belleville school teacher, is promoting Belleville as a convention centre. "I would like to think Belleville could have this Eastern Canada convention right here in Belleville in the near future," remarked Mrs. Belyea.

The delegates have arranged to see the popular presentation of 'School for Scandal' at the Stratford Theatre. One member pointed out that one of the objectives of the sorority is to promote culture and the arts in the community. The Phi Pi Chapter is sponsoring the Parisienne pianist, Aline Vanlierentem for a concert to be held at the Centennial Secondary School on October 19. This activity is in co-operation with the Quinte Arts Council.

U.C.W. Meeting

COLLEGE HILL UCW

President Marilyn McIntosh conducted the record meeting of College Hill UCW held in the church hall.

During the business portion a number of reports were given. Supply convener, Mrs. Bailey gave a report stating that the UCW donation to the Anglo Mission had been sent. The date for the fall rally is Nov. 2 at Eastminster United Church. Mrs. Carolyn Emerson announced that plans for the Woodley's Fashion Show to be held Oct. 14 in the church hall were completed.

Following the business, the devotion was conducted by Mrs. Evans assisted by Kathryn McIntosh and Anita Dickens.

Kathryn McIntosh was also in charge of the program and gave a talk on "Looking at ourselves as Christians." Members were divided into groups of four for a short discussion period.

Lunch was served by Mrs. Nina Walker assisted by Nina Neal and Anita Dickens.

Fast-pace Trends in Men's Fashion World

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian male continues a liberation movement of his own — in clothing styles.

Men, once satisfied to dress in somewhat subdued attire, are no longer content to let the women steal the whole show in the fashion world.

And why not?

It's the male bird that usually has the plumage.

So this fall, more than ever, women are going to have a power struggle on their hands trying to be as fashionably dressed as their mates.

The well-turned-out man about-town this fall will be clad in bright colors and his styles —like those of the women— will continue to follow the fast-pace trends of the high fashion world.

A Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press shows:

—Ties will be wider and wilder.

—Coats and jackets will be longer.

—Flared or straight cut pants will both be popular.

—But white shirts are a no! no!

The bright-colored shirts will come on stronger than ever, according to the fashion experts.

Lapels will also be wider and double-breasted suits will be in. However, single-breasted models are certainly not destined for immediate extinction—not by a long shot.

About 46 per cent of the suits sold will be double-breasted," according to the fashion experts.

As to suit colors, most experts see blue and grey as the colors of choice, with browns, golds and greens losing some of their previous popularity.

But there will continue to be a generous sprinkling of striped and checked patterns and some geometric designs.

There will be a few men's maxi coats on the scene, but the trend is not expected to be a major one.

As to footwear, the boot stylings will continue to be favorites and a good deal of buckles and straps will be evident.

Belts, wide and with conspicuous buckles, are another feature predicted for the fall fashion season.

In Newfoundland, the trends will follow closely those of the mainland provinces with suits cut on European lines accepted as the pace-setters.

The suits will feature patch or false pockets, inverted pleats, tapered waistline and flared pants.

Olive greens and bronze with pinstripes will predominate.

The ties will be wide and ascots and sailor scarves are expected to be widely accepted worn with casual shirts or belted sweaters.

Fashion experts in Nova Scotia say they are not predicting any dramatic changes, but colored shirts have taken over.

The trend to European styling will also be felt in the Montreal area where the firm of Progress Brand Ltd., has announced it has bought the Canadian rights to designs by Marc Boran of Christian Dior, the Paris fashion house.

"We now are trying to imitate European styles for the Canadian public," said Nelson Weingarten, sales manager for Progress Brand.

Meanwhile the firm has switched most of its jacket production to double-breasted styling for fall, down from less than a third of its output last year, double-breasted lines will take up more than half the production.

After a period of browns, greens and golds, the company this year has switched predominantly to grey with a variety of stripes.

In Toronto, spokesmen for Eaton's of Canada Ltd. and Robert Simpson Co. Ltd. are predicting the fashion-conscious man will be buying: pants, flared or straight; coats and jackets longer; shoes with a boot look; wide ties and lapels, and some changes in color preferences.

Doug Steele, general manager of merchandising for Simpson's, said coats will have a military influence with a Napoleonic collar and some shape.

Coats just below the knee will become the normal length, he said.

The average business suit will have a slight flare and the customer will have the option of cuffs or no cuffs.

In casual slacks, men will definitely wear flares and color. The casual slacks will frequently be accented with a broad belt, he said.

H. A. Daniels, men's clothing buyer at Eaton's in Toronto, said the blazer suit will "continue to command a lot of attention this fall."

Prime Minister Trudeau is expected to continue a pace-setting influence in Ottawa, where one pinstriped buyer said he's waiting to see what the prime minister chooses in an overcoat before committing himself to a style.

In Winnipeg, fashion experts say that the longer jackets are not yet popular in that area but a gradual swing to them is on the way. Gold-stripe patterns in jackets are expected to be a hit.

In Edmonton, there is a swing back towards the single-breasted style in suits. Wider lapels and more detailing such as stitching or pleats and belts in the back are expected to be featured.

In coats, Edmonton men will be introduced to oncoat coats this fall, in addition to the leather and furs that have done well in the past.

One men's clothing salesman said Edmonton men, especially the well-to-do ones, are among the best-dressed on the continent.

He said his store was selling shirts in chocolate brown, wine, teal, blue and red, now and then with grey, blue or black slacks.

A buyer for the Hudson's Bay Co. said its northern stores will be carrying the current fashions in the larger centres such as Yellowknife, N.W.T., and Whitehorse, Y.T. Yellowknife is also becoming more fashion-conscious, he said.

In Vancouver, double-breasted suits are in and many of the coats have sides vents. Stripes, often wider and in several colors, are also expected to be widely accepted. Large checks will also be popular, according to fashion experts.

CLOTHES ARE LONGER, WIDER AND WILDER — Men's fashions in Canada will come into their own this fall, A Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press shows that ties will be wider and wilder; coats and jackets will be longer and bright colored shirts will come on stronger. Double-breasted suits such as the one worn by the mannequin, featuring wider lapels, will grow in popularity, with blues and greys leading the way. (CP Photo)

CWL Annual Bazaar Held

Holy Name of Mary Parish, Marysville held its annual bazaar on Saturday, September 26, with Mrs. Don McLaren, president of the Catholic Women's League and Mrs. John Szczesiak, first vice-president welcoming the guests.

The hall was attractively decorated with maple boughs, sprays of wheat, fall fruits and flowers in rich autumn shades.

The booths skirted in white with autumn brown overlays were filled with home flowers were laden with an excellent variety of home baking, candy, sewing, vegetables as well as numerous other articles all of which sold very quickly. The lunch and tea was as well as the fish pond delighted the children.

The tea table was spread with a brown and ecrue lace cloth enhanced by brown candles and an attractive flower arrangement. Visiting residents from the neighboring organizations poured tea.

After a well attended dance, Rev. W. A. Jones announced a number of prize winners.

Ann Landers
Others' Comments Are Not Necessary

DEAR ANN LANDERS: After six years of marriage and two adopted children, I became pregnant. We were overjoyed. I miscarried in the fifth month and it broke my heart to lose that child. What I am writing about, however, is the stupidity and thoughtlessness of friends and family — including my own mother.

A nurse who attended me made this statement: "Ge..it's a shame. At least when you have a baby you have something to show for the pain. This way you go through all that and leave the hospital empty-handed." I didn't need HER to tell me what I was missing.

ANN LANDERS

When my mother came to see me she sat for one full hour describing in detail the miscarriages and stillborn babies she had had. Then she went on to report on every other member of the family who had a miscarriage. Her parting words were, "What happened to you is very common, my dear."

My first day home a neighbor asked me, "Was it a boy or a girl?" I didn't inquire and don't want to know.

Please, Ann Landers, tell people to stay off the subject of the pregnancy when they talk to a woman who has miscarried. Nothing they can say will help. Only time can heal the hurt. — MRS. R.

* * *

DEAR MRS. H.: One of the principal aims of this column is to educate. You have helped and I thank you.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: We are the desperate parents of a 7-year-old girl who has devoted herself completely to a boy who just turned 19. We have begged, pleaded, threatened and screamed about this ridiculous relationship but she tells us to leave her alone.

The boy is not an average 15-year-old. He is bigger than our son who is 21 and a help! type. He treats our daughter like dirt, tells her to shut her mouth if she displeases him and acts as if he owns her. To make matters worse, he lives directly across the street and she can't take one step out of the house but what he comes running over.

Our daughter is a smart girl (in some ways). She has a great job and makes a nice salary. She pays for all their dates, tickets, buys him clothes and gifts and chauffeurs him every where in her car. It drives us crazy to witness her disgraceful conduct. What can we do? — H.H.

* * *

DEAR H.H.: You can lay off — and I hope you do it soon because your opposition is binding them together. The more you knock the boy the more she'll defend him. When you stop complaining to her, she might decide to drop him. But she won't drop him so long as you are on her back.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am writing this letter on a plane. We have been on the runway for 55 minutes. The problem is weather. Several passengers are behaving miserably — cursing at the stewardess, demanding a third drink, making obscene remarks. Don't these fools realize that the boys in the control towers are doing their level best to protect the lives of their passengers? Tell the morons off, will you? — FLIGHT 270.

* * *

DEAR 270: The morons don't listen, so why bother? Flight wars travel with a briefcase full of work. When I get stuck I relax and enjoy it and use the time profitably.

Kitchen Tested Recipes
Error in Recipe For Salmon Mousse

By MARY MOORE

ATTENTION is CORRECTION please: On August 14 I gave you a recipe for Salmon Mousse. Mrs. E. A. McL. wrote pointing out that the amount of gelatine was not correct. It should have been 1¼ TABLESPOONS gelatine (instead of 1¼ tsps.). I apologize to all who tried this and hope they will test it again with the correct amount of gelatine as it is an excellent mousse.

QUESTION: We have our own garden and our own freezer. We have a surplus of carrots which I would like to put in my freezer. Would you please tell me how to prepare them for the freezer? Joyce L.

ANSWER: My secretary, Betty Rose, frozs her own home-grown carrots in summer of 1969. Last month she froze a half bushel again from her own garden and gave me her method.

HOW TO FREEZE CARROTS

Wash fresh carrots, scrub clean with stiff brush or coarse mesh or scraper and slice thinly or cut into ¼" dice. Boild prepared carrots in large container such as a pressure cooker or clean plastic dishpan. Measure into 2 or 4 cup measure the exact amount of carrots you require for one meal for your family. Have ready on the stove a pot full of boiling water brought by a stove. Pour measured carrots into sieve, being sure they are submerged and blanch (boil) 3 min. Lift sieve from pot and immediately chil blanched carrots by tipping them into a colander standing in large amount of cold water in sink. (At once measure next batch carrots to blanch.) As soon as carrots are cooled to water temperature (2 or 3 min.) lift colander, drain off excess water, tip carrots onto clean white Turkish towel, folding towel over them and jostling dry. Scoop into plastic freezer bag and apply twist to make them airtight and fast freeze. It is a good idea to have an assistant to dry and bag carrots if possible.

HAIR CLOGS DRAIN

LIMERICK, Ireland (AP)— Long - haired visitors to this city's municipal swimming pool have been ordered to wear bathing caps. "The pool had to be closed," said a city engineer, "because the filtering system is clogged up with great masses of human hair." But just how long is long? This wasn't answered in the order.

Successful Living
Expectant Mother in Fear of Childbirth

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: I have been married for two years and I'm expecting my first child in December. I'm a bit frightened of childbirth and I was wondering if you could send me some material on pregnancy and childbirth.

I'm too shy to ask my doctor or my mother or any of my sisters. — A Bit Frightened.

Dear Frightened: Here's a pat on the back for writing to me about it.

Being shy with your doctor doesn't make sense. He deals with the miracle of childbirth every day, and no matter how scarey it seems to you, he'll be confident and certainly not shy.

Hand him your list of questions written down. Laugh a little (instead of looking desperate) and ask him for the answers. Make him your chief authority and count on what he says. I am sending you a list of books about pregnancy and childbirth and your public library will be able to supply these or other good ones.

If you are near a centre where prenatal classes are being given, attend them and get extra help for yourself and your little one.

* * *

Dear Doris: Is it right for a woman who considers herself quite religious to keep her home dirty and untidy and let the children stay by themselves while she runs to church doings? The furniture is broken and the children destroy the place.

Now she is talking about taking a part - time job and leaving the children. with three under school age. She is my daughter - in - law. — What Next?

Dear What: The picture is not a pretty one. Religion, like charity, ought to begin at home, and what you describe is a neglected family.

Not that every woman is a natural - born housekeeper. In a home where there are older, responsible teen-agers who will be there during the hours mother is at work, there might be a good enough arrangement. But — broken furniture? Piano scalers? Oh, no.

Dear Doris: I am 17. I have met plenty of guys and talked to quite a few too, but that's as far as it goes. None of them ever get any closer than that.

What I would like to know is how to make a good impression right at first so the boys will just naturally take a liking to you? Also, how would you act and be so that unknown boys will start talking to you? — Ignored Too Long.

Dear Ignored: What is this thing called charm? Fairy tales abound in love potions guaranteed to attract admirers and lovers. And all that means is that getting the boys interested has been a punishment for one heck of a long time.

Nothing beats friendliness. Practise thinking about him instead of about you. Be helpful. My "Tips On Talking" might help.

Catch his eye, whoever he happens to be, by looking your very best — hair clean and brushed, teeth clean, dress clean and pressed, best nails on.

Then do you really hope for unknown boys to start talking to you?

* * *

(We now have some understanding of why people act as they do. Write to Doris about your particular human problem, enclosing a stamped, private reply.)

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Child: "I guess it's my fault my Mommy and Daddy are getting a divorce. They're always yelling at each other about me."

Mother: "Daddy and I have decided it would be better if we don't live together any longer. It's not your fault at all and we both love you very much. Daddy will come to see you often."

Friend: "Maybe if you're good, they'll stay with you."

The child of divorced parents is likely to blame himself for the trouble. Each parent should emphasize that the child's actions have nothing to do with the separation and divorce.

Wanderers Not Always Welcome in Travels

THE LITTLE WOMAN

"I'll R with the super, of course . . . I always travel first class!"

By ARNIE HAKALA
Canadian Press Staff Writer

North America's wandering youth found cheap places to lay their heads last summer but their presence in Canadian hotels was not always welcomed.

Military barracks were converted into hostels in many Canadian cities and there was success in keeping youth off the streets and, in some cases, out of jail, but may lead to the continuation of the project in 1971.

However, a Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press shows that while most Canadians were in favor of the project, others expressed strong disapproval.

By far the most outspoken critic was Mayor Tom Campbell of Vancouver. When the Beatty Street armory opened July 8 in downtown Vancouver, he said bluntly:

"I was concerned that a military establishment was becoming a haven for draft dodgers, deserters and hippies. All I can say to these people is you're not welcome here."

But Gordie Mullin, co-ordinator of the Beatty Street project, typified a reaction across Canada when he said:

"It wasn't a question of what kind of people they were, it was a question of accommodation at a particular moment. At about $1 a night per person, it's cheaper than welfare and cheaper certainly than jail."

The secretary of state department, financier of the project at about 15 military establishments, said it was difficult to estimate just how many used the establishments although it recorded 72,000 "bed nights," meaning that each of the 1,500 beds provided was used about 48 times during the summer.

The alternatives to military facilities were overnight centres operated by private groups. A secretary of state spokesman said hostels other than those financed by his department probably served as many as the military establishments.

The cost of the program to the military was about $12,000, mainly for maintenance and guard service. The overall cost to the federal government for beds, sheets and other materials is expected to be about $250,000, close to the estimated cost.

At Revelstoke, B.C., 220 miles northeast of Vancouver, Mayor Don Gillespie headed a citizen's group collecting signatures protesting the hostel there.

A 18-year-old youth suffered minor injuries when he was beaten up by three men in their 40s and there were rumblings in August that a vigilante committee was going to run the youths out of town.

Among those who favored the hostels was Rev. Bill Dixon, director of the Calgary youth aid centre which was set up at the Mewata armoury between July 2 and Sept. 6.

He said the hostel which served 1,786 youths, and others across Canada, should be open year round. There was no trouble with police—"at least none of them got busted for anything."

At the Prince of Wales armoury in Edmonton, about 1700 young people—both male and female—stopped during the summer. There was a four-day limit set on the stay and a staff of five looked after the facility.

A spokesman for the Canadian Armed Forces in Edmonton said he had nothing but good to say about the use the young people made of the armoury.

About 4,500 young men used the YMCA Chippewa barracks on the southern edge of downtown Winnipeg during the summer, 65 to 90 per cent capacity each night. Capt. Bill Renaud said he did not detect any real opposition from the people of Winnipeg.

Winnipeg also had several private hostels and dining places set up by churches and other organizations.

There were no military hostels in Saskatchewan and few in Ontario and the Maritimes.

A military spokesman in Regina said a hostel in that city was not deemed necessary in view of the conversion of military buildings in Calgary and Winnipeg.

Most Ontario hostels were set up by private organizations.

In Cornwall, young people set up their own hostel in an old mansion and 500 persons stayed there during the summer.

Don Watkins, vice-president of the Cornwall YMCA, said the hostel was an "outstanding success", and "should make some people stand up and notice because it was entirely and successfully youth-operated."

In Sault Ste. Marie, the YMCA's youth hostel handled 3,189 people. There were no complaints from the community.

U.S. Dreams of Great Lakes Seacoast

WASHINGTON (CP-AP) — A long-time American dream of turning the Great Lakes into a thriving "fourth major U.S. seacoast" may be fulfilled under a far-reaching maritime bill on the verge of passage by Congress.

With its complex tax subsidies, tax breaks, and debt-forgiving features, officials say, the bill should clear the way for revitalizing the sagging U.S. shipping industry on the lakes.

"It puts the lakes on an equal footing with the other three coasts," said Robert J. Blackwell, assistant administrator of the maritime administration. "It could be a turning point."

The bill is primarily designed to rebuild the U.S. merchant marine fleet but amendments adopted in the House of Representatives and Senate expanded it to give a big boost to Great Lakes shipping.

The key provision appears to be opening a lucrative tax loophole to Great Lakes shipping companies, allowing them to defer corporate income-tax payments in turn for pledges to put the money into a special fund for new ship construction.

The hope is that the tax deferment provision will encourage new capital and more ships in the Great Lakes industry, Blackwell said.

Senator Walter F. Mondale (Dem., Minn.) said the tax break and a provision forgiving millions of dollars of interest owed by the St. Lawrence Seaway Development Corp. to the U.S. treasury "should be a boon to shipping on the lakes."

It was Mondale who was passage of an amendment cancelling future interest payments owed by the seaway, as well as $22 million deferred interest charges.

What it means is that the seaway, built 11 years ago by Canada and the United States to step up shipping to the heart of the continent, now will be on a sound financial footing, Mondale said.

It will then not have to raise its tolls and will be in a better position competitively to attract more shipping, the senator added.

The corporation, responsible for U.S. participation in the seaway, currently has a total debt to the treasury of about $155 million.

The corporation had an interest debt in early years of about $7 million and over the years has fallen behind in payments by an additional $15 million.

Forgiveness of the $22 million would leave an over-all debt of about $133 million which, a spokesman for Mondell said Thursday, could be paid off in the required 20 years at the current rate of income. Under terms of the original agreement the corporation was supposed to repay its debts by the year 2038.

Although the seaway tolls are agreed on in Ottawa-Washington negotiations, the spokesman for Mondale said the new bill "should give the American team a new platform from which to work" in their efforts to hold tolls at the present level.

In 1967, then-President Lyndon Johnson reached agreement with Canada on a four-year moratorium against further toll increases. That agreement runs out next year and Canadian and U.S. officials already have started preliminary negotiations on a toils agreement.

IF THIS IS THE KIND OF LIFE YOU LIKE—YOU'LL LOVE SHAWANO!

The great escape from the city is on. And there's no better place to escape to than Shawano. The 1,000-acre paradise of unspoiled lakes and forest in the beautiful Highlands of Hastings.

Are you one of thousands of Southern Ontarians fed up with the perpetual grime and grind of the city? The concrete claustrophobia.

Then consider Shawano. It offers most everything a big city can't. Solitude. Sandy coves; romantic points. Four crystal-clear lakes. For swimming, water skiing, fishing, boating, scuba diving. Pure air. Shady woodland trails. Great winter sports country. Tranquility. Hundreds of acres of mature oak, maple, birch, white pine. Birds and woodland game. Peace.

In this lovely natural setting you can buy a ¾-acre lakefront lot for as little as $400 down ($4,000 full price), and $38 monthly including interest at only 9¼%. Larger lots are available.

You can move into Shawano right now with a cottage and lot package deal from $9,900 full price with only 10% down payment. You can buy now and build later—take up to five years. You can buy a lot and cottage shell and finish it off yourself, in your own distinctive style.

The cottages were specially designed for Shawano. Many plans feature wide picture windows, sliding patio doors opening onto spacious cedar decks. Skilled tradesmen install hydro, plumbing, septic tanks.

New roads have been built into the property which are open all year. A marina, trading post, service centre and many other facilities are planned.

So if this is the kind of life you like—you'll love Shawano, where the living's better.

Drive up today. Take Highway 62 through Madoc to Steenburg Lake Road. Watch for Shawano signs. Visitor information centre is open daily 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. We have our resident agent on the site every day.

Bring your picnic lunch, swimsuits and fishing tackle and make it a family outing. We have picnic tables, complimentary soft drinks and we'll give you a leisurely lake cruise on our new "Shawano Belle".

Chamber Needs Members to Do Its Job

It is the intention of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce to "establish a membership committee whose function will be to explain the objectives of the chamber to as many as possible and to try to secure active participation and support."

Chamber president Frank C. Murray last night drew attention to the significance of membership in the chambers' role in the community.

"Undoubtedly the C of C has not received the support that we feel it should receive."

Mr. Murray was addressing members at the fall dinner meeting of the chamber, held at the San Valley Motor Inn.

Throughout the past year, the chamber has increased its duties and services to the community and it is through this increase and the pro-rata cost need for involvement that Mr. Murray stressed the need for increased membership.

"We are convinced that with the continuing encroachment of all forms of government into our personal and business life, that we need more than ever, organizations like the chamber, that are going to ensure that our present system of society will not be forced into a dull, unexciting, initiative—destroying, socialistic system."

Continuing, Mr. Murray stated, "In addition to these (the functions of the Belleville C of C) matters, it is essential that the chamber of commerce do everything possible to preserve and foster our system of free enterprise, and to encourage personal initiative."

In a recent interview, O. F. "Brad" Bradley, the manager of the chamber of commerce, outlined the position and duties of the organization.

One of the most obvious roles in the community is the Tourist Bureau, which receives visitors and offers vacation planning the year round.

Maps, brochures, and pamphlets for all of Canada's provinces, plus 13 eastern United States, are made available with more than 45 inquiries per day being received during the summer months, indicative of the importance of the bureau.

For the colder months, the information centre is well - stocked with lists of hunting lodges and skiing resorts. Plans are under way to have a complete range of brochures on skiing areas and snowmobile trails and camps in Ontario, Quebec and the northern States.

More than 6,000 inquiries are received every year and Mr. Bradley explained that an increase of 19 per cent was realized between 1969 and 1970.

The Business and Consumer Protection Bureau, similar to better business bureaus in its larger centres, attempts to assist both the consumer and the retail and service organizations.

They work with businesses in an attempt to clarify misunderstandings regarding retail policies, explaining warranties and guarantees.

Working in conjunction with the Belleville police department and city hall, the protection bureau endeavours to control itinerant salesman who employ unethical practices and who sell merchandise under misleading representation.

In a web of control, the Belleville bureau works closely with better business bureaus in the larger metropolitan areas.

Mr. Bradley advises citizens that there is a 24 - hour cooling off period which provides for written cancellation of a contract with an itinerant salesman within 48 hours (or two working days) providing that the value is in excess of $25.

Such salesman must register with the Department of Financial and Commercial Affairs and are requested to register with the chamber of commerce.

To this end, the Booster Committee distributes bimonthly programs of coming events to hotels, motels, industries, restaurants, and any establishment where people gather.

The brochures inform local citizens and visitors of activities and certain recreational facilities.

Familiarization courses for high school guidance teachers were for the second year a shared program of the Ontario department of education and the Belleville Chamber of Commerce for five weeks this summer.

With today's increasing demands on education, facilities are constantly improving for the education of the student. As a result, the department of education has worked through chambers of commerce by arranging for guidance teachers to visit various industries to get a cross section of the business world.

The five area teachers, Orville Madore of Belleville, Charles Browning of Madoc, John Murphy of Marmora, Allen Ray of Cloyne, and Barbara Lindsay of Oshawa, toured plants throughout the city, talking with foremen, workers and, where applicable, took part in field trips.

The position of the chamber in bringing these guidance counsellors in close contact with industry was ably explained by Terry Hawkins, coordinator of guidance for Northumberland and Durham counties.

"Industry can find out where education is going and guidance advisers can discover what industry has to offer and the new changes which have been developed."

A community events register is made available for the public to consult when social, cultural and recreational activities have been planned.

This chamber service helps organizers to avoid conflicting dates, ensuring maximum participation in events without doubling up.

Semi-annual tours are arranged with assistant trade commissioners touring area industry in a joint program in conjunction with the department of trade and commerce. The last Belleville tour, Jan. 28 of this year, involved nine visitors.

The Business Information Service, another branch of the chamber, keeps business directories from all cities in Ontario. These are available to the public.

Statistical and economic information is provided to businesses requesting details of the city and the surrounding area. Through this information, prospective locators can quickly obtain a picture of the business possibilities offered.

The Winter Carnival, being organized for the second year by the chamber, had its first general meeting on Wednesday night.

"Fans are going well," said Mr. Bradley. Service clubs, community organizations and interested citizens turned out to voice their suggestions for the upcoming winter event, to be held from Feb. 4 to 7, inclusive.

Plans for the boundless future of the C of C are to assist in a study to make recommendations regarding the formation of a Convention Bureau for Belleville.

A welcoming committee is to be formed to grant executives of new industries and businesses upon arrival to the city.

The chamber plans to bring speakers of particular interest to professional, industrial, and retail divisions of the chamber. To this end, the city manager and the industrial commissioner are to be invited to be honorary directors and participate in chamber board meetings.

Mr. Murray drew particular attention at last night's meeting to the services provided by Mr. Bradley and his assistant, Mrs. Helen Worrell.

In conclusion, Mr. Murray requested the "full support, particularly of the business and professional community of our city."

"We have the very serious responsibility of trying to correct some of the dangerous faults of our present system."

Styling and Barbering for UCS

Bill Kuipers, proprietor of the Hotel Quinte Barber Shop, will sponsor a special barber day at his shop on Wednesday, Oct. 7, with total payment for services going to the United Appeal Mr. Kuipers specializes in styling like customer Norm Hurt recently received.

Men's Hair Styling Is Finding Converts

By IAN ROBERTSON
Staff Reporter

Well, men, it's time to go to the barbershops.

First the shampoo, a chat about the weather, today's higher cost of living. Next a cloth wrapped around the head to take off the excess water.

Following this surprisingly relaxing handful, a little more razor and then light spray.

By this time it should be apparent that this process is not what might first come to mind.

The age - old profession of barbering is taking on a new face. No longer is the new-image barber strictly a wielder of razor and scissors.

Certainly he can cut hair exactly like barbers have been doing since the days when they also functioned as dentists and surgeons, but styling, grooming and hair care is playing an important role.

A recent arrival to Belleville from Kingston is Bill Kuipers, the new owner of the Hotel Quinte Barber Shop. Newly - elected president of the 43 - member Belleville Barber Association, Mr Kuipers is a hair stylist.

To both present the new image of barbering to Belleville and as active support for the United Appeal Campaign, the staff of the Hotel Quinte Barber Shop will give haircuts all day Wednesday, Oct. 7, with every cent going to the UCS.

Mr. Kuipers explained the position of the new breed of hair stylists.

"Men don't take as much care of their hair as women do; they think of hair care as a chore which has to be done.

"Hairstyling changes a man from one who has to go to a barber to one who wants to improve his appearance."

He explained that every man's head is slightly different, some more noticeably so. "A straight haircut sometimes suits one person and not another."

Thickness plays an important part in the work required to obtain the desired style. The illusion style is a careful manipulation of a person's thinning hair to cover that part of the head which is short of hair.

Long and short hair, thin and thick, can be shaped into a variety of styles.

Mr. Kuipe says compared clothes to his profession. "Men wear suits to improve their appearance; they shine their shoes.

"Why do they go to all that trouble and then not pay attention to their scalps . . . it's worthless to shiny shoes with a T-shirt.

"Parents have a lot to do with the length of their youngsters' hair (the idea (some parents advocate) of cutting off long hair can cause rebellion, but the idea of preserving neat long hair gives the youngster a sense of pride and the long locks no longer become a symbol of rebellion."

Remember when a straight haircut cost less than a dollar?

Today most wielders of the razor and shears charge in the neighborhood of $3 — more for the complete treatment.

However, the price descriptions and explanations might indicate the reasons for the higher prices beyond the obvious higher cost of living.

As increased study and new methods evolve, more care and work is required for the man who wants to follow today's trends in styling.

For decades it has been almost a ritual with women to spend some time out of every month in the beauty salon and the men's hairstyler brings forth a plausible argument when he asks "why shouldn't a man pay some attention to his appearance."

While not unmanly, some customers are doubtful about approaching the stylist for hair treatment but most "customers tend to stay," Mr. Kuipe added.

As one customer, Dick Lovering of CJBQ put it, "At first I thought it was high-styled tommy-rot, getting styled instead of just cut. But now I'll be back.

'Thought It Was Tommy-Rot'

This was Dick Lovering's first reaction to men's hair styling, but after seeing the results he admitted that he was quite pleased. True to form, the CJBQ personality quipped, "I'll probably come back once a year for trimming and styling, whether I need it or not."

Poet Wins Nomination

Al Purdy, renowned Canadian poet who makes his home in Ameliasburg, yesterday met three Intelligencer newspaper carriers, Maureen and Joanne Garvin and Chris McIntaggart, following his nomination to the International Newspaperboy Hall of Fame. Mr. Purdy, who delivered papers as a boy in Trenton, has been proposed for the Hall of Fame by The Intelligencer, to join former prime ministers of Canada and Ontario's premier on the list of distinguished Canadians who began their careers as newspaperboys.

Distinguished Poet Hall of Fame Nominee

Canadian poet Al Purdy will join other distinguished Canadians and Americans in the Newspaperboy Hall of Fame.

The Quinte district native who has established an international reputation as a leading poet has been nominated by The Intelligencer for the honor.

Only three other Canadians are among the 80 or more prominent Americans who began their careers as newspaper boys. They are Lester B. Pearson, John G. Diefenbaker and Ontario's Premier John P. Robarts.

Mr. Purdy, a native of Wooler and Trenton, qualified for inclusion in the Hall of Fame because he once delivered the Toronto Star in Trenton.

Now living during the summer at Robbin Lake in Ameliasburg, Mr. Purdy has been the recipient of two Canada Council fellowships and received the Governor General's Award in 1966 for his poem The Cariboo North of Rainville from the book The Cariboo Horses. Other volumes of poetry, North of Summer, a collection written during a sojourn on Baffin Island and Wild Grape Wine.

His latest collection of poems, just now appearing on the book news shelves is The Lows in a Burning Building. He has also edited two poetry anthologies for use in schools and continues to write scripts for the CBC.

The young American poet,

Doug Fetherling is quoted in the latest edition of Canadian Literature as saying that "Al Purdy knows more about poetry than anyone else I have ever met, heard or read about."

Mr. Purdy's nomination is the outcome of a research project instigated by Intelligencer circulation manager William LeGarf. He has been engaged in a search for former Canadian newspaperboys who are eligible for nomination to the International Newspaperboy Hall of Fame, and last year was instrumental in having Premier Roberts added to the list.

Mr. LeGarf's efforts are now underscored due to the fact that most newspapers destroy their carrier boy records, after a short period of time.

The Purdy nomination precedes the International Newspaperboy Day, scheduled for Oct. 10 in Grest Barrington, Mass.

The town will be celebrating International Newspaperboy Day with a giant parade in conjunction with the 75th anniversary of its newspaperboy fountain, the only one of its kind in the world.

It was donated to Great Barrington by the late Col. William L. Brown, former president of the New York Daily News, because of his interest in newspaperboys.

Mr. LeGarf has received an open invitation for any local carrier in Hastings or Prince Edward county to attend the international event. Anyone who can attend is asked to advise Mr. LeGarf. The only requirement is that the carrier wear his newspaper bag in the parade to indicate his home town.

Mr. LeGarf, moderator at the recent Canadian Circulation Managers annual sales convention in Sherbrooke, Quebec, is the winner of 13 weathermen's coveted since joining The Intelligencer in 1953.

Safety Course In Trenton

TRENTON (Staff) — A gun safety course will be held here Oct. 22 and 23 in the town police station.

Eligible to register are all individuals 15 years old and older. Attendance at both instruction sessions is mandatory.

The course will satisfy department of lands and forests requirements for issuance of gun licences.

Fair Season Ends at Tweed

The Bay of Quinte district rings down the fall fair season for another year on Saturday with the annual fair at Tweed.

Fair president Ray Phillips and secretary Frank Bowers report a long list of entries and, with co-operation from the weatherman, are confident the show will be a big success.

Umpires Offered $7,000 Each for Working World Series

CHICAGO (AP) — Representatives of the Major League Umpires Association and their attorney, John Reynolds, on Thursday night in a Chicago hotel, apparently to discuss baseball's latest pay offer to prevent a threatened strike.

The Chicago Sun-Times said the new offer was for $5,000 for the playoff series starting Saturday and $7,000 for the World Series.

The newspaper also said: "It seems quite likely that a strike will be averted. A compromise of $4,000 for the playoffs and $6,000 for the series last year, are asking $5,000 and $10,000.

They have called a meeting of all 56 members gathered at the hotel for today, presumably for a strike vote or a vote on any compromise.

Meanwhile, baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn in New York, said "every effort is being made to reach an agreement . . . Whatever the outcome, the league championships and World Series will be played as scheduled."

The best-of-five league playoffs open Saturday with Baltimore Orioles at Minnesota Twins for the American League title and Cincinnati Reds at Pittsburgh Pirates for the National League crown. The best-of-seven World Series will open Oct. 10.

Twelve umpires, six in each league, are assigned to the playoffs. Six, three from each league, are assigned to the World Series.

In case of a walkout, it was suggested umpires may be recruited from the minor leagues, whose umpires are not members of the association.

Johnson Wins Hit-and-run Batting Title

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

California Angels' Alex Johnson has exchanged his sometimes-filled halo for a crown—the American League batting championship.

The angriest Angel poked two dainty hits before sitting out the last eight innings of California's 8-4 season-closing victory over Chicago White Sox Thursday night and nipped three-time titlist Carl Yastrzemski of Boston Red Sox by a whisker in the league's closest batting race in 17 years.

Johnson, removed from the game after beating out an infield tap in the fifth inning of his second hit in three at-bats, finished the first American League season with a .3289 average. Yastrzemski went 1-for-4 in the Red Sox' final game Wednesday night for a .3286 windup.

Acquired from Cincinnati Reds last winter in an interleague deal, the reticent, 27-year-old outfielder feuded with sports writers and fought with team-mates on the way to his dramatic conquest. But when he trotted off the field after his decision scratch single, the press box cluttered pool on Anaheim crowd of 5,089 in a long, standing ovation.

In other regular season finales, Baltimore Orioles shaded Washington Senators 3-2 for a club-record winning streak of 11 games; Minnesota Twins blanked Kansas City Royals 4-0; Detroit Tigers downed pesky Cleveland Indians 1-0 and Oakland Athletics beat Milwaukee Brewers 4-3.

Johnson, batting leadoff for the Angels in his 11th-hour bid to overtake Yastrzemski, bounced out in the first inning, lined a single to right in the third and then collapsed a high bouncer to third in the fifth for his 222nd hit of the year. With the title secured, he was immediately replaced by pinch-runner Jay Johnstone.

"Somebody told me before the game that it would take three hits to win," the usually tight-lipped veteran said. "So I was caught by surprise when they put Jay in to run for me. But when I saw the score out of the dugout, I figured I must be on top."

Johnson, who failed to hit safely in only 34 of the 157 games in which he appeared, said the silver bat he'll receive, emblematic of the batting crown, "will be an excellent addition to my trophy case. I think I'll put it on top of the case and let it do my talking."

The Angels blew a 3-0 lead with two out in the ninth when Walt Williams slammed a three-run homer, then fell behind on Bill Milton's 32rd homer in the 10th before rallying for two runs in the bottom half to nail their fifth straight victory.

Ninth-inning singles by Mave Singleton also doubled in the ninth.

The Cubs got a two-run single from Randy Hundley and Joe Pepitone's 36th homer, a two-run shot, in support of Jenkins, who struck out eight and walked two.

A crowd of 48,314 packed Shea Stadium, giving the Mets a home attendance record of 2,697,479, the second best in major league history.

Gamble, the Phils' centre fielder, ripped a two-out, run-scoring single to the 10th inning, giving Philadelphia a 3-2 victory over Montreal Expos before 31,882 in the final game ever to be played at Connie Mack Stadium.

The triumph lifted the Phils into fifth place, one-half game ahead of the Expos, who finished last.

Philadelphia moves into a new park next season. The 61-year-old stadium opened on April 12, 1909.

In other National League games, Cincinnati Reds whipped Atlanta Braves 4-1, Houston Astros edged San Francisco Giants 5-4, Pittsburgh Pirates downed St. Louis Cardinals 9-5 and Los Angeles Dodgers beat San Diego Padres 7-4.

Bobby Tolan knocked in one run with a double and Tommy Helms slammed a two-run double in the Reds' triumph. Hank Aaron slugged his 20th homer for the Braves.

Houston won its seventh straight on Bob Watson's ninth inning, run-scoring single. The defeat pushed San Francisco into third place in the West behind runaway Los Angeles.

Jenkins Adds to Cub Accounts By Picking Up Win Number 22

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Chicago Cubs are a little bit richer today, thanks to Fergus Jenkins, and Philadelphia Phillies got a bit from Oscar Gamble to escape the embarrassment of the basement as the National League regular season came to a close.

Jenkins, the Cubs' hard-throwing right-hander, chalked down New York Mets Thursday night on a two-hitter, nailing 22nd second place in the East by a game over the defending world champions with a 4-1 victory.

The second-place finish is worth approximately $1,300 per man while third is worth $400.

Jenkins, 22-6, a 20-game winner for four consecutive seasons, held the Mets hitless for six innings before Ken Singleton doubled opening the seventh.

Expos Fall Short

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Tim McCarver, who drove in Philadelphia's first run with a triple, ripped a two-out 10th-inning single, stole second and scored on Oscar Gamble's single to give the Phillies a 2-1 triumph over Montreal Expos Thursday night in the final game at Connie Mack Stadium.

The victory moved the Phils into fifth place in the National League East and dropped the Expos into the cellar, one-half game back in the final game of the season.

The Expos tied it 1-1 in the ninth on a one-out single by John Bateman and Bobby Wine's run-scoring double off starter Barry Lersch, who gave up five hits. Dick Selma came on to end the threat.

Broncs Often Left In Air

By ERIC EMERSON
Staff Sportswriter

Coach Bruce Walker of the CFB Trenton Broncos has run into an aviation problem this season. His players keep flying into the wild blue yonder, while their passes often don't.

Says Walker of his National Defence Football League team, "Our biggest problem is keeping our personnel together. We've the biggest transport depot in Canada so we keep losing players on flights overseas. After a while the guys get discouraged and give it up."

Despite the player turnover, the Broncos have managed to come up with a pair of wins in six games to virtually clinch the fourth, and final playoff spot in their five-year in the five - team league.

"Both Central Forces Headquarters and the Mounties have established teams," states Walker. "They open the season with a roster of about 40 players and maintain the same personnel all year.

The results are shown in the league standings where CFHQ tops the loop with five wins in six games, while the RCMP have managed four wins and a tie. Rounding out the loop are the third place Rockcliffe Riders, Trenton and the cellar - dwelling Uplands Falcons.

Walker who is attempting to install a multiple offence for the Broncos feels that running is definitely the key to their attack.

"I like to think that we can go both inside and outside with our running game", claims the coach, "but we've got to get some passing to take some pressure off the backs."

Bronco Buster

CFB Trenton coach Bruce Walker runs his Broncos through some wind sprints in preparation for Sunday's game against Rockcliffe. The Trenton team, in their first year of operation are virtually assured of a playoff spot in the National Defence Football League.

* * *

He feels that youthful quarterback Gary Morash could provide the answer to an effective air game, despite his lack of height, which makes it difficult to pick out receivers.

Increased passing would open the way for backs Rick May, Jack Lemieux and Mike Paquette, the strength of the ferocious attack, to be even more effective.

Included in Walker's multiple offence are straight-T, twin flankers and an unbalanced line formation with the team running a number of plays from each set.

"We try to use one play to set up another one that could go all the way", says the coach. Perhaps the most effective execution has come from a reverse off the unbalanced line, resulting in 12 of the 52 points scored by the Trenton team this year.

The offensive line, which averages over 200 pounds, uses mostly straight ahead blocking, with only one or two trap plays.

Most of the players are former high school performers, although a few have played junior or service football. Walker himself performed for 13 years in service football in the maritimes, before accepting a position as a high school coach.

After winning two consecutive Nova Scotia championships he moved to Trenton to assume head coaching duties. Aiding Walker in the operation of the club are assistant coach Gerry Thomas and manager Tom Swindells.

Defensively, the Broncos rotate between 4-4 and 6-2 defences with the occasional blitz thrown in. Sparking the defensive squad is middle linebacker Robbie Robertson, the six - foot, 190 - pound team captain.

In the secondary, the Broncos use a rotating zone - to - man defence, which shifts to match the strength of the offensive formation.

Trenton's next to last home game will be played Sunday at 2 pm., when they meet the Rockcliffe Riders at the South Side field on the air base.

"I think it's excellent football," says the coach, "Admission is free and it should provide a worthwhile afternoon for anyone who enjoys watching football."

Senior Saints Bulldoze BCI

By ALAN TENWORTH

The Quinte Saints and BCI managed to split a high school football doubleheader last night with the senior Saints shutting out BCI 38-0, and the BCI juniors coming from behind to defeat their rivals 27-13.

The senior Saints started things out in a hurry as they forced the Collegians to punt on their first offensive set.

Paul "Sache" McQuaid was the ball back 25 yards to draw first blood for the defending Bay of Quinte champions. On the Quinte kickoff, BCI was at the disadvantage of having to start from their own 12 yard line, after penalties nullified Greg Scarlett's run-back.

The Collegians fumbled the ball on their own 14 yard line and Quinte lineman Bill Skinner was right there to pounce on the ball to give the Saints possession. Three plays later fullback Paul Hall bulldozed his way over for the first of his two touchdowns.

Early in the second quarter, BCI was again forced to punt by Quinte's strong defence. Paul McQuaid again received the ball and with his deceptive fakes and excellent speed, powered his way to a major score. Brian Bowman boosted the first of two converts for the extra point.

Nearing the end of the half, the Collegians tried some confusing tactics, kicking the ball on second down to relieve some pressure. This backfired with Terry Meagher running back the kick to BCI's 35-yard line. After four successful running plays, Ralph LePore scored from eight yards out, shaking off three tacklers as he went. Hennessy's convert was good to make the halftime score 24-0.

After a scoreless third quarter, BCI defences faltered again and the Saints' Bill Kirkham scored from the 5-yard line and Paul Hall gained his second major of the game on an 8 - yard run.

The Saints evenly split the running chores, with Paul McQuaid, Bill Kirkham and Paul Hall getting the majority of the work. Tom Holm made a good contribution to the game with many key blocks.

Greg Scarlett, hiding over from injured brother Mike, was the workhorse of the Collegians, running back kicks, and playing both ways at times for the losing squad.

The second half was all BCI, with the black and red squad coming up with four touchdowns to win the game.

Midway in the third period, Quinte made a costly fumble, allowing Pete LeBarron to score on the next BCI play. Cowen added two on the conversion.

Steve Cowen also ran a quarterback keeper for the winning major. Andy Ricketts' punt in the early part of the fourth quarter went for a point, and Cowen went for a major on a quarterback sneak for his second of the game and an insurance marker, on version.

PAUL HALL

Saint coach Rick Locke summed it up after the game, "The BCI defence played extremely well in the second half, but our defence played well the whole game, which made the difference."

BCI had started the scoring on an opening kickoff return of 97 yards by Andy Ricketts.

In the first half Quinte built up a 13-point lead on two touchdowns by quarterback Ron Rzagley on outside runs. Stu Boardman also scored on an end run. The half ended out on a single when Quinte caught Collegiate quarterback Steve Cowen in his end zone.

No Money Down On R. Yankee Wann

R. Yankee Wann will headline the field for the Richard Ellis Memorial Pace. Cam Wannamaker's record holding pacer will be making his only appearance of the year on the Bellerville track after competing for most of the racing season in New York state.

No betting will be allowed on R. Yankee Wann, holder of the best ever mark of 1:57 by a Canadian - bred pacer.

Also on tap for Saturday night will be the Powder Puff race that was cancelled last week because of rain.

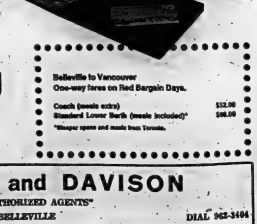
Streit Shooting

MADRID (Reuter) — France increased its lead over the favored United States to seven strokes from four Thursday as scores soared in heavy winds on the second day of the Spirito Santo world women's amateur team golf championships.



Marlene Stewart Streit of Toronto fired the best score of the day, an even-par 73. She was the only one of the 68 golfers from 22 countries who matched par in the second round over the 6,221-yard de Campo course.

Canada stayed in third place but moved to within two strokes of the Americans on Mrs. Streit's round and a 77 from Jocelyne Bourassa of Montreal.

When you compare all the ways there are to travel across Canada, you'll find that none quite matches the Super Continental. Datsun welcomes the competition

Datsuns came first, second, third and fifth in the 1970 East African Safari Rally.
Nine out of nineteen cars to finish were ours.
We won the Canadian Winter Rally.
We won the 10,000 miles Around Australia Rally.
We won our class in the last Shell 4000.
We won the Canadian National Rally Championship in 1967 and 1969, and we're way out in front again this time.
We've proved our car a winner time after time, year after year.
Here's why.

Not just for glory
We did it to see what Datsun could do under extreme driving conditions. We wanted to test our car to its limits, under the worst possible conditions against the best possible competition.
And as a result of the results, today all Datsun drivers get superb performance, ironclad durability, smooth handling and up to 35 miles to the gallon.

Here's what the competition's got to beat
96 horse overhead camshaft engine. Dual barrel carb. Alternator. Independent rear suspension. Unit-body construction. Lots of no-cost extras. Like bucket seats, front disc brakes, door-to-door carpet, and flow-through ventilation.
And of course, the complete safety package including telescopic shock-absorbing steering column, headrests, harnesses, and four-way flashers is standard. The only options are a radio and 3-speed automatic transmission.

We want to be fair
Without the untiring efforts of the competition we wouldn't be where we are today. Our focus. We want to think them, because the harder they try, the harder we have to try. And that's good for everybody.

Draft Stars Shine for Sabres, Canucks

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Buffalo Sabres and Vancouver Canucks went to last June's National Hockey League draft in Montreal with stars in their eyes.

The stars were Gilbert Perreault of Montreal Junior Canadiens and Dale Tallon of Toronto Marlboros, two highly-talented performers of the high-powered Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series.

As new members of the NHL fraternity, one of the two clubs would have first choice at the amateur draft table, the other would select second.

As it turned out, Buffalo's Punch Imlach won a toss of the coin and went for Perreault who paced the Junior Canadiens to last year's Canadian Junior title.

The Canucks immediately nabbed Tallon whose prowess on the golf course was almost as sensational as his feats on ice. The 1969 Canadian junior golf champion was considering a golf career even as the 1969-70 hockey season was ending.

But a reported $80,000 contract to sign with Vancouver lured his thoughts back to hockey during the summer. It is believed to be the most ever paid a junior hockey star.

Both Perreault and Tallon justified their ratings Thursday night in NHL exhibition play. Perreault scored two goals, including the tying marker with 25 seconds left in the game, to give Buffalo a 4-4 tie with Pittsburgh Penguins.

Tallon also scored twice as the Canucks upset Chicago Black Hawks 4-3 in Vancouver.

Buffalo appeared headed for its fifth loss in seven pre-season games until Perreault's late-game heroics at Winnipeg, raging home King Cameron's rebound over Penguin goalie Cam Newton who had sprawled to make the initial save.

The Sabres had a two-man ice advantage at the time after Imlach removed Buffalo goalie Roger Crozier while Pittsburg's Bryan Hextall was sitting out a minor penalty.

Gerry Meehan drilled the Penguins into second for the Sabres who now have tied three games, Tom Webster, Jim Magilton, Bob Woytowich and John Stewart replied for the Penguins.

The Canucks jumped into a 2-0 first-period lead on goals by Tallon and Ted Taylor. Tallon's second goal, in the middle period, was a picture effort as he broke into the clear and beat Chicago goalie Tony Esposito on the short side.

Dave Keon was to return to a Toronto Maple Leaf uniform today after meeting with general manager Jim Gregory Thursday. Gregory said details of contract negotiations had been cleared and he expects a settlement will be completed by Saturday.

Keon said it remained only to make a few signatures on the contract.

War Re-opens on Amateur Front

OTTAWA (CP) — Open warfare has again broken out between the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association and the Western Canada Hockey League.

CAHA president Earl Dawson said Thursday night that he will give the 16-club Western league a week to live up to its agreement with the CAHA.

Otherwise, said Dawson, he will call together the CAHA board of directors and recommend that the league again be expelled from the CAHA.

The Western league, with teams in all three Prairie provinces, broke away from the CAHA three years ago. It was ostracized back this year with concessions that annoyed some Eastern Canada branches.

Dawson told a news conference that the Westerners have broken at least four terms of the special agreement signed with the CAHA.

Among these special terms were the right of WCHL teams to carry four players each one year beyond the 20-year age limit established for the CAHA affiliates and increased financial support.

He said Butlin has gone so far as to fine an official of the Medicine Hat Alta., team for talking to him.

Butlin also was responsible for the quarrels over certain juniors who originally belonged to OHA clubs and who now are playing for Western clubs, he said.

Dawson also said he will recommend to the directors creation of the office of commissioner of amateur hockey, with power to settle disputes arising from hockey games, suspensions and other matters. Disputes that now take up to two weeks to settle could be settled in 15 minutes under a commissioner, Dawson said.

In Calgary, Butlin said all the charges reported by Dawson "is news to me."

"We plan to fulfill all terms of the agreement," he added.

He said the problem is that "Dawson arbitrarily decided that there weren't automatic releases," from second level teams in Western Canada.

One of the agreements between the Western league, CAHA and NHL, he said his junior circuit does not propose to break any of the points agreed to.

Clay Sweats Out Sparring Partners

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Muhammad Ali, sweating toward a boxing come-back, was hammered with timed by his four sparring partners Thursday as the ex-champion went 14 rounds in an endurance test.

"Let's face it," said trainer Angelo Dundee. "None of these guys is Jerry Quarry and they landed some licks."

Ali, who won the heavyweight title as Cassius Clay and had it taken away by refusing to enter the army, is scheduled to meet No. 1 contender Quarry in Atlanta Oct. 26.

His opponents Thursday in workouts were Vicente Rondon, Rufus Brassell, Willie Johnson and Johnny Hodgins, all unrenowned fighters. Rondon is the world's second-ranked light heavyweight from Venezuela.

Dundee complained that Ali's moves were slow in the clinches and that the four opponents caught him flat footed several times.

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — Cassius Clay, former world heavyweight boxing champion, appealed last Monday to the United States Supreme Court to overthrow his conviction on charges of refusing to be drafted.

The 1967 conviction carried with it a $10,000 fine and a five-year prison sentence.

In his appeal, Clay said the high court should consider its own new guidelines for conscientious objector cases.

Record Field for Watkins Glen

WATKINS GLEN, N.Y. (AP) — The largest field of drivers in recent world championship history began qualifying today for starting positions in the wealthiest, road racing series of them all—the U.S. Grand Prix.

There are 30 entries for Sunday's event in the 10-race Formula one series, but only 24 will be allowed to make the 3 p.m., EDT start.

Four qualifying sessions, two of them scheduled for today, are on tap. Drivers will be shooting for the lap record of 130.15 miles an hour established last year by the late Jochen Rindt of Austria.

The 2.3-mile Glen Grand Prix circuit has been modified slightly since the Formula one circus was here last year and higher lap speeds are expected because a special bonus of $2,500 goes to the pole winner.

Eight work teams are entered, including the red hot Ferraris of Jackie Ickx of Belgium and Clay Regazzoni of Switzerland. Ferraris have won the last three Formula one races, with Ickx taking two and Regazzoni one.

Ickx is the only driver with a chance to overtake the 45 championship points compiled by Rindt before he was killed in the Grand Prix of Italy a month ago.

Other entries include defending champion Jackie Stewart of Scotland, Chris Amon of New Zealand and Francois Cevert of France in March-Fords; Denis Hulme of New Zealand and Peter Gethin of England in McLaren-Fords; Brabham of England and Rolf Stommelen of Germany in Brabham-Fords; Pedro Rodriguez of Mexico, Jacky Oliver of England and George Eaton of Canada in BRMs, John Surtees of England in a car of his own design, Emerson Fittipaldi of Brazil in a Lotus and Jean-Pierre Beltoise and Henri Pescarolo in French Matras.

Only Ickx and the five former champions in the field are guaranteed starting positions. The former titleholders are Stewart, Surtees, Hulme, Brabham and Graham Hill. Ickx is guaranteed a spot because he is the only active driver with a chance of winning the title.

to clear the way for recent National League cuts Charles Leigh and Glen Wren.

Both are fleet running backs who Gotta hopes will serve to keep the best off flanker Hugh Oldham and with Matt Tucker and Freemen White.

Mankins, thought last year to be an adequate replacement for Bo Scott, this year hasn't shown the same drive and ability to get into the holes before they close. This in turn leaves opposing defenders with basically only the receivers to worry about.

So, with Ron Stewart still sitting out his broken arm, Ottawa has been in sore need of a running game, which Gotta hopes he now has, to get Ottawa out of the Eastern Conference cellar.

Lehmann, the team's all-star middle linebacker and defensive bulwark the last two years, has suffered most of this season with a pinched nerve in his neck. Feeling sharp pain with each tackle, he has remained on the bench for the last few games to mounting speculation he would either retire or be cut.

He doesn't appear to want to retire and the team Thursday indicated it doesn't want to cut him although Jerry Campbell has moved into his spot with such aggressive alacrity it seems unlikely Gotta would consider moving him back out.

The defence has been the best of the Ottawa games so far this year and taking Van Burkino, alternate quarterback to Gary Wood as punter, out of the defensive backfield shouldn't hurt too much with

THE BETTER HALF By Bob Barnes

"I can't understand it — when we were courting you seemed such a nice sleepy, lethargic girl."

Quebec Copies Wartime Rules About Dynamite

QUEBEC (CP) — Second World War regulations controlling the possession and use of explosives will be revived in Quebec province to curb a recent rash of dynamite thefts, Justice Minister Jerome Choquette said Thursday.

Provincial police will enforce the regulations which set tough standards governing the possession, storage and transportation of explosives, beginning Nov. 1.

Mr. Choquette told a news conference that the provincial police also will be in charge of investigating dynamite thefts that so far this year account for about 8,110 missing sticks.

Although police have no reason to believe that terrorists are behind the outbreak, he said, the recent thefts, including three hauls last week, were the main reason for drafting regulations similar to those in effect during wartime.

The minister also released a report at the news conference that says repression is not the way to check increasing collective violence in society.

The report, prepared by Quebec's consultative committee on the administration of justice, says that acts of collective violence, while effective, set precedents that have serious consequences.

However, it is basic to a democratic society that citizens retain the right to demonstrate peacefully, it says.

Some leaders who capitalize on the insecurity of Quebec students to encourage trouble are partly to blame for campus violence, the report says.

Mr. Choquette also made statements on several matters currently under consideration by the justice department. They include:

—Wiretapping, which the minister said he favors only if used by police as "the only truly effective method we have in fighting organized crime with success."

—A case involving Sandy Saunders, 25-year-old Eskimo serving two years in prison for attempted breaking and entry, who will be offered a special legal aid grant to appeal his conviction because the Eskimo interpretation of the crime may alter the court decision.

—The constitutionality of Quebec law on provincial election disputes, which he says will be defended if challenged by Gilles Houde, Liberal member of the national assembly for Fabre, who stands to lose his seat in a judicial inquiry now under way.

Mr. Choquette outlined the regulations that provincial police will use to issue permits for possession and use of explosives.

Explosives should be stored in concrete buildings surrounded by a fence and linked by an alarm system with the nearest police station. Permit-holders with storage houses out of range of police stations must provide 24-hour surveillance.

On construction sites, explosives should be kept in a safe or a building that is under constant watch. Transportation must be carried out in an enclosed truck and must be logged showing the quantity used or delivered.

Persons needing less than 20 pounds of explosives for immediate use may be issued a simple possession permit.

Manitoba Has Entered Chicken-and-egg War

OTTAWA (CP) — Manitoba entered the chicken-and-egg war on two fronts Thursday.

On the home front the province enacted legislation to enable its marketing board to regulate poultry imports into the province. And on the eastern front Agriculture Minister Samuel Uskiw told the Commons agriculture committee why this had been done and what he thought was wrong with Bill C-197.

The bill is the federal attempt to establish national agricultural marketing boards and is going through the scrambler of a Commons committee investigation.

Manitoba now is the sixth province to fly in the face of the federal initiative by enabling its own marketing board to rule on imports. The federal government has the legal right to control inter-provincial trade, but so far has been reticent to step across provincial jurisdictional boundaries to touch internal sales.

One area in which Mr. Uskiw finds the bill unsatisfactory is the lack of definition of the principles by which the marketing agencies it is intended to create will be guided.

"These principles are so important that their definition should not be left to the discretion of a national marketing agency after it has become established," he told the committee.

"It is quite conceivable . . . that for some agricultural products quantitative supply management will be one of the functions to be assumed by the national marketing agency.

"In cases where quantitative supply management is necessary, the allocation of production quotas by provinces becomes unavoidable. For such cases, the legislation should spell out the principles by which the marketing agency should be guided. . . ."

GM Diesel Agreement Is Reached

DETROIT (AP) — The striking United Auto Workers union and General Motors Corp. reached their first at-the-plant agreement Thursday at a major GM facility, the Detroit Diesel-Allison Division plant employing 4,700 on Detroit's west side.

Meanwhile, GM disclosed that the number of employees made idle by the strike had passed the 400,000 mark with the layoff of 4,338 members of the United Rubber Workers union at an Inland Manufacturing Division plant in Dayton, Ohio.

UAW regional director Bard Young said Detroit Diesel workers would vote on ratification Saturday and that workers would return to their jobs Monday if the pact is approved and settlement is reached meanwhile at a sister diesel engine plant in suburban Wayne employing 500.

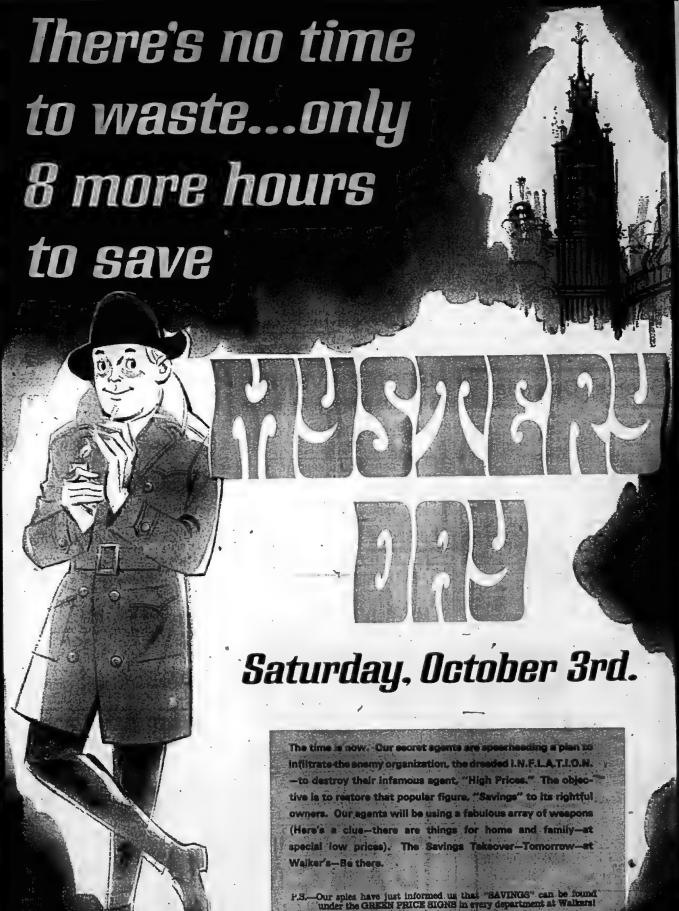
The UAW went on strike at all but 26 of GM's plants in the United States and Canada 17 days ago in support of new contract demands. At the time, UAW President Leonard Woodcock said no workers would return to their jobs until a substantial majority of 135 separate UAW bargaining units in GM facilities had reached local-level working agreements.



Young said an exception is being made of Detroit Diesel because it supplies some 100 customers, other than GM.

SOLUNAR TABLES
When To Fish
Or Hunt

The schedule of Solunar Periods, as printed below, has been taken from Mrs. Richard Alden Knight's Solunar Tables. Plan your days so that you will be fishing in good territory or hunting in good cover during these times, if you wish to find the best sport that each day has to offer.

The Major Periods are shown in boldface type. These begin at the times shown and last for an hour and a half or two hours thereafter. The Minor Periods, shown in regular type, are of somewhat shorter duration.

Use Eastern Daylight Saving Time.

A NEW WAY OF UNDERSTANDING YOURSELF

According to "TA" (Transactional Analysis), everyone has three typical behavior patterns: that of Parent, Adult and Child. At any given time one of these predominates; but probably, two of these patterns are active recordings from your past. When Parent is in the driver's seat, what you do, say, feel and think is an actual recording of what your parents used to say in your childhood. When Child takes control, you're being once again the child you were.

A revealing article in October's Reader's Digest helps you learn how to identify these patterns and make them work for you for a new understanding of yourself to achieve happy, more fruitful relationships with others.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Heart Pacemaker Can Be Lifesaver

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: My husband had a heart attack a few months ago. He has been doing all right. But we are concerned about a report he got after an electrocardiogram the doctor took yesterday.

He has some kind of "bundle branch block." His pulse has been very slow and they're considering installing some kind of automatic device that will make his heart beat normally. Can you explain? — Mrs. S.

Comment: First, the ABCs of anatomy and physiology. Ordinarily, the heart beat originates in the right upper chamber called the right auricle or atrium. Now, there must be a pathway, so the impulse of the beat can spread from the upper heart chambers to the lower ones called the ventricles. Otherwise they wouldn't contract and send the blood out through the large arteries and into the rest of the body.

These pathways are specialized conducting tissues called "bundle branches." After a heart attack, or for some other reason, one of these bundles becomes affected, the impulse is interrupted partially or completely, and this interferes with the normal beat and emptying of the lower heart chambers.

Electrocardiograms, as in your husband's case, show this clearly. Some patients — because of the interruption of normal heart beats — may get dizzy or actually faint.

What to do? Cardiologists have come up with a solution that has saved many lives. They insert a "pacemaker" into the heart which automatically stimulates it to beat regularly. This electronic instrument bypasses the injured bundle branch.

If heart specialists advise that your husband have a pacemaker installed, better agree. As I said, it is a lifesaver. Many who might otherwise be cardiac invalids, are able to return to work and live normal lives.

For Mrs. D.: Women react in various ways after having taken oral contraceptive therapy (the pill). In some, like yourself, there are irregular menstrual periods for a few months after stopping the medication.

Others are not affected, while still others may not have a period for one or more years. This is probably due to the long continued "suppressive" action of the pill on the function of the pituitary gland and ovaries. Usually, in time, the problem straightens out.

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Most everyone knows that: sea foods are rich in iodine. But suppose I hate to eat fish. I love vegetables. Isn't it possible to get iodine in the vegetables I eat? — Mrs. R.

Comment: Spinach is a rich source of iodine among the vegetables. You can also get your iodine ration from cauliflower, potatoes, cabbage, lettuce, asparagus, pumpkin and cauliflower.

While we are on the subject of food — do you dislike orange juice, grapefruit, tomato juice too? If so, being a vegetable lover, you can make up for Vitamin C deficiency by eating fresh cabbage. A wedge three and one-half by four and one half inches supplies about 88 per cent of daily requirements, according to the American Medical Association Department of Foods and Nutrition.

Toronto Police Cleared In Ticket-fixing Case

TORONTO (CP) — An inquiry into allegations of corruption by Metropolitan Toronto policemen has cleared individual police officers of alleged ticket-fixing and criticized two officers who made the accusations.

The report by the police commission of the inquiry had last January was released Thursday.

It said of Deputy Chief John Murray that on occasion his judgment was shown to be at fault" but "his reputation should not be sullied by the evidence given."

Five other senior officers were also exonerated.

The report said Constable Ian Samuel chose to believe the statement of anyone who might overrule his opinions on the laying or withdrawing of charges.

"He was also prone to listen to guard room gossip, picking and choosing his opinions of police or court officials who exercised discretionary powers."

Constable Samuel, who leaves a high-speed pursuit car before the inquiry, has since been transferred to an accident investigation job.

Former constable Peter Lott, the report said, "took Samuel's allegations, fitched some police records, enabled some suspicions of his own and put these together as his proof that senior officers of the force were interfering."

The report was also critical of Deputy Commissioner John Kerr who has supported Constable Samuel and Mr. Lott.

Sydney J. Harris Says

Some Cannot Tell Story

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

It seems odd that America, which has thousands of clubs and organizations for every conceivable (and inconceivable) purpose, has never evolved a Story Tellers' Society, with the strictest membership standards.

This club, as I envision it, would admit to membership only those who have demonstrated, by a rigid examination, that they can tell stories well, with wit, grace, brevity and dramatic effect.

If a person starts to tell a story at a social gathering, the others would immediately ask him, or her, to produce a membership card in the society. No card, no story permitted. Could any stronger argument provide a safer guard against the tedium of listening to stories poorly told?

I am not thinking of the downright bores, but of the people who are pleasant company — until they try to tell a joke. Then every mental paralysis sets in: they stumble and repeat, lose track of the punchline, and end up at the point as intermittently as a dentist's drill on a tooth nerve.

Storytelling is a high art, which few of us can master. I have always been fond of illustrating this with the story of the new prisoner in the prison dining hall. After lunch, a prisoner gets up and loudly calls out: "Sixty-one!"

The men react with laughter. Then he calls out, "Eighty-seven," and the prisoners are hilarious. "Thirty-four," and they roll in the aisles.

The new prisoner is puzzled and turns to his neighbor for an explanation. "It's simple," he is told. "We have the same jokes in the prison library, which we all know. So we give each joke a number, stand up and tell it, and the man recognizes it and we laugh. Saves time and effort."

So the new prisoner, seeking popularity, goes to the library and bones up on all the better jokes. The next day he stands up after lunch and calls out: "Forty-one!" Not a laugh.

He tries again: "Seventy-five!" Dead silence. Once more: "Twenty-nine!" The men don't even crack a smile.

He sits down, dismayed, and turns to his neighbor, whispering. I don't understand it. I picked out some of the best in the book, and yet nobody laughed at all. What do you suppose is the trouble?"

"Well, I guess how it is," the other man patted him on the shoulder comfortingly, "Some people can tell a joke, and some people can't!"

Jean Dixon's Horoscope

For October 3

Your birthday today: A year of personal expansion opens. Your view of the world widens and includes more people. Skills recently developed come in full power use. For many months to come there is a current of continual excitement; what you do is fascinating, with much at stake on every turn. Your social life is a bit crowded but quite lively. Today's natives are generally proficient in managing money. Many have specialized in entertainment, movies, and like.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Seek steady improvement rather than quick return. Your ideas are almost certainly contrary to those of associates. Plan for changes tomorrow, then relax with a good show.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Well-meaning associates complicate matters by acting without consulting. Allow for delay and confusion, conscientiously lining up your own chores.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): It takes extra energy today to get anything done. Focus your efforts on the few things that are actually needed. There is something new to do in the later hours.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Creative ideas surface, many of them premature, feasible later but not right now. Short trips produce good results. Settle details of group ventures.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Family affairs deserve looking into; some are worth encouraging. Work out more exact schedules for home and career matters.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): A private plan of yours comes into reality with rather interesting results. A short journey offers opportunity for romantic expression, strengthening an old attachment.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): A greater investment of time and money promises reasonable satisfaction. There are people and conditions being neglected — do something about them.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Pursue your personal interests with verve. Get the most out of a rather good day of general cooperation. Return calls, catch up on correspondence.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Concentrate on personal matters that are essential to your own welfare. Avoid publicity. Interesting shortcuts can help your career. Look to your health care.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 19): Diligence brings results. Cover a full schedule at a steady pace to avoid fatigue. The evening is for a party or a good show.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Put worry out of your mind and stay busy. Self - improvement progress proceeds well. Several activities are available this evening — choose early.

A boy with a newspaper route actually is in a spare-time "executive training program." In business for himself, he gets a world of practical training.

- He manages the distribution of a needed product which he buys at wholesale, sells at retail. He's responsible for collections. He keeps financial records. And he pockets the profits of his enterprise.
- A newspaperboy learns the basics of salesmanship — how to locate prospects, how to approach people, how to answer objections.

Whatever business or profession a carrier salesman eventually enters, his "executive training" will always be helpful.

'Americanization of Canadian Economy' Steals NDP Spotlight

TORONTO (CP) — More than 1,800 delegates today open the three-day convention of the Ontario, New Democratic Party with the excitement of a leadership race already taking second place to a pending battle over the question of nationalizing the economy.

The battle was joined even before the convention opened as the party's 180-member provincial council met Thursday night to consider resolutions it will present to the convention.

Major resolutions considered were a series of four recommendations dealing with what Gordon Vichert, party president, called "the Americanization of the Canadian economy."

They came under immediate attack from the group within the NDP known as the Waffles, followers of the nationalistic theories of Toronto economist Melville Watkins.

Although the Waffles, led by Kingston graduate history student John Smart, appeared to have only seven or eight members on the council, they still were able to defeat one of the resolutions prepared by the executive committee, and lost out on amendments to others only after debate.

Approved by the council, but subject to debate again by the convention, were resolutions on an outdoor policy, the branch-plant economy and a resource policy.

The outdoor policy is based on the prohibition of the sale of recreation land to non-residents, disclosure of the amounts of land held by non-residents and single owners, reopening of all Great Lakes beaches to public use, creation of grants and loans to tourist operators, expansion of provincial parks, computerized booking of park accommodation, and a summer housing corporation to "purchase and develop low-cost summer recreation housing for the large members of people who have not been able to obtain summer cottages."

A second resolution said that to control Ontario's economy the NDP would, among other things, establish a provincial development corporation.

A third resolution said Ontario should control its own resources by preventing the sale of any resource to foreign interests without the approval of an energy and resources board.

University Recess Extended by Senate

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP) — The senate at Laurentian University met late Thursday without its chairman, Acting President Roland Cloutier, and decided to continue at least until Tuesday a recess of classes that began Thursday.

Prof. Donald Wallace, chairman of the recess-week steering committee, said in a telephone interview the senate also passed a motion asking Dr. Cloutier to convene a senate meeting.

Prof. Wallace, who teaches in the English department, was confused in early reports as Prof. Carl Wallace of the history department, who has no official connection with the recess week.

He said Dr. Cloutier sent a letter to the meeting "suggesting that we nominate two persons from the senate to meet with two students and two representatives of the board of governors to try to effect a reconciliation."

Prof. Wallace said when the senate adjourned a meeting earlier this week, it was on the understanding the next meeting could be called either by the chairman or the executive committee. The senate includes, besides the chairman, eight faculty members, six students and 21 senior administrators. It sets academic policy.

It was not clear how many of Laurentian's 2,659 students attended classes Thursday.

Prof. K. W. Schwager of the sociology department, said estimates "vary wildly from 15 to 30 per cent."

NDP Backs Takeover Of Energy Industries

Medicare Showdown Is Near in Quebec

QUEBEC (CP) Premier Robert Bourassa has taken steps indicating that the dispute between his government and Quebec Federation of Medical Specialists over the province's medical care legislation is nearing the crisis stage.

Following a heated exchange with a spokesman for the 4,000-member federation at a non-productive health committee meeting Friday, Mr. Bourassa called a special cabinet meeting for early next week, at the latest.

Special legislation to put the medicare plan into effect and possible government action in the event of a threatened strike by the specialists are among topics slated for discussion.

Later, the premier ordered the release of a health department survey that showed most of the province's 250 hospitals are operating on a restricted basis in anticipation of a specialist walkout and because of a 95 per cent absentee rate being reported in most regions.

The report said that except for emergency cases all surgery has been cancelled. Admissions have also been restricted to emergencies.

In Montreal, the federation said it is not directing the specialists in the partial walkout now under way.

After refusing to meet with the national assembly health committee Thursday, the federation was represented at three committee sessions Friday.

However ,the two federation representatives refused to answer questions after presenting a statement that "no valuable element of a solution" could come at the committee meetings.

It was during the third session that tempers were thin as federation lawyer Raymond Lachapelle accompanied Dr. Francois Leger, who had read the statement early.

Premier Bourassa, obviously exasperated, wanted the spokesman to "clarify" the statement.

"Did you become deaf and dumb the moment you finished reading your statement," the premier shouted.

"We are not deaf, because we can hear you," Mr. Lachapelle replied. "We will make our answer."

Mr. Bourassa said he was "astonished and extremely disappointed" by what he described as "refusal to engage in a dialogue."

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Cool temeratures and blustery winds loom as the major features in the Ontario weather picture for the first weekend in October. A large weather disturbance stalled over Hudson Bay will circulate cool moist air across the province and a few showers are likely in most locations today and Sunday.

Afternoon temperatures will be below early-October normals throughout the weekend, ranging from the mid to upper 50s near the lower Great Lakes

MPs Want Changes In Tax White Paper

OTTAWA (CP) — The majority of the Commons finance committee will recommend Monday that government proposals for a new income tax system should be sharply revised in key parts before they are written into legislation.

The committee,by with a majority of government supporters, goes along with the government on many proposals but recommends changes in proposed systems of taxing corporations, shareholders and capital gains.

The committee, which considered testimony from more than 200 businesses, groups and individuals from January to mid-summer, accepts the white paper idea of tax relief for low-income Canadians, but balks at some of the proposed new tax rates in higher income brackets.

The majority report, to be published at the close of the Commons' first afternoon sitting after the summer recess, is far less hostile to the tax white paper than the counterpart Senate, committee was in a report published last Wednesday.

Crash in Rockies

Football Team In Plane Crash

SILVER PLUME, Colo. (AP) — The cream of the Wichita State University football team, its top athletic officials and some of its most loyal fans were killed when their game-bound plane crashed into a mountainside while trying to cross the Continental Divide of the Rockies Friday.

Twenty-nine persons, 13 of them players, were killed. Eleven persons—including nine players, a co-pilot and a team trainer—survived.

The Colorado State Patrol said there was no chance of other survivors among the 40 persons listed as passengers and a crew on the twin-engine Martin 404.

The aircraft, dubbed the Gold Plane by the team, was one of two taking the squad, its coaching staff and boosters to Logan, Utah, for a game today with Utah State, where Wichita State Shockers hoped to break a three-game losing string.

The other plane, called the Black Plane, arrived safely with 34 persons, including 23 players and five assistant coaches, aboard. The game was called off and the rest of Wichita's 11-game season probably will be cancelled.

Among those presumed dead were the athletic director, A. C. (Bert) Katzenmeyer; the head football coach, Ben Wilson; Kansas state Representative Ray King; Wichita banker John Groenn, and their wives.

The cause was not determined.

The other plane was impounded by the Federal Aviation Administration in Utah and its occupants were to return to Wichita on commercial flights today.

The ill-fated plane, with one engine smoking, crashed into the east side of 11,262-foot Loveland Pass about 800 feet below the summit, just below the timberline.

"The plane tried to land in the highway in front of us," said Mrs. George Grunwald of Huntington Beach, Calif., who was driving down a mountainside highway with her husband. "By the grace of God he zoomed up so he didn't hit us. He took a 45-degree turn and went over a little ledge on the side of the mountain."

Nixon, Nixon, not Eisenhower!

Nixon Meets Heath

LONDON (AP) — President Nixon's Air Force One jet touched down at London's Heathrow Airport today, carrying the president to a meeting with British Prime Minister Edward Heath and a luncheon engagement with Heath and Queen Elizabeth.

White House sources said the president and the prime minister were exploring in their talks the Middle East situation, the American-Soviet position on arms reductions, issues affecting NATO and economic and political spheres of mutual interest.

State Secretary William Rogers and British Foreign Secretary Sir Alec Douglas-Home also met privately. They were to join with the president and the prime minister in additional conversation after the Queen's departure, allowing themselves an additional half hour after lunch.

Nixon ended the southern swing of his journey Friday. Hundreds of thousands of Spaniards—some estimates were more than one million—welcomed him and Mrs. Nixon as the presidential party drove to Pardo Palace, where Gen. Francisco Franco was host to a state dinner Friday night.

'Act of Heart' Favored Film

TORONTO (CP) — When the Canadian Film Awards for 1970 are presented tonight there'll be many people giving odds on Paul Almond's Act of the Heart being a major winner in the feature-film category.

The showing of the movie on the final evening of public screenings Friday night drew a capacity audience of just under 600 persons.

The film was the last of 12 features and the 68th competing film viewed in the last five days by the five-member international jury who will choose tonight's winners of 36 awards.

Waffle Group Scores Victory

TORONTO (CP) — By a surprise 20-to-1 margin, the Ontario New Democratic Party convention Friday endorsed a Waffle proposal for public takeover of such energy resource industries as oil refineries and privately-owned hydro-electric utilities.

The resolution, committing the party to a policy of nationalization of the province's energy resources, was hailed as a major victory for the small Waffle group, which follows the nationalistic theories of Toronto economist Melville Watkins.

As the convention moves into its second day today, the Waffle influence may again be felt as they seek election to key posts on the nine-member executive. Selection of a party leader to replace retiring Donald MacDonald takes place Sunday in voting that starts at 2:40 p.m. EDT.

The three leadership contenders, Stephen Lewis and Walter Pitman, both members of the provincial legislature, and Toronto taxi driver Douglas Campbell took part Friday night in a public debate at downtown Massey Hall before more than 1,000 persons, majority of them convention delegates.

Highlights of today's session will be an address by national party leader T. C. Douglas and an evening banquet to honor Mr. MacDonald, who retires after 17 years as leader.

The nationalization proposal now goes before the party's provincial council for inclusion in a resolution declaring the recent federal sale of natural gas to the United States. It was to come up at the convention again today for ratification, a formality.

James Laxer of Kingston, one of the Waffle leaders, said the takeover proposal would affect such major refinery operators as Imperial Oil Ltd. but would not include service stations.

Mr. Lewis told questioners at Massey Hall he approved of public ownership of resources and pipelines that move raw materials, but was opposed to nationalization of such industries as the corner garage.

The Waffle statement also called for a massive public campaign against any continental energy deal between Canada and the United States. It also sought a federal-provincial agreement to nationalize all of Canada's energy resource industries, from the Maritime coal industry to oil and gas industries on the Prairies.

Sent back to provincial council for rewriting was a resolution urging the establishment of an environment department with high political status.

Delegates supported an amendment by Bruce Kidd, international affairs star and NDP candidate in the next provincial election, which urged that the resolution contain penalties for offending corporations, and compensation for persons who have jobs when plants are closed under pollution laws.

Jarring Postpones Mideast Mediation

From AP-REUTERS

Gunnar V. Jarring, the UN's Middle East peace negotiator, headed back to his regular diplomatic post in Moscow Friday, handing another setback to hopes for an Arab-Israeli settlement.

Secretary-General U Thant said Jarring "has done all that he can do" and said the Swedish ambassador would resume his post in the Soviet Union temporarily. Thant said Jarring is expected to return to UN headquarters in New York "around the middle of October," but could be back within 24 hours if the situation warranted it.

In another development Friday, the top United States representative at the funeral of Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser met with new Egyptian leaders in Cairo and emphasized the need for continuing the ceasefire in the Middle East and resuming the peace talks.

Elliott Richardson, U.S. secretary of health, education and welfare, said after the meeting with acting President Anwar Sadat that the discussions were "frank and cordial."

The U.S. official also met informally with Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin, but there was no word on what the two discussed.

Kosygin remained in Cairo today holding further talks with Egyptian leaders on the Middle East situation and seeking to preserve the close links between the two countries in the post-Nasser period.

Kosygin was reported by informed sources to have reasserted that Moscow would continue its political, military and economic aid to Egypt.

He stressed Russia's continued aim was a political settlement of the Middle East conflict, and he appealed to Egyptian leaders to follow in Nasser's steps and carry on the search for peace.

Jordan appeared to be returning to normal today although Amman and the garrison town of Zarqa, 16 miles to the northeast, were still under a strictly-imposed curfew.

Trenton to Consider Ward Voting System

TRENTON (Staff) — Whether municipal elections here should be conducted on a 'ward' system basis will be discussed at next Monday's regular council session.

The matter, investigated for the last two weeks by town officials, is on the agenda and a report on the ward system will be filed by the three-man administrative board.

"That an application be made to the Ontario Municipal Board for a ward system form of election" is the resolution councillors will face Monday.

The resolution follows a statement by Mayor Duncan McDonald to council on Sept. 29 that petitions were circulating to promote institution of a ward system. The mayor suggested that council look into the issue.

One poll of councillors hid cates that three are against the system and three undecided. Mayor McDonald is flexible on the matter but sees merit in the system.

The mayor has indicated that if a petition that the ward system may be implemented in time for this fall's municipal election.

Prime arguments in favor of the ward system are that it can bring government closer to the people and that the OMB has been promoting consideration of the ward system in certain regions.

Ward systems have been abolished in many centres over the years, particularly in smaller towns and cities.

Proponents say a ward system would fragment the town and that one ward may get more attention than another because of its councillors' competence, are being raised as arguments against institution of the system.

One corollary of a ward system here would be that, if qualification for holding council seats were based on holding property within particular ward areas, certain candidates with extensive property interest would be able to run in more than one ward.

Richer by $24,000

Jay W. Ross, 38, 572 Sidney Street, this morning received word that his ticket on the Cambridgeshire steeplechase had won him $24,000 when the horse he drew, Owen Anthony, came in third. Interviewed before and after word of his winning, Mr. Ross, a Belleville fireman, "didn't know what I'll do". Following notice, he was a little firmer and guessed he'd use it to "help educate my five kids. I'm glad it isn't too much."

Two Firms Fined Under Safety Act

Two Toronto area construction firms — Elrose Construction Company of Scarborough, and John Klepper Masonry Contracting of Toronto — have been fined $100 each for failure to comply with an order from the Hastings County construction safety officer, Earl MacKay.

The two firms pleaded guilty to the charge in court at Belleville on Friday.

During construction of the new Asko Hasu Bell-Ton Ltd. garage and showroom on the Trent Road, the two firms were directed by the county construction safety order to comply with requirements of the Construction Safety Act. When they failed to do so they were charged by Mr. Mackay.

Employment News

By J. R. STAVELEY

The local labor market as reflected by employment opportunities listed with the Belleville Canada Manpower Centre shows the following trend.

For women seeking work 50 per cent of the current vacancies come from the so called services field covering such occupations as cooks, waitresses, chambermaids, nursemaids and day workers.

For men seeking employment the construction labor demand continues to dominate the labor requirements for men with 45 per cent of the current job vacancies calling for construction trades and labor.

At the present time, there is no indication that this trend will weaken in the months ahead.

The additional labor requirements from the local industrial complex remains soft, with many of the job vacancies of a specialized nature.

At this period of the year local agriculturists are busy as a variety of seasonal work. The tomato crop is practically over and local canneries report a good crop. A number of persons are temporarily employed by harvesting the local apple crop. Unfortunately the past and present weather conditions has affected not only the yield but also the coloring of the local Macintosh apple species. Other local farmers are busy combining their corn acreage and doing their fall plowing.

Persons willing to leave the Bay of Quinte area in the Federal Government of Canada has a number of competitions covering employment opportunities in different government departments such as transport, manpower and immigration, national revenue and taxation, insurance and the dominion bureau of statistics. Anyone interested should contact their nearest Canada Manpower Centre. If calling the Belleville office, Grant Armstrong will give information and counselling on these employment positions.

There are now many new Canadians living in the Bay of Quinte area. Every attention is drawn to the fact that the Hastings County Board of Education announced in the Belleville Intelligencer newspaper on October 1st its proposed academic and interest night courses. These courses will be taught during evening classes. One of the interest courses is that of English, as a second language which will be of special interest to many of the new community residents. The other interest courses are being offered at the Trenton High School, Centre Hastings Secondary School, Madoc and at the—Belleville Collegiate Institute and Vocational School and Moira Secondary School in Belleville.

October Playboy May Be Obscene

A pending decision by the advisory committee on obscenity of the Ontario Attorney-General's department on sections of the October issue of Playboy has had little effect on the issue's distribution in the Quinte area.

L. M. Sirrens, manager of Upper Canada News Agency Ltd., in Belleville, said this morning that not the company has received no information on a possible ban of the magazine this month.

However, distribution in a large area of southwestern Ontario will depend on a decision made by the advisory committee.

Western Ontario Distributors Ltd. which distributes Playboy in that area, decided last week not to distribute the October edition, but gave no reason.

Reg Hadley, president of the firm, said Friday the opinions of the committee "are binding on us" as far as we are concerned. We might not distribute even if the opinion is favorable."

Belleville Violinist Still on the Boards

There's a musician in Belleville who began playing his accounts even when he was nine years old and who has developed a talent for playing the violin with boxing gloves on both hands.

Tomorrow, Freddie is off to Toronto where he will play in the Locarna Ballroom. He also had some recording prospects for the near future.

Mr. Stone began his career by suddenly developing an interest in the violin when he was nine years old. He decided to play violin after watching a violinist in the orchestra at a ladies' fashion show which he attended with his mother.

A connoisseur of violins, he is the proud owner of a Testore violin made in 1736 by Carol Antonio Testore in Milan, Italy.

Mr. Stone played in war time shows in Halifax, when he was serving in the Royal Canadian Navy. During these shows he played with Gordie Tapp of television fame who was then MC for service shows. At the same time he played on radio station CHNS in Halifax for servicemen.

At the same time he took part in welterweight boxing at 147 pounds and it was then that he developed his art of playing the violin with his boxing gloves on.

But his career started before the war, when he played with Rueben and his Ranch Boys in 1933 touring throughout Canada.

In 1938 he played in the Ken Soble Amateurs Program on radio station CFRB in Toronto. On the program he won a silver medal and a gold wristwatch. He then played with the B. and F. Theatre in Toronto.

On the King Ganam Country Hoedown Show in Toronto in 1956 and 1957 he won a television fiddling, contest four times. But it was not his first time on television, having played on the Mort Newsbaum Show in Rochester, New York, in 1955.

Mr. Stone is also a composer, having written a number of tunes for the violin.

Production Has Begun Here On Telstar Component Parts

Northern Electric Company Limited has already commenced production on more than $5 million worth of electronic equipment which will go into the Canada Telesat communications satellite.

Details of their contract with Hughes Aircraft were announced this week following the formal signing of the contract between Telesat Canada and the California aircraft firm.

Department head A. F. G. Tooth, said production on the components commenced immediately the contract was signed.

Hughes Aircraft will supply three spacecraft to implement the space component of Telesat's domestic satellite communications system. The Belleville firm will provide the complete electronics system on board each of the three satellites and also two sets of ground electronic control equipment.

Delivery by Northern Electric of the first electronics systems to Hughes is scheduled for February 1972 and the second and third systems will be delivered in June and October the same year.

The Northern portion of the program contributes to the over 20 per cent Canadian content in the spacecraft portion of the Telesat system.

The electronic content of the satellite represents about 30 per cent of the hardware involved in the satellite, and about one-third of the price of the delivered satellite.

Northern will also build the two sets of ground control equipment which interface with the satellite to control its operation from the ground.

Northern Electric has also signed agreements with Hughes whereby Northern will supply similar electronic systems for up to 15 similar spacecraft which Hughes expects to sell in world markets.

The on-board electronics package which Northern will build in Canada will consist of a transponder, the de-spin electronics, wiring harnesses, batteries, telemetry and control microwave equipment and telemetry and control digital equipment.

The transponder is the communications centre on the satellite; it is that portion which receives the radio signals from the transmitting station on the earth, via the antenna. The transponder changes the frequency, amplifies these signals (which may be telephone conversations or television channels), and then transmits the amplified signals back to earth at a different frequency.

The telemetry and control microwave portion of the electronics system is the transmission link between the satellite and the ground for the control of the satellite. The digital portion of the telemetry and control system performs changes to the operational modes of the satellite in response to signals received and also generates signals which indicate the operating condition of the satellite.

The de-spin electronics portion of the satellite maintains the antennas in a fixed position relative to the earth as the satellite spins. The spin of the satellite is necessary to maintain its position relative to the earth.

Hospital Statement

Consult Doctor First

In his editorial on Wednesday, September 30, The Intelligencer has posed some questions and made some statements of fact concerning health service in the city of Belleville. This was done with a sympathetic attitude and an appreciation of some of the difficulties and the problems which the board faces. Some additional comments might be useful and helpful.

There seems to be some misconception about the service that an outpatient department provides. Large teaching hospitals usually have organized outpatient departments which are tied in with the medical teaching program. Service in family, centered care as well as specialty clinicians. Private physicians, house physicians and interns provide 24-hour coverage.

Unfortunately, although called by the same name, the outpatient department in a non-teaching hospital plays a different role. Until a few years ago it provided care for emergency service only and was generally called the Emergency Department. This function it still serves but the scope of the service has broadened. Medical covering six the department is provided 24-hours a day but on an "on call" basis because a non-teaching hospital does not have a house staff.

The great increase in usage of the outpatient and Emergency Department is attributed to "change in medical practice". This may be true to a degree but there are many other factors.

1. Population increase.
2. Increase in numbers of motorized vehicles leading to higher accident rates.
3. A more highly industrialized society resulting in greater numbers of industrial accidents.
4. Greater participation in sporting activities.
5. Government policy regarding coverage.

The first four are self explanatory, the fifth item requires some explanation.

In order to relieve pressure on the demand for beds the government of Ontario extended coverage in the outpatient department from "emergencies only", to any type of accident or illness which in the opinion of a physician would otherwise have required treatment in a hospital. The new regulation provides coverage for medically necessary surgical or medical treatment. This has forced physicians to change to a certain degree. Whereas many treatments were normally done in a doctor's office, because of changes in regulations these are now being done in the hospital outpatient department.

Because greater numbers of people are being seen and treated in the outpatient department there seems to have arisen a mistaken notion, and perhaps understandably so, that the outpatient department was the place to come to seek medical aid for any kind of minor ailment.

There is no change in the basic concept that the patient should contact his doctor first in case of illness.

The public can be assured that everything possible is being done by the board and the medical staff to provide adequate health care. The editorial points out very well there are some very formidable problems to be overcome.

The following might be some useful points to keep in mind in the meantime.

1. Be sure you have made arrangements beforehand with a physician to accept you and your family as his patients.
2. Discuss with him the arrangements he has for coverage when he is away.
3. In case of illness, telephone him first and act on his instructions.
4. In case of real emergency, telephone the doctor and he will alert the Emergency Department staff or telephone the Emergency Department regarding the accident or illness and the expected time of arrival at the hospital.

Hospital Conditions

Near-surgical cleanliness is observed in all areas of Northern Electric's Satellite electronics sub-systems facility at Belleville. The assembly area is equipped with specially designed work stations containing precision tools, microscopes and illuminating magnifiers required to ensure exacting assembly of miniature electronic components, without contamination. All personnel must wear special anti-static dust-free gowns, and caps; must vacuum their shoes, and must not eat, smoke or drink within the area. The facility is pressurized to prevent contamination from external conditions.

Suppose Dale Carnegie Was Once a Newspaperboy?

Practical lessons in how to win friends and influence people are a prime benefit a boy receives from a newspaper route.

As he accepts and fulfills his route responsibilities, he soon learns those things that are fundamental to success as an adult, such as how to approach, meet, understand and deal with people.

He finds that courtesy pays—that a ready smile, a friendly greeting, a polite "thank you" earns friends quickly.

Finally, a newspaperboy's experience helps sharpen good personality traits, gives emphasis to promptness, initiative, honesty and dependability.

Where Are All the Rebels Gone?

Clothes are not the only things in which styles change.

There are fashions in politics, too.

During the Second Great War, many men in the forces voted CCF — or, to be more precise, a larger proportion of those in the services voted CCF than the corresponding CCF vote amongst civilians.

Instead, there was a strong trend towards conservatism. Doubtless the fact that the Federal government had been Liberal for over a decade had some influence. People figured that it was time for a change. But the distinctive feature of this swing to the Conservative cause was the support of the young, of those who were casting their first votes. Finding a radical amongst teenagers was a near impossibility.

Those on the left found this a sad state of affairs. Had modern youth, that is those who were leaving adolescence in the forties and fifties, none of that compassion and impatience which, traditionally and probably inaccurately, had been held to account for radicalism at an early age.

Many were led to wonder whether the age of the radical was dead.

It was not. Today there is a New Left which, at one and the same time, embraces all the most radical dreams of the left-wingers of half a century ago and, yet, at the same time, dismays the greybeards of the left with its opinions and actions.

Violence, which once was only embraced as a political tool by the Communists (and even by many of them merely as a necessary rather than as a desirable development) is now freely advocated as a tool, valuable in itself.

Meanwhile the radicalism of the thirties looks helplessly innocuous, and nowhere more so than in the ranks of the Ontario New Democratic Party, as it prepares to select a new leader.

Stephen Lewis, we are assured, is too radical a man to find favor with Ontario voters, and as an alternative we are offered Walter Pitman, a pedagogue who, in another land and another age, would have been scorned by the masses for his school-masterly intellectualism.

And Lewis? A product of a Fabian Socialist father; a bright young Jew with all the ambition and intellectual drive so often associated with his race, yet a man who is, we learn, the darling of the labor unions. These labor unions which, even if not the protective children of U.S. internationals, are certainly cast in the Gompers, mold.

This is a radicalism. It is certainly true that crowns have faced the socialist with an impossible conundrum, the devising of an economic policy in a world in which national ownership of the means of production is self-evidently no key to the magic realm of justice and plenty for all.

But a radical labor unionist?

Surely it must be evident — at least to any radical of the thirties — that today's labor unions are reactionary, that the industrial unions is but the obverse side of the coin which bears the imprint of the capitalist cartel.

A camel could pass through the eye of a needle a thousand times before one could find a truly radical thought in the mind of a labor union leader today.

Beta Sigma Phi Sorority

This newspaper in the past has been pleased to point out that there is an effervescence about the residents of the Quinte area today which has had a lot to do with the visible success that is strengthening the economy of this region.

In many communities, sororities meet monthly, although those listings which are of general interest to each chapter and then adjourn until the next month.

Last year, the local chapters volunteered to take part in Belleville Week activations and subsequently presented a fashion show which was one of the highlights of the week-long event.

Buoyed by their community involvement and the personal satisfaction it produced, this year delegates decided their appearance in Kitchener this weekend for the Eastern Canada convention should take on the form of a promotion for their home city.

Dressed in Quinte tartan and armed with booster buttons, pamphlets and brochures from the chamber of commerce and the industrial commission — not to mention their own enthusiasm — the girls intend to make their presence known.

It is an example of the vibrant feeling which allows this community to aptly dub itself "The Friendly City."

Pre-session Forecast

Mavericks, NDP Expected to Nag at Tory Complacency

By FRED HAMILTON

TORONTO (CP) — The 117 members of the Ontario legislature return to the house Tuesday to resume a session that shapes up as a preview of the positions all three parties will hold in the next provincial election.

This fall session of the 28th legislature is a lasting thing for the three, aware of a restless discontent among the electorate and hoping to capitalize on it before an election next year or in 1972.

Premier John Robarts' 68-member government has been aware for almost two years of a faltering among the Conservative faithful, particularly in the rural areas where support traditionally has been strongest.

The mood of the voters, and his own frustrations at long delays in provincial reform, should lead Mr. Robarts to present enough new legislation to make this one of the most interesting sessions since the 1967 election.

Liberal Leader Robert Nixon, his 27-member caucus still not performing at the peak he poses the greatest threat to the Liberals. If the NDP, pressing for nationalization of natural resource industry and tighter control over foreign corporations can turn the debate into a confrontation with the Conservatives, the Liberals could be left on the sidelines.

Mr. Nixon, obviously aware of the danger, has been making a series of aggressive speeches framing new policy ideas. But he has apparently been getting little support from his caucus members through the summer.

No one is certain that Health Minister Tom Wells will be ready with his long-awaited program for total health care at this session. However, there have been published reports of planned changes in hospital and medical care insurance programs, and the Canada Pension Plan funds are to be diverted to health from capital costs of education.

Legislation amending major sections of the Ontario Labor Relations Act was promised at the legislature in early summer, and the debate this fall will be among the most vicious of the year. The legislation has been criticized by independent Canadian unions as a sell-out to larger international labor organizations. It has been criticized by the NDP politically, and in particular by construction trade unions which plan a General Strike of construction against it.

The bill hasn't even won the support of management, and particularly not that of the construction companies who have for changes before it becomes law.

Municipal Affairs Minister Darcy McKeough may introduce interim legislation to help those badly hurt by the reassessment of property values. If cabinet has been able to agree on how it can be done without hurting other taxpayers, his legislation should include relief for farmers who threaten to withhold the education portion of the taxes on their land.

Ontario, one of the few provinces which does not pay a supplement to the Canada pension, may provide one this year to raise the basic pension to $125 a month. The federal pension now is about $90 and an income supplement which raises it to about $111.

Legislation, which may come this session, but likely will be presented in the next legislature, will grant collective bargaining to the civil service.

Provincial Secretary Robert Welch told the legislature in April that legislation was being prepared and would be introduced by Treasurer Charles MacNaughton.

There is also great interest at Queen's Park in whether the government will lower the legal age in Ontario to 18 or 19. The legislature asked committees on election law means the voting age lowered, but both Mr. Roberts and Mr. Welch have said it should be done only when there is a change in the age majority for all purposes, including wills, marriage, drinking, court appearances, leaving school and legal proceedings.

If the age of majority is lowered, it will mean a pool of new voters who could affect the next provincial election in either 1971 or 1972. And although the election appears to be what this session is all about.

Nervous Peace

By PETER BUCKLEY

WASHINGTON (CP) — Is it only the calm of the hurricane's eye, or have American campuses really returned to quiet academic pursuits after years of disturbance?

The return to school in the United States has been characterized by what could be described as a nervous peace at universities and colleges, including such traditional trouble points as Berkeley in California and Columbia in New York.

On the face of it, this calm is in stark contrast to recent public statements from several sources, most notably those high in the Nixon administration.

Few observers here are prepared to believe that U.S. college life is about to return to the apathy of the 1950s. The burning issues—Vietnam, racial and economic inequality, law-and-order versus individual freedom—remain as rallying cries for dissidents. Nor is there likely to be an absence of radicals on campus this year.

But the consensus among editorial writers and other commentators has been that the campus situation should not be unnecessarily stirred up by gratuitous public condemnations.

Thus there was surprise here when President Nixon made a much-publicized visit to Kansas State University and called on the unconvinced majority of university students to resist the actions of "the violent few." He also handed out advice on how professors and administrators ought to bring the situation under control.

Since then, Nixon has also written to 300 university administrators and trustees, calling on them to restore "order and discipline" to their campuses.

Two letters on the president's entourage—Vice-President Spiro Agnew and Martha Mitchell, wife of Attorney-General John Mitchell—have also made widely circulated public comments about wishy-washy academics and "permissive" administrators who allegedly allow a handful of students to run riot.

Inevitably this rash of public condemnation, at a time when the campuses are quiet, has brought accusations that the Republican leaders are playing politics with an eye to the off-year elections in November.

If so, the administration may well have hit on a successful theme.

Public-opinion polls have consistently shown an overwhelming public concern about campus disorder and an equally overwhelming public condemnation of long-haired radicals and trouble-makers.

Congressmen and senators whose political interests lie particularly in matters affecting education, have read the signs.

When Nixon sent to Congress last week a bill authorizing the FBI to intervene in cases of campus bombings or arson and increasing the number of FBI agents, it was welcomed by Republicans and Democrats alike.

The bill seems likely to be passed with almost indecent haste, and certainly before the voters have their say Nov. 3.

Parties Expected to Jockey for Election Position

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP) —After any parliamentary recess there is usually a spate of predictions that the opposition is about to make things tougher for the government—but this time the talk seems more convincing than usual.

This time several factors add strength to predictions that the relative calm of the last two parliamentary sessions is in danger of being shattered. The over-riding factor is a general election probably less than two years away.

Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield, who has not yet raised the rafters of Parliament with thunderous accusations against the government, was said to have plotted his course so as not to waste ammunition on a new government that was, for all practical purposes, politically unassailable.

Sources close to Mr. Stanfield say he long ago planned to strengthen his stance about this time, building his attack gradually toward the next election campaign.

This long-term planning was given new urgency a few weeks ago when Conservative party caucus, in the wake of that now-famous Saskatoon meeting of western members, made it clear they wanted a more formidable opposition attack in the Commons.

Mr. Stanfield assured them this was his plan. Failure to achieve it, say some members, will bring on new rumblings of discontent. Many party members are privately critical of the fact that the Trudeau government has had two years with few sustained attacks.

Down a few rows of seats from the Conservatives, the New Democratic Party is also talking about turning on the heat, but obviously in a different way.

With party leader T. C. Douglas stepping down next April, the emphasis will be centered on his possible successors—and in creating political interest in the leadership convention, seen as a launching pad for the next election.

So far there is only one NDP MP officially in the leadership race—Ed Broadbent from Oshawa-Whitby—but there will be others, including Deputy Leader David Lewis.

"With our fellows out to prove their leadership potential," said one party member, "the government is obviously going to pay some price for the exercise."

Unemployment, it seems, will be the major issue, initially at least. Conservative and New Democratic research personnel have been busy preparing speech material for the weeks ahead.

There will also be a more concerted attack on inflation, sources say, and Defence Minister Donald S. Macdonald will face stiff questioning over the new CF-5 aircraft, some of which are going into mothballs as fast as they come off the assembly lines. He has made a point of saying uses will be found for them—but not what uses.

The Conservative return to Parliament with help for attacks on the government in the field of urban affairs. Perry Ryan, the former mayor of Toronto-Scarlina who joined the Conservatives a few weeks ago, has been given the task of the government's approach to urban problems.

He is the only Conservative MP from Toronto.

As Parliament prepares to resume, Mr. Stanfield has plenty of advice on how to operate in the Commons. Some suggest the opposition bypass Mr. Trudeau and attack more vulnerable ministers.

Agreement seems widespread that the prime minister seldom loses many points when he answers questions.

The Conservative leader has also heard suggestions that Mr. Trudeau be kept harder for an alleged lack of human compassion in dealing with unemployment and inflation.

But the Conservative leader has not tipped his hand on any approaches he may make.

During the summer recess, Mr. Trudeau moved to offset criticism of alleged poor Commons attendance by cabinet ministers. He will now have had ministers as near-unanimous about the importance of being in the Commons on their designated days.

Although Mr. Trudeau spends little time in the Commons during routine debates, he seldom misses question period unless he is out of the country. He will be absent for 10 days early in the new session when he visits Russia from Oct. 19 to 29.

Bible Published This Week Based on Original Languages

By GEORGE W. CORNELL

NEW YORK (AP) — The New American Bible, published Wednesday, is the first ever produced in English under Roman Catholic auspices from the original Hebrew, Aramaic and Greek languages in which the Scriptures were recorded.

The translation, by 57 scholars, including four Protestants, took 26 years to complete and has drawn praise from Protestants, Jewish biblical experts and critics for its accurate rendering of the ancient texts into clear, contemporary English.

Pope Paul, in a special message to church leaders through the apostolic representative in Washington, D.C., called the translation a "notable achievement."

Reliance on original manuscripts has brought almost complete harmony in the approach of Protestant and Catholic scholars to biblical research, a development that shows up in the new translation.

For instance, Matthew 12:46, 12:48, Mark 3:31, John 2:12 and other New Testament passages refer to Jesus' "brothers," a term translated in earlier Catholic versions as "brethren" because of the Catholic teaching that Jesus' mother, Mary, remained a virgin and had no other children.

Also, the new Bible names its Old Testament books in conformity with titles used in Protestant versions, instead of using different names as in the past.

However, in the Old Testament, Isaiah 7:14 retains a traditional position, saying: "Therefore the Lord himself will give you this sign: the Virgin shall be with child, and bear a son, and shall name him Immanuel."

Some other recent versions, including the widely used Revised Standard Version, use "young woman" instead of "virgin." However, the older Protestant Bible, the 1611 King James version, uses "virgin."

The New American Bible carries a footnote saying some scholars regard the word as meaning simply a "young, unmarried woman," but adds:

"The church has always followed St. Matthew in seeing the translated fulfilment of this verse in Christ and his Virgin Mother."

Moslems Say They Do Not Hate Judaism

By ROB DOUGLAS

OTTAWA (CP) — While there has been bitterness between Jews and Moslems, the followers of Mohammed feel no religious hatred towards Jews, leaders of an Islamic association in Ottawa contend.

In fact, the association has played host at its mosque to Jewish groups interested in learning about Islam. And the Ottawa Islamic Association has visited a west-end Jewish synagogue to explain their faith.

There have been exchanges with Christian groups as well. Most of these exchanges have come at the initiative of other groups interested in learning about the Moslem faith. But, the association has also been keen to make Islam better understood.

Ashaf Al Kazi, 38, an editorial writer for the Ottawa Citizen and member of the association, said:

"As far as our religion is concerned we are allowed to marry Jews and Christians without their having to convert. Traditionally, there have been very good relations between Moslems and Christians on the one hand and Moslems and Jews on the other."

Dr. Farid Ahmed, 45, association president, is an Egyptian-born scientist working at the National Research Council. He said that Jews and Moslems attending the meeting at the west-end synagogue ended the evening calling each other "cousin."

That was largely because there is a kinship among Judaism, Christianity and Islam. Moslems regard the Jewish and Christian Scriptures as divinely inspired.

From the early history of Islam when Christians and Moslems fought religious wars, Moslems have lived peaceably with Jewish and Christian minorities, Mr. Al Kazi said.

That is, until fighting broke out after the Second World War between Israelis and Arabs in Palestine.

But Mr. Al Khan, a Pakistani who has lived in Canada for five years, said the war between the Israelis and the Arabs is a "political matter."

He said many non-Arab Moslems strongly support the Palestinian Arabs in the dispute. But in the same way they support the cause of black Africans in Rhodesia and South Africa.

Dr. Ahmed, a soft-spoken man who was educated at the University of Leeds in England, is married to a Christian and has two children.

His English-born wife had agreed before marriage that their children would be brought up as Moslems. But she herself did not become a convert.

This is permitted in Islam but it does cause problems: "Religion can't be taught at home as easily."

"It is easier to teach the children in a group than it is at home," Dr. Ahmed said.

There was no formal association when he had first arrived in Ottawa in 1953.

In the next seven years before the association was founded in 1962 he had come to know every face of the Moslems in Ottawa. The city's Moslem community numbers about 1,000, with about 400 in the association.

"If you live in a Western atmosphere without Moslems around you, you find it very difficult—unless you have a strong faith—to continue as a Moslem."

A Moslem is faced with special problems in Western society. The Islamic sabbath day, for example, is Friday—but in Canada that is a working day.

To solve that problem Ottawa Moslems meet on Sunday for prayers at their mosque.

Dr. Ahmed said his children enjoy Christian festivals more than Moslem celebrations because they get a holiday.

DR. ALLAN C. PRINGLE AND MRS. PRINGLE

Pringle – Fraser

St. Thomas Anglican Church, Belleville was the setting for the recent marriage of Nancy Ann Fraser, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Fraser of Point Anne, became the bride of Dr. Allan Collier Pringle of Oshawa, son of Mr. and Mrs. Allan Pringle Sr. of Toronto. Rev. Peter Tett officiated at the ceremony and wedding music was rendered by church organist D. Davenport who also accompanied the soloist, Miss Barbara Head.

Given in marriage by her brother Larry Fraser, the bride wore a full length bridal gown of white crystallized chiffon in A-line style featuring a semi - attached cape of scalloped edged alencon lace having full flowing bell sleeves with the fitted cuffs trimmed with matching lace. The back of the gown was highlighted with a chapel train in current arc effect. Her headdress was a cluster of roses with stamens of tiny seed pearls backed with pearl de sole leaves, and was attached to a four - tier silt illusion veil falling to the shoulders. She carried a cascade of talisman roses and stephanotis.

Miss Linda Fraser, sister of the bride, as maid of honor, wore a gold pant dress of polyester chiffon fashioned with a roll collar and accordion pleated panlegs with bows accenting the waistline. She carried a cascade bouquet of bronze pompon mums tied with talisman roses and wore matching flowers in her hair.

Bridesmaids Miss Peggy-Jane Flakon of Ottawa, Miss Gail Allen, Orono and Mrs. Linda Pringle of Kingston were identically attired to the maid of honor. The flower girl Miss Covy Finch was similarly attired but carried a basket of bronze pompons.

Peter Pringle of Kingston attended his brother, with the ushers were Dr. Wray Moreland, Oshawa, Dr. Gyl-lan Finch, Oshawa, and Charlie Grenlaw, Whitby. Colin Vollock, cousin of the bride was ring-bearer.

At the reception in the Pinnacle Room, Hotel Quinte the bride's mother greeted the guests wearing an ensemble of turquoise dress and matching coat both accented with pearls and rhinestones, black accessories and a corsage of pink roses. Assisting, the bridegroom's mother wore a baby blue dress trimmed with mother of pearl design with white accessories and an orchid corsage.

Leaving on the honeymoon trip to the Caribbean Island of Antigua, the bride donned a dress and coat ensemble of pink brocade with a corsage of American Beauty roses.

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

Previous to her recent marriage, Mrs. Allan Pringle (nee Nancy Fraser of Point Anne) was honored at a miscellaneous shower held in Oshawa and at a community shower held in Point Anne. A corn roast was held in her honor with hostess for this event being Miss Barbara Deamlinds.

TRAUMAS AND DRAMAS

EDMONTON (CP) — Prospective freshmen at the University of Alberta have been given two - day crash courses in university life. The Students' Union said: its orientation seminars were designed to decrease "the trauma, indecision and loss of confidence which occur in the great majority of students" and help "rapid and successful assimilation . . . "

KEITH GARRETT

Federation President Is Speaker

Keith Garrett, president of the Federation of Canadian Advertising and Sales Clubs will be guest speaker at charter night Oct. 6, at Club Caesars for the Women's Sales and Advertising club of Belleville.

The speaker, son of a printer and publisher was born and educated in the city of Toronto. One of his early jobs was a printing compositor with a job printing plant in Toronto. However, he found inside employment too confining and graduated to sales, and later entered publishing as an advertising salesman.

For the past 12 years he has been an account executive with the Ronalds—Reynolds Advertising Agency, specializing in drug and ethical pharmaceutical advertising.

Mr. Garrett for many years has been a member of the Advertising and Sales Club of Toronto of which he is a past president. He has always been interested in business education and for the past eight years has been an instructor in an evening course in advertising.

Having turned his attention to the national body—the Federation of Canadian Advertising and Sales Clubs he was recently elected president of that organization.

By JACK JAMIESON

Glass for domestic use is manufactured in several forms. The simplest and perhaps the most common is crown glass, made of silica, potash and lime. It contains no metal.

In 1758, Opposition's Patent Receipt was recorded in England for the manufacture of flint glass, composed of two parts of lead, one part sand and one part sulphate of borax. Earlier mixtures contain flint, one of the purest native forms of silica, which is also pressed in sand. The same flint glass stuck. Flint glass or lead crystal is now made of lead oxide, sand and alkali.

Flint glass will ring when struck. Crown glass is much lighter and usually does not ring. It is used mainly for window glass, inexpensive bottles and jars and pressed glass articles.

The glass illustrated is a goblet used as a chalice by a Baptist congregation in the late 19th century. It now reposes with the Baptist Historical Collection at McMaster University. The design is also known as New York, a variant of Honeycomb. There are other similar designs, Early New York Hotel, Vernon, Cincinnati. It is similar to Argus, Argus Hotel, and Thumbprint, in their many variations.

The design is one of the earliest in the United States. It reached its maximum popularity before the American Civil War. After the Civil War it was manufactured in place and is still made this way.

The Boston and Sandwich Glass Company, one of the earliest pressed glass firms, made Honeycomb. Early pieces are supposed to be identifiable by weight, clarity and ring. The weight and the ring is absent in modern pieces which tend to be a cheaper quality of glass and not thick flint glass.

The pattern has been identified as made by the Diamond Glass Company in Canada and an illustration of New York Honeycomb appears in Gerald Stevens Canadian Glass, 1825-1925. The Diamond Glass Company was an incorporation that lasted from 1880 to 1902 in Canada. It controlled the Burlington Glass Works, The Hamilton Glass Works, The Nova Scotia Glass Company, The Lamont Glass Company, the Diamond Flint Glass Company and others in Canada. The firm was the forerunner of the Dominion Glass Company.

less dealer discount, in 10 dozen lots, at the turn of the century. They were retailed for 50 cents a dozen by mail order houses in the same period.

The current price for early New York goblets is 86-87 apiece. New almost identical goblets, usually in color, can be bought at restaurant supply houses for less than a dollar.

READ CWL

The September meeting of the Read Catholic Women's League Council was held in St. Mary's school and took the form of an inter-parish meeting with Ensemprial CWL members in attendance. Forty-six members and 11 guests were present.

The meeting began with Mass offered by Father Fergason. The president, Mrs. James Jordan welcomed everyone especially the new members and guests.

The minutes of the last meeting were read by Mrs. Martin Mills and Mrs. Joseph Hanley gave the financial report. Mrs. Thomas Hogan read the correspondence, namely a letter from Mr. Roy Leggerness thanking the Read CWL for a cheque for $50. for the Canadian Institute for the Blind, also a letter from Father James Farrell thanking two members for boxes of clothing for the missions.

Committee reports indicated that an interesting and informative year was in the offing. Coming meetings will include such guest speakers as Mr. Michael Mahoney, executive director of the addiction centre at Queen's University, Kingston. This meeting will be in the Hall on Oct. 13. Mrs. Breen O'Connor, first vice-president of the Ensemprial executive will speak at a later meeting.

The guest speaker for the evening was Father W. V. Hamilton who showed slides of his recent trip to Father Raymond Shannon's parish in the Dominican Republic. These slides were of great interest to all present as Father Shannon is a native of Read parish and a former pastor of Enterprise.

The speaker was introduced by Mrs. Clare Brennan and thanked by Mrs. Adrian Calnan.

Members were urged to attend the religious education course for catechists to be held in Nicholson Catholic College, Belleville, starting in October.

GIRL GUIDE, BROWNIE NEWS

DIVISION MEETING

The first meeting of the Belleville Division, Girl Guides was held at the home of the Commissioner, Mrs. T. R. Calden on Thursday, Oct. 1. All units are opened and operating. Volunteers for any position in Guiding are always welcomed and information can be obtained from Mrs. Calden.

Carol Thicke, Guide Co. 9 attended Carousel camp in Regina, Sask. for one month.

Guide liaison representative Mrs. Harnden reported on supplies available at local store.

Mrs. T. Collyer, Division social convener will assist Mrs. Calden with arrangements for teas and banquets.

The annual dinner for all leaders in the area will be held this year at Rockhaven Inn, Peterborough on Thursday, Nov. 5 and promises to be a pleasant and profitable evening for all.

Training days will be arranged later for new personnel 1970-71.

Women's Study Guild Hears Talk by Probation Officer

Members and guests of the Women's Study Guild were welcomed to the first meeting of the fall season at the home of Mrs. A. C. Campbell. Guest speaker for the evening was Don McKinnon, Probation Officer for Hastings County.

The meeting was presided over by vice-president, Mrs. G. Wishart, in the absence of the president. In memoriary for the opening meeting, that portion of the constitution dealing with the aims of the Guild, "to study the problems of the day in the light of the teachings of Jesus," was read by the secretary, Mrs. L. F. Reid. Communications were read concerning two young people, one in Seoul and one in France, sponsored by the group through the Canadian Save The Children Fund.

The worship meditation by Mrs. A. Wells presented a tolerant and understanding view of human conduct as a reaction to environment.

Mr.- McKinnon introduced his topic "Salvage" in stating that for 34 years, first in Ontario, and since 1950 in Belleville, he had been involved in the business of human salvage of young people who had broken the law, and been placed under his supervision.

The crimes of juveniles run the gamut of those committed by grown-ups, everything from murder to drinking in public places. Fortunately murder has not been one of the problems dealt with locally. The most prevalent offences by those 16 and under are break, enter and steal, malicious damage, and theft, is that order.

It has been established that behavior patterns are learned. "Where, then," asked Mr. McKinnon "is the breakdown in the learning process which makes young people behave in a way which is unacceptable to society?"

It was suggested that possible modern parents have leave too much of the teaching to the school or other agencies. When there are two standards of behavior, and the standard expected at home fails below that of the school, then it is easier for a youngster to follow the path of permissive behavior accepted in the home.

Mr. McKinnon expressed doubt any parent had entirely avoided teaching his child to do wrong — and does lessons to become a part of a young person's behavioral pattern. Casual cheating on parking meters, driving over the speed limit, social lies, the avid expectancy of high marks in school exams which makes a child cheat to avoid losing pointing parents — all teach a young person wrong behavior. Status seeking, which is an imitation often of parental behavior, and the urge to 'get back at' parental pressure, can be the root of anti-social and often criminal behavior. He noted that delinquency is on the increase in Hastings County, as it is in most parts of the world. Prior to 1967, there were from 45 to 75 cases of juvenile delinquency a year in the whole of Hastings County, excluding only the Town of Trenton. Numbers jumped to 120 in 1967, 143 in 1968, and 215 in 1969 — an increase of 200 percent.

The theft of pigeons, ducks and doves of some value is a current problem. Bands are clipped from the birds' legs when they are stolen. Not only does this cancel out their value, but it often injures the hapless birds.

Shoplifting is a perennial problem which is now receiving a great deal of attention to install preventive measures — and it is often taught by the example offered by adults using ingenious methods to attempt to acquire goods without paying for them. Drugs and alcohol experimentation is an expensive and troubling today, and stealing is often the method used to finance these happenings.

The role of the church in teaching good moral principles was stressed, with the suggestion that church and service groups attempt to reach juveniles who receive little or no exposure to church experience. Influencing them to attend church activities, and welcoming them once they get there, may be part of the answer too. Young people need to belong to a warm family group — tender, loving care helps to develop a secure child who doesn't have to do things for 'kicks' or for attention.

The church can supply something beyond the family which many young people need, and haven't got.

Mr. McKinnon's talk sparked lively discussion over tea served, by hostesses Mrs. Campbell and Mrs. Ellis. Appreciation for his thought-provoking words were expressed to Mr. McKinnon by Mrs. R. Reader.

Topic for the October Guild meeting will be the current Canadian book, "The Poverty Wall".

The executive for the 1970 - 71 season of the Women's Study Guild will consist of president, Mrs. J. A. Buchanan; vice-pianist, Mrs. G. Wishart; secretary, Mrs. L. F. Reid; treasurer, Miss Olive Elsey; program, Mrs. R. Reader; and Mrs. H. C. Wyllie; Lookout - Mrs. M. Ashley; social convener - Mrs. A. C. Campbell; Worship Convener - Mrs. A. Wells.

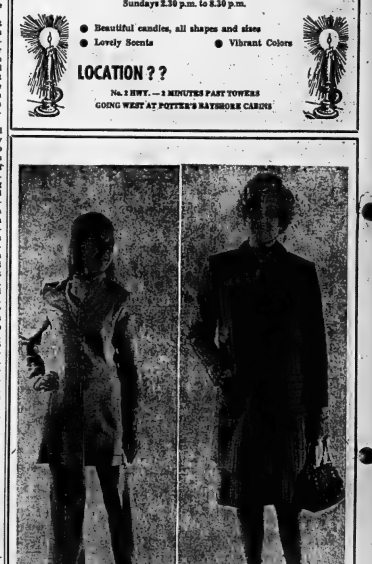
Couple Wed 25 Years



The family and friends of Mr. and Mrs. Don Francis of 87 West Moira Street gathered at the Elks Hall on Saturday evening to honor them on the occasion of their 25th wedding anniversary.

Master of ceremonies for the entertainment portion was a mock wedding enacted by several of the guests which was enjoyed by everyone. Keith Gordon was master of ceremonies and gave a humorous account of the couple's wedding and their life together. He also introduced their twin daughters (Sandra) Mrs. R. Marshall and (Carol) Mrs. T. Postma and son Brian. Three grandchildren and Mr. Francis' mother from Picton were also present. Mrs. Francis' parents were unable to attend due to vacationing in England at the present time.

On arriving the couple were presented with corsage and boutonniere, respectively and then a lazy boy chair and money tree with 25 silver dollars along with a number of other gifts from family and friends.

The guests of honor expressed appreciation for gifts and party after which lunch, including a beautifully decorated anniversary cake, was served.

Guests were present from Stirling, Tweed, Batawa, Toronto, Picton and Oshawa.

Columnist Pleads for A Newer Morality

By DORIS CLARK

"If there no such thing as a good boy — and girl relationship any more?" — This from another veteran daughter has negotiated through an unwanted, pre marriage pregnancy and childbirth.

Of course there is, but there are the men which don't make the news.

But there is a devastating undertone to this letter. Today, in teen - age circles, many old notions, all of them good and worthy, are the subjects of you in your goose.

We think a long time before physical facts of birth and procreation, but we don't teach much else about them. Like what it does to a girl to give her body away. What happens deep down when she uses the slightest love expression just to keep a man's love. What it does to a boy to forget self - discipline in sordid indulgence.

There are 31 short years in which to prepare for adult living. Parents, teachers, teens — in the name of all that is decent, learn and communicate the psychology of sex!

Let's see a few young leaders start a Newer Morality movement that shows the old - discipline and higher values that come with true maturity.

Dear Doris: in this modern world, I see many families with two cars, a boat and all the modern household conveniences. But I don't understand why the houses are built so close with a very small garden. Canada is a big country and there is plenty of room.

As soon as you let the children out to play, you can see your neighbor peeping through the window. Or if you have no kids, at least you want a bit of privacy. I wonder is that why neighbors are not always on good terms?

Do you think some of the unhappiness could be caused by crowded housing? I wonder what other mothers have to say on this subject. — All For Open Spaces.

* * *

Dear Open Spaces: No doubt about it, overcrowded homes, multiple dwellings, tiny apartments with too many people in them, make for unhappy, ill - adjusted people. Our social workers can give a heap of examples.

But larger living costs money; too much money, especially where you have handy things like running water (out of taps), sewers, mail delivery (some of the time). And isolation has its own problems — which come to me from rural, semi - open readers all the time.

* * *

Dear Doris: What rights have we as parents? Should members of our family, all married, take things that belong to my husband without asking first? Our son even said, "It's home, isn't it?"

Does that give them special privileges? We are independent financially after 40 years of hard work and savings. I like to help our little we have taken care of. — Vanishing Vases.

Dear Vanishing: Shucks, no! Why married children should get the notion they can help themselves to the home they were raised in is beyond me. It seems they think the place is no longer important enough to retain its own furniture, now that they have a place to put that priceless vase or choice ash tray — or even larger items.

The only exception might be the type of gadget or decorative piece which has been definitely given to that particular son or daughter as a gift on a birthday or special occasion.

(There are Canadian resources to help solve your problems. Write to Doris for direction, enclosing a stamped, self - addressed envelope for private reply.)

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Basic Oatmeal Mix Makes Variety Cakes

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION: I have received many good recipes from you. I am sending for a new "never-ending oatmeal." — Mrs. W.

ANSWER: I have mailed all of the oatmeal recipes that I have that fill your requirements. I thought the following Basic Oatmeal Mix with variations would be of special interest to you.

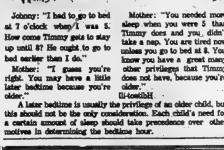
BASIC OATMEAL MIX
(Unsifted flour Cup Mix)
7 cups sifted all purpose flour
1 lb. 4 oz. (1 box contains 6 2-3 cups) quick cooking rolled oats
3½ tbsp. sugar
1½ tbsp. salt
1½ tbsp. baking powder
1 lb. good quality shortening (a brand that does not require refrigeration)

Sift together flour, sugar, salt and baking powder 2 times. Cut in shortening until mixture is of granular consistency. Add rolled oats and stir in. Store in covered container at room temperature.

VARIATIONS (Basic Oatmeal Mix will be referred to as BOM)

COCONUT COOKIES
3 cups BOM
1 cup coconut
1 egg
¼ cup boiled bitter
Mix in order. Drop by teaspoonful onto greased cookie sheet. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. about 15 min.

RECEMTTS
2 cups BOM
1 tsp. cinnamon
½ tsp. cloves
¼ cup brown sugar
¼ cup each chopped raisins dates, nuts and milk
1 egg
Beat egg and add all remaining ingredients, beating until smooth. Drop by teaspoons onto greased cookie sheet and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. 15 min.



CHOCOLATE CHIP COOKIES
2 cups BOM
1-3 cup brown sugar (packed)
4 oz. (2-3 cup) chocolate chips
½ cup chopped nuts
1 egg
1 tsp. vanilla
¼ cup milk
Combine dry ingredients with nuts and chocolate chips. Beat egg slightly and add milk and vanilla. Add to dry mixture and stir until all ingredients are well blended. Drop by teaspoonful onto a greased cookie sheet and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. 15 min. Recipe makes about 2 doz. cookies.

BLUEBERRY OATMEAL MUFFINS
1 egg
1-2 cup milk
3 cups BOM
1 cup washed and dried fresh blueberries
Beat egg until light. Add milk and mix well. Add all at once to BOM. Stir 30 strokes; add blueberries, then mix 10 more strokes. Fill well-greased muffin pans 2-3 full. Bake at 425 deg. Fahr. about 20 min.

DATE or NUT OATMEAL MUFFINS
3 cups BOM
½ cup milk
¾ cup chopped nuts or dates (or mixture of both).
Beat eggs until light. Add milk and mix well. Add all at once to BOM. Stir 30 strokes and add dates or nuts and stir 10 more strokes. (Do not overstir muffins.) Fill well-greased muffin tins 2-3 full. Bake at 425 deg. Fahr. about 20 min. NOTE: Teflon - lined muffin tins are recommended for easy removal.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Johnny: "I had to go to bed at 7 o'clock when I was 5. How come Timmy gets to stay up until 8? He ought to go to bed earlier than I do."

Mother: "I guess you're right. You may have a little later bedtime because you're older."

Timmy: "Is that why I get to stay up later?"

Mother: "You needed more sleep when you were 5 than Timmy does and you, didn't take a nap. You are tired now unless you go to bed at 8. You know you have a great many other privileges that Timmy does not have, because you're older."

Timmy: "Is that why I get to stay up later?"

A later bedtime is usually the privilege of an older child, but this should not be the only consideration. Each child's need for a certain amount of sleep should take precedence over other motives in determining the bedtime hour.

FLIRTY CATS AND LIONS

Are you fond of animals? Do they give you enjoyable moments that enriches and adds more understanding of life, as do the cats of our neighborhood for me?

The newest and latest addition in the feline world is Fuchsia — fearless as his name-sake. With captivating eyes he innocently assumes this big wonderful world is for the express purpose of his school, having fun. A view, perhaps, not shared by his pussy-cat peers, but approved by the entire neighborhood which love him.

How sensitive are the little mannerisms of each: Little Whitey, the fairy-white princess, greets you shyly stretching out a tiny hook-leg hermetically, ballerina-style. Sonia, the dear gray Persian raises her head daintily as she sits up to accept a tidbit of cream. Facebox (see bow) the lovely Siamese, admired for her elegance, loved for her unswerving loyalty (Not always her own) her mistress) watches with interest, Teb, the quiet tabby, still a small insect in the grass.

"As the cats stroll about her members, contentedly survey their world with eloquent dignity of any king of beast. They place themselves scrutiny as a young teenager and university student joins us, saying:

"I've always admired the tall family right from "The Lion and the Mouse" schooldays. The choice of the lion as the national emblem of Great Britain, for courage and bravery, is great. In fact the emblem of the lion is adopted by the university which I attend."

"Was it?" I asked, surprised response.

"Yes. You see, this seat of learning started as the Farmer's High School and its first building was built for a decade or more while mountain lions roamed the nearby Mount Nittany. (part of a mountain range common to this part of the country), as well as the campus, Nittany, by the way, is an Indian word: 'Nokii' means single and 'Aitie' means mountain. Thus the Nittany Lion became legend and symbol of our best' sung by the Alumni and students in college song.

"So the campus at Nittany Lion carved from native stone by a student in 1940, is an inspiring emblem and under nearly 40,000 students of various branches of the Penn State University of Pennsylvania in loyalty along with a song which begins "Task to the Lion".

Ann Landers

17-year-old Girl Has Parent Problem

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a 17-year-old girl with a parent problem. This morning while in the garage looking for some nails, I ran across a wooden box. I removed the lid and found a piece of cardboard over the of the contents. I took the cardboard out and there was a telephone starting me in the face! The mouthpiece was covered with adhesive tape.

For about a year I have noticed that every time one of my friends telephoned me, either Mom or Dad went out to the garage. Now I know why. I'm not going to say much disgusted by my purse three or four times, and of course I didn't like it, but installing a phone so they can listen in on my calls is too much.

I am sick inside just thinking about it. Please tell me what to do. I will vote your advice, whatever it is. — C.C.

DEAR C.C.: Tell your parents you have discovered the hidden telephone. Let them know you are disappointed that they have so little confidence in you that they would eavesdrop to learn what goes on in your life.

Obviously there is a serious lack of communication and mutual understanding in your family. I recommend counseling for all of you.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Your advice to "His Wife," the woman seeking help for her non-reading husband, was eagerly accepted throughout the country, The Director of U.S. Programs, Laubach Literacy, Inc. Box 131, Syracuse, N.Y. 13210, was swamped with inquiries. They received well over 3,000 letters in a short period of time.

The overwhelming response came just before Dr. Frank Laubach was stricken with a fatal illness. It was most gratifying to all of us and we thank you from the bottom of our hearts. You have helped thousands of people get a fresh start. — CINCINNATI TUTOR.

DEAR TUTOR: I appreciate the compliment but you are too generous. It was Dr. Frank Laubach who helped thousands of people to "to get a fresh start." I was merely the vehicle for transmitting the information. The service performed by this magnificent man is incalculable. The difference between a person who can read and one who is illiterate can be compared to an electric cord that is lying on the floor and one that is plugged into a live socket.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Am I being childish? If you think so please tell me and I will change my attitude.

I became engaged three weeks ago. My engagement ring is beautiful and I am so proud I want to show it to all my friends. Several girls have asked to try on my ring so they can see what it looks like on their hand. I always say, "Of course — go ahead' and give it to them. Although there's a smile on my face there's murder in my heart. — Ann I. Crazy.

Few things are as intimate as an engagement ring. I can't understand a girl wanting to try on someone else's. I would sooner ask to use a friend's toothbrush. Am I crazy? — CELESTE.

DEAR CELESTE: I don't think you are crazy, but you are a bit warped on the subject of your engagement ring. The girls who ask to try it on are paying you a compliment. They are putting themselves in your place — imagining the ring is theirs So please try to see it that way and replace that murder in your heart with a little compassion, Doll.

Pitman's Attempt to Show Strength Backfires

TORONTO (CP) — Walter Pitman Friday tried to demonstrate the strength of his support for leadership of the Ontario New Democratic Party and succeeded only in revealing the naivety of his forces.

Slightly more than 1,000 persons showed up at a question-and-answer session for leadership candidates at Massey Hall Friday, but fewer than 200 were wearing the bright orange Pitman hats arranged for at a strategy session the night before.

Mr. Pitman's major opponent, Stephen Lewis, lost no time in marking a point of the planned demonstration's failure.

"Let's hear it from the Pitman supporters," he said, and was answered by cheers and waving signs.

"Now for the Lewis supporters," he called, and the uproar brought a quick grin to his face.

Mr. Lewis, replying to questions, was heard in silence and rewarded with applause.

Mr. Pitman also drew cheers, but they were frequently mixed with boos and catcalls, and at one point a suggestion that he join the Liberal party.

The question-and-answer session, held in hear-ye fashion with the general public invited, proved a disappointment as the questions lacked weight and the answers had little impact.

Party president Gordon Vichert said the early departure of many of the audience indicated that the bear pit added nothing to the convention and changed no one's attitude to ward the leadership.

Mr. Pitman had his worst moment when asked how the candidates reconciled their own attitudes to public ownership of natural resource industries with a decision made by the convention earlier in the day favorable to nationalization of energy resource industries.

Mr. Lewis said the convention vote, which has to be ratified when the resolution comes back today, makes sense when applied to the public ownership of water and natural gas. However, he said there are serious problems finding the money to buy up oil reserves and to compensate such industrial development as refineries.

Public ownership of the oil-fields and the pipelines that move them is one thing, but nationalization of everything down to the filling station is something else, he said.

Mr. Pitman, although his party did not differ markedly from that of Mr. Lewis, was heard when he said there is a difference between public ownership of new resource industries and the buying back of existing ones.

Control over existing private industry is possible if industry is forced by government action to fit its operations into a master plan of economic development, he said. Industry that failed to comply could be taken over by the province.

Mr. Campbell accused both major candidates of "dragging their pants on the platform" and advocated public ownership of all industry.

He also differed with the others when they said they support international unions in Canada; at least until the time comes when all Canadian unions can face all-Canadian management.

Mr. Campbell said Canadian ownership, not control should apply everywhere, including unions, and the NDP and its supporters should "lead the first mass out of their own ops."

DUMB COPS

NEW YORK (AP) — A Justice department dissected a study shows that the average I.Q. score of recruits entering the New York City police department in 1969 was the lowest in recent years. The average was 98.39 for 2,172 recruits, the study revealed. The average was 107.7 in 1965, 107.38 in 1964 and 105.75 in 1967.

Waffle Group Is Making Bid for NDP Offices

TORONTO (CP) — The radical Waffle group made its major bid for increased influence in the Ontario New Democratic Party Friday by going after the key offices of party president and secretary.

The Waffles, followers of Toronto economist Melville Watkins who are pressing the NDP convention for a more radical stance on economic nationalism, also nominated candidates for lesser positions on the party's provincial executive.

Gordon Vichert, provincial party president for the last two years, will face Krista Maeots, wife of Waffles leader Jim Laxer of Kingston, when elections are held today.

The job of secretary, probably the most vital position in the party, is being sought by Gordon Brigden, deputy secretary under John Harney who is retiring to bid for leadership of the federal NDP, and John Smart, 28-year-old Kingston resident and another leader in the Waffles.

Although the Waffles have fewer than 100 members among the convention's 1,300 delegates, they have almost total support of the New Democrat Youth and the women's liberation groups in the NDP.

When nominations for party offices closed Friday, John Brewin had been elected treasurer by acclamation.

A proposal that would have placed women in nine executive positions was defeated Friday after a lively debate on women's rights.

The proposal by the Oshawa riding association asked for a constitutional change to permit the election of two vice-presidents and seven members-at-large, all women to be elected only by the women delegates.

"I believe in equality," argued Carrol Coburn of Windsor, setting the tone of the opposition to the amendment. "But I don't believe in special privileges.

"If we pass this resolution, there will be a men's NDP party, and a women's NDP party."

Nixon Open Liberal Parley

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Liberal Leader Robert Nixon opened the London-area policy conference of the Liberal party Friday with a plea for more federal assistance to urban areas.

Mr. Nixon said he supports the proposal of Robert Andras, federal minister responsible for housing, to set up an urban council with representatives from legal, provincial and federal governments levels.

"We are eager to see other urban policies from Ottawa as well," Mr. Nixon said.

He urged policies directed at preservation of recreation lands and at giving Canadian branches of international labor unions more autonomy.

Mediation Is Suggested

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP) — The faculty was presented Friday with a mediation plan to settle dissension at Laurentian University—a conflict which a faculty member says has spread beyond salaries.

"We feel the conflict is much broader than salaries now and can't be settled just by setting salaries," Prof. Don Wallace of the English department said Friday night.

Prof. Charles Hanley, executive secretary of the Ontario Council of University Faculty Associations, outlined the OCUFA plan earlier to a meeting of the university faculty.

The university senate decided Thursday to continue at least until Tuesday a recess of classes that began Thursday. Most of the faculty members have suspended teaching in accordance with the instructions of the senate.

The senate and the board of governors have been in dispute for months over a range of issues, including salaries, method of appointing the president and the reform of decision-making structures at the university.

CF-5 Jets to be Tested

OTTAWA (CP) — The defence department has announced that the controversial CF-5 jet will soon be tested as a fighter and ground support plane in Europe.

Six of the aircraft will be flown overseas in mid-October to undergo practical trials in the primary role for which they were designed, the announcement said.

The test team will spend about a month in Germany. Further trials are planned later in Norway, NATO's so-called northern flank.

The CF-5 gained a degree of notoriety some weeks ago when it was revealed that planes were coming straight off the Canadair Ltd. assembly line and into storage at Trenton, Ont.

MacDonald Opposes 'Cataclysmic Changes'

TORONTO (CP) — Donald MacDonald, retiring leader of the Ontario New Democratic Party, called Friday for recognition of activist elements in the party but warned against policies that would lead to "sudden cataclysmic changes."

Mr. MacDonald's speech to the annual convention was seen by observers as support for

A PROCLAMATION

WHEREAS authoritative statistics compiled and published by the Dominion Fire Commissioner show that during the past two years, seven hundred and fifty nine thousand fires in Canada have taken five thousand nine hundred lives, seriously injured at least twenty-one thousand other persons and destroyed property valued at one billion four hundred and sixty million dollars;

AND WHEREAS humanitarian and economic considerations imperatively demand that improved fire prevention measures be undertaken to prevent this economic waste and tragic loss of life in order that the nation's prosperity may be maintained;

AND WHEREAS it is desirable that the attention of the public be directed to the extent and underlying causes of the preventable loss of life and property by fire and to the best and most practicable means for its control and that a specific period of the year be set apart and properly designated for the dissemination of such information;

THEREFORE I DESIGNATE THE WEEK COMMENCING SUNDAY, THE FOURTH OF OCTOBER, AND ENDING ON SATURDAY, THE TENTH OF OCTOBER, IN THE PRESENT YEAR AS

"FIRE PREVENTION WEEK"

In the City of Belleville and do recommend that at some time during this week:-

(1) All citizens inspect their homes and all conditions likely to cause or promote the spread of fire be removed.

(2) All merchants carry out a general clean up campaign of the business section and assist in this program to reduce the loss of life and property by fire.

(3) All theatre, hotels and places of public assembly place special emphasis on the removal of fire hazards from these premises.

(4) Hospitals and institutional buildings be inspected and the necessary changes made to protect the occupants in case of fire.

(5) Fire drill and lectures on fire safety be given by teachers and staff in co-operation with officials of the Belleville Fire Department in all schools and educational institutions to acquaint the occupants with the dangers of fire and the best and most expeditious mode of exit in time of danger.

(6) All citizens keep in mind the ever present threat of fire and take every possible means at their disposal to assist in the reduction of fire and the loss of life by carrying out fire prevention throughout the year.

Kapp Going to Find Out All About Patriots in a Hurry

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Veteran quarterback Joe Kapp admits he knows little about Boston Patriots, but he's going to find out all about them in a hurry.

Kapp, who led Minnesota Vikings to the Super Bowl last season before becoming a stubborn holdout this year, does a Boston 'uniform for the first time Sunday when the Patriots meet Baltimore Colts in a National Football League game.

Kapp, who sought a reported $1.25 million five-year contract from Minnesota signed with the Patriots Friday.

Boston coach Clive Rush activated Kapp on the 42-man roster, but it's doubtful if the 32-year-old former star with British Columbia Lions of the Canadian Football League will see much, if any, action against the Colts.

In games tonight, Oakland Raiders meet Miami Dolphins and Pittsburgh Steelers take on Cleveland Browns.

On Sunday it will be Kansas City Chiefs at Denver Broncos, Dallas Cowboys at St. Louis Cardinals, Los Angeles Rams at San Diego Chargers, San Francisco 49ers at Atlanta Falcons, Minnesota Vikings at Green Bay Packers, New York Jets at Buffalo Bills, Houston Oilers at Cincinnati Bengals, New York Giants at New Orleans Saints and Washington Redskins at Philadelphia Eagles.

With top high-salaried Kapp on the bench, Mike Taliaferro will continue as the No. 1 Boston quarterback—at least for the start of the Baltimore game. Kapp may be ready for a meeting with Kansas City Chiefs next week. The Colts definitely will switch starting quarterbacks, with Earl Morrall replacing ailing John Unitas.

Denver's surprising Broncos put their perfect record on the line against the defending champion Chiefs.

Kansas City came back with a strong effort Monday night against Baltimore but had a short week to prepare for the Broncos, who have beaten them only once in 28 games.

Jim Hart, knocked out during the game last week, will be back at quarterback for the Cards against the Cowboys who recovered from a first half scare to beat the Giants 20-16. MacArthur Lane poked for the Cards and Calvin Hill for the Cowboys a big individual running battle is expected.

Willie Ellison and Pat Curran may have to carry the running load for the Rams again with Larry Smith out for one more week, but Ronnie Gabriel is healthy.

The 49ers go to Atlanta with rookie Preston Riley subbing for injured Dick Witcher at wide receiver, while the Falcons have made switches in their offensive line for their hope opener because of Georgy Kunz's knee injury.

Minnesota will try to make it five straight over the Packers, who may start Don Horn if Bart Starr's bruised ribs still are too sore. All of the Vikings are healthy.

Reds Better During Season, Picked to Win

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Opposing managers in the National League playoff seemed unconcerned with past performance when they chose starting pitchers for today's first game of the best-of-five series.

Cincinnati skipper Sparky Anderson is going with Gary Nolan, who has never won a start in Pittsburgh, Pirate boss Danny Murtaugh is relying on Dock Ellis, who lost three times without a victory against the Reds this year.

Neither were Anderson or Murtaugh concerned about the possibility of an umpire strike over a money dispute. At least they said nothing about it.

The cold statistics aren't bothering either Nolan or Ellis.

"I don't feel any different," said Nolan who posted an 18-7 record for the Western Division champion Reds. "I think the key to beating the Pirates is to keep the first two hitters off the top of this series and everybody is ready."

"I don't think that means a thing. Both clubs know what they're fighting for. That they (Reds) had it easy doesn't mean a thing."

The oddmakers have made the Reds a slight favorite on the basis of their 102 regular season victories.

The Pirates won their division with 89 victories and the lowest won-lost percentage in history. They dropped the season series to the Reds 9-6.

Murtaugh, however, feels he has the most underrated team bunch, so if one of their power guns shoots nobody is on."

Ellis, who won 13 and lost 10, says he's going to challenge the Reds' big bats with his fast ball.

"I've got to go out there and challenge them," said the 25-year-old Pirate right-hander.

"If I try to finesse them I'm in trouble. It's a power ball game. I've pitched against clubs before who have beaten me three times and I've won."

The Reds clinched the West Division title early, winning by 14 games.

The Pirates received good news Friday when their best hitter, Roberto Clemente, tried out his sore back and reported he was free of pain. Murtaugh announced Clemente, who missed 15 of the Pirates' last 22 games, would be in right field. Clemente had a .353 average.

The first two games in the series are in Pittsburgh with the third, and fourth and fifth games if necessary, in Cincinnati.

The winner meets the survivor of the American League playoff between Baltimore and Minnesota in the World Series.

Most Action Off Field

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Off-field activities took over in baseball on the eve of today's opening of the division playoffs for the championships of the National and American leagues.

The Umpires Association, through lawyer John Reynolds, said they would boycott the Cincinnati at Pittsburgh and Baltimore at Minnesota games unless their request for more pay was met.

Joe Cronin, American League president, and Chub Feeney, National League chief, said the games would go ahead with replacement umpires moving in if necessary.

The wraps went $3,600 for the playoffs and $10,000 for the World Series for a 3-year contract. They turned down a compriso proposed from Cronin and Feeney for $2,000 and $7,000 for the series.

Elsewhere Friday, Billy Martin was named manager of Detroit Tigers to succeed Mayo Smith and Dick Williams took over as manager of the Oakland Athletics, replacing John McNamara. Martin managed Minnesota in 1969. Williams managed Boston when the Red Sox won the American League pennant in 1967.

Also, St. Louis Cardinals signed star pitcher Bob Gibson to a $150,000 contract. Gibson, a 25-year-old veteran, won 20 games and lost seven during the season that ended Thursday.

Twins Out to Settle Playoff Score

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Minnesota's redemption-best Twins pinned their pennant hopes on the broad shoulders of shortstop-stricken Harmon Killebrew today as they took on the favored Baltimore Orioles in the first game of the American League's best-of-five championship series.

The Twins, seeking a reversal of their three-game playoff loss at the hands of the Orioles a year ago, sent right-hander Jim Perry against southpaw Mike Cuellar in an opening match-up of 36-game winners.

A near-capacity crowd was expected at Metropolitan Stadium for the 4 p.m. EDT, game. The forecast was for reasonable weather with temperatures in the mid-80s.

A spokesman for CBC-TV in Toronto said Friday the corporation does not plan to carry playoff games in either league, but will carry the World Series live starting Oct. 19 on its national English network and on the French network.

Despite a possible boycott by umpires assigned to the playoff set, American League president Joe Cronin promised there would be an umpiring crew on hand for the opener. The umpires, seeking pay hikes for working the playoffs and World Series, were at an impasse in negotiations at Chicago.

Killebrew helped the West Division champions win seven of 11 regular-season meetings with Baltimore's runaway East Division kings this year. The brute-strong veteran clouted six of his 41 home runs and had 13 runs batted in against the pitching-deep Orioles.

But the league's 1969 Most Valuable Player has been short-circuited by lesser barkers for the past two months, hitting just nine homers and delivering 28 runs since August, while his batting average dipped from .307 to .271. He has not homered since Sept. 11.

Still, Bill Rigney, the Twins' first-year skipper, expects a productive series from Killebrew, particularly with Dave McNally, another left-hander, set to pitch for the Orioles in Sunday's game.

The Orioles managed to "sully" Killebrew's game-breaking potential last October—by pitching around him. He drew five walks in the first two games, won by Baltimore 4-3 in 12 innings and 1-0 in 11. He got his lone hit, a double, in eight official trips to the plate as the Orioles wrapped up the title with an 11-2 third-game romp.

This time, the Twins rely on Killebrew and hot-hitting Tony Oliva, who finished the season with a career-high .325 average, to provide the momentum for a coup.

North Stars Could Steal Blues' Thunder

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Minnesota North Stars gave indications last April they were ready to replace St. Louis Blues as the National Hockey League's top expansion club.

After a knocked-down, roughto-tumble semi-final, St. Louis prevailed. But only four goals separated the two teams in the series, won by the Blues 4-2.

In their first meeting this year, Minnesota nearly ran St. Louis out of Bloomington, Minn., in the first period Friday night but had to settle for a 3-3 exhibition tie.

In other games, Montreal Canadiens and Toronto Maple Leafs settled for a 1-1 tie at Halifax and Oakland Seals dumped Rochester Americans of the American League 6-1 at Rochester.

Minnesota peppered St. Louis goalie Ernie Wakely with 23 shots in the first period but had been only once, on Danny Grant's unassisted shot from the point.

A goal by Ted Harris early in the third made it 2-0 but the Blues rebounded to score from defenceman Barclay Plager and Red Berenson.

Toronto and Montreal went through two scoreless periods at Halifax before Garry Monahan put the Maple Leafs in front at 9:39 of the third.

Yvon Cournoyer evened the scored two minutes and five seconds later with a high shot that eluded Leaf goalie Bruce Gamble.

Norm Ferguson, with two, Billy Hicke, Ted Hampson, Earl Ingarfield and Wayne Muloin were the Oakland marksmen while Mike McMahon scored for Rochester goal to finish the scoring.

The North Stars announced prior to Friday's game the signing to an NHL contract of Mike Barrett, their No. 1 amateur draft pick. Barrett played last year with Peterborough Petes of the Ontario Hockey Association, Junior A series.

Another veteran, Elmer (Moose) Vasko, announced his retirement at Buffalo Sabres' Peterborough, Ont., camp. Vasko, who played 20 years with Chicago Black Hawks and later with Minnesota, said: "I'm struggling all the time and can't make the moves like I used to."

The Sabres also were involved in a trade, exchanging right wingers with St. Louis. Craig Cameron returned to his former Blues' mates for Ron Anderson.

Ferguson Repeating

While his Montreal Canadiens' team-mates were in Halifax Friday night for a National Hockey League pre-season exhibition game against Toronto Maple Leafs, Ferguson remained at home with a large cast from his right wrist to elbow.

Last season, after injuries and suspensions, Ferguson managed only 48 of 76 games for Canadiens. That season got off to a bad start when he broke his thumb in an exhibition game at Halifax.

A club spokesman has described his present injury as "more horrible."

Ferguson maintains he'll be ready for the Canadiens season-opener against the Flyers in Philadelphia Oct. 11.

"This is a seven-day cast and it will be nearly that much. It should be off long before we leave Philadelphia."

Ferguson traces the damaged elbow to a bump during a game Oct. 17 game in Chicago against the Black Hawks.

Ticats' Eckman Will Have Plenty on His Mind

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

John Eckman, 32-year-old Hamilton Tiger-Cat quarterback, has two things in the back of his mind as he prepares to start Sunday's Eastern Football Conference game against Toronto Argonauts.

The six-foot-one, 195 pounder knows that veteran Wally Gabler is waiting in the wings to replace him if he fails to generate an early Tiger offence.

Then there's the recent tragic death of several close friends, including the coach of Wichita State University's football team and the school's athletic director, who were aboard a chartered plane that crashed Friday in rugged Colorado mountains.

Eckman, a Wichita State alumnus, had been associated with the school following graduation and assisted the team during its spring training program.

Thirteen players were killed in the crash of the plane which was en route to Logan, Utah, from Wichita, Kan., where they were to play Utah State today.

Eleven players were among crash survivors. It took 29 lives of 40 aboard the craft. A second chartered flight was completed safely.

Eckman, backup pivot to Joe Zagyr until the veteran quarterback broke his right arm at Vancouver during Ticats' recent Western Canada road trip, guided Hamilton to a victory over British Columbia Lions.

But against Edmonton Eskimos three days later, six of his passes were intercepted and the Tiger-Cats were humbled, bringing about Gabler's acquisition last weekend from Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

Gabler has had little opportunity to digest Hamilton's unique offence in which every backfielder is in motion, but reports from the Ticat camp Friday indicate he has mastered a couple of their basic formations and is ready to play.

A former Argo found expendable during the 1969 season, Gabler wound up in Winnipeg with the WFC cellar dwellers and was relegated to a secondary position with the Blue Bombers this year.

Another former Argo, linebacker Allan Ray Aldridge, will be out to show his ex-mates he's as good as ever despite an off-season knee operation that left his playing status in doubt.

Argo coach Leo Cahill cut the six-foot-six giant just before the 1970 season rather than chance protecting him, claiming he hadn't healed properly.

The Hamilton-Toronto game, scheduled for 2 p.m. EDT Sunday, is one of two scheduled in Eastern Canada this weekend.

Ottawa Rough Riders entertain Winnipeg today in an interlocking Canadian Football League game to be carried on CBC-TV's national network starting at 3 p.m. EDT.

Argos will be after their fourth straight win in Hamilton. Their last visit to Civic Stadium, last Thanksgiving Day, brought out a record Hamilton crowd of 32,214.

One Hamilton offence Argos will be keying on is Tommy Joe Coffey. Ticats' wide receiver who gobbled up 1,000 yards in pass-catching specialist.

His sudden-fire blocking has amassed most of his 41 points this year, but his great pass catching ability has been one of Hamilton's deadliest offensive weapons this year.

Every point the 32-year-old Coffey scores adds to his already CFL career-leading total of 414 and he's within 38 yards of surpassing the total career yardage of Hal Patterson, retired Hamilton and Montreal Alouette great.

Argos have assigned speedster Jim Tomlin to shadow Coffey in Sunday's game. But, if Tomlin is up to the task, Coach Cahill might be forced to double-team the illusive end.

Ottawa linebacker Ken Lehmann, one of the CFL's outstanding defensive players, has been placed on the 28-day injury reserve list at Rough-Rider coach Jack Gotta bolsters his club for the final games.

Gotta hopes to add a cough to his attacking unit with the arrival of two recent National Football League cuts, Charles Leigh and Glen Wren Gotta earlier announced that fullback Jim Hankins had been placed on waivers and defensive back and punter, Bill Van Burkleo had been designated 'the 'Riders' 14th import.

Junior A's Patient About Scoring

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The final 20 minutes produced decisive scoring in both Ontario Hockey Association Junior A games Friday as Toronto Marlboros downed Niagara Falls Flyers 11-10 and Ottawa 67's edged St. Catharines Black Hawks 4-3.

The defeat dropped St. Catharines to last place in the 16-team group after a 4-5 loss to Peterborough Petes Thursday in the season opener.

The Marlboros scored six times in the third period, twice in the final minute, at Niagara Falls to wipe out a 9-4 Flyers lead.

Steve Shutt with three goals, Bill Harris, Dave Gardner and Steve Vickers, two each, Gavin Kirk and Charlie Shaw shared the Toronto attack.

Steve Stone led the Flyers with three goals. Russ Friesen and Wayne Chrysler both scored twice. Stan Gross, Eric Vail and Morris Titanic scored once each for the losers.

The Marlboros rallied to tie the score 9-9 by the 13th minute of the third period. Friesen restored the Niagara Falls lead less than two minutes later, but Vickers tied for Toronto with 47 seconds left to play and Shutt shot the winner with three seconds to spare.

At Ottawa, Brun McSheffrey posted the winning goal for the 67's with 32 seconds left to play in the third period to complete the home team scoreback. Rookie Ron Robbins and Paul Sheard scored earlier in the period for Ottawa to cut a 3-1 St. Catharines lead.

Marcel Dionne shot the Black Hawks ahead with the only goal of the first period. Rocco Bill Skewidge, who played for the Northern Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series last season, widened the St. Catharines lead to 2-0 midway in the second period before defenceman Paul Tosh scored the first Ottawa goal.

Mike Skoora restored the two-goal St. Catharines lead with just over two minutes remaining in the period.

St. Catharines goalkeeper George Hulme played a strong game in a losing cause as Ottawa held a 42-29 edge in shots.

Mrs. Streit Individual Leader

MADRID (Reuters) — The United States moved to within two strokes of a faltering French team Friday with one round remaining in the Espirito Santo world amateur team golf championships.

The French women sank to a third-round total of 154 on rounds of 78 by Catherine Lacoste de Prado and 78 by Brigitte Varangot.

Canada stayed in third place but as Marlene Stewart Streit of Toronto took over the individual leadership with a 76 ahead of Sourasna of Montreal and Gail Harvey Haynes of New Westminster, B.C., each scored 78 to give the Canadians a total of 451.

Mrs. Streit leads the individual leadership with a total of 229 after rounds of 75-75-78.

Bowerman Makes Cut

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — Bobby Mitchell, seeking his first victory in four years on the professional golf tour, held a two-stroke lead with a 36-hole score of 136 today, 12 under par, as the $60,000 Azalea Open moved into its third round.

In second place were 76 strokes back at 138, was defending champion Dale Douglass, who shot 63 Friday to equal the par 71-6,575-yard Cape Fear Country Club course record.

The field was trimmed to 73 players for the final rounds today and Sunday.

Five players were tied for third. Among them was Deane Beman, first-round leader with a 63, who managed only par 71 Friday for a 134 total. Tied with him were Al Balding of Toronto, Cesar Sanudo, John Schlee and Hugh Royer.

Also making the cut were Gary Bowerman of Toronto and Wayne Vollmer of Vancouver, both with 139.

Bitsy Cooper Says:
Golf's Million Dollar Winner

DON'T BE HAM-HANDED

The golf club should feel lively in your hands. There's no way you can swing effectively if you take a bone-handed grip on the club and swing it like a sledge hammer.

The too-heavy grip often stems from the way the right hand is positioned on the club. The right-handed grip is formed by the fingers, the shaft running directly across the root of the fingers. The club should never be allowed to sink up into the palm of the hand.

When the club is in the right-hand fingers, the right thumb will be on the left-top of the grip as you look down. The right-hand thumb-forefinger "V" should point inside your right shoulder. You'll have a "lively" grip using this style.

Gerela's Toe-stubbing Could Be Costly to Lions

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Place-kicking specialist Ted Gerela has been stubbing his toe against Eastern Conference Football Conference and his ability to boot clutch field goals may be the difference between a playoff spot and an early end to the season for British Columbia Lions.

And with the Lions and Eskimos tied for third place, the last playoff spot, with 18 points each, Gerela knows it's time he started scoring if he wants to stay WFC scoring leader.

Although they have a game in hand, the Lions have a rash of injuries and a tough schedule facing them. B.C. still faces an Eastern swing against Toronto and Montreal, second-place league-leading Saskatchewan, second-place Calgary Stampeders and Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

The Eskimos play Calgary, Saskatchewan and have two Tiger-Cats who play Toronto Argonauts Sunday in Hamilton.

Meanwhile, Gerela worked out all week at home with backup quarterback Tidal Carlin, who took over the kicking chores from injured Rich Robinson, and the husky kicker was bombarded goals consistently from 35 yards.

Gerela admits he feels a lot better now that he doesn't have to take a protective shirt in the backfield this year.

"Last year, I was always worrying about the guy getting behind me," he said. "I was under a lot of pressure and it made it even tougher when I had to make a pressure kick.

"This year, I'm more or less backup to Jerry getz. But, it takes a lot out of your legs. It tough t- play and kick: you have to specialize."

On Sunday, Montreal coach Sam Etcheverry plans to insert Sonny Wade and Jerry Ware out from New Orleans Saints of the National Football League, to handle kickoffs and long-range field goal attempts against Saskatchewan.

Dalla Riva Noticed on Suicide Squad

MONTREAL (CP) — Two years ago Peter Dalla Riva was one of six members of Oakville Black Knights who tried to make the jump from the Ontario Rugby Football Union to the Canadian Football League with Montreal Alouettes.

Ralph Goldston, then an assistant coach with the Als, was impressed with the toughness of the players—most of them from the Hamilton area.

The other five players have long since been forgotten, but as Dalla Riva started his third season with the Als he was becoming recognized as one of the top tight ends in the CFL.

"Sure I tried to impress the coaches those days with my downfield tackling," he said. "And now I learn something every day.

"I wasn't only tackling that first year here. I was catching a lot of passes in practice. I guess it's easier to catch the ball in games now because

PETER DALLA RIVA

Terry Evanshen is out there.

"Terry is a heck of a receiver and so is Garry Lefebvre. The defence has to leave me open sometimes."

Dalla Riva feels that because Evanshen and Lefebvre well require special attention all season, those short passes with which quarterback Sonny Wade hit him successfully against Toronto Argonauts in the final pre-season game and the first league game will work against other opposition as well.

Als' line coach Bob Geary said Dalla Riva has been doing a good blocking job and has key assignments on all the off-tackle and wide running plays to the strong side.

Dalla Riva played end with the junior team in Burlington, Ont., but has been used strictly as the suicide squads and then last year he came into his own at end.

"It sure is good this year," said Dalla Riva. "You feel as if you have a bit of seniority. Before, I used to look up to the veteran. Now I'm one of them."

He said head coach Sam Etcheverry isn't entirely as passive as he appears from the stands, but "after he gets after a couple of weeks, he calms down."

"He'll just tell you that or that play you should have done this or that. If you make a mistake you know he knows about it."

Fairways Open Training Camp With 35 Junior Hopefuls

Meagher Return A Boost

Candidates for the Belleville Fairways Junior B hockey team got some of the kinks ironed out last night as the club held it's first regular practice.

Coach Floyd Crawford stressed skating for the two-hour session which drew 35 junior age hockey hopefuls. Much of the time was spent on conditioning with the remainder going to two-on-one drills between forwards and defencemen.

Last year standouts Danny Lupenette, John Mulvihill and goaltender Ron Jury were all on hand for the practice. Lupenette appeared to be in particularly good shape and the speedy centre was flying all the time he was on the ice.

Crawford was pleased with a number of the new faces at the practice, but will probably reserve judgment until Sunday's first scrimmage session.

The team received more good news when it was reported by manager Jim Matthews that right winger Terry Meagher would be on hand for the weekend scrimmage.

Meagher paced Belleville in scoring last year with 77 goals and 30 assists, good for fourth spot in the Eastern Ontario Junior B League statistics.

One dark spot was the fact that defenceman Kevin Dockrill, counted on as one of the team's starting rearguards, suffered a broken hand playing high school football. It was not known how long the injury will keep the lanky second year man out of action.

Coach Floyd Crawford was giving the once-over to tryouts for Belleville's 1970-71 Junior B hockey entry at Friday night's opening practice of training camp. Goaltender Robbie Moore, last winter with Belleville's Kinsmen Bantam all-stars, and holdovers Danny Lupenete and defenceman John Mulvihill were among the 35 tryouts who attended the first training camp session. The Fairways, who open their season Sunday, Oct. 25 at home to Oshawa Crushmen, held a two-hour workout this morning, and have another scheduled for 2-4 p.m. Sunday.

Game Clubbers Gun For Turkeys

The Belleville and District fish and game club is hoping to get caught "cold turkey" by a number of Quinte district sportsmen this Sunday when they hold their second fall turkey shoot.

A total of 300 marksmen participated in the previous outing held September 20 and officials are hoping to increase this number. Groups of 10 shooters will compete for the 18-pound birds, using either .22 calibre rifles or 12-gauge shotguns.

Shooting will commence at 10 a.m., and end at four o'clock at the third concession of Sidney side. Sage posts will be placed at the junction of 401 highway and the Wallbridge road to direct participants to the location.

Another feature will be horseshoe pitching for the same prizes competed for by the marksmen.

Moira Still Get Kicks

Moira senior soccer team the reigning Bay of Quinte champions, continued on their winning way against Centennial. The Moira team pressed from the start and were soon on the score board with two quick goals from Brian Preston and Robert Guay.

Moira kept up the pressure and by half time had added a further two goals scored by Joe Clarke and David Bay, in the second half Centennial

Aces, Mo-Hawks Have Different Airs

By MAURICE SWITZER
Sports Editor

Both Kingston Aces and Belleville Mo-Hawks will have a different air about them in tonight's 8 p.m. Memorial Arena senior hockey exhibition.

Unless coach Danny McLeod can pull one of his patented rabbit-from-hats, the 1970-71 Aces will be a mere shadow of last winter's third place finishers in the eight-entry OHA Senior A group.

The Aces have lost all their starting centres from last season. Hugh Harvey signed a pro contract with the Boston Bruins organization; Bob Clayton is attending Oakland Seals' pre-season camp and will not be returning to Queen's University whether or not he signs a pro contract; and Doug Senior, who got 19 goals and 17 assists in only 27 games with the Aces last year will be contributing to the new Mo-Hawk look.

Senior, although not yet signed by general manager Robert Temple, is reportedly content with the prospect of joining the Mo-Hawks since moving home and job to Trenton, and will start in tonight's Belleville exhibition.

Both are attending Queen's on Hockey Canada scholarships, and McLeod has been trying to seek permission for them to play senior hockey as well as in college ranks.

In addition to Senior, another former Kingston player may come back to haunt the Aces tonight. Les Colligan, who played last winter with Kingston's intermediate affiliate in Napanee, has been skating strong in the Mo-Hawk training camp and will be started by coach Dave Jones tonight.

Even Jones isn't entirely sure who will be playing tonight.

Goaltender Steve Rexz, 20 - goal wingers Al Ferguson and Lorne O'Donnell, and even team captain Ralph Plaxe have indicated they will not dress for tonight's game or the return 7 p.m. Sunday exhibition in Kingston unless they are signed first.

Jones said he would split goaltending chores between last - year's backup Bob Moon and promising tryout Callum MacPhee if Rexz was true to his word.

Also starting tonight for the Mo-Hawks will be winger Rick O'Donnell, who played his junior hockey in Trenton. O'Donnell, who attended last year's Mo-Hawk camp, showed up on Friday night's two-hour Memorial Arena workout.

"I think I made a mistake not keeping him last year," said Jones.

The number of signed Mo-Hawks rose to six Friday night with the official addition of centre George Godson and defenceman Lou Kazowski.

Godson is 21 points in 39 games last winter gave him the Mo-Hawk point leadership for the second straight year. The nifty Peterborough skater added another six goals and nine assists in 11 playoff games. In addition to doing valuable double-duty as a penalty-killer.

Kazowski collected 25 points in an injury-abbreviated 37-game season for the 70-79 Mo-Hawks, and added eight in 11 playoff games. The smooth puck-handler may be missing from the Mo-Hawk blueline tonight due to a previous commitment.

General manager Temple also said next Friday night's season-opener against Owen Sound will be going ahead as scheduled. It had been thought that the game might be postponed at Owen Sound's request due to lack of ice for their training camp.

Picton Sweeps Easy

Picton and Madoc entries in Bay of Quinte high school football circles were on the receiving end of some one-sided scores in the first two weeks of the 1970 season.

But they took it easy on one another in Friday's action.

The Prince Edward Collegiate Juniors shaded Centre Hastings 6-0 on Bob Ryall's touchdown.

Picton seniors made it a clean sweep with a 14-6 win by virtue of majors by Bob Clow and Terry Byford, both converted by the able toe of Paul Pettingale.

Jean Dixon's Horoscope

For October 4

Your birthday today. Divers-ity characterizes the coming year. There are stimulating new insights, variable conditions which will let you reassess in your pattern of habits. All relationships must develop for success, requiring definite choices from you. Today's natives generally have a progressive view-point and very often are interested in such matters as child welfare, education, social service, sociology.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Ode in the command of circumstances. There is enough confusion to make your forthright expression of faith meaningful. Gather friends for pleasant pastimes.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): This Sunday brings no special pressures. Simple, natural pleasures are preferred to sophisticated entertainment. Give yourself a rest from the mundane.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Complicated conditions. Incomplete information should not be allowed to quell an otherwise fine Sunday. Think at a steeple pace and get started.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Enjoy a relaxing Sunday of sociable good nature; avoid serious subject and any effort to change anybody's mind. Share your hobbies with others of like interests.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Concentrate mainly on your home life, the spirit in which things are done. Prayer offers fresh insight. Evening brings a cheering moment.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Visitors bring interesting information. Listen carefully, make your conclusions later. The late evening may include serious business.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Consider the concerns and shortages of others. Bring more balance into your social life. Call on people you haven't seen lately.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Busy plans may have to stretch to include additional hours. Be the more the merrier. Hold your expensive mood and go on to a lively evening.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Normal Sunday activities are satisfying and provocative. You can't keep anything secret. Your friends likely have plans of their own.

For October 5

Your birthday today: Prestige is the story of your coming year. Diligence is essential. Every side line activity can distract you from your main goals. Creative activities promise results beyond expectations. Romantic ventures are promised in your scheme of life now. Today's natives have the knack of combining an occasional bit of luck with a great deal of hard work. Many of them have natural skills at politics.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Your week opens with a spark of inspiration. Business and personal projects mesh for once and can be strongly improved. Seek new contacts, deal with influential people.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): New concepts bring changes in your work. Follow your own original ideas, experiment cautiously. Attend to family financial and legal arrangements.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Things which require close cooperation are better done now since all concerned are well disposed. Display your work. Be ready to adjust to the needs of others.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): You have an expansive mood for beginning an active and successful week. Do your best with each opportunity that arises. New methods pose considerable challenge.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Creative approaches to special problems are promising. Children need your attention. Put your strength behind your opinion. Plan for a modest social evening.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Look over your list for fresh opportunity, exchanges of property. Take advice from technical experts. Emphasize holiday ideas. A complete change of tempo is favored this evening.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Apply your best skills today. An early start puts you ahead.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): You can turn some odd stunts to really rewarding and useful labeling. Dealings with influential people are favored. Lay the groundwork now for sudden improvement later.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): You can have almost anything within reason, the result of recent past efforts. Ask for improvements, backing. Evening hours are for meditation.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Diligent effort brings results as many confused matters are clarified. Make direct inquiries. Product experiment with shortcuts, new methods go surprisingly well.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 20): Reach out for new contacts. There is strong support for your projects. If you haven't already, make your bid today and all this coming week.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Unexpected circumstances keep you busy this week, beginning with the large events of today. Try new methods, break old habits. Follow your intuition in making choices.

Oils Push Markets Up

By ART JOHNSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Western oil issues pushed Canadian stock markets higher this week, providing an auspicious beginning for the final quarter of 1976.

It was the third consecutive week that stock markets have moved higher.

Much of the strength stemmed from good tidings about oil and natural gas, say analysts.

One bullish factor was the modest relaxation of United States restrictions on crude oil imports from Canada, announced early in the week by the United States government.

Another factor was the National Energy Board's decision to allow four of five Canadian applicants to export more natural gas to the U.S.

Under pressure partially from these influences, the Toronto Stock Exchange's western oil index advanced 6.85 points to 1,000.88. The exchange's industrial index, a broad indicator of stock activity, rose 1.47 points to 167.36.

On Wall Street, the Dow-Jones industrial average of key blue-chip stocks rose 4.39 points to 761.77. Analysts said the market held up well through the week.

It dropped back Tuesday to the U.S. Labor Day holiday before recovering after the death of President Gamal Abdel Nasser of Egypt, but recovered almost all of its losses by late afternoon.

At the Montreal and Canadian exchanges, the composite index was up 2.49 to 189.69.

It was the third consecutive week at Toronto that both industrial and western oil indices posted advances.

Trading was light to moderate throughout the week.

Among the biggest gainers on the Toronto market were TransCanada PipeLines and Westcoast Transmission, two of the four companies approved by the National Energy Board to increase natural gas shipments to the U.S.

TransCanada advanced 4¼ to 23¾ and Westcoast 3⅝ to 22½.

One Doctor's Advice

Don't Drink Your Milk, Shun Bacon and Eggs

TORONTO (CP) — "Drink up your milk" might be the worst thing a parent can say to a growing child, a Toronto doctor warned Friday.

Dr. Doral Murnaghan, associate professor of medicine at the University of Toronto, said large amounts of milk may lead to heart trouble for children aged three to six and in early and late adolescence.

Dr. Murnaghan also told an occupational health conference, sponsored by Ontario and Quebec industrial physicians, that a breakfast of bacon and eggs is not good for office workers. Low fat cheese and lean meat are better for the city man, he said.

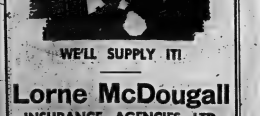
Corn Crop Shrinking

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States agriculture department Friday estimated the country's corn crop at 4.185 million bushels, a shrinkage of five per cent in little more than three weeks.



The forecast was a special report on prospects of the blight-stricken corn crop as of Sept. 23. Three weeks ago the department announced Sept. 1 prospects at 4.400 million bushels.

Crop reporting board officials said the latest estimate, about 218 million bushels below Sept. 1, was due "largely from increased damage from southern corn leaf blight and other diseases."

Rylstone Personals

RYLSTONE — Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Spencer and their aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Percy Mumby returned home Wednesday from a trip through the eastern provinces and the Maritimes.

A birthday dinner in honor of William Morton Sr. was held on Sunday at George's Restaurant in Campbellford. Present were his sons and daughters and their families: his brother, Richard, his son Jim, his wife and family, and Mrs. Bob Runnells (Jean Morton) and Mary Ellen. Guests were present from Oakville, Trent River, Stirling, Harold and Rylstone.

The family of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Irwin celebrated Mrs. Irwin's birthday with them on Sunday. Present were their sons Elwood and Claire, his wife and family, all of Campbellford and Misses Judy and Sue Wallace of Peterborough.

The junction of the Seymour and Rawdon boundary and the tenth concession has undergone a service face-lifting in the past few weeks. The t-shaped corner has been changed to a

KILLING YOURSELF

Outlook Not Bleak After Hysterectomy

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

If you asked 10 women which type of operation they feared most, it is likely that the majority (or all) would answer: hysterectomy.

Perhaps I should say, "If you asked 10 younger women." For I have found that the women past her menopause is much more philosophical about the removal of her uterus. She has already had her children. She is not as concerned about its effects upon her figure, her sexual desires or its psychological impact.

But the younger woman faced with hysterectomy invariably has some degree of anxiety.

• • •

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I've just been told I have a hysterectomy to look forward to. As I'm 36, have only two children (we planned on having at least four) I am concerned.

I understand that when one has uterus and ovaries removed, one loses sexual interest, becomes fat, crunky, and ages rapidly. This is a dim prospect. I think you will agree. But I have no choice. I understand that large fibroids and excessive bleeding make the operation mandatory. Like anyone about to undergo surgery, I'll appreciate any words from you that may keep my spirits up. — Mrs. M.

Comment: Things are not as bleak as you imagine. First, let's get an important definition or two out of the way. Hysterectomy means removal of only the uterus. (If your ovaries are healthy, your doctor will not remove them unless he has a significant reason to do so.) Panhysterectomy is the term used for removal of both uterus and ovaries.

Now, if only the uterus is removed, you can expect little or no change in your hormonal status. Except for psychological reactions it will not follow that the operation will change your sexual desire or feminine qualities. (In fact the sexual desire is increased in many women who are now free from the possibility of having any more children.)

The operation should not produce any changes in your voice, hair or skin. As for the psychological reactions (depression, nervousness etc.) they will depend upon each individual's response to the hysterectomy.

It's difficult to predict. I have seen many young women, without offspring, take it more calmly than older women who already have raised a large family.

So my suggestion to you, Mrs. M., is to try to take your operation in stride. You are young, you have a family, and there's little likelihood you'll grow old prematurely. Even if you needed a panhysterectomy, your doctor could prescribe hormones that would help take up the slack.

For Miss D.: Although there has been a report that eating licorice candy has produced high blood pressure, I cannot see how eating an occasional stick of licorice will endanger your health.

In the reported case the patient had eaten licorice every day for seven years. It'll be the last case to deprive you of "an occasional stick of licorice" on the basis of a "one case report."

• • •

For Mrs. K.: Here's a tip to take along with you on your long cross country bus trip. As you are 72 and have a history of bad varicose veins, get out at every stop — whether you need to or not — to exercise your legs.

Just sitting for hour after hour invites the possibility of blood clots in the legs. This is also good advice for the elderly who "sit around too much" at home.

Farm Body Thinks Many Supporting Tax Withholding

TORONTO (CP) — Officials of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture are optimistic that their call for an immediate stop to education tax payments has found wide support among their 100,000 members.

Assessment of the effectiveness of the ban, which began Sept. 29 and is aimed at forcing a better tax deal for the farmer, was still difficult Friday because deadlines for fall tax payments vary widely from county to county.

But David Hopkins, information officer for the OFA, said the mood and actions of Ontario farmers appear to spell success for the campaign.

"There are very few farmers who disagree with us," Mr. Hopkins said in an interview. "Most indicated their support."

The OFA urged its members to withhold the education portion of their municipal taxes—which is almost half the property tax bill—because, the association says, the Ontario farmer has an unfairly heavy burden.

Under provincial law, a penalty of one per cent per month is levied on unpaid taxes. After three years of non-payment the municipality can seize the property and sell it.

But a farmer who banks the portion he withheld earns bank interest on the money. He can prevent seizure of his property in 1973 by paying the 1970 taxes that year.

The federation says the farmer is taxed on his home, residential lot, barns and acreage. The city dweller only pays taxes on his home and lot.

The difference, Mr. Hopkins said, may mean $1,000 a year or more.

He said an Essex County farmer with 303 acres last year had to pay $1,104 in education tax. A highly-paid city executive living on a 113-foot lot paid only a $105 levy on a 50-foot city lot paid $105.

Mr. Hopkins said the cost of education to the farmer has jumped to 15 per cent of the net income in 1969 from seven per cent in 1966. Re-assessment, started by the provincial government about a year ago as a move towards greater uniformity, equity, and accuracy in taxation, has only aggravated the problem.

The federation wants the Ontario government to assume a greater share of the education cost, preferably 100 per cent, and lift the education tax portion from farming property.

The government currently pays 60 per cent of the cost and raises the remainder through provincial or municipal property taxes.

Mr. Hopkins said the province has indicated it will raise its education share to 80 per cent in the next two or three years, "but we can't wait that long."

"The productivity of farmers has increased by 152 per cent in the last 20 years, while the increase in industry was under 100 per cent," he said.

"However, net farm income was increased by only 29 per cent in that period while non-farm income has increased by 477 per cent."

Withholding action was taken by farmers in the counties of Lanark, Ramsey, Drummond and Sherbrooke in the Ottawa area as well as by some in Stormont, Wellington, Niagara, Perth, Sarnia and Simcoe.

U.S. Navy Vessel Will Check Gas

WASHINGTON (AP) — An old-looking United States Navy ship, bristling with the same scientific gear it used to locate two sunken U.S. submarines a few years back, goes looking today for an old Liberty ship and its cargo of nerve gas sunk in the Atlantic.

The oceanographic research ship Mizar and its team of scientists will revisit the ocean gravesite of the LeHaron Russell Briggs to determine whether its deadly cargo is intact and if the gas has harmed marine life.

The Briggs was scuttled Aug. 18 in 16,000 feet of water 233 miles east of the Florida coast. Aboard were 418 vaults of obsolete but still highly-toxic GB nerve gas packed in old rockets.

Using cameras mounted on an underwater sled, the scientists will photograph the resting hulk and check the effects, if any, on marine organisms in the area. Water samples will be taken and analyzed to see if any trace of the nerve agents are present.

Conservationists who sought to block the dumping contended the gas would harm marine life.

Military oceanographic experts said there was little life around the site, mainly spiny creatures such as starfish and sea urchins. Any leaking gas, they said, would be neutralized by the salt water and become harmless within 10 hours.

Oil Hunt Authorized

OTTAWA (CP) — Jean Chretien, minister of northern development, has authorized two oil exploration companies to prospect on Banks Island in the Northwest Territories, it was learned Friday.

The agreement allows Elf Exploration and Production Canada Ltd. and Dominion of Canada Ltd. to conduct geophysical research on the island.

Both companies have agreed to meet stiff standards set by the department to protect wildlife and growth on the island.

Algonquin Wildlands League Calls Conservation Parley

FRENCH LAKE, Ont. (CP) — A "summit meeting of United States and Canadian conservationists here today will draw the critical eye of the Ontario government.

The meeting, sponsored by the Algonquin Wildlands League, is attracted more than 50 leading United States and Canadian conservationists, but most publicists invited will not attend.

The conservationists are meeting to protest the proposed transfer of timber rights in Quetico provincial park to the Ontario-Minnesota Pulp and Paper Co. from the Dominion Tar and Chemical Co.

This lake, site of the meeting, is located near the northern fringe of the 1,750-square mile park that sits in northwestern Ontario on the border of the state of Minnesota about mid-way between Thunder Bay and Winnipeg.

The park, in rugged country of lakes and spruce and jackpine forests, attracted 29,000 visitors in 1969, 95 per cent of whom were Americans.

A league and forests spokesman said in Toronto Friday his department is not prepared to accept criticism of the park by Americans.

"They want to look at their own backyard before they start talking about us," he said.

Mr. Brunelle has said in the past his department places strict controls on logging and sees nothing wrong with the move.

The department has maintained that logging and recreation can go together in provincial parks, but this stand has brought sharp criticism from the Algonquin Wildlands League, a group of more than 1,500 persons, mostly urban and from the Toronto area.

Can Eat Fish A Day Without Mercury Pangs

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — A Swedish scientist specializing in mercury contamination says that in order for a person to pick up ill effects from mercury-contaminated fish, he would have to eat more than one fish a day.

Dr. Arve Jernelov of Stockholm spoke Thursday at the three-day International Conference on Environmental Mercury Contamination at the University of Michigan. Michigan State University is a co-sponsor.

Dr. Jernelov said only someone "who eats more than 400 fish a year, more than one fish a day" would be harmed by mercury levels now found in fish caught in the Michigan waters.

Much research on mercury contamination has been done in Japan and Sweden where damage has been reported to humans and animals.

Dr. Jernelov said mercury contamination is a worldwide problem primarily through direct introduction into waters and land.

"Airborne mercury contamination is not a global problem in the same sense that DDT is," Dr. Jernelov said. "It is a local problem."

Labor Vote Heavy

Lewis Heads NDP

TORONTO (CP) — Stephen Lewis returns to the Ontario legislature Tuesday as new leader of the Ontario New Democratic Party after a convention which ordered him to press a program for returning the provincial economy to Canadian ownership and control.

Mr. Lewis, chosen to succeed Donald MacDonald in an overwhelming victory Sunday over two opponents, promised he would show the voters of Ontario that a democratic socialist party is an acceptable, responsible alternative to the 26-year-old Conservative government of Premier John Robarts.

He said the people of Ontario have nothing to fear from NDP policies on nationalization because public ownership will be used only as a weapon in securing the best possible life for the province.

Mr. Lewis, 32-year-old legislature member for Scarborough West, was given 1,188 votes in the leadership election. Walter Pitman, 41-year-old member of the legislature for Peterborough, won 642 and Douglas Campbell, a 40-year-old Toronto taxi driver, was given 21.

Some labor leaders said Mr. Lewis won 90 per cent of the votes of unions which sent 830 delegates to the convention. There were 864 riding delegates and 157 representatives of other party organizations.

Unions never before sent so many delegates to an Ontario NDP convention. In 1968 there were fewer than 400.

Mr. Lewis made it clear that he intends to make Canadian ownership and control of the economy a major issue in the next provincial election.

The convention debated a series of resolutions on nationalization of resource industries.

The Waffle, a small but influential left-wing group within the party, was beaten back in its attempts to win support for a statement that "to bring presently

Parliament Meets, New Session Ahead

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau and Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield will have their first direct confrontation today since last June.

It will come at the resumption of the Commons session after a 101-day holiday for MPs.

The current session will end Wednesday and a new one — the third of the 28th Parliament — will open Thursday morning with the usual throne speech, a general outline of government policy and planned legislation.

Today's sitting is routine in that it will start with any statements the government cares to make and a question period.

After a recess of more than three months, the opposition can be expected to be laden with questions for the government, especially on unemployment and the economy generally.

The Commons finance committee makes public today its report on the white paper on tax changes.

It is expected to be critical of some governmental proposals, but not as severely as the Senate finance committee which reported last week.

Sources say the government does not plan to try to put through any major or controversial legislation in the dying days of the current session.

They say it has dropped all intention of seeking passage now of a bill, strenuously opposed by the Conservatives, to establish government-appointed national marketing boards for farm products despite a Sept. 16 statement by Agriculture Minister H. A. Olson that its approval by Parliament is urgent.

"There's been another shuffle!"

British Official Kidnapped

MONTREAL (CP) — Police said four armed men abducted James Richard Cross, 49, senior British trade commissioner in Montreal in front of his home at 8 a.m. today.

The British government officials said that Mr. Cross was kidnapped as he was leaving for work.

Police said Mr. Cross was forced into a taxi cab in front of his home on a fashionable crescent near the foot of Mount Royal.

They are checking highways leading from the city. The four men were reported to be armed with three machine-guns and a revolver. Cars were being checked on some bridges leading from Montreal Island.

Nixon to Boost Navy Power If Russia Pushes in Mideast

NEWMARKET ON FERGUS, Ireland (CP) — President Nixon, winding up his European tour today, is optimistic about extension of the Middle East ceasefire. And he is ready to increase U.S. naval strength in the Mediterranean if the Russians push him.

"Neither party . . . will gain by breaking the ceasefire." Nixon told reporters at a reception Sunday night at Dromoland Castle. ". . . Any party at this time that would break the ceasefire initiative would have very, very little support in the world. It would be acting alone against the whole might of the world public opinion. . . ."

The 90-day ceasefire agreed to by Israel, Egypt and Jordan is scheduled to expire Nov. 5. Saturday, the U.S. president and British Prime Minister Edward Heath agreed to work for a 30-day extension.

There are strong indications that the president is ending his European tour with a firm decision to unveil a new Vietnam peace plan, possibly within the next 10 days or two weeks.

White House officials have no formal comment but they do not discourage the belief that Nixon intends to announce another troop withdrawal from Vietnam along with a diplomatic initiative he hopes will bring new life into the deadlocked Paris peace talks.

Nixon discussed his expected course at a meeting in Limerick with David Bruce, his chief Vietnam negotiator, and other top U.S. officials including State Secretary William Rogers.

The president gave some blunt advice to what he called, irresponsible radical elements who could set off a major violence in the Middle East and a nuclear confrontation between the Soviet Union and the United States.

His remarks expressed concern over the recent fighting in Jordan, and appeared to be aimed at Palestinian Arab extremists vowing to wreck any attempt to settle the Arab-Israeli conflict.

The president also seemed to be cautioning the Soviet Union to exercise restraint in the Mediterranean, where the Russian Navy is challenging the 59-ship American 6th Fleet in size and power.

Liberals Want Key Industry Fifty Per Cent Canadian

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Ontario Liberals approved a policy statement Sunday which called on the federal government to aim at guaranteeing at least 50 per cent Canadian ownership "in all future industries in key sections of the economy."

The motion was one of 130 passed by Ontario Liberals representing 88 federal and 117 provincial ridings in preparation for a national policy-making conference at Ottawa in November.

A move to censure the federal government for its decision last week to sell $3 trillion cubic feet of natural gas to the United States was defeated by delegates by a vote of three-to-one.

Alistair Gillespie, Liberal MP for Etobicoke, described the motion as "unconstructed and ill-conceived." Mr. Gillespie announced his resignation Friday from a directorship of W. J. Gage Ltd., book publishers, because of the sale of its textbook division to U.S. interests.

External affairs minister Mitchell Sharp said the sale of gas to the United States will promote the development of the oil and gas industry in Western Canada.

The Canadian industrial ownership statement also called for the processing of primary resources in Canada, monetary and fiscal policies to encourage optimization of resident Canadian equity participation and disclosure of all financial aspects of foreign-owned businesses and unions.

A group of about 30 of the 400 delegates attending gained considerable support for pollution and economy-management statements which included a call for amendments to the Criminal Code of Canada to make environmental pollution punishable by fines and jail sentences.

The group also gained heavy support for motions to make temporary, compulsory wage-price, profit and dividend controls in specific segments of the economy in the event voluntary wage-price guidelines of the federal government prove ineffective.

On drug abuse, the delegates approved statements urging removal from criminal law of simple possession of soft drugs such as marijuana and hashish, less severe penalties and removal of criminal record for users of marijuana.

Wide support was gained for removal of abortion from the Criminal Code and permission of abortion with a context of compulsory counselling for both parents before and after the operation.

MacDonald Embarrassed By Buick

TORONTO (CP) Donald C. MacDonald, retiring leader of the Ontario New Democratic Party, was presented with a new car by his party supporters Saturday night.

"Quite frankly, I'm a little embarrassed," he said as the Buick was rolled onto the hotel ballroom floor.

The gift was financed by donations from party supporters.

Mr. MacDonald hadn't owned a car for a number of years but used one leased for him by the party.

Rock Thrush Found Dead

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Janis Joplin, a Texas runaway who left the top as a rock music singer selling millions of records, was found dead Sunday night.

Police said her body, with fresh hypodermic needle marks on the left arm, was found in her Hollywood hotel apartment. An autopsy was ordered to determine the cause of death.

"There were no drugs in the room, only tequila, vodka and wine," a police spokesman said.

An ambulance attendant said Miss Joplin, 27, was wearing a nightgown and her death "didn't look like foul play."

"It looked like she had just fallen over," he said

Miss Joplin was the sweetvoiced rock music star to die in less than a month. Guitarist Jimi Hendrix, who also was 27, was found dead in an apartment in London Sept. 18. A pathologist said he had suffocated from vomiting while unconscious.

Miss Joplin, who lived in the San Francisco suburb of Larkspur, had been here since Aug. 24 to perform for Columbia Records. Her body was found by John Cooke, a guitarist with the Janis Joplin Full Tilt Boogie rock group, police said.

Lindsay Wins Prisons Back

NEW YORK (AP) — Prisoners at the last city prison in their hands bowed to an ultimatum today by Mayor John V. Lindsay and freed the hostages they had held since Thursday.

The hostages at the Long Island City jail—two correction officers and a cook—were turned loose 13 minutes after a deadline set by Lindsay in a broadcast over local radio stations.

The ultimatum issued at 5:20 a.m., EDT, gave the prisoners 30 minutes to hand over the hostages.

Early Sunday, another ultimatum by the mayor had obtained the release of 17 hostages held at the Tombs prison in Manhattan.

The hostages at the Tombs had been held since Friday, the second day of a series of jail takeovers that affected five city detention houses.

The prisoners are demanding lower bail, speedier trials and better prison conditions.

Guards using clubs and tear gas battled into the Brooklyn and Kew Gardens jails Saturday night and Sunday and regained control. An attempted takeover by prisoners at the Rikers Island prison was quelled after half an hour.

Lindsay met with prisoners at the Tombs for nearly three hours after they released their hostages and said he agreed that they had "very real grievances."

Fire Prevention Week Is A Reminder for All

Fire Prevention Week across Canada, and in Belleville began yesterday and the Belleville Fire Department will concentrate on the many facets of fire prevention in closer detail until the week ends Oct. 18.

Fire officials will swing fire prevention — the work they do all year — to the attention of the public in more concentrated form this week.

And the Belleville Fire Department has planned a detailed program of fire prevention activities for the city.

Fire Inspector Paul Stephenson said this morning that fire department members will visit schools to conduct fire drills and will visit factories and high risk areas to inspect fire prevention facilities and measures.

Public school children, one of the fire department's chief concerns, will definitely feel the effects of Fire Prevention Week.

A poster contest will be conducted in all grade five classes in Belleville schools and winners will receive prizes donated by the Fire Prevention Bureau. Winners will also be eligible for the all-Canada poetry contest.

This year, young school children will be able to identify with a new fire prevention symbol, "Busy Beaver". For the younger children, "Fire officials will be passing out prevention stories and colouring sheets.

Billboards are in the communication of Fire Prevention Week, and the Belleville Jaycees have Paper Chase, and the other across Dundas Street East from Albert College.

Inspections will be a source of consternation for fire officials as the Fire Department continues its fire inspections in the city.

Inspector Stephenson told The Intelligencer that so far this year the department has conducted 2,400 inspections, lectures and drills and informative seminars to educate the public on the hazards of fire.

He outlined the duties of his department and the ever-increasing problems of fire inspection in modern society.

Mr. Stephenson explained that fire prevention, members of the Belleville Fire Department do year-round inspections of all places of business in the city.

They also conduct lectures, drills, evacuation procedures and demonstrations on the use of portable extinguishers," he said.

He added that the fire department handles about 400 inspections upon request and so far this year 700 homes have undergone this procedure.

"We also have the opportunity to work with other inspectors in the city on the building inspector, health, hydro and property grievance inspectors such as those involved in air pollution, the Liquor Control Board, nursing homes and hospitals."

"With more and more high rise apartments and factories coming into the city the more technical our problem becomes," he said. "But with the co-operation of all concerned, more fire safety factors are being installed for the safety of the occupants as well as the buildings.

"Our main concern is still the older buildings in the city, whether they be commercial or residential," he said.

"As long as these buildings exist and as long as people are careless and uninformed, we are still going to have fires."

IN MEMORIAM

VAN DUZEN — In loving memory of a dear mother and grandmother, Mary Van Duzen who passed away October 2nd, 1967.
If I had the world to give,
I'd give it to you and more,
If I had the wealth of gold,
I'd give it all to you,
If I had the power to call back years that have gone,
I'd call back those years for you, dear mother,
If I had one hour more with you,
I'd tell you how much I love you,
I'd tell you of the things I've done,
I'd talk to them when life is done,
But I cannot do any of these,
Because you're sleeping at the dawn,
Up there in heaven at the throne,
Sadly missed by her husband Phil.

Lions Complete ARC Industries Exterior

ARC Industries, the Adult Retraining Centre, will open its Belleville doors upon completion of their new premises at 119 Station Street. The Belleville Lions Club purchased the building in Nov. 1969 to be turned over to ARC officials upon renovation into a work centre. The 27-member club has spent more than 500 hours and close to $2,000 fixing up the exterior, completed this weekend, and expects to spend another $8,000. With the completion of certain materials received from the Knights of Columbus, the Alhambra, and the Ya Mena Club, the bulk of those materials have been provided from the funds raised at the Lions Club bingos.

ANAVET News Roundup

The Veterans of Belleville Committee met last Saturday to discuss arrangements for the Remembrance Day ceremonies. The parade to the cenotaph will be directed by parade marshal S. Scott. A detachment of marching troops and the Pipe Band from CFB Trenton, two platoons of veterans and the Duke of Edinburgh Pipe Band. The Hastings and Prince Edward and their cadets, the RCSC Corps Quinte with their band and the Air Cadets will be on the parade. The Salvation Army Band will play for the service at the cenotaph. The Quinte Band will play last post and reveille and the ANAF Pipe Band will play the lament during the silence. Representatives of the Belleville Militarist Association led by Padre Brush Humphries will conduct the service itself.

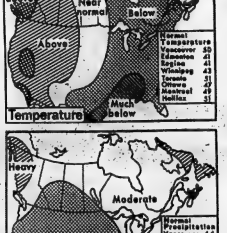
The Belleville Parks Committee is to be commended for the great improvements in the landscaping and beautifying of the Cenotaph Park and it is understood that, with the assistance of some city employees supplying water, the Campbell Monument Company will give the cenotaph a thorough cleaning with no charge for labor. The committee together with all veterans will appreciate this fine offer.

In the evening, the annual Remembrance Day banquet will be held at the Bleecker Auditorium commencing at 7 p.m. This year two new features are being introduced. All veterans are invited to have their wives, daughters or lady friends, provided they are over 21, accompany them to the banquet and after the banquet is over and the tables cleared, which will be approximately 9 p.m., there will be a dance with music from the Boer War, through both world wars and up to the present time being supplied by a popular Belleville trio.

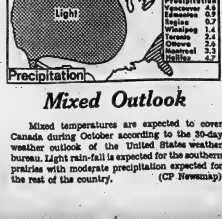
Arrangements have been made for a good public address system to be installed both at the cenotaph and at the auditorium. A well known one - time resident of Belleville has graciously accepted the invitation to be guest speaker. All who have heard him on similar occasions will remember his interesting and witty talks. He was chaplain to both the Hast and PER and Col. Phay Willis Branch, RCL and all service personnel know him as Padre A. S. McConnell. It is hoped that his charming wife will accompany him also. A bus for the older and disabled veterans will leave the Market Square at 6.15 if they have no other means of transportation. Tickets will be on sale in the near future at the messes, Legion and ANAF clubrooms and also at the door on the night of the banquet. A large turnout is expected. Any further details necessary will be in a later ANAF news column.

Major event of the week will be the general meeting at 8 p.m., Thursday, October 5. All active and associate members are urged to attend.

On the sports scene, the first annual Tankard Tournament was held last Saturday with 418 Wing, RCAF Veterans being the hosts. Teams from the three veterans' organizations, firemen, city police and OPP were among those competing with the Duke of Edinburgh club's team of Cdes. Al Burns, Rutsy Garvin, Bill Salter and Zeke Matler emerging as the first winners of the Belleville Horseshoe Trophy. It was a bit damp but all enjoyed it. The ever popular Mr. and Mrs. Dart matches for the Duke of Edinburgh Unit will be starting on Sat., Oct. 17 with the season's top winners playing off for the Harold Dracup Trophy. This competition will be held every two weeks except for the seasonal holidays, with prizes for each match winner and runner up. They will be played in conjunction with the Saturday night socials.



Unofficially, the Duke of Edinburgh Unit accepted the responsibility of sponsoring the local Air Cadet Corps several months ago but on Wednesday, October 21, representatives of the Unit will attend the Cadets parade and officially accept the sponsorship of the local Corps from their Commanding Officer. It is part of the ANAVET project of helping the Youth Citizenship program. The Unit is also sponsoring a hockey team again this year.



Cde. F. McTaggart was admitted to the Hotel Dieu Hospital, Kingston to undergo an operation. Cde. G. L. Ackerman was also admitted to the Kingston General Hospital. Any member who happens to be in Kingston would find their visits would be appreciated if they could find the time for a chat. Cde. I. Browning is coming along nicely and is out of intensive care but still has a no visitors sign on the door. Cdes. E. Gardner and J. McNaught are home and Cde. F. Crain is expected to return home shortly.

Campers, Hikers Organized

The Belleville area will have a chapter of the National Campers and Hikers Associa tion, it was announced this morning.

Ray Worrell, co-ordinator of the chapter, and Sidney Welch, publicity director, told The Intelligencer that a group of campers with common ideals in this area have decided to affiliate with the national organization after meetings with NCHA field directors recently.

The formation of the chapter began with meetings by a group of campers with the same philosophy concerning their pastime. From there, a committee of organization was formed with camper Ron ald Schamerhorn as chair man.

It was then that the group now boasting of a member ship of 32 families, decided to affiliate with NCHA.

So far this area chapter has no boundaries and is yet unnamed pending completion of a contest among the mem bers to name it.

Membership is open to all campers and hikers — even if they have only a pop tent.

The new chapter will hold its first campout on Thanks giving Weekend at Bialston Park near Marmora.

National Campers and Hik ers Association is a non - pro fit volunteer organization dedicated to the camper and hiker. It was formally organized in 1954 in the United States and now has chap ters in every state and ever province in Canada.

Lewis Named NDP Chief

Nevertheless, there was what Mr. Lewis called a "strong radical feeling" in favor of Canadian control, if not ownership, of the Canadian economy and its natural resources.

Delegates supported the Waffle in demanding nationalization of natural resource industries in the province and a massive public protest against the sale of natural gas to the United States.

The resolution said an Ontario NDP government would reject the right of the federal government to enter into continental energy agreements, and try to undo the gas sale.

Delegates indicated they want public ownership, especially in the development of natural resources, used more forcefully as a weapon in gaining Canadian economic control over foreign-based corporations.

They said Ontario's "branch-plant economy" has to be ended, and they offered specific programs for doing so. Included were recommendations for a provincial development corporation and a combination of public, private and co-operative enterprise in resource development. Financial institutions and corporations would be required to turn over some of their revenues to the province as investment capital to be used in operations "with the greatest social priority."

A second resolution on natural resources said no Ontario resource should be sold to foreign interests without the approval of a review board, and no sales should be permitted at all until Ontario's own future needs have been determined. A new planning board should decide whether newly-discovered mineral bodies are to be exploited by a Crown corporation, which would be a joint venture with private industry with the province in control, or by other methods designed to protect the public interest.

The resolution said all timber licences should be renegotiated. It called for increased taxes on logging profits and other charges to recover the full costs of forest protection and a profit per return to the public.

Mining companies should be subject to full municipal assessment, the resolution said, and also pay a special tax if their operations require development of a newcommunity in a remote region.

But the resolution also set limits to the uses of public funds in the development of natural resources. It said public funds should be used primarily to develop new and unexploited resources and the secondary industry based on them and scarce capital should not be wasted simply to change ownership from private to public hands, nor to buy back resources already turned over to private corporations.

One resolution called for a summer housing corporation to provide cottages for persons who cannot afford them. It said no recreation land should be sold to non-residents.

Mr. Lewis said he interpreted the convention instructions on economic nationalization as statements of general policy. Details of what industries would be taken over, and when, must be carefully planned, he said.

"The party has endorsed a basic principle out of a strong feeling of antagonism to capitalism," he said. "Having endorsed the principle we now must see how to make it apply in the province."

He said he is aware that there were undertones of anti-Americanism in some statements made at the convention, and "simple anti-Americanism would not be healthy."

He said that among energy resources he believes should be under public ownership in addition to water, oil and gas are uranium and Rinton oxide, a derivative of uranium ores.

Mr. Lewis, who holds a day-long party caucus today, said Mr. MacDonald and Mr. Pitman both will be on his front bench when the NDP sits for the sumptions of the legislature Tuesday.

More than 2,000 people attended the convention, largest in the provincial party's history.

Although most of more than 400 prepared resolutions were untouched, delegates in three days tried to debate at least one major recommendation on each point of interest and succeeded in making new policy statements on women's and student's rights, agriculture, health, labor and pollution. They became the first of Ontario's three political parties to support the extension of tax support to separate high schools at the grades 11-13 level.

PRINCIPAL USE

The principal use of uranium is for atomic weapons and as a source of atomic power.

The Paper Mill Again

A Milford man's letter to a Toronto newspaper last week protesting the proposed location of a kraft paper mill in Prince Edward County is ample evidence that provincial authorities and company officials have not yet convinced everyone that such a move would be in the best interest of the Quinte area.

Subsequent to a presentation made in Belleville a month ago, company officials and representatives of provincial departments picked up strong support for the location. Prince Edward County council went on record as favoring the move. Individual members of township councils have also endorsed the proposal.

But that meeting still left some areas of doubt in the minds of many. This newspaper has pointed out these doubts before, both in editorial comment and in letters directed to the attention of four cabinet ministers, the premier of this province and the three members of the legislative assembly representing this area.

At the meeting, after a recitation of 25 technical details which would reduce pollution to a controllable degree, Canadian International vice president L. H. Whittenberg was asked for a list of the controls so that they could be published.

He declined.

If the company is going to convince others that such a plant is desirable then these controls should be made public and published; thus allowing experts other than those hired by the company or the province to examine them and make comment.

After all, if such scrutiny were to reveal flaws in the control measures surely all concerned would then be prepared to take further steps to plug the pollution gap.

The Ontario Water Resources Commission and the air management branch of the department of energy and resource management are also in similar positions. Admittedly their representatives attended the meeting and did a top notch job of explaining the provincial position.

But this is not enough.

If the OWRC endorses this proposal — and its position seems to be that it does — then let it get right out on the limb and stake its reputation and integrity for this project.

It is time it made a public statement, published so that both the technical staff of OWRC and the elected politician know they have more than just an opinion riding on the issue.

The air management branch should do likewise.

For the record, the writer of this editorial, after attending the Belleville meeting is in favor of the mill. But, also for the record, the owners of this newspaper are not yet convinced that the proposal is in the best interest of Prince Edward County. Obviously there are genuine differences of opinion.

If we are going to be in the pulp business, then, let us quit beating around the bush.

The Nationalistic Left

Up until the weekend some observers would have been willing to give either the Stephen Lewis or Walter Pitman-led New Democrats a serious chance to be at least the opposition in the next Ontario provincial election.

But they could have blown it all, right there in Toronto, when the leadership convention delegates endorsed a Waffle proposal for public takeover of much energy resource industries as oil refineries and privately owned hydro electric utilities.

The move, proposed by the far left of the New Democratic Party, endorses the nationalistic theories of Toronto economist Melville Watkins. He would have a federal-provincial agreement to nationalize all of Canada's energy resources.

Whether such a policy would prove effective in Ontario is highly debatable. The residents of this province are not ready for socialism — at least not the brand proposed by the adherents of the far left. Even defeated candidate Walter Pitman was prepared to recognize this, for throughout his campaign for the leadership he suggested that the NDP had to change its image so that its socialism tentacles did not frighten the electorate of Ontario.

Successful candidate Stephen Lewis won the leadership handily, evidence again of his tremendous ability to organize political campaigns. His crunch will come, of course, when we see whether the union delegates he was able to attract to the convention will be able to deliver the votes of labor at the polls.

Dealings with Communism

Republicans Have Chance to Put Theories to the Test

By ROD CURRIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — In the years when the Democrats were in the White House and the Republicans were out, a touchstone of Republican criticism was that the Democrats were "soft" and even naive in their dealings with the Communist world.

Events of recent weeks—the Middle East ceasefire fiasco, the dangerous void left by President Nasser's death, and reports of new Soviet activity in Cuba—now give President Nixon plenty of opportunity to put Republican theory to the test.

So far, he's playing it cool.

One of the things that has helped him hold down the temperature is the surprising lack of emotional public response in the U.S. to reports that the Soviet Union may be building a major base for missile-carrying submarines in Cuba. The warnings last week that the Soviets were up to something at Cienfuegos on Cuba's south shore was a one-day wonder, submerged by concern over the Middle East crisis.

By any measure, all three developments were bad news for the U.S.

Embarrassingly, the Nixon administration showed itself to be naive in its first major negotiation with the Kremlin. Apparently over-anxious to get a ceasefire in the Middle East, the administration took Soviet expressions of good faith at face value and then saw the ceasefire jeopardized by discovery that Soviet missiles were being moved up on the Egyptian side of the Suez canal.

Then, during Nixon's current European tour, the critical Middle East situation turned worse with the death of Nasser. It opened an era in which Washington and the Kremlin, in the view of many observers, will engage in a struggle for the greater degree of influence over the new Egyptian government.

If, as both sides agree, Nixon's talks with President Tito of Yugoslavia were "frank," then Tito is bound to have warned Nixon that the Soviets already have a weak lead in the race for influence in Egypt.

In the Cuban situation, the White House somewhat escalated the verbiage by dragging out the 1962 proclamation of President John F. Kennedy in dealing with the heart-stopping crisis of that year. Kennedy had said that if offensive weapons were "removed from Cuba and kept out of the hemisphere" there would be "peace in the Caribbean."

But, to observers here, the linking in the public mind of the present situation with the crisis was a mistake in that it over-emphasized the latest developments.

The Washington Evening Star says: "President Nixon will have to weigh his moves in the context of 1970 rather than that of 1962."

Eight years ago the introduction of Soviet missiles and bombers in Cuba threatened to change substantially the balance of nuclear power.

In the present situation such a new facility would be more a Soviet convenience than a new threat.

Military experts point out that Soviet missile-laden subs presumably already cruise off U.S. coasts. A base in Cuba would only permit more time on station rather than on trips home.

Additionally, it is difficult for the U.S. to mass a strong case in world opinion in view of her commitment to freedom of the seas and her own ships plying the Mediterranean and other distant waters.

Overseas bases are, after all, an American invention. At present she has them in Scotland, Spain, Guam and elsewhere.

Electrical Market Swinging to Imports

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian manufacturers must receive a greater share of the domestic electrical products market, says the new president of the Canadian Electrical Manufacturers' Association.

J. Hugh Stevens, 54, elected head of the 181-member association this week, believes foreign industry has a disproportionate share of the Canadian market.

About 30 per cent of the electrical products in Canada are imports, he says, compared to about 18 per cent 10 years ago.

"It's too high a proportion and one that would be unallowed in Britain, West Germany, France, Italy or Sweden."

As head of the manufacturers' organization, Mr. Stevens will stress during the next 12 months that Canadian manufacturers want a fair competitive environment.

He believes many concessions were "traded away" by Canada during international negotiations that led to the Kennedy Round agreements on tariffs in the early 1960s.

Non-tariff barriers seemed to emerge after the Kennedy Round agreements, he says.

These include government participation in trade, special restrictions on imports and exports and restrictive business practices and customs and administrative entry procedures.

As well as these restrictions, he says, Canadian manufacturers run up against "invisible" barriers.

The industry's wire and cable division, he says, has been vigorously seeking entry into the Japanese market for the past two years.

"There have been no orders to date."

This lack of orders is due to reluctance on the part of Japanese industry and utilities to buy from outsiders even when products are comparable or better in price or quality, he says.

Similar restrictions against Canadian manufacturers of heavy electrical equipment also prevail in Western Europe, says Mr. Stevens.

The association president was born in India and was educated in India and Britain, where he graduated from Cambridge University with a master's degree in mechanical sciences.

He is president of Canada Wire and Cable, where he has been employed for 22 years. The company is a subsidiary of Noranda Mines Ltd. of Toronto.

In addition, he is a director of 13 companies in six countries.

"The only way a company world-wide is to have an international base."

He believes Canada has evolved in the past 20 years from a protected economy to a position where it is open to a rising degree of international trade competition.

The domestic electrical manufacturing industry produces about $3,000 million worth of goods each year. About 12 per cent of these goods are shipped to foreign markets.

The industry has had an annual growth rate of only about two per cent, compared with about eight per cent for Canadian industry as a whole, during the past 10 years.

Culminating an all - day hunt through the woodlands of Thurlow Township, a large 200-pound black bear was treed and then shot by R. B. Scott of College St. on the farm of John Chisholm, four miles north of Belleville. The bear, first seen on the farm of Henry Putman, near Cannifton, evaded a large posse of Provincial Police and farmers until sundown. Investigations revealed that the bear was very old and this from the lack of nourishment. Farmers believed the animal followed the banks of the Moira River until it was observed on the Farnham Farm early yesterday.

Cuba Reacts to Outcry; First Sky-pirate Returned

Windsor Star

For the first time in the history of U.S. aircraft hijacking, the Castro regime has returned a sky - pirate to his point of origin. It does not necessarily presage a change in the Cuban policy of allowing hijackers to remain, but as a first step it is a promising one.

Obviously the Cuban government is very sensitive to the matter of hijackings now that world opinion and public outcry have reached a fever pitch after the hijackings in the Middle East.

While the Cubans have always been polite and helpful to innocent passengers and crew members who unwillingly visited Havana, they have yet to satisfy the principles which permit a nation to engage in international air transportation. For political and propagandistic reasons, the Cubans have been lenient to hijackers.

Along with Algeria, Cuba has been one of the few countries in the world to which a demented, fanatical, or criminal hijacker could go with relative impunity. If Cuba changes policy how, it will be because she does not wish to be ranked among the countries and regions of the Middle East which allow or even condone sky piracy and mass kidnapping.

When Premier Fidel Castro visits the United Nations soon, the international organizations which represent the world's passenger airline industry should attempt to meet with Cuban representatives to try to obtain the guarantees that hijackers will no longer be harbored in Cuba. They may find surprisingly cordial reception from the Cubans.

Respectful Gesture

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

There is a feeling of respect here in Belleville that seems to be unique in few other centres. The gesture on the part of the motorist who stops his vehicle until the hearse and the chief mourners of a funeral procession pass by.

It is good to belong to such a city where people take a moment out, to pay respect to someone's loved one. Even the city street workers receive their hats and stand at attention.

There are still pockets among us of this value of friendship overcomes the dollar, and who cloaked their product stand in respect of a neighbor, I think that Belleville is a good place to live.

Despite Uncertainty Egypt to Remain as Arab Leader

By CY FOX
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The question of who will assume power in Egypt, where the masses are still dazed from the death and funeral of President Nasser, involves the issue of leadership for all the Arab world as well as for the late chief of state's own country.

The vacuum his death leaves in the realm of Arab politics recalls periods of similar uncertainty which have afflicted the Moslem world at various times in its history.

The centre of power in Islam following the death of the Prophet Mohammed in the seventh century shifted between such cities as Cairo, Damascus — in what now is Syria—and Baghdad, now the capital of Iraq.

Nasser restored to the capital of Egypt the honor of being the mainspring of inspiration for Arabs throughout the Middle East, struggling as they are with the challenges of life in the 20th century.

Now the contest is on among major Arab countries for the right to undertake that same role in the post-Nasser epoch.

But the odds are that, whoever succeeds the late president in Cairo, Egypt will remain the leading Arab state despite the blow of Nasser's passing.

Algeria, with its powerful President Boumediene, is too far removed geographically from the flashpoint of the Arab-Israeli conflict to dominate the anti-Zionist countries of the Middle East.

Young chieftains of revolutionary Libya and Sudan seem inexperienced for the role of pan-Arab primacy, while the rulers now holding sway in modern Baghdad and Damascus must grapple with internal problems which leave them little time for fulfilling broad international ambitions.

With monarchs such as the kings of Jordan and Saudi Arabia too traditional for radical Arab elements, the burden of leadership seemingly remains with the Egyptians, who constitute the most populous of the Arab states and the nation most committed materially to the conflict with Israel.

Some observers consider acting-president Sadat merely a provisional figure and see a powerful contender for supreme office in Ali Sabry, a reformist idea man steeped in the affairs of the Nasserite Arab Socialist Union.

Other contenders include military personalities and Nasser's hand-picked Minister for Interior, Sharawi Gomaa, who has a public guardian and a highly-articulate confidant of the late president.

The upshot of the leadership stakes may prove to be an attempt at collective exercise of top-level power, always a precarious venture—and especially in a nation so grief-stricken and shaken as Egypt.

Edith Cavell Nursing Students Enter Internship

Mrs. Madge Flindall, chief instructress of the Edith Cavell Regional School of Nursing, presents school ring to Linda White, first class president 1968-69. A total of 32 girls received their rings on Saturday. Students previously were required to take three years of instruction before entering nursing but with the recent changeover the girls take a year of internship instead of instruction.

Nursing Students Begin Internship

The changeover from the Belleville General Hospital of Nursing, which became the Edith Cavell Regional School of Nursing, brought about another marked change.

Up until this year, the nursing students took three years of schooling before entering the nursing profession.

With the new name and the separate administration, the third year of tutoring gave way to a year of internship.

On Saturday, the first such class received their nursing rings in a brief but meaningful ceremony.

From a class originally containing 40 students, 32 girls entered their internship year today. Three other girls, on leave of absence, will enter at a later date.

Mrs. Madge Flindall, chief instructress of the school, complimented the students for being "the highest number to complete the nursing course, at least, since I came here in 1964."

During their year of internship, the girls will be paid by the hospital for their services.

Bus Late

Tenders for a new bus for the Belleville Transit Commission were called on May 28 of this year. The $37,000 GMC coach, in the same style as Toronto buses, is planned for use of the Parkwood Heights run.

However, a spokesman for the transit company, informed The Intelligencer that due to the United Auto Workers strike, the bus, due in late October, has been delayed "for at least two months."

The bus is being constructed in London, Ontario.

Injuries Minor In Accident

TRENTON (Staff) — Two Brighton township residents were treated at Trenton Memorial Hospital for minor injuries following an accident on the old Wooler Road Saturday.

Driver of the car, Dorothy Graham, was treated for shock and a passenger, Margaret Powell received care for lacerations.

Damage to the automobile was about $1,900 a Brighton OPP spokesman said.

What do you have to lose?

A home ravaged by fire is a saddening sight. It's heartbreaking to lose cherished possessions, and difficult or impossible to replace them.

Fire Prevention Week, October 5-11, is a good time to inspect your home for fire hazards. Old or overloaded electrical circuits, flammable materials improperly stored, matches left where children can reach them - any of these can start a fire.

You can protect your home, and your family, by eliminating fire hazards. And every family should have a fire escape plan. It could help prevent a tragedy, should fire strike despite your precautions.

At CIAG INSURANCE, we're interested in fire safety and accident prevention. We've worked with the Ontario Safety League to develop several useful fire prevention folders which fire departments across the province have distributed.

If you'd like information about common fire dangers, cooking hazards, family escape planning or apartment fire safety, please drop in or call:

Sorority Chapters Plan Events for Fall

GAMMA MU CHAPTER

A regular meeting of Gamma Mu Chapter was held recently at the home of Mrs. A. Gray who introduced the speaker for the evening, Mrs. C. Rowbotham.

Mrs. Rowbotham's program was "Self-Analysis". All the members present did a self-analyst test (just for fun) which proved to be interesting. Mrs. Rowbotham was thanked for her presentation by the hostess, Mrs. A. Gray. The "Ritual of Affirmation" was conducted by club president, Mrs. J. Sherry for last year's new members.

It was announced by the ways and means committee that Gamma Mu will hold a bake sale in Walker's Hardware Store in October. Also the date for the annual preferential tea has been set. Members were asked to continue writing to the children at OSD and were reminded that the next meeting is the model meeting to which prospective members are invited.

When the business meeting adjourned, refreshments were served by the hostess and the co-hostess, Mrs. L. Smith.

ALPHA LAMBDA CHAPTER

The bi-monthly meeting of Alpha Lambda Chapter, Beta Sigma Phi held at the home of Mrs. Barbara Jamieson, Sept. 23 was attended by ten members and nine guests.

All members participated in a discussion of chapter traditions followed by a question and answer period to enlighten the attending members.

A social evening of 'court whist' was held at the home of Mrs. Amy Mead and a presidential tea will be held Oct. 4 at the home of Mrs. Gage Smith in honor of the prospective members.

An informative talk on 'Pollution' was the evening program presented by Mrs. Joan Vaughan.

University Women Hold Get-acquainted Party

The Canadian Federation of University Women of Belleville and District held its annual get-acquainted coffee and punch party at the home of Mrs. A. H. McFarlane. The conveners were Mrs. J. E. Kuntze and Mrs. Ola Jones.

Guests were welcomed by the president, Miss Muriel Gibson and the vice-president and hostess Mrs. A. H McFarlane. There were approximately 75 guests present. Members and prospective members were presented with name tags at the door and asked to sign the guest book. The table was decorated with autumn flowers and the refreshments consisted of punch, coffee, canapes, fancy cookies, and assorted relishes.

Membership renewals were taken by Mrs. D. T. Thompson and new members were looked after by Mrs. D. A. MacIntosh. Members also had the opportunity to join the bridge and reading clubs.

Meetings are held the third Thursday of each month at Corby Public Library and all university female graduates are welcome.

SACRED HEART PTA

MARMORA — Mrs. Michael Maloney, new president of the Catholic Parent - Teacher Association of Sacred Heart School, Marmora, welcomed parents to the first meeting on Monday evening in the parish hall.

In announcing working committees for the coming year, Mrs. Maloney noted that a membership committee is irrelevant as each parent who has a child in the school is considered to belong to the PTA unit. Program committee chairman is Mrs. Bill Meehan Jr., and members are Mrs. William Jones and Douglas Lynch. Fund - raising committee consists of Mrs. Bill Monk, chairman, and Mrs. Tom Hanley, Mrs. Stafford Shannon and Mrs. Lawrence Bedore. Monies raised will be used for Christmas treats for pupils, cookies for kindergarten, programming, dues, convention, and field day.

New principal of the school, Mr. Robert Bartsch, was introduced, and in his remarks stated that the PTA will serve as an excellent communication link between parents and teachers.

Questions on many timely subjects were answered by Mrs. Breen O'Connor, trustee of Hastings and Prince Edward County RCSS Board. Parents were encouraged to attend the adult information program, sponsored by the Board, beginning October 1, at Nicholson Catholic College in Belleville.

Several items of new business were discussed, including: a) the possibility of a catechetical course in the PTA program, by Rev. Sr. Francis, supervisor of catechetics in this area; b) the danger of driving cars through the school property during school hours; c) the feasibility of either setting aside time at PTA meetings for brief parent - teacher interviews, or making appointments for interviews. All parents were in accord with strict observance of pupil-wearing uniforms at school.

A workshop, with members dividing into small discussion groups, using the theme of the need for separate schools, was organized by Mrs. Meehan.

Spiritual director, Rev. Father T. G. Scanlan, noted that the good attendance at the meeting was indicative of the interest shown by parents in the Catholic education of their children. He informed the parent body that installation ceremonies of former pastor, Bishop F. J. Spence, as Bishop of Charlottetown, had taken place in that city on September 29.

WEDDINGS

GUTHRIE — GRILLS

Frankford United Church was the setting for the recent marriage ceremony, when Edith Bernice Grills, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Grills, Frankford RR 2, became the bride of Constable Robert Scott Guthrie, RCMP of Wetaskiwin, Alberta, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Guthrie, Winnipeg, Manitoba.

Rev. John Weese officiated at the ceremony and wedding music was rendered by Mrs. Fern Sykes, Frankford who accompanied the soloist, Miss Kathy Reid, also of Frankford.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of white satin brocade with lily-of-the-valley design featuring bell shaped sleeves trimmed with scalloped beading. Her waist-length bouffant veil of silk illusion was held by a band of pearls and aurora borealis. She carried a cascade bouquet of red roses and lily-of-the-valley.

Miss Dawn Guthrie, sister of the bridegroom as maid of honor wore a floor-length gown of aqua marine imported poly satin enhanced with short sleeves and crystal beading. She carried a bouquet of tinted 'mums and wore matching 'mums in her hair. Mrs. Carl Grills of Frankford, sister-in-law of the bride wore a gown of amber gold similar in that of the maid of honor, whereas the flower girl, Miss Maribeth Burkitt, Frankford was gowned identically to the maid of honor. Both carried posegay's to match their dresses and wore matching flowers in their hair.

A reception was held in Rose Lowery Hall catered by the U.C.W. where the bride's mother greeted the guests wearing a gown of aqua faille crepe with lace coat, matching accessories and a corsage of red sweetheart roses. Assisting the bridegroom's mother wore gold beaded crimpknit with matching lace coat, floral accessories and a corsage of red roses.

The couple will reside in Wetaskiwin, Alberta where Constable Guthrie is stationed with the RCMP.

BEDORE — McGREGOR

MARMORA — At St. Andrew's United Church, Marmora, on September 12, wedding vows were exchanged between Miss Susan McGregor of RR 1, Havelock, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John McGregor, and John Bedore of Marmora, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfrid Bedore, Belleville. The ceremony was performed by Rev. John Peters, and soloist, Miss Lynne Shannon, white orange blossoms and mums held her calf-length floral veil. Point de-sedan lace enhanced the bodice of her floor length satin of veil. She carried red sweetheart roses and trailing ivy.

Maid of honor was Miss Shirley Jeffery, cousin of the bride, of RR 3, Belleville and bridesmaids were sisters, the Misses Diane and Judy McGregor. They were attired identically in crystal crepe gowns, empire style with bodices in off-white, and the full skirts in deep green. They carried yellow and white shasta daisies and wore shasta daisies in their hair.

Nancy McGregor, sister of the bride, was flower girl and ring bearer was her brother, Grant McGregor. Best man was Robert McGregor, brother of the bride, and ushers were Terry McGregor, brother of the bride, and Vaughn Glover.

The bride's mother receive her guests at the reception in a floor length gown featuring a robin blue crimp ensemble with matching accessories. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother who wore a pink crepe dress and matching coat and accessories. A dance at Marble Point Lake followed the reception.

For the wedding trip the bride travelled in an orange two piece suit with brown accessories. The couple will reside at 600 Douglas Avenue, Peterborough.

Villa in Rome Provides Privacy for Envoy

ROME (CP) — In adjusting to a new role as ambassador for Canada to the Vatican, John E. Robbins, Canadian educationist and encyclopedia editor, relies on resources based on a long career of many facets.

His introduction to the segment of the 350 listed Canadian residents in Rome who attended the Dominion Day reception this year, for instance, proved a an occasion full of past associations, direct or indirect.

Dr. and Mrs. Robbins shared privileges as hosts with Benjamin Rogers, the Canadian ambassador to Italy, and Mrs. Rogers. The event was held in the house and gardens of the official residence.

A career diplomat and a native of Prince Edward Island, Rogers was known to Robbins as co-author of the study, Canada Looks Abroad. The other author, R. A. MacKay, was a close friend of the Robbins since Ottawa days.

Official residence for the new Canadian envoy is a small villa in an area encased within the Aurelian wall, the newer of the two walls built by the Romans 1,700 years ago. The residence, built by a director of the Roma gas company, is some distance from the busy Appian Way and enjoys complete privacy.

It was Mrs. Robbins who learned the identity of their nearest neighbor, whose new dog had kept them awake all one night.

"It is Marcello Mastroianni," she said.

"Who is he?" asked the encyclopedia editor, whose full life had never had room for commercial films or television entertainment.

Double rows of towering shrubs and a stout steel fence provide the film star with privacy.

Accustomed to comfortable homes in Ottawa and recently the president's residence for Brandon University in Brandon, Man., Dr. and Mrs. Robbins endured with equanimity the wait of many months until they were able to move into their home in Rome. The villa had to be painted throughout and the furnishings had been shipped from Cyprus where the external affairs office was one of six closed by the department.

Indicative of the interest of Pope Paul in problems of mutual concern to "peace-keepers" was a segment of the initial discussion with the new Canadian ambassador. Aware of Dr. Robbins' year of residence in Beirut, Lebanon, for UNESCO and his continuing interest in the Middle East, the Pope said: "If you or your government at any time have any ideas how we at the Holy See could perform a useful role in the Middle East, do not hesitate to come to see us. . . ."

Of the 108 countries maintaining embassies in Italy, 73 also support embassies to the Holy See as essential listening posts and gatherers of information. Changing attitudes and the swiftness of events in the contemporary world make the widespread information sources of the Vatican valuable in formulating foreign policy.

Mrs. Robbins, who was born near Montreal and speaks French and English fluently, has plunged into the task of acquiring facility in Italian. She is helped by her younger son, Dr Emmet Robbins, a recent assistant professor in the classics department of the University of Toronto. In Europe on a Canada Council grant, he has studied Italian in Florence and serves as interpreter for the household help.

Between the villa and the embassy offices located east of the Borghese Gardens, Dr. Robbins every morning drives along a route traversing the entire Rome of Caesar's day, but he does not find urban in the climate of Rome, the luxurious green of the garden and the cheerful manners of office and household staffs.

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

Before her recent marriage, Mrs. John Bedore (Susan McGregor) of Havelock was entertained at miscellaneous showers given by Misses Cheryl Leonard and Cathi Jones, at the latter's home, and friends at Cordova, hostessed by Misses Freda Barrons and Diane McGregor.

IT'S BEDTIME FOR MANY GARDEN PLANTS

Here's how to save tubers and roots for next summer's planting:

Tuberous begonias should be harvested after the first frost in October when cool weather has ended their growth. Horticulturists with the Ontario Department of Agriculture and Food recommend that the whole plant with adhering soil be lifted and placed in a cool, well-ventilated room. When the stem separates easily from the tuber they should be cleaned by the removal of the soil.

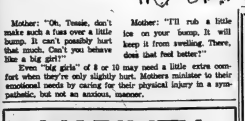
The tubers store best when they are cured for two weeks, then stored in dry sphagnum moss in a cool place.

Dahlia roots can be best dug for storage after the first killing frost. The plant should be cut to within 6 to 8 inches of the soil and the roots dug and exposed to the sun. They should be left exposed to the sun until at least partially dry and then moved to a cool, frost-free storage. They store best in peat moss or other material which prevents them from drying out.

(Lilies and Cannas may be treated in much the same way.)

Annual flowers should be pulled and, too, last.

ROSES should be left untouched until late November, after the sap has ceased to flow.



Feathers there all with SPRING FLOWERING BULBS.

Mother: "Oh, Tessie, don't make such a fuss over a little bump. It can't possibly hurt that much. Can't you behave like a big girl?"

Even "big girls" of 8 or 10 may need a little extra comfort when they're only slightly hurt. Mothers minimize to their emotional needs by caring for their physical injury in a sympathetic, but not an anxious, manner.

Mother: "I'll rub a little ice on your bump. It will keep it from swelling. There, does that feel better?"

Sunburst Designs from Tie-dyeing

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: Could you please send me information on tie-dyeing? I understand it is a kind of resist - dyeing, whatever that means. — Judy.

Dear Judy: Social workers like me don't take college options in tie-dyeing, but a youthful friend of mine is enthusiastic about it and here is what she says:

Tie string around bunches of cloth where the dye is to be resisted; immerse the fabric in dye or bleach. When strings are removed, colorful sunburst designs appear.

To make a sunburst on the front of a T-shirt, bunch up a large handful of the material and tie it in two or three places. Dip in bleach only as far as the last string. When dry, and strings removed, you get a light - colored pattern with rings of the original color where the strings resisted the bleach.

* * *

Dear Doris: A very shy friend of mine wants to know if he and his girl go to pick the ring or does he do it by himself?

Does he ask her when she would like to get engaged?

Hope this doesn't sound stupid to you, but a friend is a friend. Keep up the good work. — Go - Between.

Dear Mr. Go-Between:

What he asks her is whether she will marry him. If she jumps at the chance, they consider themselves engaged.

The ring is the symbol of this contract and unless he knows her tastes I'd vote for a joint shopping venture.

* * *

Dear Doris: We bought a second - hand piano; it just fits in the diningroom. It is badly out of tune. One man said, "It is too old to repair; dried out." It is over a hundred years old, apparently.

It seems such a waste of money — to buy it, and one not enjoy playing it. And can't afford to put out a lot of money, especially if it is really worthless.

I do enjoy your column. You seem to answer a variety of questions. Please, any advice? — Betty.

Dear Betty: If hitting an off - color note makes you wince, better give up on it. Pianos do get old and weathered to the point where they simply will not hold their tuning.

I'd suggest you turn your old relic in for use by some struggling student as a practice piano, using the proceeds as a down payment on a musical instrument you can enjoy all your life long. It will likely cost too much — but what's money for?

Peaches Sabayon Delicious Party Dessert

By MARY MOORE

In some parts of Canada the peach season is well past its peak. But because you can substitute large canned peach halves for this glorious dessert called Peaches Sabayon I am giving it to you for your permanent party dessert file.

PEACHES SABAYON
(Serves 6)
6 large ripe peaches (or 6 or 12 fancy quality canned peach halves when fresh are out of season)
½ cup sugar
1½ cups hot water
SAUCE:
4 med-large egg yolks
¾ cup sugar
¾ cup dry white or rose wine
½ cup Whipping (32 percent) cream, whipped
One pint finest quality vanilla ice cream

NOTE: If canned peaches are substituted the first step of poching peaches in syrup may be omitted.

Bring to boil the sugar and water and drop in sliced peach halves. Turn each half over, cover and remove from heat and let cool. Drain off syrup and chill peach halves.

Make the Sabayon Sauce by mixing together in top of double boiler the egg yolks, sugar and wine and stirring over gently boiling water until thickened. Remove from heat and cool and chill. When serving time arrives fold in whipping cream which has been whipped until stiff.

Now assemble the dessert: Into six large stemmed sherbet glasses put a scoop of ice cream. Cover with two overlapping cold peach halves (or one very large). Top that with generous amount of cold Sabayon Sauce and serve at once. A chef's creation.

Ann Landers

Strange Rituals Finally Overcome

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I was interested in the letter about the child who was a compulsive counter. He had to put on his pyjamas backwards, then backwards, three times every night. He also had to count his piggy bank money twice before he went to bed.

I had the same childhood problem. I was possessed with a terrible fear that something awful would happen to my mother if I didn't repeat certain acts (such as checking to see if all the drawers in the drawers were closed, and going to the closest to see if all my shoes were lined up perfectly.) I was a slave to the routine because I loved my mother and believed I was protecting her against harm by performing these acts.

My heart hurt for the mother who wrote to you. She said she was sure her son needed professional help but her husband would not pay for it. The boy's father insisted that the kid "cut out the nonsense and straighten himself around."

Fortunately I worked my way out of the problem in my early teens through sheer will power. I told myself over and over that I must not repeat these strange rituals because they had nothing to do with my mother. I realize now how desperately I needed therapy. How lucky I was that I got well without it. Most people can't. — I UNDERSTAND.

DEAR IU: I was staggered by the number of readers who wrote to say they, too, understand because they had suffered from the uncontrollable behavioral problems. Most people who wrote said they received professional help. You were indeed lucky. Parents who recognize compulsive counting and repetitive habits in their children should take them to a doctor for evaluation. And the earlier, the better.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: What can be done about a supposedly grown up man (father of three big kids) who gives the whole family the below-zero silent treatment because the 17-year-old boy had a minor motorcycle accident?

By "minor" I mean less than $35 worth of damage — which the boy is paying for himself. Nobody was injured, nor laws broken. The kid ran into a post.

Since the accident, my husband refuses to eat with the family. He also refuses to sleep with me. (He's taken to the couch.) When he is spoken to, he doesn't answer. He has had mean spells before but nothing like this. As I write this letter he is going into his fourth day of silence. What can we do? — BABY IT'S COLD INSIDE.

DEAR BABY: Ignore him — as you would any sulking, pouting child. His behavior is grossly immature. He doesn't know how to deal with his anger so he is taking it out on those closest to him.

In time he'll have to eat and utter a few words. When he does, be pleasant and make no reference to his childishness.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: No earth-rocking problem, this one, but I'd like an answer. Maybe you can get to it in a day when all the major woes of the world have been solved.

I crack my knuckles. A close friend insists that knuckle cracking damages the joints, causes arthritis and weakens the ligaments in the fingers. Any truth in these allegations? Check your knuckle experts and let me know. — SNAP, CRACKLE, POP.

DEAR POP: The only damage done by knuckle cracking is to the listener who is irritated by it. The sound sends some people up the wall and I'll bet your friend is among them.

Several Police Forces Subjected to Scrutiny

By RON SUDLOW
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Charges ranging from misconduct to corruption to ticket-fixing have resulted in inquiries into Ontario police departments and the men in charge of them this year.

The forces affected range from the Metropolitan Toronto force down to a three-man force in Capreol, a community 10 miles north of Sudbury.

Two inquiries now are in progress and the town council in Capreol has asked for an Ontario Police Commission inquiry following a series of resignations and complaints of dissention in the local force.

Now under way are an inquiry into the force at Amherstburg, a community near Windsor, and a judicial inquiry in Toronto into alleged association of senior Ontario Provincial Police officers with George Chuvalo Duke, an Oakville businessman.

The Duke inquiry, which has been commanding front-page play in Ontario newspapers, goes into its 14th day today.

It was sparked by Dr. Morton Shulman, New Democratic Party member of the provincial legislature for Toronto High Park, who mentioned Mr. Duke's alleged links with the underworld in a speech to the legislature June 4.

He also named three men—John Papalia, Donald (Red) LeBarre and Daniel Gasbarrini —as men of criminal backgrounds who have associated with Mr. Duke.

So far, witnesses have detailed Mr. Duke's criminal record, his domestic difficulties, business relationships and runins with police officers on traffic duty.

Police witnesses have testified that senior OPP officers interested on Mr. Duke's behalf, resulting in withdrawal or reduction of traffic charges.

The inquiry has been told that Papalia was reported from the United States two years ago after serving a narcotics sentence; LeBarre has a record as a bookmaker, and Gasbarrini had a narcotics conviction in 1948.

Staff Supt. A. M. Roger and Supt. Albert Wilson, former senior officers of the OPP's Burlington district, have been suspended and charged with disobeying a 1966 order to stop associating with Mr. Duke who was deported from the U.S. in 1946 after serving a 12-year sentence for robbery.

The Ontario Police Commission is conducting its inquiry in Windsor into the Amherstburg force, an inquiry requested by the town council after prompting by Amherstburg Chief Ronald Seney.

Chief Seney said he was going to ask for the inquiry last June after he was acquitted of an assault charge in which a constable from his own force testified against him.

Constable Wilfred Fryer, whose evidence was termed "not reliable" by the judge, testified the police chief kicked a man in the face and groin and had threatened to fire the officer if he gave certain evidence.

After the trial, the chief said he had "certain information" that members of his force were in collusion with known criminals.

Chief Seney, criticized during the police commission hearing for a suspicious and harsh nature, told the inquiry that "all of us are fighting for our jobs."

In Toronto last week, a police commission investigation into alleged ticket-fixing exonerated the six officers named and criticized the two officers who made the charges.

Last January, the commission heard 22 days of testimony that senior officers—including Deputy Chief John Murray—fixed traffic tickets for prominent businessmen over a 10-year period.

The commission said of Deputy Chief Murray that on occasion "his judgment was shown to be at fault" but "his reputation should not be sullied by the evidence given."

The commission said that Constable Ian Samuel, one of the instigators of the investigation, was "prone to listen to guardroom gossip, picking and choosing his opinions of police or court officials who exercised discretionary powers."

It said that Constable Peter Lolli "took Samuel's allegations, filched some police records, recalled some suspicions of his own and put these together as his proof that senior officers on the force were interfering" by having traffic charges withdrawn.

Charges of conspiracy against four senior officers were withdrawn in Brantford when the Crown attorney said he had not proved his case.

Chief George Kerr, Deputy Chief Les Butcher, Lieut. Gordon Crocock of the Brantford force and Insp. Archie Ferguson of the provincial police were jointly charged with conspiring to obstruct justice by failing to lay charges against a Brantford constable.

The charges were laid by Robert Stockdale, a former officer on the force who was convicted under the Ontario Police Act for insubordination, discrediting the force and carrying a picket sign while on duty.

Stockdale who now is running for Brantford mayor, didn't have the opportunity to testify as the evidence of another former constable, Lester Lolli, was termed "tainted" by prosecutor Harold Daufman.

Lolli, who resigned from the force, was facing 10 counts of being absent without permission. These were withdrawn when he resigned.

He testified that officers on the Brantford force operated a break-and-enter ring that was responsible for 27 major burglaries.

Earlier this year, Lolli picketed the Ontario legislature and said a private police commission investigation of the Brantford force in 1969 was "a whitewash."

He said members of the force, in addition to the break-ins, had passed fraudulent cheques, attempted extortion and robbed parking meters.

No decision has been made on the request from the Capreol town council for an inquiry into the local force.

Chief Dick Albee resigned last month along with Cpl. Jim Darling amid complaints arising from discussion. Cpl. Darling later withdrew his resignation and recommended that Constable Tom Prue be suspended.

Council followed the recommendation but did not announce the reason.

Constable Prue and Cpl. Darling told council last August that Chief Albee had asked them to reduce or withdraw some charges. Constable Prue tendered his resignation but withdrew it after meeting with the mayor.

The chief denied the allegations and asked the other two officers be fired. When council refused, he quit and went into private business.

Airmen Oppose Draft Dodgers

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — The fraternal organization for 10,000 Canadian airmen Friday termed in on United States draft dodgers and hippies.

U.S. draft dodgers and military deserters—said the Royal Canadian Air Force Association, at their 20th annual convention, should be refused admission to Canada. The RCAFA urged the federal government to amend existing laws to prohibit their admission.

The Atlantic branches said in a brief they felt annoyed and embarrassed seeing "hippies" wearing uniforms "which we wore with pride at one time."

A resolution to request enforcement of existing legislation forbidding unauthorized wearing of military uniforms and medals, was adopted.

Major League Umpires Terminate Strike—Temporarily

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Baseball's major league umpires returned to work Sunday, ending a strike that temporarily—the first umpires, 13 of whom ringed the story.

The umpires agreed to work the remaining playoff games in the National and American leagues, including Sunday's, while contract negotiations continued.

But the possibility of an umpires' strike remains.

While neither Chub Feeney, the National League president, nor Jack Reynolds, the lawyer for the Major League Umpires Association, mentioned any deadline for reaching agreement, some of the umpires insisted there was one.

"We'll threaten them with another strike if they don't settle," said Augie Donatelli.

"They're going to have to reach agreement before the World Series," added Doug Harvey.

The umpires went back to work under terms of the old offer from the owners.

Having insisted previously that they be paid $5,000 for the playoffs and $10,000 for the World Series, the umpires resumed calling balls and strikes for $3,000 in the playoffs.

That was the original offer made by the owners, a $500-per-man increase over the previous year's scale. A $200 per-man increase has been offered for the World Series that would lift the umpire's pay at that event to $7,000.

Negotiations now will resume, almost presumably at effecting a contract prior to the World Series.

"We believe they will bargain in good faith," Reynolds said. "They have assured us that."

That assurance came after a long morning for the striking umpires, 13 of whom ringed the ball park at strategic points and precipitated a situation in which ushers, ticket takers, concessionaires, groundskeepers, electricians and plumbers refused to cross the picket lines.

About two hours before game time, and with no one working inside Three Rivers Stadium, Reynolds came out of the picket lines for a meeting with Feeney and the agreement was reached.

A four-man soccer game over had taken over Saturday in the absence of the striking major leaguers.

Harvey expressed considerable displeasure about those four umpires—John Grimsley and Fred Blandford, formerly of Toronto of the American Association and Henry Maxwell and George Goryjet of the International League.

"I feel as any working man would if he's undercut while he is talking about a raise," he said.

The major leaguers worked Sunday and will have to work until the playoffs and for their $3,000.

Return of Keon Means Ray of Hope for Leafs

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

It was a lost weekend for Toronto Maple Leafs on the scoreboard, but a ray of hope for the future came Saturday when Dave Keon, their centre and captain, signed his 1970-71 National Hockey League contract.

The Leafs came out on the short end of 5-3 and 4-2 exhibition scores with Chicago Black Hawks. Saturday's 5-3 loss at home was tempered somewhat when Toronto general manager Jim Gregory announced Keon had accepted a new contract.

No details were disclosed, but Gregory said the contract would not make Keon the highest paid player in Leaf history, not even with bonuses.

That means even with bonuses the 10-year veteran will not receive the $85,000 reported accepted by defenceman Tim Horton last year. Horton was subsequently traded to New York Rangers.

Keon left the Toronto training camp Sept. 20 when negotiations for his contract were not progressing to his satisfaction. Gregory said after a meeting last week that only the details were still to be completed and that he expected Keon's return by the weekend.

Keon is reported to have asked for $125,000 while the Leafs countered with a $75,000 contract. It is believed he settled for about $80,000.

In other Saturday games, Pittsburgh Penguins nipped Buffalo Sabres 2-1, New York edged St. Louis Blues 6-5, Vancouver Canucks and Los Angeles Kings tied 3-3, Detroit Red Wings tied Fort Worth of the Central League 6-6, and Philadelphia Flyers tripped Hershey Bears of the American League 8-5.

Chicago's home ice 4-3 victory over Toronto Sunday left the Leafs with the worst exhibition record, one victory and two ties in eight games.

Buffalo came up with its first exhibition win, 2-1 over Pittsburgh, but the Sabres have three ties. In other Sunday games, Montreal continued its winning ways, 6-4 over Boston Bruins, Minnesota North Stars nipped Cleveland Barons of the AHL 3-2 and Philadelphia Flyers tied the AHL Rochester Americans 3-3.

Bobby Hull's two goals and another by Lou Angotti in the third period overcame a rookie-laden Toronto club Sunday. The Leafs held a 2-1 lead on goals by Mike Walton and Norm Ullman. Chico Maki was the other Chicago scorer.

At Boston, the Bruins' efforts were spread out by rookie goaltender Ken Dryden, a former all-American at Cornell University who turned aside 41 Boston shots. Marc Tardif led the scoring for Canadiens with two goals before 14,988.

Also scoring for the Canadiens were Boston-born Bobby Sheehan, Rejean Houle and Greg Boddy. Dallas Smith, Fred Stanfield, Wayne Cashman and John Bucyk tallied the Boston scores.

Defenceman Ted Green, who missed last season because of a near-tragic head injury suffered in a pre-season game with St. Louis, received a tumultuous welcome from the Boston fans when he skated out on the ice for the first time.

Minnesota scored on a deflected shot off Barons defenceman Gary Geldart to earn their victory at Cleveland. Danny Grant, Bill Goldsworthy and Jude Drouin scored for the North Stars, Ray Comeau and Barry Meissner for the Barons.

Goals by Dave Dunn and Red Armstrong in the third period lifted Rochester into a home ice tie with the Flyers.

Steve Atkinson and Kevin O'Shea scored in the Buffalo victory at Brantford, Ont., Jean Pronovost replying for Pittsburgh. It was a turnabout from the previous night at Peterborough, Ont., where veteran Ken Schinkel's tally with less than two minutes remaining gave the Penguins a 2-1 victory.

Wally Boyer for Pittsburgh and Atkinson had the other goal in the game.

The Canucks ran their pre-season unbeaten string to three at Victoria as Andre Boudrias, Danny Sly and Mike Corrigan notched Vancouver goals. Larry Mickey, Mike Byers and Gord Labossiere replied for Los Angeles.

The same two clubs open the regular schedule Friday night at Vancouver.

Hawk scorers Stuart, Romanchyck scored twice in the first period, before Leafs tied Hawk scoring thrust, Romanchyck scoring twice in the first period, before Leafs tied it up on goals by Walton, Ullman and defenceman Rick Ley.

Rod Selling's third-period goal lifted New York past St. Louis. Red Berenson, with two, Chris Bordeleau, Jim Roberts and George Morrison scored for the Blues while Bob Nevin, with two, Ted Irvin, Don Luce and Vic Hadfield replied for the Rangers.

Bob Gulnden's goal with just over a minute to go gave Fort Worth its 6-6 tie with the Red Wings in a game played at Hampton, Va. A crowd off 5,465 watched the first ever hockey game in the Virginia community.

Lead Series 2-0

Reds Have Close Shave in Series Win

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati holds a 2-0 lead over Pittsburgh entering the best-of-five National League playoff. But Pirate Manager Danny Murtaugh says he isn't ready to slit his throat and Reds skipper Sparky Anderson isn't shouting for the champagne.

Murtaugh, the doughty Pittsburgh boss, was shaving after the Pirates' 3-1 loss to the Reds Sunday, the second straight defeat in their home stadium, when someone asked him if it was throat-slitting time.

"No way," retorted little Danny, careful to lower the razor as he spoke.

"I thought this was three out of five," he added. "We've won three in a row a lot of times. I know it's tough, but you never give up until there are no chances left.

Anderson should have been supremely confident, needing one victory and with the rest of the series scheduled in River Front Stadium here.

If he was, he managed to hide it. Sitting behind a desk in his visiting team office, the Reds' pilot explained his uneasy feeling.

"We were beat by San Diego three straight (at San Diego), so why can't Pittsburgh beat us three straight?" he asked.

While Cincinnati has won the first two games in the series, the Reds didn't do it in Big Red Machine style—with power. Instead, they won with solid pitching and scratched for runs.

In the second game Sunday, it wasn't the big bats of Johnny Bench or the power of Tony Perez that turned the trick. It was a one-man show by Bobby Tolan, a St. Louis Cardinals discard two seasons ago.

The slim, 176-pound Tolan, who led the major leagues in stolen bases this season, turned on his speed in the third to provide the Reds' first run.

He singled up the middle, stole second and continued to third when Pittsburgh catcher Manny Sanguillen threw the ball into centre field.

The Pirates' starter, lefty Luke Walker, was upset and he uncorked a wild pitch, Tolan scoring.

Then, in the fifth, Tolan slammed a home run to make it 2-0.

After the Pirates closed the gap, 2-1, Tolan singled in the eighth and, with a burst of speed, scored all the way from first on Perez' double.

In addition to Tolan, the Reds' hero list included 19-year-old Don Gullett, who still can't believe he's pitching in a National League playoff game only last year he was a high school pitcher.

"I had it in mind to be a big league pitcher," said the curly-haired southpaw after. I figured it would take three or four years."

Gullett relieved in the sixth with one run home and the Pirates still threatening. There were two on base with power-hitting Willie Stargell coming to the plate.

The left-hander a fast ball, and Stargell flied out. Gullett finished up 2 1-3 innings of relief without allowing a hit.

Tolan slightly sprained his left ankle while scoring in the eighth, but continued in the game. He said he'd be in the lineup today.

Anderson said Tony Cloninger, 9-7, would start for the Reds in today's third game, while Murtaugh will go with Bob'Moose, 11-13, or Bob Veale, 10-13, depending on how Moose's tender elbow feels.

Bomb Twins Twice

Orioles Unleash Big Bats

BALTIMORE (AP) — Minnesota Twins were shackled by smooth-throwing Dave McNally Sunday and shaken by his free-swinging Baltimore mates as they lost 11 - 3 in the second game of the American League championship playoffs.

McNally tossed a six - hitter and the streaking Orioles scored seven runs in one inning for the second time in as many days to rout the Twins Sunday for a 2-0 lead in the best-of-five series.

The Twins, victims of a three-game Oriole sweep in last year's confrontation of AL division champs, need three straight victories at Baltimore, beginning today.

The second game, a one-run struggle going into the seventh inning, deteriorated into a copy of Baltimore's 10-5 slam in Saturday's series opener. Boog Powell's two-out double and a three-run homer by Dave Johnson helped snap the Twins' division champs' 13th consecutive victory.

"Give them an inch — something they get for nothing — and they find a way to score in a hurry," said the dispirited Rigney.

The Orioles, who won their last 11 regular season games, hoped to apply the crusher today behind 20 - game winner Jim Palmer, the 24-year-old Baltimore lost year with an 11 - 2 triumph. Rookie Bert Blyleven hoped to keep the Twins alive.

"Sure, I'll settle for nine runs," Palmer said. "Anything more than two will be all right with me. Anytime you can hold this club to two or three runs, like Dave (McNally) says, you've got a good chance to beat them."

The Twins did all their scoring on successive singles in consecutive pitches by McNally, a 24-game winner who beat them 1-0 in the Saturday opener, in four of last year's sweep.

After a walk to Leo Cardenas, Harmon Killebrew hit into the left field bleachers and Tony Oliva slammed the next pitch into the left centre seats.

"I try to forget those things," said McNally, who also singled to drive in the Orioles' fourth and deciding run in the fourth inning and doubled to launch the seven-run ninth.

The homers by Killebrew and Oliva trimmed Baltimore's lead to 4-3 and it stayed that way until the ninth.

Williams and Ron Perranoski held off the Orioles until the ninth, when the latter was raked for five runs before Johnson homered off Lois Tiant.

The game was marked by the return to duty of the six umpires assigned to the series after their one-day boycott involving a pay dispute.

The regulars were ushered into the first rhubarb of the set — and it was a dilly.

When Perranoski came out of the bullpen at the start of the eighth, plate umpire Bill Haller was asked by Orioles Manager Earl Weaver to examine the reliever's pitching hand.

Haller found what he described as "pine tar" and Perranoski was sent to the Twins' dugout to have it removed.

"I don't blame him for trying to cheat," said Weaver, "Anything extra you do in this game is going to make you more money. But when you get caught, you're caught."

"I don't use pine tar," Perranoski seethed. "I use resin and spit. I've been putting it on my hands for 19 years and no one has said anything to me about it until this little wise guy Weaver comes along."

Nijinsky Gets Taste Of Whip and Defeat

PARIS (CP-AP) — When Lester Piggott was asked last week whether rain would hurt wonder colt Nijinsky's chances in the Prix de l'Arc de Triomphe, the British jockey said: "I could see no Nijinsky if they ran it in the Seine."

In the only race he has ever lost after 17 straight victories, the Canadian-bred Nijinsky ran second—losing by a nose—in the world's richest turf race Sunday, and the fault, not in the clouds, may have been in the stars for Piggott jinx.

Vincent O'Brien, Nijinsky's trainer, said: "I don't want to be critical, but his move was a little late."

Piggott held his mount well off the pace for the best part of the 1½ miles on turf. He saved his move for the top of the Longchamps home stretch, dashing by 13 spent horses, but was unable to pass French-owned Sassafras, a 19-to-1 longshot who had the courage to rally under pressure.

Speeding in tandem toward the finish, Nijinsky and Sassafras dueled stride for stride for over yard of turf.

Nearly under the wire, when it looked as if Nijinsky would once past Sassafras, Piggott gave Nijinsky a sharp right-hand blow with the whip. His mount, who never had tasted the crop in the stretch before, because he'd always won at a romp, veered sharply to the left, losing the lead. The photo showed separated the two horses at the end.

Yves Saint-Martin, France's best jockey, gave Sassafras a faultless ride, keeping him a few lengths off the pace, in the early and middle stages, so conserving the colt's force for the stretch battle to come.

"He showed me a lot of guts," Saint-Martin said of his horse.

Then, looking like a kid who had lost his sickle for and got away with it, he added: "Thank God Nijinsky veered off."

Nijinsky till the starting before the race had been centred on Nijinsky: The three-year-old son of Northern Dancer, unbeaten in 11 starts, syndicated for $5.44 million and headed for a long stud career, had been a blemish on his record.

The Arc de Triomphe, whose $400,000 in prize money makes it the richest race in the world, seemed tailor-made for the horse the experts said was the best on earth.

Perhaps, as some say, Piggott gave Nijinsky a bad ride. But the horse that beat him is no fluke.

One of the top French three-year-olds, Sassafras in his last two outings won the Prix Royal Oak and the Prix du Jockey Club, equivalent to winning the first two parts of the U.S. or British triple crowns.

His impressive showing in the Arc—where his 2:28.7 ruined the European record by only 8-10ths of a second—completed the sweep.

Piggott said he had no excuses. "I had no trouble getting up in the stretch. Nijinsky didn't have the punch."

Sassafras paid almost $30 for the equivalent of a $2 win ticket and those who put their money on Nijinsky's nose went to the cleaners. He had been backed to the hilt—a 2-to-5 odds-on favorite.

Sassafras earned $248,364 for owner Arped Plesch. Nijinsky won $95,000 for Englehard, a multi-millionaire. Another French entry, Miss Dan, was third and Winston Guest's Gyr was fourth.

The immediate plans were not known for Nijinsky, who will stand at stud at Ball Hancock's Claiborne Farm in Kentucky. Nijinsky could run in the $100,000 O'War Stakes at New York's Belmont Park Oct. 17 or in the Washington, D.C., International Nov. 11 at Laurel, Md.

Wilkinson Lays Bridge Over Troubled Water

By IAN MacLAINE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Tom Wilkinson steered Toronto Argonauts into calm waters Sunday before injuries forced him to hand the boatmen's helm to Don Jonas en route to a 32-14 Argo victory over Hamilton Tiger-Cats in Eastern Football Conference play.

Wilkinson did a superb job exploiting the Ticat defences in the opening quarter and until he injured an ankle midway into the second period as the Argos looked a vastly superior club than the one humiliated by Calgary Stampeders the previous weekend.

Jonas came on with the score 14-0 and built that lead to 26-0 before the Ycats finally got on the scoreboard as 29,411 frustrated fans took every opportunity to jeer the officials whom they blamed for Hamilton's inability to cope with an aroused Argonaut club.

Hamilton coach Joe Restic saw things differently, though, noting that "mistakes, last field position early in the game, and having to use Gahler as early as we did," were contributing factors in the loss.

The victory moved Toronto into a second place tie in the EFC standings with Hamilton, two points behind Montreal Alouettes and four points up on an Ottawa Rough Riders. The Als were hammered 39-19 by Saskatchewan Roughriders Sunday and Ottawa was blanked 15-0 by Lansdowne Field's mud'n'ow Saturday.

Quarterback Wally Gabler of whom the Tiger-Cats picked up last week from Winnipeg in an effort to bolster the loss of Joe Zuger to injuries, was forced into the game when starting pivot John Eckman was hit by injuries late in the first quarter.

His first play from scrimmage, a pass, was intercepted by Toronto's nine-yard line by Dick Thornton and returned 38 yards.

Restic said he had not intended using Gahler as soon or as often, but circumstances dictated the ex-Argo carry the burden of Hamilton's intricate offence that has every backfielder in motion before the ball is snapped.

Running back Bill Symon's 98-yard romp along the sidelines early in the third quarter, leaving Hamilton speedsters P aul Johnson and Mack Lamb falling behind, seemed to put a damper on any spark the Ycats had until that time.

That made the score 20-0 and Tom Bland completed a 17-yard scoring play on a pass from Wilkinson before the period ended, making Hamilton's two fourth-quarter scores meaningless.

Wilkinson and Ron Henderson, the latter on a 68-yard pass-and-run play with Jonas sandwiched between the two Hamilton scorers, were the other Toronto scorers. Jonas converted two and kicked two field goals while Dave Mann punted 65 yards for a single.

Hamilton touchdowns were scored by Ed Buchanan and Dave Fleming. Both were converted by Tommy Joe Coffey.

At Ottawa, it was a muddlers day and the Blue Bombers, whose only previous win this year was over Toronto, had the horses — or hone — to register their second win.

Big Bob Hose Hoamard in-ked the ball 133 yards on 22 carries and run for the two Winnipeg touchdowns culminating a series of Ottawa penalties that bemmed the Rough Riders in their own end of the field on both scoring efforts.

Gene Lakusiak converted one and Ed Ulmer kicked two singles to complete the game scoring in front of 19,375 rain-drenched fans, smallest crowd of the season to see Ottawa play at home.

"We have so many muddy-day plays, we just went with those and threw away our game plans," said Winnipeg coach Jim Spavital.

"On statistics, we look good," observed "Rider coach Jack Gotta, "but the fact is we were terrible." Ottawa made record additions of two National Football League stars, were held to just 42 yards rushing.

Ottawa quarterback Gary Wood, completed 16 of 23 passes for 158 yards and had two intercepted by Ulmer. Rookie Ron Lancaster started for Winnipeg but gave way to another rookie Benji Dial, in the third quarter when he was belted on the head. Their combined tosses totalled 77 yards, completing four of 11 attempts.

Johnson didn't return to the game but club officials said later the injury didn't appear serious and Johnson will undergo x-rays at Winnipeg today.

Riders Rough Als; Esks Lace Lions

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Saskatchewan Roughriders, with four games left in regular season play in the Western Football Conference, could have used their standings lead as an excuse for a rest during the weekend. Edmonton Eskimos, trailing in third place, were expected to pull out all the stops in another game.

Saskatchewan didn't and Edmonton did: Saskatchewan dancing a 39-10 jig all over visiting Montreal Alouettes Sunday and Edmonton humbling the crippled British Columbia Lions 32-20 at Vancouver Saturday.

The Roughriders' victory gives them an eight-point lead in the third game of the WFC with 20 points and makes them the first team in the Canadian Football League to be guaranteed a playoff berth.

Edmonton's win moved them into a share of second place with Calgary Stampeders, both with 12 points, while B.C. trails with 10 points and Winnipeg Blue Bombers bring up the rear with four.

Edmonton also has four games left to play in the regular season while the other WFC teams each have five. The next game in the West has Montreal at Calgary Wednesday.

At Regina Sunday, Henry Dorsch and Steve Molnar connected for the Roughriders touchdowns on short plunges. Ted Duchinski scored on a 43-yard pass interception and Jack Abendschan kicked three field goals and two converts.

The Alouettes, leaders in the Eastern Football Conference, did not get on the scoreboard until the second quarter when the Roughriders had built up a 16-point edge. The Alouettes got their only touchdown on a 35-yard pass to Dennis Duncan from Sonny Wade while Justin Canale kicked a field goal and George Springate a convert.

A capacity crowd of 21,708 watched as Ron Lancaster connected with 12 of 24 pass attempts from 208 yards in the air and pushed his scout for 183 yards on the ground.

Montreal, under the guidance of Sonny Wade and his fourth-quarter relief Tony Passander, gained 349 yards in the air and only 50 on the ground.

Lancaster's passes were more than adequate, as he only had two intercepted compared with Wade's three and Passander's one.

At Vancouver, 35,109 fans saw halfback Jim Thomas score two touchdowns to lead the explosive Edmonton offence which seemed to move the ball almost at will against the injury-weakened Lions.

Halfback Terry Swarn and fullback C. C. Gamble scored the other Eskimos touchdowns. Dave Cutler kicked four converts and two singles on wide field goal attempts.

A. D. Whitfield scored the Lions' first touchdown on a 71-yard pass-and-run play from quarterback Paul Brothers and Jim Evenson scored the other B.C. touchdown on a one-yard plunge in the fourth quarter.

Ted Gerela kicked two field goals and converted both B.C. touchdowns.

The gap in the individual scoring race was narrowed to two points as Abendschan is closed on Gerela.

Abendschan's three field goals and two converts boosted his season point total to 87 while Gerela's eight points gave him 85.

Cutler kept the battle for first place a three-way proposition as the B.C. scorer has a total of 81. Trailing far behind are Evenson and Hugh Harrison of Calgary, both with 54.

Winnipeg was the only other Western team active during the weekend, coming up with a 15-6 whitewash over the Eastern Rough Riders at Ottawa.

Broncos Buck Chiefs

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Denver Broncos, a dog-eared doormat in pro football dungeons for years, finally got the rug from under Kansas City Chiefs . . . and let the sun shine in.

"This was a big win-probably the biggest since we came here," chortled Coach Lou Saban after his perennial lambs turned into tigers and shelled the powerhouse Chiefs 33-13 in the National Football League Sunday.

"The boys played well," added the jubilant Saban, "it took a lot of people to get a victory like this. All you can say is that it was a great team effort. I know it's a cliche . . . but it's about all you can say."

Sunday's success was the first time since 1964 that the Broncos have beaten the Chiefs, last year's Super Bowl champs.

The Bronco buster paced a pattern of turnabouts on Black Sunday. Green Bay upset Minnesota 13-10, beating the Vikings for the first time at home since 1965; Buffalo derailed the highly-favored New York Jets 34-31 and St. Louis pulled off a 20-7 shocker over Dallas' high-powered Cowboys.

Los Angeles won as expected, rolling over San Diego 37-10; Washington stalled Philadelphia Eagles 23-21; Atlanta slipped by San Francisco 21-20; New Orleans knocked off New York Giants 16-14. Baltimore Colts turned the tables on underdog Boston, grabbing a comeback 24-6 victory and Houston bullied Cincinnati 20-13.

The Broncos' manhuming defense played gat-the-quarterback, and got to Kansas City ace Len Dawson seven times.

Bob Howfield, Denver's former soccer player from England, kicked four field goals, one for 47 yards. The ferocious Bronco defenders let the big, rough Chiefs score only one touchdown—a 32-yard drive late in the third period.

Green Bay quarterback Bart Starr, listed as a questionable starter because of injuries, played the entire game. He moved his team within field goal range for two three-pointers, and Dave Hampton provided the Pack with a 10-yard touchdown run on a kickoff in the fourth quarter.

Dennis Shaw, cubcumber-cool under fire in his rookie season, passed for two touchdowns for Buffalo. His last scoring strike was the clincher—a 25-yarder to Marlin Briscoe with 7:20 left. Joe Namath also threw two TD passes for the Jets.

Jim Hart, booed for inept passing in the first two quarters, pitched two scoring strikes in the last half as the Cardinals bog tied Dallas.

The Rams took the opening kickoff and slammed 72 yards to paydirt to open the scoring and set the tone for their victory over chargeless San Diego. Los Angeles' trigger-quick defense snatched four John Hadl passes in the first half and the Rams converted three of them into field goals.

Washington handed Philadelphia an early touchdown, then repulsed the Eagles with an alert defense. The Redskins limited the Eagles to only three plays from scrimmage in the third period.

Tom McCauley scrambled 42 yards with a fumble recovery and set up a seven-yard TD pitch from Bob Berry to Gail Cogdill, moving Atlanta over San Francisco. The 49ers missed a chance at victory when Bruce Gossett failed to hit a field goal from the 19-yard line in the closing seconds.

Cornerback Elijah Nevett picked off two Fran Tarkenton passes to help the New Orleans' cause. His first interception in the second quarter set up a Saints' score and his second killed a Giant drive in the last quarter.

Ailing Johnny Unitas came off the bench and threw a clinching TD pass with two minutes to go, leading Baltimore's comeback behind triumph over the Patriots.

Charley Johnson pitched six completed passes in an 80-yard touchdown drive in the fourth quarter for Houston's winning points over Cincinnati's clawless Bengals.

Cleveland beat Pittsburgh 15-7 and Miami dropped Oakland 20-13 in Saturday night games.

Well Water

ST. THOMAS, Ont. (CP) — Gordie Howe, 1980 4-year star of Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League, watched Sunday night as his sons Marty, 18, and Mark, 15, played here for Detroit Clubs for Red Wings in a 7-4 victory over St. Thomas Elgins in a Southern Ontario Hockey Association Junior A game.

When he went to the Detroit dressing room, Marty tossed him a water bottle and asked him to fill it.

"Do you know any other $100,000-a-year water boy?" Howe asked.

Economy Run

TORONTO (CP) — Scott Harvey of Dearborn, Mich., driving a Dodge Demon, won the three-day, 1,400-mile Canadian economy race Sunday night, completing the return Toronto-Montreal run at 36.4 miles to a gallon of gasoline.

Harvey and navigator Ralph Rodgers registered the most miles a gallon relative to their car's weight at 74.06 ton miles a gallon.

A Chevrolet Vega, driven by Jim Lapp and Sam Power, both of Toronto, came second in the field of 94 domestic and foreign-made cars. Lapp and Power registered 68.4 ton miles and 50.79 miles a gallon.

LONG IRON ADDRESS

Getting the ball to fly correctly is probably the biggest problem the average golfer has with long irons. When the ball chronically follows an abnormally low path, something is being done to decrease the clubface's effective loft at impact.

If your hands get ahead of the ball at address, you'll probably impact in a similar position which will take loft off the shot.

Ghostly Mo-Hawks Scare Ghastly Aces in 3-2 Exhibition Loss

By ERIC EMERSON
Staff Sportswriter

Chains creaked and doors rattled in the Kingston Memorial Centre last night as Belleville's "Ghost Squad" swished into the Limestone City.

No it wasn't a new television series or the latest rock band, but a group of Mo-Hawk veterans who seemed to be there but weren't. Ray Johnston, Steve Rexe, Bill Armour and Wayne Brown all made the trip but didn't dress for the game, while captain Ralph Plaxe saw only third period action.

In addition, such standout performers as Al Ferguson, Lorne O'Donnell and Lou Kazowski missed the trip altogether. The players are still engaged in contract negotiations with the management.

If the Mo-Hawks were ghostly, the Aces were often ghastly, just managing to squeeze out a 3-2 win over a Belleville team that included nine first - year performers.

Yachters Head for Drydock

This weekend marked the end of the sailing season at Bay of Quinte Yacht Club, with races scheduled both Saturday and Sunday.

The last race for the club championship was sailed Saturday and saw Donald McDonald of Trenton emerge with the Commodore's Trophy as winner of the series of eight races.

His Viking 28, Kitiwake, in her first sailing season scored the lowest number of points, 8½, to take the club championship.

Runner-up was Commodore Richard Bird in Fleetwing with 9¼ points. He was awarded the Bell Trophy. Third was Varuna, a Corvette skippered by Grant Rathbun of Trenton, with 10¼ points.

Despite a sleet and hail storm earlier in the day, the race was sailed under good conditions until near the end, when almost weekly line squalls played havoc with the fleet.

Belleville Marine Yards sponsored the third annual Corvette race Sunday with eight yachts in the running. The course was laid out west of the Bay Bridge.

For the second year, Freeman Burrow's Temeraire was first over the finish line, followed by Playfull, skippered by Peter Blacklock of C and C Yachts. Robert Lanning's Mad Hatter came in third.

The winning skipper was presented with a half-hull model of a Corvette at a Yacht Club reception following the event.

Bowerman Collects Pocket Change In $60,000 Azalea Open Tourney

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — Cesar Sanudo made it plain this weekend that he isn't an unknown golfer anymore.

He took care of that by winning the $80,000 Azalea open golf tournament Sunday when third-round leader Bobby Mitchell faltered on the last three holes.

"They were calling me an unknown, but I'm not an unknown now," said the 28-year-old from San Diego, Calif. He put together rounds of 68, 68, 68 and 67 for 269, 15 under par.

Mitchell, 27, of Danville, Va., had a four-stroke lead going into the final round. Sanudo narrowed the gap until Mitchell egged the par-five 15 to hold a two-stroke edge. But Mitchell three-putted the next three holes to finish with a 72 for 270.

He missed a five-foot putt on the 18th that would have sent the tournament into a playoff.

It was Sanudo's first victory in 20 months on the tour and earned him $12,000. Mitchell received $6,940.

GARY BOWERMAN

Veteran Al Balding of Toronto carded a 68 Sunday and a share of sixth place at 274 with Howell Fraser, worth $1,550.

Wilf Homenuik of Winnipeg, with his 69, was another stroke back tied with defending champion Dale Douglass, Tim Hayes, Joe Campbell and Labron Harris. Each earned $1,281.

Vancouver's Wayne Vollmer was in at 68 and finished the four-day tournament with 276, earning $975. Gary Bowerman of Toronto had a 71, a 280 total, and $170.50 in tournament winnings.

Ben Kern of Oakville, Ont., failed to make the cutoff Friday.

John Schlee won third place with a final-round, nine-under-par 63 to break the Cape Fear Country Club course competitive record. He finished at 271.

Bob Stanton and Hugh Royer tied for fourth place with 272. Mazuo Kuboiah and Rolf Deming were next at 273.

NDP Debates 20 Resolutions

Call for Nationalization of Energy Industry Boldest Step

TORONTO (CP) — A call for the nationalization of the energy resources industry in Ontario was the boldest action taken by the Ontario New Democratic Party at a weekend convention which debated fewer than 20 of more than 400 resolutions prepared by riding associations and the party's provincial council.

Stephen Lewis, 53-year-old member of the Ontario legislature for Scarborough West was elected party leader, said later even that was not so bold a step as some people believed.

He said it simply re-emphasizes NDP policy of using public ownership wherever necessary in achieving what is best for the economic health of the people of Ontario. He himself would question whether it could be interpreted to mean the nationalization of oil and gas refineries, although he accepted the desire for nationalization of such energy resources as oil, gas and uranium and the pipelines that move them through the province.

Other resolutions passed by the convention to give the party its new look for the 1978s call for:

Housing: A guarantee of adequate housing to every resident, collective bargaining rights for tenants, the use of rent subsidies and government land banks to hold down the price of housing, a greatly increased homebuilding program.

Racial and Cultural Defence: Legislation to require the reduction of industrial pollution to safe limits through up by fines increased th at least $25,000 a day on conviction, terms of imprisonment for executives of convicted companies and provision for confiscation of company premises to finance cases, compensation for workers laid off because of industrial closings resulting from the costs of pollution shatement, prohibition of the sale of natural resources to any government or industry that contributes to pollution.

Health Services: Provincial incentives to encourage group medical practices that include the use of auxiliary para-medical personnel; provincial financing for two new medical schools; removal of restrictions on the practices of osteopaths and optometrists;

Permission for registered chiropodists and chiropractors to practise privately without the referral of a physician; permission for clinical psychologists, social workers and psychoanalysts to take patients directly off the street, thus freeing fewer residents against the licensing of doctors from foreign medical schools.

Increased use of physicians' assistants,mental health technicians and dental assistants; an accreditation board for all health professions to regulate relations between self-governed bodies;

Elimination of private insurance carriers as agents in medical insurance; replacement of premium payments for health and hospital care by a system of taxation; expansion of insured health services to include dental care, prosthetic devices, drugs, practical nursing and visiting home-maker services; new machinery for determining professional fee schedules; a greater emphasis on primary health services across the province; community health centres.

Education: Extension of full support to separate schools to the end of Grade 13 on condition that public and separate school boards agree to the greatest possible sharing of new and existing facilities and services; enforcement of a bill of rights for students giving them all the normal freedoms of speech, religion, assembly, and publication and a voice in establishing the curriculums that guide their lives.

Women's Rights: Free choice in birth control and abortion, provision of day care and nursery services, sex education beginning in pre-puberty years, continuing education and counseling services in and out of school, changes in child custody, assistance for single parents.

Agriculture: Legislation to give farmers direct and equal representation on the Ontario Farm Products Marketing Board; a Crown corporation to distribute farm machinery to all dealers despite restrictions' in their franchise operations; a graded municipal tax rate with full residential taxes only on dwellings and standard facilities and a rate that does not include education costs on land and other productive facilities.

Recreation: An objective of providing access to a wide range of outdoor recreation activities within one hour's travel of every urban dweller; prohibition of the sale of recreation land to non-residents; lists of holdings of foreign and single land owners so that land in areas of greatest need can be regulated; opening of all Great Lakes beaches to public use between high-water mark and water's edge; a provincial recreation fund to finance recreation programs.

An Ontario summer housing corporation to build and provide cottage accommodation for the holidays of people who have none, and also to rent camping, boating and fishing equipment and to collaborate with the the transport department to provide quick and inexpensive transportation to holiday areas for all people.

Natural Resources: Approval by a resources and energy board required for any sale of resources to foreign interests; a planning board to rule whether new resource discoveries are to be developed by private, public or co-operative enterprise; renegotiation of all timber hooses; logging profit taxes large enough to recover all forest protection costs and a proper public return; mining profit taxes at a level to give the people an adequate share of the returns;

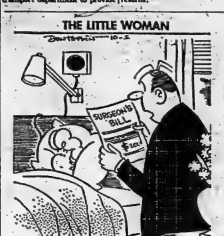
Mining operations subject to full municipal assessment plus a special resource tax if a new community must be built in a remote area; regulatory powers to require mining and forest companies to operate at the fullest potential, to obey anti-pollution regulations and to fit their operations into over-all provincial planning; pressure on the federal government to freeze all energy resource sales until a full inventory of resources is completed.

Branch-Plant Economy: A provincial development corporation to develop resources, nationalize secondary industry, stimulate new enterprises and increase resources production; mobilization of investment capital by requisitioning a proportion of funds now held by financial institutions and corporations.

Cessation of incentive grants to foreign-owned corporations as of their establishment and limited provision of incentives to Canadian enterprises in return for an equity interest;

The industrial takeovers by foreign interests without permission of a takeover review board; a amended corporation and securities legislation to require that Stephen's victory was announced at the party's provincial convention.

After leaving university in 1959, he worked for three months in London with the research department of the Social Int ernational. He left London to attend a 10-day conference in Accra to be near the events surrounding the crisis in the Congo.



However, he wound up staying in Africa two years, teaching at a Ghana high school, acting as principal of a school in a Nigerian village, and lecturing in the bush.

The African experience was traumatic for the young Canadian, and was to have a big his deep involvement in the Biafran tragedy. When the war broke out in Africa over the secession of Biafra from Nigeria, Mr. Lewis led campaigns both in Canada and the U.S. for relief for the refugees.

In addition, he made two trips into the war-torn country, returning to Canada where his report on conditions there won him international recognition. In Africa, he contracted a tropical disease which gives him occasional headaches.

Back in Ontario, he became the party's first federal director of organization, which took him across Canada helping organize election campaigns.

As the youngest member of the legislature, he quickly established himself as an economic critic and research department, particularly in labor and health and welfare. He frequently went through the night to research a speech

NDP First to Pledge Separate School Aid

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario New Democratic Party Sunday became the first of three political parties in the province officially to favor the extension of public financial support to Roman Catholic separate high schools.

An emotional debate among more than 1,200 delegates to the NDP convention here decided that tax support should be extended on the understanding that all new facilities would be shared between the non-denominational and separate sections of the public school system. The vote was two-to-one in favor.

Progressive Conservative policy is that tax support should not extend beyond Grade 10. Liberal party members of the legislature have a policy similar to that of the New Democrats, but it has not been officially accepted by their provincial party.

Although the policy statement approved Sunday does not include the details, a background paper for it insists that high schools must become part of the separate public school system rather than private schools and their physical assets must be transferred to publicly-elected school boards.

Excite Is Synonym for Lewis

TORONTO (CP) — One of Stephen Lewis' favorite words is excite, one he hesitates to apply to himself but which perhaps best fits the newly-elected leader of the Ontario New Democratic Party.

For the manner, political views and silver tongue of this slim, frenetic 53-year-old Toronto school teacher generate excitement in people that he constantly has to fight against being labelled a radical.

When Mr. Lewis made his maiden speech in the Ontario legislature in 1964 at the age of 35, Premier John Robarts was so excited he rose to proclaim that "something new has been added to this house."

Donald MacDonald, whom he replaced as leader, described him as the most brilliant young parliamentarian of the decade.

He has been variously described as a brilliant, uncompromising debater who strikes for the jugular vein and a sensitive, compassionate man being who fought for better treatment for emotionally-disturbed children.

But, perhaps more significant for his party, he has a reputation as an expert in organizing election campaigns—one being the Ontario riding of Middlesex South, last year where the NDP won a byelection after 34 years of Tory rule. He has helped organize 13 campaigns in five provinces, from Prince Edward Island outside villages to Okanagan, B.C., farms, and 12 were victorious.

His father is David Lewis, federal NDP deputy leader, who

NOW IS THE TIME TO SEE ROLLINS LUMBER ABOUT BUILDING YOUR HOME!

Right now, Rollins Lumber has a good supply of mortgage money available to get you started on a home of your own. No down payment is required for our Self-Help home so all you need is enough desire to have your own home to contribute a certain amount of your own labor.

Here is how it works. If you see us now — we can erect the basic house shell before the cold winter weather arrives. Then, with heating installed, you can finish the interior yourself, sheltered from the cold. By using your own labor to do the not so difficult interior work, you can save several thousand dollars off the price of your new home.

BUT YOU MUST ACT NOW WHILE THE MONEY IS AVAILABLE AND THE WEATHER IS STILL SUITABLE..

NHL Questions Raised

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Back before 1967, a hockey fan had it easy.

After all, as far as the National Hockey League was concerned, all he had to keep track of were six teams and about 120 players embroiled in a 210-game schedule.

This season, things are different. After expanding twice within four years, the NHL today comprises 14 teams, about 280 players and a schedule of 546 games.

As for keeping track of all those players, Conn Smythe put it succinctly when he walked into Maple Leaf Gardens in Toronto for an exhibition game this year.

The man who built the gardens and founded the Leafs and whose son and grandson are carrying on in his tradition, picked up a Maple Leafs roster and queried:

"Who are all these guys?"

This season starts with Chicago Black Hawks, last year's East Division champions, in the West Division with the other two new teams—Buffalo Sabres and Vancouver Canucks—added to the originals in the East.

There are all sorts of questions to be settled.

Who besides Gilbert Perreault and Dale Tallon will earn a spot on the rosters of Buffalo and Vancouver?

How will Glen Sather make out after his near-fatal injuries kept him out of hockey for a year with Boston Bruins?

What can Bobby Orr do for an encore after Carl Gordie Howe make out on defence with Detroit Red Wings?

Today's fan will recognize most of the coaches, but probably not in their present jobs.

Emile Francis of New York Rangers and Billy Reay of Chicago are veterans. Fred Glover of Oakland Seals and Claude Ruel of Montreal Canadiens are into their third seasons; Red Kelly of Pittsburgh Penguins, John McMillan of Toronto and Vic Stasiuk of Philadelphia Flyers are second-year men.

But there are seven coaches in their first year with their current clubs—Ned Harkness, Detroit; Tom Johnson, Boston; Punch Imlach, Buffalo; Hal Laycoe, Vancouver; Al Arbour, St. Louis Blues; Jack Gordon, Minnesota North Stars, and Larry Regan, Los Angeles Kings.

Here is a brief resume of the strengths and weaknesses of the teams:

Vancouver Canucks

The Canucks at present, perhaps the biggest problem regarding a starting lineup. Laycoe took some 54 players to training camp in Calgary. Many he had never seen before. After three exhibition games, the coach admitted he still had a problem sorting them out.

"We've got six fellows for every position and there's no handy that made difference between them."

Even after the regular season starts, Laycoe could find himself shuffling players back and forth between Vancouver and Rochester Americans, the farm club in the AHL.

Laycoe is fortunate in having big centre Orland Kurtenbach from New York who has first-string NHL experience, team leadership qualities and a reputation as a tough policeman on the ice.

Defencemen Pat Quinn, Paul Popiel and Gary Doak, centre Bob Dillabough and wingers Len Lunde, Andre Boudrias and Wayne Maki have NHL experience.

It remains to be seen how quickly Tallon, the first-round amateur draft choice, develops and where he fits in—he has played both defence and forward.

But perhaps the biggest question mark is goaltending. Of the seven goalies owned by the Canucks over, only Charles Hodge, 37, a backup man with Oakland for three seasons, has a year or more of NHL experience.

Buffalo Sabres

Imlach has a reputation as a coach who pushes his players to achieve what others might not expect of them. And while he had the same problem as the Canucks in finding little to choose from in the expansion draft, a few outside deals have helped build a nucleus of players with NHL experience around which to build a team. He acquired centre Roger Crozier from Detroit, then picked up goalie Joe Daley from Pittsburgh. Crozier is one of the best in the league provided he can keep a stomach ailment under control Daley has some major league experience as has Don Luce, Bryden, former Canadiens defenceman.

Tracy Pratt, Al Hamilton, Mike McMahon, Hap Myers and Jim Watson are all rugged defencemen and Punch Imlach gone for strength down the centre with Phil Goyette and the promising No. 1 amateur draft choice, Perreault. Donny Marshall, Reg Fleming and Floyd Smith provide experience on the wings.

Boston Bruins

If adjusting to a new coach is a problem, it's one of the few besetting Boston. The team spirit and momentum that carried the Bruins to their first Stanley Cup in 29 years should go a long way toward keeping them at or near the top of the East Division.

Of the established players, only defenceman Gary Doak had a bad year in the draft. The return of Ted Green should more than fill the gap, provided he returns to his old form.

Detroit Red Wings

For doubt that Gordie Howe will be able to replace the retired Carl Brewer on defence. Orr has proved that a high-scoring player is difficult to check when he plays as a defenceman. As long as Howe can continue to provide goals and assists, there will be that much less pressure on his replacement at right wing. Tom Webster, drafted by Buffalo and dealt to Detroit in the Crozier deal, could be that replacement.

New York Rangers

Gone in the expansion draft are Kurtenbach, Marshall and Hamilton. Veteran Tim Horton failed to rally the Rangers in the stretch run last season and is a question mark on defence in the new campaign.

But Francis has a squad of promising young defencemen, among them Ab Demarco, Mike Robitaille and Larry Brown. Veterans Jim Watson, Arnie Brown, Rod Seiling and second-year man Brad Park remain to anchor the defence while Walt Tkaczuk, Jean Ratelle, Bill Fairbairn, Rod Gilbert, Bob Nevin, Ron Stewart, Dave Balon and Mic-Hadfield provide power up front. Other promising young forwards include Jack Egers, Don Luce and Syl Apps. Backing up Ed Giacomin is goal likely will be Gilles Villemure who helped Buffalo Bisons to the A.H.L. playoff championship last season.

Montreal Canadiens

Montreal's deep has always been one of the toughest for juniors to break, but there are opportunities this year. John Ferguson is the only veteran remaining at left wing while the right side has Yvan Cournoyer with Claude Larose returning from Minnesota in the Bobby Rousseau deal. Jean Beliveau, Henri Richard and Ralph Backstrom return retain at centre but Beliveau and Richard have been having troubles in recent season.

Veterans J. C. Tremblay, Jacques Laperriere and Terry Harper anchor the defence with all-star Serge Savard returning from a six-month leg fracture. Goalies Rogatien Vachon and Phil Myre have not impressed with their early exhibition action but he has 18 others from which to choose. 9

Toronto Maple Leafs

The Leafs could have one of the best young all-star five squads in the league this season. They were supposed to have had it last season but injuries put Jim Dorey, Mike Pelyk, Brian Glennie and Rick Ley on the sidelines for long stretches with Jim McKenny one of the few survivors.

Coach McLellan consoles himself with the knowledge that so many injuries to one club couldn't happen twice. Veteran Jacques Plante should help Bruce Gamble in goal and their presence could make the young defencemen look good. But the team lacks scoring power. Dave Keon, Norm Ullman, Mike Walton and Jim Harrison provide what strength there is down centre but Paul Henderson and Ron Ellis are the only proven wingers available to form a top-scoring line.

Taylor Talks Retirement

VANCOUVER (CP) — Left-winger Ted Taylor of the National Hockey League Vancouver Canucks has left the team, preferring life back down on the farm.

Taylor, 28, packed his bags Sunday to return to his farm at Oak Lake, Man., after deciding the Canucks aren't willing to pay him what he thinks befits an NHL player.

He met with Canucks' general manager Saturday, then made up his mind.

"Bad made a very fair offer," he said Sunday. "But I just don't think it's enough.

"He offered me pretty well the same as what I made last year (with the Western League Canucks), including bonuses. But I feel that I know what I can do for a national league team and that's worth more. It's a tougher league—you're always travelling and flying all the time."

"When I'm talking contract with a player," replied Pulle, "I deal in basic salaries. I don't talk fringe benefits because they're available to all NHL players.

"The offer I made to Ted would have represented a 35-per-cent increase for him over last year."

Coach Hal Laycoe, who said Taylor was one of the best pro leftwingers around, said he told Taylor "he wouldn't do himself any good by leaving."

Pulle said if Taylor doesn't show for today's practice, he will suspend him.

Taylor had his finest season last year, scoring 32 goals and 35 assists. In 70 pro years, his only NHL experience was in 31 games with Minnesota North Stars in 1967-68, when he got three goals and five assists.

Pulle is also having his problems with Finnish import Lasse Oksanen and Ron Ward. Oksanen has said he will stay in Canada only if he plays for the NHL and Pulle, who offered him a two-way contract, hasn't seen him since Saturday.

Ward, Vancouver's 15th draft choice who was assigned to Rochester Americans, walked out of the American League club's camp and has been suspended.

Meanwhile, Marc Reaume, last year's outstanding NHL defenceman, has signed a one-year contract with the Canucks.

Laycoe said of the assignment and salary difficulties:

"We should have something like baseball, where players don't come to camp until they are signed. Something has to be done. The whole thing is getting all out of proportion."

Driver-errors Responsible For Majority of Accidents

By RAY STAPLEY

A recent study by the Department of Transportation in the U.S. indicates it is easier to make safer and better highways than it is to produce safer drivers.

The study on cause, blame, and prevention of highway accidents was conducted as part of the DOT's two-year investigation of insurance.

It concluded that most efforts to change driver behavior to make safer drivers are a "demonstrably ineffective, or of indeterminable effectiveness, or exceedingly expensive from a cost-benefit point of view."

The accident investigation files indicate this is not only a defeatist attitude, but an error in judgment.

Let's look at 12 consecutive automobile accidents I investigated recently:

(1) Driver had been drinking and lost control of vehicle. Vehicle mechanically sound, ably good. One fatality. Vehicle was a write-off.

(3) Rear-end collision as a result of tail-gaiting. Driver claimed brake failure, but examination revealed they were functioning properly. One person injured and both cars badly damaged.

(3) Rear-end collision due to sluggish brake action triggered by defective master cylinder. The seven-year-old master cylinder should have been replaced at least two years prior to the accident. $700 property damage.

(4) Car rolled over due to excessive speed when cornering. Driving conditions good. One fatality.

(5) Accelerator jammed resulting in run-away car and driver did not think to turn off ignition switch. A combination of mechanical failure and driver - error. Two people seriously injured and three cars damaged.

(6) Two-car collision. Three people injured and two cars demolished. Master cylinder failed when brakes applied. Also, the brake-drums were in bad shape and the linings were worn out.

(7) Sudden brake application on slippery road pulled car into skid which driver could not control. One fatality. Two vehicles demolished.

(8) Front wheel hydraulic brake system inoperative resulting in two-car collision. Inspection revealed front brake cylinders had been seized for some time. Approximately $1,300 in body repairs.

(9) Two-car collision. Vehicle equipped with dual master cylinder, one - half of which had not operated for some time, and the action of the second half was sluggish. $650 property damage.

(10) Brand-new car drove off roadway for no apparent reason. Driver claimed mechanical failure, but examination proved the vehicle to be in perfect condition. Car was a write-off.

(11) Drinking driver allowed vehicle to shoot across roadway into on-coming traffic. Examination revealed no mechanical defects existed prior to the accident. One fatality. Two cars destroyed.

(12) Tire blew out at high speed and vehicle went into skid the driver could not control. Car rolled over. One fatality.

As we examine these accidents it would appear that:

(a) Six were triggered by driver - error.

(b) Four resulted from mechanical failure.

(c) Two were a combination of driver - error and mechanical failure.

In actual fact, it is highly probable that each accident could be directly attributed to driver-error.

Defective brakes are easily recognized, so that lack of maintenance could — in these cases — constitute criminal negligence.

The ability to prevent or control skids is a skill that can be acquired at modest cost.

It's an established fact that over-indulgence in alcohol is responsible for about half of our driving fatalities.

Some may argue that these 12 cases would not necessarily indicate that all accidents follow this pattern. But according to my records, driver-error is to some degree responsible for practically all fatalities.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

To Reduce Weight Eat Less of Same

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Do you want very much to lose weight and don't know how? I have a simple formula that will solve the problem. Especially for those who need to lose only from 10 to 20 pounds. No special diets or medications are necessary, just will power and sufficient motivation. Consider this letter:

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Before discovering that I had extremely low blood sugar through taking a glucose tolerance test, I had gained 16 pounds fighting for energy by eating candy bars and drinking alcoholic beverages to help my waning energy. I became so weak I was admitted to a hospital.

I am 5 feet 4. I used to weigh about 120 pounds. Now I am close to 140 — and going higher. I am on a high protein diet, and eat practically no sugar or carbohydrates. This has been going on for almost two months. I don't lose an ounce.

Good health and vanity are my reasons for wanting to lose. I am terrified that I may become one of those maternity - looking fat, older women. (I am 53.) I have only a few clothes I can wear. The others make me look like a pumpkin. Can you give me some advice? — Mrs. B.

Comment: As I've often said, sufficient motivation will provide anyone with the necessary momentum to melt off excess poundage. You have mentioned the two most important, Mrs. B., "good health and vanity are my reasons for wanting to lose."

You are taking care of your low blood sugar by the high protein diet and other measures. Now it's time to turn to the vanity motivation: being able to get back into your clothes so you do not look like the pumpkin you mentioned.

I'll give you some tips on an easy way to lose. For the next three days make a list of everything you eat and drink. Then it's just a matter of "cutting down" on intake and not necessarily going on some fancy diet.

For example, if you've been taking six slices of bread a day, cut down to three. Two potatoes, cut down to one. Two ice cream sodas, indulge in only one. Two ounces of liquor? Take only one, etc.

You see, this diet is painless in that it doesn't "take away" your favorite foods, only lessens the intake. Try this for three months. If your 16 pounds haven't melted away by then, I'll be greatly surprised. Or, I'll suspect that you haven't been able to "cut down" — which is much easier than "cutting out" food and drink you like.

Jean Dixon's Horoscope

For October 6

Your birthday today: Your year is somewhat uphill, with great rewards for consistent effort. There is added responsibility for 3 pairs of oxfords, along with more authority. Romantic expressions must occasionally be subordinated to career needs, but in general are more extensive and meaningful. Today's natives often hold progressive, sometimes avant-garde ideas. Marriage for these people becomes an exceptional challenge.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Pressures provoke you into strong exertions. Strive to hold your inner serenity. Assurance and tact make all the difference. Care in promises is indicated.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): It's about time for a general confrontation, except that the temptation to overdo is powerful. Gambling of any sort is riskier than normal. Let financial dispositions alone.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): You can readily let disputes and careless comments say only what you mean. It may mean that yesterday's progress was just too much to keep intact.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Let well enough alone today. Give others the chance to get into step, avoid hasty errors. Let criticism pass for the moment. Tomorrow brings better answers.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): agreement and strain some relationships. Older people cause problems. Contracts, legal arrangements are touchy, require close scrutiny.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Some matters lack perfection. You need not do much about most of them. Make the best of a flawed and incomplete world, forgiving yourself and others for imperfection.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): On all sides people seek scapegoats. Your calm self-assurance radiates well, helps keep your working environment stable and peaceful.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Keep details of plans confidential; whatever is explained attracts contradiction. Assume no obligations now. Career matters are the only ones worthy of personal confidence.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Keep emotional reactions out of material transactions — the fact that you may want something does not make it available. Pace yourself to avoid both boom and bust.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Secret deals are offered, but unlikely to work out. Pretend you know, but very well, are remarkably full of surprises. Bring home something that symbolizes your deeper feelings.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Today tests your working theories, may show you an exception or needed revision. Group activities are quite sensitive, should be left to rest in security.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Feel your way through today, guided by emotional preference and intuition which operates strongly if needed. Let your inner serenity come forth in tactful patience.

What Youngsters Should Know About Business

So-called "secret formulas" for success in business boil down to a few basic precepts that every newspaperboy soon learns while serving and collecting from his customers:

BE PROMPT — On-time delivery and on-schedule collection calls make customers happy, develop a reputation for being reliable and trustworthy.

BE POLITE — A smile, a friendly greeting, a courteous manner pleases everyone, makes it easier to get along with people.

BE PERSISTENT — Any salesman knows the more calls he makes, the more buyers he finds. Building up a newspaper route requires continued effort too, encourages initiative.

Conservationists Demand 'Primitive' Quetico Area

FRENCH RIVER, Ont. (CP) — An American-owned logging company was told Saturday that wood needed for its new mill at Fort Frances, Ont., must not come from Quetico Provincial park.

C. Abbott Conway, president of the Algonquin Wildlands League, told a group of 35 leading conservationists from Canada and the United States that the Ontario government must place an immediate moratorium on logging in the 1,750-square mile park and reclassify it as "primitive," reserved for recreation.

Bruno Seppala, timber manager for the Ontario-Minnesota Pulp and Paper Co. Ltd., a subsidiary of Boise Cascade Corp., Boise, Idaho, said his company needs the 200,000 cords it could take annually from the park.

"If we're kicked out, I guess we'll just have to look some where else," he said, "and that's not going to be so easy."

Richard Thorpe, chairman of the north central region of the Sierra Club, a group of more than 100,000 U.S. conservationists, told the meeting a study of Boise Cascade's conservation practices shows Canada should not expect too much in the form of conservation from the company.

"They are not going to preserve anything," he said. "Their record is not very good."

Lou Bingham, regional director of the department of lands and forests for Northwestern Ontario, said only about 33 1-3 per cent of land that is cut is replanted.

Another department spokesman said the department receives about $15 million annually from the companies cutting wood in Ontario. His last figures showed that $16 million was spent last year in Ontario on the timber management program which includes replanting.

"When they made Stanley they threw away the mold, except for what they forgot to scrape off."

Abitibi Strike Delayed

THUNDER BAY (CP) — A majority of members of the United Papermakers and Paperworkers Union agreed Sunday to postpone a strike scheduled today against Abitibi Paper Co., but 529 plan to walk out at the Provincial Paper Ltd. plant here, a union official said.

Tom Cuzley, union information officer, said the majority agreed to postpone strike action so another meeting could be held today in Toronto with company negotiators.

However, strike action started by 300 workers Friday at Abitibi plants in Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., and Iroquois Falls is expected to continue.

All eight union locals involved will be represented at the Toronto talks.

Sydney J. Harris Says

Few People Want Truth

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

"Ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make ye free." Is one of the half-dozen most popular quotes from the Bible. Preachers and lecturers use it constantly; newspapers have adopted it as the slogan of a free press.

But what we rarely stop to consider is our human disinclination to know the truth. What we generally want, instead, are comfortable assurances that we are right. Failing this, we prefer ignorance to the truth.

I am not even speaking of lofty political matters, but of small personal things. You know a man — know him very well — who for the last three months has been bothered by a dull, steady ache in his abdomen.

He is worried that it might be cancer: on the other hand, it is probably nothing serious. An X-ray and a few simple tests would quickly reveal the truth.

But he is afraid that the truth may be "bad," and foolishly prefers the uncertainty to the medical examination. The truth would free him of his anxiety but before that he has to free himself from fear. All men desire the truth, in an intellectual way; but most men fear the truth, in a deep emotional sense.

The 19th Century optimists about human progress believed that ingorance was the great enemy of mankind, and that universal education would soon rid society of its flaws and frailties and frictions.

We, living in the 20th Century, know better. We know that man thinks off the top of his head, but his illusions come from the bottom of his psyche. What he needs is not to know more about the facts of the universe — although they are important—but more about his own feelings toward the universe, toward his fellow men, and toward himself.

"Reason" was the god of Western philosophy for nearly 200 years — until the monumental work of Freud and his associates demonstrated beyond dispute that man's reason can more easily be the slave of his passions than their master.

Ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make ye free," is not only an ethical statement, but a psychological one as well. But the difficult paradox lies in this: that in order really to want to know the truth, we first have to be free enough to pursue it, whatever its consequences may be. Before we can achieve freedom of the spirit, we must win freedom from the emotional chains that bind us to a dark past.

And, having said this, I'm off for an X-ray and a few simple tests.

Indians Had Sought Liquor Restrictions

WATERLOO (CP) — Prof. Douglas Sanders of the University of Windsor says that when the Supreme Court of Canada ruled liquor provisions of the Indian Act invalid last November, it was striking out material the Indians' forebears had asked be included in treaties.

The law professor told a seminar at the University of Waterloo Saturday that when the treaties were signed, Indian leaders asked for special legislation covering liquor in their communities.

"So in a real sense, the sections in the Indian Act were there in fulfilment of treaty promises asked for by Indian leadership on the Prairies.

"In striking down these sections in the name of legal equality, the Supreme Court did not seem to realize the treaty implications of this, or the origin."

Prof. Sanders said: "There has to be some concern about decisions made on concepts of equality which can, in fact, be extremely insensitive to the situation of particular minority groups who are before the courts."

Malcolm Montgomery, Toronto lawyer who said last week he hopes to have the Indian Act declared illegal, told the seminar of the Institute of Iroquoian Studies he hopes the door to destruction of the law has been opened by the Supreme Court's liquor decision. The court found the provision restricting use of liquor was inconsistent with the Bill of Rights.

Dr. Jack A. Frisch of Wayne State University in Detroit, who also lectures at the University of Windsor, said that some Indians have successfully used strikes, boycotts and non-violent confrontation tactics when white authorities have ignored efforts to settle grievances by negotiation.

St. Regis Mohawks were successful in a school boycott on the United States side of the border and in the 1968 blockade of the international bridge on Cornwall Island over customs exemptions, he said.

Other Indians along the border who had not caused any trouble did not get the same consideration.

William Fox, a staff officer with the consultation branch of the Indian affairs department, said that the National Indian Brotherhood asked the federal government to make no immediate response to a red paper of counter proposals presented last June by the Indians.

He said the brotherhood asked the government to make no response or statements of administrative or structural changes until the government and brotherhood agree on a suitable forum for an exchange of views.

The government is waiting for brotherhood suggestions on the type of forum and exchanges it wants, he said.

The red paper was essentially a rejection of and detailed counter proposal to government Indian policy outlined in 1969.

Anything Goes

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Most Rev. G. Emmett Carter, Roman Catholic Bishop of London, Ont., said Sunday if there is a "certain kind of beat that turns the young on, then let them turn it on."

The bishop said in an interview that anything goes as far as church music is concerned whether it is hard rock, solid rock or folk music—so long as it is liturgical.

The 'Factory Door' Way to Save on Snow-Tires!

Two tires for what you'd expect to pay for one? Sounds incredible? Not when you start looking around and comparing. Not when you discover the economy of factory door pricing. It's like buying direct from the manufacturer—with most of the marketing and promotion costs eliminated. In fact, factory door prices are often less than the dealer wholesale cost for nationally advertised tires of similar quality! Take a look at our Winter Express and Snow-Travel prices—and compare!

To these prices add 15¢ in Toronto for freight from factory — more at distant points. Maximum — $1.13 to Gander, Newfoundland.

Installation — $1.00
Wheel Balance plus
New Valve — $1.00

FLQ Thought Behind Montreal Kidnapping

Tax Reform Creeps Closer

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's long-distance lope to tax reform completed another lap Monday with publication of yet another set of proposals, this time from the government majority on the Commons finance committee.

The committee report urged the government to tone down some of the added demands it had proposed to make on corporations, shareholders and others in upper income brackets. It applauded the idea of providing some tax relief for Canadians in tight budgets.

The Liberal MPs recommended changes in the government's taxation white paper of last November. It was not because they accepted claims by the business community that the white paper proposals would stunt industrial growth once more because they believed economic growth should take precedence over a fair tax deal for all, they said.

They argued that, in a system reliant on free co-operation, you cannot impose taxation that major taxpayers believe to be intolerable.

By bluntly reminding the government of what they regard as the political realities of tax reform, the MPs rang the bell for the final lap towards legislation.

The country has been on the way for eight years or more. The royal commission on taxation headed by the late Kenneth Carter, opened the debate formally in 1962.

The commission completed the first leg five years later with recommendations for a revolutionary system that would apply ability-to-pay principles to all forms of wealth.

After listening to the ensuing uproar for two years, the government published a much-modified version of the Carter proposals in a white paper last November.

The document was handed to the Commons finance committee and the Senate banking committee. Each entertained opinions from hundreds of witnesses, mainly business groups, in parallel hearings from January to summer.

The Senate group last week rejected much of the white paper. The Commoners opted for a modified version.

The New Democrats disagreed with both committees and the government, saying all three were too mindful of business pressures.

Almost everybody, however, is on record approving a measure of tax relief on individual incomes up to about $3,000 a year and family incomes up to about $8,000.

JAMES RICHARD CROSS

Note Demands Gold, Captives

MONTREAL (CP) — Government officials in Ottawa and Quebec City have been given until Wednesday morning to consider a stunning ransom note for the release of James Richard Cross, senior British trade commissioner kidnapped at gunpoint early Monday.

The ransom note, part of which was made public by Quebec Justice Minister Jerome Choquette, asks, among other things, for $500,000 in gold bullion and the release of several "political prisoners" who would be put on a chartered flight to Cuba or Algeria with the gold.

A third demand, that the police take no action against the kidnappers, was fulfilled later in the day.

"A man's life is at stake," a police spokesman said. "We don't want to make the terrorists jittery."

He was referring to the general belief that the kidnapping at Mr. Cross' home at 8:15 a.m. was the work of members of the Front de Liberation Quebecois, a separatist-terrorist group believed responsible for scores of bombings in Quebec since 1963.

It was feared that the abduction of Mr. Cross, 49, might indicate a new tack in FLQ strategy, until now largely restricted to terrorist bombings.

The ransom note, found at an east-end building of the University of Quebec after a false bomb threat, gave a 48-hour deadline for the demands to be met.

Justice Minister Choquette appealed to the kidnappers at a news conference Monday afternoon to show "human decency" by procuring a supply of a drug Mr. Cross needs for a high blood pressure condition.

A Montreal doctor said in an interview Mr. Cross could be in grave danger in a few days without the drug.

"Certainly within a week he would begin experiencing symptoms of the rising blood pressure—headaches and other troubles felt by those with heart problems."

The doctor, who asked to remain anonymous, said the excitement of the kidnapping itself would have a serious effect on his blood pressure.

Two men gained entrance to the fashionable downtown home of Mr. Cross under the pretence of presenting him with a birthday gift. Once inside the house, one man pulled a gun on the maid and two others entered the diplomat's bedroom, handcuffed him and forced him into a waiting car which bore a local taxi company marking.

The total number of men involved in the kidnapping has been placed by witnesses at either four or five.

Other demands contained in the ransom note, addressed neither to the Quebec or Canadian governments in particular but merely to "authorities," were:

—Full publication of their demands along with the name and photograph of the person who gave information about a recent arrest of alleged FLQ members;

—Publication in all Quebec newspapers of a political manifesto spelling out the aims of the clandestine organization;

The note added that if the 48-hour deadline was not met, "we will not be held responsible for what happens."

It was not immediately known

Sadat Is Given Nod As Egypt's Leader

CAIRO (CP) — Egypt's only political party named Anwar Sadat Monday night to succeed the late Gamal Abdel Nasser as president, assuring his election by the National Assembly Wednesday.

Meeting shortly before midnight, the 138-member central committee of the Arab Socialist Union unanimously approved the nomination of Sadat by the party's executive committee. Sadat, 52, has been serving as provisional president since Nasser died Sept. 28.

The executive committee recommended that the assembly meet Wednesday to endorse Sadat, that his election be confirmed by a nationwide referendum Oct. 15, and that the president be inaugurated two days later.

Named vice-president by Nasser in 1969, Sadat is considered by most observers to be the least controversial of several potential contenders for the presidency. One of the others, Lt.-Gen. Mohamed Fawzi, commander-in-chief of Egypt's armed forces, assured the central committee of the military's full support for Sadat.

MPs' Views On Tax Reform

OTTAWA (CP) — Highlights of the Commons finance committee report on the government's taxation white paper:

Points Accepted

—Higher basic income tax exemptions, to $1,400 from $1,000 for single and $2,800 from $2,000 for married taxpayers.

—Deduction of expenses involved in moving to take new job.

—Averaging of income over several years for farmers, fishermen or others with fluctuating incomes.

—Canadian shareholders to get credit for half the Canadian corporation tax paid on profits from which dividends are paid out.

—Special quick write-off of cost of machinery and buildings for new mines.

Points Modified

—Change deductions for child care expenses where neither parent is at home, allowing them where a parent is home but incapacitated by permanent mental or physical infirmity.

—Change general $150 deduction for expenses connected with holding a job to allow higher deduction substantiated by itemized claim.

—Add strike pay, when paid out of funds not subject to Canadian tax, to provisions to consider unemployment benefits and other allowances as income and subject to tax.

—Change top graduated tax rate of 31 per cent to 60, effective at taxable income of $40,000. rate of 50 per cent effective about $30,000 instead of $25,000

—Only half capital gains instead of all to be subject to tax; half rather than full losses to be deductible.

—No capital gains tax, rather than partial tax, assessed against sale of a principal residence and up to an acre of land around it.

—Exemption from capital gains of $1,000 instead of $500 for proceeds from sale of lesser items.

—Increased exemption for estate taxes; no tax on estate valued at less than $150,000.

—Wider system of setting value of an asset on valuation day, avoiding the situation where stock markets and land values might be at a low ebb and future tax would be charged on what actually had been a loss for the holder.

—Change proposal to eliminate low tax rate on first $35,000 of corporation income, adopting graduated system of small business tax incentives for firms earning up to $100,000.

Points Eliminated

—Proposal to end deductions for conventions, clubs, yachts and other aspects of expense account living; instead, present law strictly enforced to stop abuses.

—Revaluation of capital gains every five years; instead, gains tax to be assessed at transfer of an asset or at death.

Machine-gun on Golf Cart Used by Party-crasher Duke

TORONTO (CP) — A provincial inquiry heard Monday of a report to police that George Clinton Duke once drove up to a neighbor's boathouse party after a tiff, with a machine-gun mounted on a golf cart and fired bullets into Lake Ontario.

The inquiry also heard alleged crook John Papalia say he visited Mr. Duke's farm to inquire about buying a lawn mower because he was hurt at criticism of the height of the grass in front of his apartment house.

"It was very embarrassing," he told J. J. Robinette, counsel for the inquiry.

"You're not kidding me about all this, are you?" asked Mr. Robinette.

"No sir," Mr. Papalia replied.

"I discussed with Mr. Duke whether it was cheaper to buy a lawn mower or a goat."

He ended up buying neither, he said.

Detective Sgt. Roy Taylor of Oakville police said he once spoke to Mr. and Mrs. G. R. Craddock, the Dukes' next-door neighbors, who had taken Mrs. Duke's side in a domestic dispute.

He said Mr. Craddock told him Mr. Duke once drove up in a golf cart with a machine-gun mounted on the front and fired bullets into the lake while the Craddocks were holding a party, in their boathouse.

Macdonald Tells Commons All CF-5s Will Be Used

By KENNETH SMITH
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — The Canadian Forces will take delivery of all the CF-5s being produced by Canadair of Montreal without having defined roles for them.

Donald Macdonald, the new defence minister, made this clear in the House of Commons Monday.

A defence department spokesman said this morning that some of the planes are "in storage."

"When you buy an aircraft you always plan to put some in storage for purposes of attrition", he said.

The number of CF-5s acquired is about 15 to 20 per cent of the production total of 115.

More CF-5s are in storage than originally planned but it is not because they are useless, as opposition spokesmen have contended.

"Early in 1969, the government decided to reorient the defence budget, causing drastic changes in the force structure," this area said, adding that these changes included phasing out the Bonaventure, and the Transport Command's Yukon aircraft as well as putting CF-5s in storage.

"We had to chop somewhere and it is cheaper to operate a squadron of CF-5s in storage," he continued.

Original plans called for three squadrons of the CF-5 front line aircraft for ground support purposes, plus another training unit. Only two squadrons have been formed, composed of 32 planes at Bagotville, Quebec, and Cold Lake, Alberta.

The third operational squadron was to have been at Chatham, N.B., the national defence spokesman said today.

If the fighters have been caught in Ottawa budget freeze, they have not lost their utility through revisions in defence policy, — capabilities of the CF-5 are compatible with government plans.

Ex-defence minister Léo Cadieux indicated (Sept. 19, 1969) that the proposed air role for Canadian Forces in Europe after 1972 would be ground support and reconnaissance.

The Department of National Defence, duhs the CF-5 "Canadair's new tactical close ground support aircraft" — what the government wanted to supply NATO.

As far as reconnaissance is concerned, the CF-5s are doing it now. Photo pods are fitted on the aircraft both at Cold Lake and Bagotville.

"We have expertise in reconnaissance," a source said.

Sending CF-5s for trials in Germany and Norway is in line with government projections, Canada is committed to defence of NATO's northern flank, although commitment to the southern flank terminated this year, the source said, adding that "Canadian forces have exercised in Norway in the past."

Presence of CF-5s is an extension of the same thing", he said.

Operational use of the CF-5s will gain new flexibility when the two air transport command 707s are fitted with aerial refueling apparatus.

By aerial refueling methods the CF-5s, with a top speed in excess of 1,000 miles an hour, can be in Europe in short order.

The refueling apparatus destined to serve the CF-5s "become an added factor in the usefulness of the aforesaid fighters," he said, adding that "the range increase gives another dimension to the options available (for the roles of the CF-5s)."

Mayor, Reeve at Odds Over Hiring Policy

PICTON (Staff) — Mayor H. C. McFarland voiced sharp disagreement with lack of communication between town and township councils in the hiring of Prince Edward industrial commissioner William Duggan during a town council meeting last night.

Picton reeve Bernard Hepburn informed town councillors that Mr. Duggan had been hired by the county council and described it as a "big step." He then added that members of town council hopefully would support the new industrial commissioner in his job.

Startled by this report, Mayor McFarland replied it was the first time he had been informed that Mr. Duggan had been hired. He demanded to know if the town will pay a portion of the industrial commissioner's salary and was told by Mr. Hepburn that 20.2 per cent of this money comes from the town.

Mayor McFarland pursued this point insisting that a letter from county council should have reached him concerning Mr. Duggan's appointment. "When something involves a certain amount of finances the mayor should be notified accordingly," he observed.

Mr. Hepburn offered his apologies, pointing out that Picton deputy-reeve Donald Thompson sat on the industrial and development committee of county council which approved Mr. Duggan's appointment. He expressed surprise that Mr. Thompson apparently had not updated Mayor McFarland on county council's decision. Deputy reeve Thompson did not attend last night's council session.

With reeve Hepburn's apology for not attending county council's part, the meeting resumed but was interrupted a few moments later when the mayor returned to the subject. "I'm disturbed about this," explained Mayor McFarland pressing for details of Mr. Duggan's salary and mileage expenses. He quickly ascertained that no member of his council could quote the industrial commissioner's salary. "We're dealing with 20.2 per cent of the ratepayers money, and we don't know where its going — and I'm not willing to pay the expenses?" he questioned.

"If this is the way the ratepayers' business is going to be run, behind closed doors, I want to know now. I want no part of it. For 20 years I've done my best to save for the ratepayers and this was taken out of my hands."

Mr. Hepburn repeated his earlier apology and was told by the mayor, "Apologies be hell." Asked to repeat his statement Mayor McFarland again voiced his opinion of the apology. He was assured by reeve Hepburn that the salary figure for the industrial commissioner will become public at the next meeting of county council.

Mr. Hepburn stressed that he does not sit on county council's industrial committee and regretted that the mayor had not been twice informed. He added that he was absent during three meetings held by the committee and would gladly have updated Mayor McFarland if he had been aware of the situation.

Council Says No To Ward System

TRENTON (Staff) — Application will not be made to the Ontario Municipal Board for establishment of a ward system form of election.

Town councillors turned down a resolution last night that would have moved Trenton toward a revamped election organization.

It was the contention of council that to take action now would be premature because no petitions have been received in its favor.

Mayor Duncan McDonald raised the possibility of instituting a ward system at the last regular council session on Sept. 29.

The mayor told councillors at that time that petitions were circulating to promote the revised electoral procedure and suggested that council deal with the matter.

No member of the six-man council was in favor of taking action on the ward system last night without further knowledge of the petitions.

Information was also disclosed last night as to who was circulating the petition promoting the switch to a ward form of elections.

Dismissal of the ward system resolution came swiftly last night — without any formal discussion of its benefits and shortcomings.

The only basis for rejecting the change in electoral methods voiced last night was that it would be premature to act before council is petitioned on the issue.

Trenton Seeks OMB OK For Post Office Plan

TRENTON (Staff) — Town council decided here Monday to seek Ontario Municipal Board approval of the post office exhibit under the Ontario Condominium Act.

If the OMB endorses the project, municipal offices would be moved to quarters in the old post office on Dundas St. West, awaiting the rejuvenation building with private interests.

Action has been slow in the scheme, in part, because of the question of its legality.

There has been some doubt whether or not senior governments approve of municipal offices, being part of a condominium shared with business firms.

Legal opinions have been sought by the town and the judgment given that present council action regulations should not stand in the way of the development.

Purpose of the scheme designed by David K. Lukasik of Montreal, is two - fold — to replace present quarters of offices on Dundas East and to spearhead urban renewal in the central area by saving the old limestone post office, a civic landmark.

Car Broken Into

Belleville City Police are investigating the theft of a tape deck and a number of tapes from a car overnight. Chief Douglas Crabbe said this morning.

The deck and tapes, valued at $150, disappeared missing this morning when the owner, Kenneth Cox of 684, Charlotte Street, came out to his car.

Police said thieves used a wire in unlock the car from the inside.

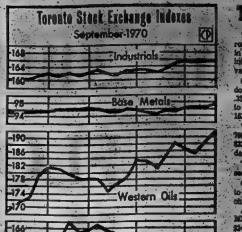
THINK AHEAD IF YOU'RE GOING TO SELL

The Boy Scouts' motto of "Be Prepared" couldn't be more appropriate than when applied to home owners thinking of selling.



Like a young lady about to make an important "date", home owners have to be ready for that "date" for the unexpected buyer. Sometimes their preparations must be made as much as a year in advance.

If it is advisable, for instance to have planting of trees or shrubs in your yard, a property, it must be born in mind that the planting in the fall will provide beautiful colors for the next Spring, but they must be put in ahead of time.

Exterior painting must be done in the warm weather, of course, as well as new fences etc.

Relatively small expenditures can result in substantial increases in the selling price of a property, depending, of course, on the circumstances.

A recent case where a few hours and a few of trees selling a property off from a vacant lot to that one) has improved the saleability of the property and brought in hundreds to the selling price is an example of the kind of advantage that can be gained.

Toronto Stocks

On a broker, industrials were down .01 to 168.95, base metals .35 to 88.73 and western oils 1.59 to 194.87. Golds advanced 2.85 to 183.33.

Volume by 11 a.m. was 990,000 shares, compared with 832,000 at the same time Monday.

The decline followed two consecutive gaining sessions.

Gains outnumbered losses 165 to 102 with 188 issues unchanged.

Among mining stocks, Mac-Millan Bloedel was down ¼ to 33¼%, Investors Overseas to 19¾, Agnew Lake ¼ to 9¼, Northgate ¼ to 11¾, Lake Dufault ¼ to 31¾, Sherritt ¼ to 21¾%, Ranger ¼ to 21¼% and Siebens 16 cents to 20.40.

Falconbridge climbed .1 to 15.66, Texaco ¼ to 29¾, Trans Canada Pipe Lines ¾ to 43¾, Steel Canada ¼ to 22¾% and Hiram Walker ¼ to 24¾.

On index, industrials were up 1.79 to 168.95, golds .35 to 183.33, base metals 1.59 to 88.73 and western oils .30 to 196.46.

The advancing issues in industrials are the largest since June 16.

Volume was 2.83 million shares in industrials, 1.4 million in golds and up from 2.76 million Friday.

Gains outnumbered losses 297 to 240 with 248 issues unchanged.

Strongest sectors were oil refiners, pipelines, steels, banks and industrial mixers. Fourteen of the exchange's 17 sub indexes were higher.

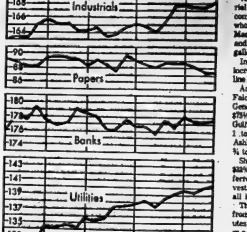
Among gaining issues, Imperial Oil was up ¼ to 49¾. The company said it has increased wholesale gasoline prices in the Maritimes by one cent a gallon and in Quebec by .8 of a cent a gallon.

Imperial Oil officials said the increases would bring prices in line with those of competitors.

Among other major issues, Falconbridge was up 3 to 1.47, General Motors Corp. 1¼ to 87¾, Inco ¼ to 44¾, Texas Gulf Sulphur 1 to 119¾, Canstar 1 to 31¾, Cornwall ¾ to 21¾, Ashland Oil ¾ to 31¾, Ranger ¾ to 21¾% and Banff ¼ to 14.

Shell Canada was down ¼ to 22¾, Shell Investment Preferred 1¼ to 23¾ and Shell Investment Warrant ¼ to 11½%, all in active trading.

The three issues were halted from trading for about 22 minutes at the opening Monday morning. Exchange officials said the stocks were halted on insich orders.



The stocks were sharply higher when they began trading, but moved downward after Shell issued a statement to shareowners that the company had made an oil discovery off the east coast of Labrador.

Officials also denied rumors that the company plans to declare a third offshore drilling rig.

Western Oils Lead

Western oils gained 22.71 during September, to lead other indexes on the Toronto Stock Exchange. At the close of trade Sept. 30, western oils stood at 191.76, up from 169.05 at last months close. Industrials gained 5.59 to close at 168.87 and base metals rose 2.09 to 97.45. The gold index showed the only decline, slipping from 161.41 to 157.57.

(CP Newsmap)

Three Indexes Up

Three of the four indexes on the Montreal Stock Exchange rose during September. Utilities gained 10.22 from last months close to the end of September at 140.42. Industrials were up 8.28 to 168.26 and banks closed at 177.84, a gain off 1.71. Papers showed the only decline during September, closing at 87.54, down 1.58.

New Compressors For Trenton Rink

TRENTON (Staff) — Town council decided here last night to acquire new compressors for the ice making system of the Community Gardens.

Estimated cost of the new machinery is $30,000, according to one supplier contacted. Others will be contacted and compressors will be obtained with the proviso that the price is not in excess of the quotation already obtained.

The present compressor equipment has been in use at the Gardens for 14 years and was second-hand when purchased.

Largest of the compressors to be acquired is a 50 horse power unit that may be operated automatically. A 60 hp compressor currently in use at the Gardens requires a considerable amount of maintenance time spent on it by engineering staff at the Gardens in line with Department of Labor regulations.

Cost of the new compressors will be paid for within two years because of their automatic operational capacity and the elimination of high servicing costs

Purtelle Resigns

PICTON (Staff) — Jack Purtelle, president of the Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce, has submitted his resignation in a letter to the board of directors. The resignation, accepted yesterday during a regular meeting of chamber members, was read by Ronald Scott, first vice-president. Mr. Purtelle stated that he left his position with deep regret but was compelled by other business pressures to resign. He is the manager of the Picton branch of the Standard Trust Company.

Picton merchant Ronald Scott, former first vice-president of the Prince Edward chamber of commerce yesterday accepted its presidency for the remainder of the year.

Mr. Purtelle was not present at yesterday's meeting.

Note

if the "political prisoners" mentioned in the note are in provincial or federal penal institutions.

In Ottawa, External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp promised that additional protection will be provided for the 1,000-plus foreign diplomats in Canada.

He said the kidnapping would prove to be a step forward against the cause of separatism in Quebec.

Referring to the ransom demands, he said, at the moment, we don't know how to deal with it."

He added, however, that he was hopeful there would not have to be any negotiation of terms with the kidnappers, and that the government was not taking it for granted that the blackmail would be successful. He would not elaborate.

The federal and Quebec governments are operating under shared jurisdiction in the case. The federal government is responsible for safety of foreign diplomats and their property and the provinces, generally speaking, administer the Criminal Code on behalf of Ottawa.

Mr. Choquette told his news conference the kidnappers gave no indication of how the payment could establish contact with them.

The abduction of Mr. Cross, highest-ranked British representative in Quebec, marks the first time a political group has been linked with a kidnapping for ransom in a Common wealth country.

Earlier this year, police uncovered two plots to kidnap foreign officials.

One involved Harrison Burgess, United States consul-general in Canada, and the other separately was aimed at Mose Golan, Israeli trade commissioner.

Seized ransom notes in both cases were almost identical to that in the Cross kidnapping. All three were typed on a document bearing the FLQ letterhead.

Three Montreal men—Andre Roy, 23, Claude Mooney, 19, and Francois Lanctot, 24—are really are before the courts on charges of conspiracy to kidnap Mr. Burgess, as well as other counts involving terrorist bombings in the city last summer.

An interesting sidelight to the demand that "political prisoners" be released came to light Monday night when Raymond Lemieux, a lawyer known for his defence of suspected FLQ members, was asked how jailed terrorists would fare in Cuba or Algeria if ransom demands are met.

In the case of Claude Morency, whom he is defending, Mr. Lemieux said he "prefers to win his freedom in court."

Bloomfield

BLOOMFIELD — Lyle Parliament, Oakville, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Parliament, spent three weeks in Germany and also visited Holland.

Edward Iantchevski, technician from Moscow, U.S.S.R., and a business associate of Lyle Parliament accompanied Lyle to his home and was a house guest of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Parliament for a few days. He toured the Baxter Canning factory.

Rev. and Mrs. Charles R. Judd have taken up residence in Bloomfield and Rev. Judd was guest speaker at Bloomfield United Church Sunday morning.

Lights, Camera, Action . . . Roll'em

Returning to the days of silent pictures, impromptu plots and a thin budget, Loyalist College students Lance Bailey and Dean Holmes, the heavies, pursue their victim, Tim Goheen, as he escapes down an oil storage tank ladder. Directed by Rick Rolston, cameraman Don Armitage captures the action in this lesson in cinematography. Course instructor Ray Cunningtion attempts to give the students the basics of filming by use of basic action, sequence filming, and splicing. More involved filming will come later.

Cable TV Firms Appoint President

Robert C. Short, 44, of Kingston a leader in business and education fields, has been appointed first full-time president of the Canadian Cable Television Association.

The appointment becomes effective Jan. 1, 1971..

The founding president of St. Lawrence College with campuses at Kingston, Brockville and Cornwall, Mr. Short is a former president of both the Canadian and American companies of Edwards Inc., makers of electrical signalling and teaching equipment.

He will establish a CCTA office in Ottawa.

"Facing regulation by both the Canadian Radio - Television Commission and the Department of Communications, Mr. Short's presence in Ottawa on our behalf will, we believe, most effectively help us - ordinate the requirements of government with those of our system operators and their 3,500,000 Canadian cable television viewers," CCTA board chairman W. E. Jarmain, in announcing the appointment.

The board chairman said today that the fullest potential of cable television extends beyond the limits of broadcasting. It can eventually provide facsimile, banking, shopping and message delivery services, he said.

Cable TV today serves 23 per cent of the Canadian households having television sets, compared to only seven per cent in the United States. Its national growth has escalated by 45 per cent annually over the last two years.

Pop Machine Is Rifled

Approximately $20 in change was taken from a soft drink machine at a Belleville service station last night.

Police believe that the machine, located at Frank Theissen's Superest Station at 310 Dundas Street East, was opened with a key.

A new law makes it an offence for an unauthorized person to be in the possession of a key to any automated device such as soft drink machines and laundromat machines.

The theft was discovered this morning.

Light Or Crosswalk Committee Decision

The frequently discussed question of official pedestrian crosswalks at busy intersections in downtown Belleville is again before the city council traffic and light committee.

At the committee's regular meeting yesterday, Chairman Arthur Keegan said another alderman had recently seen a "near" accident at the corner of Front and Campbell Street in which an elderly woman was involved.

"The question of crosswalks has been before us many times," noted Alderman Keegan as he invited comment.

Police Chief Douglas Cruise said he would prepare a report on crosswalks for the next meeting but suggested the Front and Campbell Street intersection. If anything, should have lights rather than crosswalks.

A crosswalk at this point could effectively hold up vehicular traffic on Front Street, he said.

The police chief will also prepare a report on a possible parking ban for East Moira Street between North Front and Cameron Streets, and on the desirability of closing Turnbull Street where it dead-ends at the rear of the Dairy Queen premises on Dundas Street.

The traffic and light committee will also be asked to recommend whether the proposed sidewalk on Victoria Ave. east from Farley should be on the north or south side of the street.

City Engineer Wilbur Purcell said there were arguments favoring either side but from his own viewpoint suggested a walk on the north side might have greater use.

Plans Firming For Parade

This announcement came from Art Garfield, chairman of the Quinte Exhibition Parade Committee at last night's meeting on the Dec. 5 parade.

The exhibition officials announced that they were willing to take over the organizational responsibility for the show and began negotiations for the hiring of the performers.

Appearing at a Nov. 14 variety show, to be held in the BCI auditorium, will be professional baritone, Frank Palmer, star of stage, screen, television, and most recently, the Campbellford Home Show; the Singing Post Family, country and western performers and recording artists Nash and Hazel Ann Reid, singing duo, past performers in Toronto and New York and Scottish tenor, Gordon Tasker, star of numerous touring shows.

The proceeds from the show, plus the pledged $500 grant from city council and another $500 from the Belleville Downtown Association will be used for the parade.

"We've been working since Jan. 5 on the organization of this year's parade," said committee chairman Frank Foley.

We've had tremendous and enthusiastic response, evidence of which is indicated by the presence of more than 30 people here tonight."

Representatives of clubs, organizations, interested workers and the community attended last night's meeting in the EMO offices at Ben Meeker Auditorium.

With five of the pledged 13 trophies received as awards for the parade this year, Don Foster of Foster's Costume Rentals, a key figure in the organization for the parade, commented "I'd like to see a float from each school. If a youngster sees his own school represented he probably will want to get involved."

Suggestions were accepted for the selection of a snow queen, but the plans, plus those for the proposed route, were held in abeyance for the next meeting, scheduled for Oct. 19

"The 1970 parade is go," was Mr. Foley's final statement.

Sales Pitch

As the year draws to a close this is a good time to look at the overall industrial situation in Ontario. It has been another busy year with increasing emphasis on establishing new contacts abroad and winning overseas buyers for an increasing number of Canadian products.

The mid-summer period saw Ontario's first Business Opportunity Mission to France. More than 80 French manufacturers converged on Paris to seek advice from Ontario officials on expanding into the Canadian market. It was a follow-up to the previous year's boost in trade between the two countries and was run in conjunction with similar trade missions in Milan and Stockholm.

Allied Chemical of Belleville was one of eight firms which made a big impact at the International Packaging Exhibition in London. Cash sales of $80,000 with an estimated $500,-000 in follow-up orders and almost $2 million in projected first-year shipments were reported. British firms displaying interest in the Canadian packaging and labelling equipment ranged from manufacturers of whisky, soap and paper tissues to foods, beer and soft drinks.

Also finding favor in Britain are golf clubs made by Campbell Manufacturing Ltd., of Willowdale. A representative of the UK distributors says the clubs are fast gaining a reputation for quality at competitive prices.

In South Africa too, Canadian products were in the public eye, with Ontario once again in the van. Nineteen manufacturers from the province showed a wide range of building products at an international exhibition in Johannesburg. The products included "mortarless" building blocks, glazed colored masonry facings, prefabricated fireplaces, light fittings, locks, plumbing equipment, fountain equipment and heating and air conditioning units.

All in all it was a successful effort on the part of Ontario manufacturers in particular. To further illustrate its diversity we might mention in passing the opening of a new trade office in Frankfurt, Toronto fashion designer Claire Haddad's successful debut in London (her special sample showing of women's leisure wear was a sellout) and an $8.4 million contract to Hawker-Siddeley to supply 46 rapid transit rail cars to the United States.

Sour Grapes

It is not much of a time for drinking beer, the year being in decline and the warmth that encourages it fast receding, but Kitchener's Oktoberfest is surely a very good idea just the same.

Like Expo of old, and the Man and His World that has succeeded it on the same Montreal site, the Niagara Grape and Wine Festival, and sundry smaller efforts around Canada, the Oktoberfest is an event of the spirit. German in origin as befits this region of Ontario, it is less a beer blast than an old-fashioned get-together in which the sombre dedication that characterizes our workaday world can be given over for a time to a little harmless socializing.

But hovering over the whole concept is the spectre of the Ontario Liquor Licence Board. The event is going on all right, but the board had to make its presence felt by ruling that a poster advertising the event should not contain the word "beer."

Well, well. So removed it was, but that still leaves the pretty young lass with her trayful of you-know-what, a substance which in this day and age, with so much else that is infinitely less desirable and harmful, with the spectre of legalization hovering over such ogres as pot and pornography, seems so harmless by comparison.

City Asset

While Belleville has seen some tree-cutting operations of late, we are happy to note they have been only minimal in comparison to the city's overall wealth in this regard.

At the same time, we can take satisfaction in the fact that the parks board is to purchase 30 evergreen trees for planting in Memorial Park at the intersection of Cannifton Road and Station street.

Belleville is fortunate in its attractive treelined avenues and parks. Few communities of its size are so well-endowed and we should see that it stays that way.

Forces...Diplomats in Vacuum

Cadieux' Exit to Paris Leaves Backlash in Ottawa

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Leo Cadieux has been gone nearly three weeks from Ottawa to Paris, and the period of mourning is not yet done at Defence Headquarters and External Affairs.

For both the Armed Forces and the Diplomatic Corps see in his transformation from Minister of National Defence to Canadian Ambassador to France a serious loss.

The Forces well know they have lost a devoted defender and the diplomats know they have lost a friend in high places here, to be Canadian.

And everyone knows where External's top post abroad is — or maybe more accurately — was, London.

But No. 1 or No. 2 it was an assignment to be very much desired.

And now it has gone to a politician.

There has not been such a disaster in External Affairs since Conservative Prime Minister Diefenbaker sent political-ist George Drew to Canada House on Trafalgar Square as Canadian High Commissioner to Britain.

Years ago, far back through the calendar into the mists of political and diplomatic history, between the wars, deserving politicians were rewarded by grateful governments with foreign appointments as ambassadorships.

If there was no room in the Senate for the good and faithful political warhorse, he or she could be rewardedly pensioned in an embassy.

The wives loved the sophisticated social whirl that keeps the private world of diplomacy so giddily spinning, even if their husbands sometimes plied for their old cronies back home in the smoke-filled rooms.

Then along came Lester Bowles Pearson in 1941 as Undersecretary of State for External Affairs and the diplomatic door was slammed shut in political faces.

It was not to be opened again until John Diefenbaker used his Prime Minister's crowbar to pry it wide enough for George Drew to slip through.

And what agonizing there was then in the diplomatic tower about the enormity of this vulgar political intrusion into the sanctuary of the "career men," as they call themselves in the elevated style of the Service.

Died, unforgivably, scorned then publicly as cookie-pushers who did little more than cover the cost of their cocktails.

Then one wonderful day, one of their own, their old boss, Lester Pearson, became Prime Minister. All Affairs to Parliament, and the diplomat, incredibly became the new boss as P.M. is Minister of the dollbrass.

And the door not only was shut, it was locked and bolted against cross political intruders.

But suddenly, the unthinkable happened, and Pierre Trudeau, a Prime Minister with a notion of them is at about the same foot - of - the - totem - shaft level as John Diefenbaker's, was telling them that as official government overseers they were outclassed by foreign news correspondents, that as Canadian salesmen, the common, ordinary commercial travellers in Trade and Commerce were doing a better job.

Now they are more worried by what PET may say or do about them than they are about the peril of kidnap and the kidnap hostages of foreign terrorists.

Since they have never bidden their feelings about politicians, they have seldom heard a good word for themselves when under political attack in Parliament.

It just could be that if they would wipe away their tears about the politicians degrading diplomacy with a political appointee to their precious Paris post, they might see something.

And that would be the potential of Leo Cadieux, politician-become-diplomat, to close the growing gap between the House of Commons and the Department of External Affairs.

Poster Problem

Kitchener Oktoberfest's Run-in with The Liquor Licence Board

The Globe and Mail

So you think you're going off for an orgy of wife-beating at the Kitchener Oktoberfest, tearing down the beer and leering at those wicked sisters of theirs, haired girls holding mugs of beer. You've set your heart on a whirl of knee-slapping Bavarian dancing, a couple of choruses of a drinking song, and some band...

Forget it. This is Ontario, where all forms of revelry are surveyed through eyes narrowed to suspicious slits. Once the raw materials of the Oktoberfest brew have been filtered through the fine-mesh moral judgments of the Liquor Licence Board, distilled water alone will emerge.

Drinking beer in tents is out for a start. Everyone knows that canvas walls are incapable of keeping out evil spirits. Besides innocent children might catch the faint sounds of glasses clinking and — heaven help us all! — laughter. Then there's this shameless, flaxen-haired girl on the poster, holding out mugs of beer. Placing them in store windows to attract trade will be forbidden.

With that sixth sense that stands between us and total disgrace, the Licence Board divined that the mugs did not contain ginger beer but the real thing, and could therefore only be allowed in licensed premises. The posters will, however, be put up in beverage rooms, where as everyone knows, customers are already too depraved to be further corrupted.

There are limits, however. When displayed in beverage rooms the posters must not contain the word "beer" as originally intended. The emotive effect of four letter words is not unknown to the Liquor Licence Board.

Clearly it regards the whole affair as an Oktoberfest.

Military Bow Out

Ghana Restores Democracy

Kansas City Times

In a world of venality and push Ec promises broken, the West African nation of Ghana seems to be unusually blessed with honest, dedicated men.

Back in 1966, when a junta of young officers overthrew the Ghanaian dictator, Kwame Nkrumah, and put politics on ice most observers were inclined to heave a sigh and write off another young republic to an indefinite spell of military rule.

The officers professed to be eager to give the country back to the people, but few people believed them — even when they disciplined one of their own colleagues for mis-use of his public position.

Then a year ago — prompted on the announced timetable, the military council restored Ghana to parliamentary democracy.

Recently the civilian National Assembly voted to divest the military and national police of their control of the function in public affairs, and the service leaders bowed out without a murmur, leaving one of their own replaced, "to put across a lesson (that) people in power should not be perpetuated themselves . . . as if it were their property."

Soviet Students Have Say In University Administration

By BORIS MAKARENKO in UNESCO Features

In the Soviet Union as elsewhere, students want a share in the planning and manning of their universities and colleges, a say in the drawing up of curricula and the selection of teachers and lecturers. Participation is their watchword, just as it is in the universities of the United States and Western Europe. And experience has shown that wherever they are given the opportunity they are quite capable of managing their own affairs.

How does participation work out in practice in the Soviet Union? This was the question I put to Vassily Skribenko, a student in his fifth year at the Moscow Power Institute (MEI) where he is also president of the students' union. The MEI is a large technical university, with nine faculties and 11,000 students, graduating annually more than 1,500 electronics engineers, hydrology technicians, etc.

"The main thing we are concerned about is our conditions of study," Skribenko told me. "Working out what we should learn and how — these are the major issues at MEI right now. Just think that the content of each course changes by a third every five years. And the curriculum is getting more and more overloaded, so that the students are under pressure to get through the work involved. This problem concerns everybody, and every one of us is anxious to solve it."

Student commissions in each faculty, he told me, examine all possible ways of improving the organization of courses or the content of the curricula, and draw up statistical reports which they submit to the faculty members, the administration and the scientific council of the Institute.

"Recently, for instance, the dean of one of the faculties was told by the student council that the timetable drawn up by the administration was not flexible enough for the work that had to be done: he accepted the students' suggestions and the timetable was changed accordingly.

"Take another example. At the end of the first year, the administration systematically excludes up to 200 students whose work is not considered satisfactory. But the student council don't always agree with the dean's interpretation and sometimes manage to make their point of view prevail.

"The dean also accepted the students' proposal that the choice of candidates for the aspirantura (a three-year post - graduate course leading up to the competitive exam for the degree of candidate - vaak), out of the eight names put forward by the professors, four were refused by the student council and others were designated to replace them.

"Another example: following a survey among the students, the council asked that a number of professors whom we considered bad lecturers should be dismissed, and the administration agreed.

This opinion poll consisted of two main questions:

1) What do you see as the major faults in the organization of courses at MEI?

2) What positive aspects would you like to mention?

The replies fell into three main categories:

a) those containing concrete criticism, often strongly worded, of the the Institute's organization, but pointing out positive aspects as well (74.2 per cent);

b) those restricting themselves to criticism, without proposing any reform (14.5 per cent);

c) those reflecting unrealistic opinions (11.3 per cent).

The most interesting replies to the survey were those dealing with the quality of teaching. Out of 35 professors, 14 were described as good teachers, 14 had a mixed reception, sometimes described as good, sometimes as bad, and 6 were generally criticized.

Robarts Sees 'Real Change in Political Life' in NDP Choice

TORONTO (CP) — Premier John Robarts said Monday the facts of political life in Ontario changed during the weekend when the Ontario New Democratic Party came under the control of "union management."

"There was a real change in political life as of yesterday," Mr. Robarts said, referring to the election of Stephen Lewis as leader of the Ontario NDP.

Mr. Lewis had been elected with the support of labor, "not the general membership but union management, and this is a new development."

"I wonder what it will mean there will be certain polarizations inevitably. Do the people of Ontario really want a political party controlled by union management?"

The premier said he does not believe Ontario voters are ready to endorse economic nationalism and wondered whether nationalization is a valid election issue "since it really is a national problem, not provincial."

He said he could not comment on a policy of nationalizing energy resources industries in Ontario, "since it really is a convention on the weekend.

"I know what it is they are suggesting, but I want to know first how they intend to do it."

Mr. Lewis said Sunday he will try to make economic nationalism and Canadian ownership and control of its economic and social life a major issue in the next provincial election.

The NDP were newcomers on the nationalization scene since the Conservative government had been doing it when they felt the public interest required it, the premier said.

"I don't feel the fact an industry is owned by a foreign corporation is necessarily a danger. We don't have to lose our identity because Americans come here. We are more likely to make Canadians from people who come from the U.S. than to be turned into Americans."

Controversial Labor Legislation First Order of Business

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario legislature comes back today from a summer recess with unanimous agreement to put labor legislation the first order of business.

Other key issues, such as municipal tax reform, changes in pension and medical care legislation, and a bill to contain an ombudsman could be on the agenda for the wind-up to the third session of the 28th legislature.

Progressive Conservatives, led by Premier John Robarts, have 68 members in the 117-seat house with Opposition Leader Robert Nixon and his Liberals holding down 27 seats, the New Democratic Party 21, and Ron Knight of Thunder Bay sitting as an independent.

Both the premier and Mr. Nixon face a new challenge in Stephen Lewis, M, chosen last weekend to replace veteran Donald MacDonald as NDP leader.

In an effort to clean up a backlog of work from the spring sitting, members will move into night sessions immediately. Night sittings are scheduled for tonight and Thursday, starting at 8 p.m.

Mr. Roberts told reporters Monday there would be new legislation introduced at the session, beginning today but declined to elaborate. With speculation that an election could come next spring, indications are that Mr. Roberts will seek to arouse voters with a series of attractive pieces of legislation.

Mr. Lewis lost no time in taking over as leader, spending a full day in caucus and emerging only long enough to announce the selection of Walter Pitman, 41, member for Peterborough, as deputy leader succeeding James Renwick. Mr. Pitman was defeated by Mr. Lewis for the leadership at the party convention. Mr. Renwick was named caucus and house leader.

Mr. Nixon said at a news conference that his party's priority issues for the session will be tax reform and pollution.

The Conservatives can expect heavy opposition to their proposals for further revision of the Ontario Labor Relations Act, subjected to major amendments before the close of the spring sitting. Independent Canadian unions have criticized the OLRA as a sell-out to international labor organizations. Mr. Roberts and his cabinet have apparently been giving the labor bill priority attention in day-long meetings the last few weeks.

There may also be legislation to ease the strain on farmers angry over the education-tax levies brought about by reassessment. Many farmers have refused to pay the education tax in protest.

Other bills which could be introduced at this session involve a supplement to old age pension, raising the basic benefits to $125 a month, and the granting of collective bargaining to the provincial civil service.

Mr. Roberts has already indicated a desire to amend the medical care bill, ostensibly to save premiums already the highest in Canada.

Nixon Says Public Money Bought 'War Plan' for Robarts

TORONTO (CP) — A public opinion poll described by Opposition Leader Robert Nixon as a "political war plan" was an examination of reaction to government programs without political connotations, Premier John Robarts said Monday.

He told a news conference that surveys are frequently made to help the government serve the people and "we would not be a good government if we did not check public reaction and response."

Mr. Nixon said the survey was conducted by Elliott Research Corp. under supervision of Foster Advertising Ltd. on a commission from the special projects branch of the department of trade and development. He said it cost $75,000.

The survey was based on 3,276 interviews with "heads of households."

Mr. Nixon said no one objects to political parties conducting public opinion polls at their own expense, but "this survey, at public expense, has been carried out and maintained with the secrecy of a war plan."

The results should be made public so "we should know, as the government now knows, what are the concerns of the people," on such issues as job security, housing, pollution, regional government and medical costs.

Mr. Robarts said he does not believe the survey will be made public since it is "a government working document."

The results will be used by ministers to design their programs rather than to plan election strategy, he said.

Nixon Wants 1972 Target Date for Constitution

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — Ontario Liberal Leader Robert Nixon said Monday Canadians should be ready to settle on a new constitution by 1972 with an amending formula that would recognize the rights of Quebec.

Mr. Nixon told the Canadian Club of the Niagara Frontier that federal-provincial constitutional conferences have "failed the Canadian people".

Agreement on a new constitution has not been reached and our provincial and federal leaders have marched time by putting forward suggestions with a constitutional patch here and a constitutional patch there, a repair job rather than renewal," he said.

Constitutional change was necessary to deal with rapid social and economic change, Mr. Nixon said.

Compensation Revision Urged

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Revenue Minister John White called Monday for drastic revision in the Ontario's Workmen's Compensation Act.

For one thing, he said, it may be time to require employers to share costs of the program with employers.

Bourassa Will Reveal Next Move on Medicare

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Robert Bourassa is expected to outline the government's next move in the medical care dispute at a news conference today.

Mr. Bourassa and his cabinet met behind closed doors for three hours Monday night to discuss the government's next move in the dispute that could include a fee scale adjustment to approach the financial demands of the Quebec Federation of Medical Specialists.

Emergency legislation to implement the insurance plan by Nov. 1 and possible government action in case of a threatened general walkout by the province's 4,000 specialists, were also said to be on the agenda.

Health Minister Claude Castonguay said Sunday the government is prepared to discuss financial changes in the program. The fee scale and classes dealing with opting-out rights and control of professional qualifications are the three areas of contention in the dispute.

The specialists are withholding comment on the dispute until results of the cabinet meeting are known.

Meanwhile, the absentee rate among specialists at their offices and the province's 250 hospitals remained at about 30 per cent, spokesmen for both the federation and government reported.

A health department statement indicated that hospital admissions are down and all hospitals are accepting only emergency cases.

In Montreal, most hospital spokesmen described the situation as "almost normal." h

Tim Reid Wants 'Moose' Banned

TORONTO (CP) — Tim Reid, Liberal member of the Ontario legislature for Scarborough East, says the province should ban the Loyal Order of Moose of Ontario as a racist American organization.

Mr. Reid released a statement quoting a section of the organization's application for membership, which calls on applicants to say:

"I hereby certify that I am of sound mind and body, being a member of the Caucasian white race, and not married to one of another race, not a member of the Communist party, have never been convicted of a felony, and a believer in a Supreme Being."

Mr. Reid said: "This racist American penetration of Ontario must be repelled immediately."

Concerned about the cost of prescriptions?

...your Ontario Government is... and is doing something about it.

Everyone concerned about the cost of prescriptions finds the whole thing quite mystifying.

Drug manufacturers' prices vary. Pharmacists' dispensing fees vary. Doctors prescribe, but don't always know about prices. The result is that you, the patient, have no way of knowing if your drug bill is reasonable or not.

Now the mysticism is being removed.

For many months the Ontario Department of Health has been working on a program that will help everybody in Ontario to obtain prescriptions at reasonable cost... "PARCOST".

The key is a book that has been supplied for the professional use of every physician, dentist, hospital and pharmacist in the province. Titled the Comparative Drug Index, it lists many of the high quality drugs now available. And it tells how much each one costs.

For the first time, this revealing information has been assembled in one book, compiled by an authoritative group of doctors and experts who have evaluated, without bias, quality products from over 60 different companies. And it makes possible, quick easy cost comparisons of drugs that meet highest quality standards, enabling your doctor and your pharmacist to take active parts in the PARCOST program.

Also, your Ontario Government has obtained the co-operation of participating pharmacists in agreeing to standardised pricing methods.

Everyone can help make the PARCOST program work. Discuss it with your doctor or pharmacist. And when you have a prescription to be filled, look for the PARCOST symbol at the drug store. Displayed on the door of a pharmacy, it tells you that the pharmacist is co-operating to help you obtain prescriptions at reasonable cost.

YOUNG DRUG USER — Canadian Press reporter Lisa Birnse (right) talks with "Anne," one of two 13-year-old Montreal girls who related their experience with drugs — marijuana, hashish, LSD and mescaline. Anne said she started using drugs when she was 12 because her friends were trying them, and pays for them wih her two-dollars-a-week allowance. (CP Photo)

Professional Hope for Teenagers Following Extensive Use of Drugs

MONTREAL (CP) — Marie and Anne are pretty, intelligent and curious about life. They look like many other 13-year-old Montreal girls.

And, like many others even at that age, they have experimented with drugs — marijuana, hashish, LSD and mescaline. Both now say they have dropped the latter two.

Both started at the age of 12.

They are not the youngest users in Montreal, but they are the youngest a social worker was able to find who were willing to talk about themselves.

Psychiatrists, doctors and social workers say that some youngsters aged 9 use drugs in Montreal. But, one social worker said, parents tend to hush up such cases and keep away professional helpers.

Marie and Anne didn't want their real names used. They are both Grade 8 students and, in the first contact with who introduced them to a reporter, they are fairly typical of young Montrealers who are on drugs.

The girls live in an east-end middle-class environment. They said they "turned on" to the drug culture either to get away from a society they criticize or to explore their own feelings and emotions.

Marie, her thick and curly brown hair held by an elastic, smoked a cigarette while she talked.

A lot of kids in her school use drugs, she said. They are easy to get and the kids know where to go if they need a supply fast.

Anne said much the same. "You can get drugs downtown or with some connections. Lots of people have them."

Marie, who has two older brothers, 19 and 17, said:

"I started experimenting with drugs at the end of August a year ago. I don't know really why. I guess I was curious to find out what they were like.

"A bunch of my friends decided they wanted to try pot. We had never done it before.

"There's no problem at home, really. We never discuss drugs. My parents and older brothers are dead set against them."

She didn't know how her parents would react if they knew she was taking drugs, paid for with a $3 weekly allowance they give her.

"I have stopped dropping acid (LSD) which can be quite nice at times," Marie added. "I did it about 18 to 20 times.

"My first trip was really bad, crying and laughing, and there wasn't anyone there to tell us what was happening. But I enjoyed most of my other trips.

She tried mescaline only once and has no intention of trying it again.

"That was bad. I felt just like a garbage can after.

"I wanted to try it, but I'm scared and there wasn't very much so I didn't get off too well. I don't want to try that again.

"I have stopped taking those drugs completely now. Whenever we have enough money, my friends and I get together and buy a few smokes, maybe twice a week, but that's all."

Anne, her blonde hair tied back in a neat pony tail, spoke without hesitation and rather defiantly about her experiences.

"All my friends were trying them and I thought I would too, I liked it.

"But maybe I started because I wanted to get away from my mother or something. She was always bothering me."

Anne is the second of two girls. Her mother is a widow and never mentions drugs. She has been caught twice at home.

"I usually get grounded and I'm not allowed to do anything.

"But that doesn't change anything."

Anne pays for the drugs with a $2 weekly allowance. She smokes about twice a week, at school, in the park, a friend's house or somewhere else.

"I have stopped acid because I realize how bad it is. My first trip was a real surprise, a bad one. I never expected so much from such a small pill.

"I dropped acid about 21 times. After my first trip I tried it a few more times and liked it, but that's all over now."

Anne didn't like mescaline any more than Marie.

"It wasn't at all interesting. It gives you a sort of tense feeling, very destructive, like tearing the whole place apart."

The effects of the drugs both girls have taken vary, psychiatrists and social workers say.

Marijuana or pot, and hashish both come from the cannabis plant, but hashish is six times more potent.' Pot is smoked like a cigarette, while slivers of hash, sold in compressed cubes, are put on burning end of cigarette with the smoke inhaled through drinking straw.

Both tend to disorganize the thought process, distort perceptions and dull attention. During a three-hour "high" time expands and space is distorted. The drugs take effect in about 30 minutes.

LSD is a natural product of ergot fungus, clavicepa purpurea, found on rye and other plants. A synthetic compound can easily be made by college chemistry students. It is a white crystal-like powder, it can be eaten with sugar cubes or crackers and is also available as a little white pill. Effects are felt in about 30 minutes and a trip lasts up to 12 hours.

During a trip perceptions alternate. Ego seems to divide into an observing, moralizing self. The user may feel he's making deep contacts with people around him, breaking down social barriers and inhibitions. Also, he may feel he's experiencing and feeling himself. Time is distorted; colors are intensified.

In a split second, a trip can become a nightmare of paranoic hallucinations or drop, sometimes suicidal, depressions.

Mescaline is the most active substance in peyote, a cucumber-like cactus found in the southwestern United States. It is weak compared with LSD, and large amounts are needed to get a proper "high." It is sold in tablet or capsule form. An average trip lasts four to 12 hours

The user gets a trance-like feeling with vivid kaleidoscopic visions and bright colors, but there are no rapid emotional changes as with LSD. After a trip, the user often falls into a deep sleep.

Tomorrow: Doctor says drugs becoming major health issue.

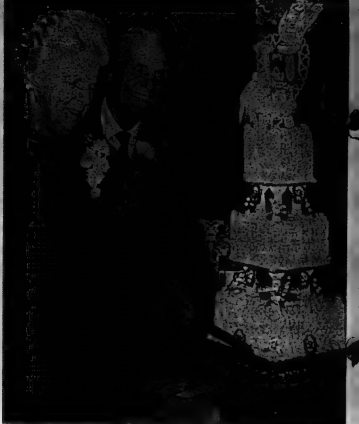
MR. AND MRS. DAVID REGINALD HOLCROFT

Holcroft – Penner

Lakeside Baptist Church, Kenora, Ontario was the setting for the recent marriage of Nancy Ann Penner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred T. Penner, Red Lake Road, Ontario, to David Reginald Holcroft, Buffalo, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Holcroft, Corbyville RR 1. Rev. Dan Erickson of Thunder Bay officiated and the organist was Miss Betty Anne Beamer of Winnipeg who accompanied the bride as she sang the Lord's Prayer.



Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a full length gown of silk lagotta featuring a slightly A-line skirt long fitted sleeves and the high mandarin collar trimmed with ruffle. The cathedral coat was outlined at the edges with a matching ruffle as was the attached hood. She carried a solitaire glamelia encircled with baby's breath and foliage.

Miss Elizabeth Penner, sister of the bride as maid of honor wore an empire styled balacruge length gown with gown featuring three-quarter length sleeves and hoot neckline outlined with ruffles and accented at back with self bow. She carried a bouquet of yellow shasta daisies. The bridesmaids Miss Vicki Archuk of Sault Ste. Marie was dressed identically to the maid of honor. A niece of the bride Miss Cynthia Penner gowned in turquoise sheen ting with white lace overblouse with long sleeves was in charge of the guest book.

John Holcroft and Glen Pennett attended the bridegroom, while the ushers were cousins of the bride Alan Penner of Dryden and Alvin Smuland of Kenora.

A reception was held at Devil's Gap Lodge, Kenora where the bride's mother greeted the guests wearing a pastel turquoise dress and coat ensemble of shantung accented with crocheted lace bell sleeves, black and turquoise accessories and a corsage of white carnations, blue daisies and baby's breath. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother who wore a beige suit with brown blouse matching brown accessories and a corsage of yellow roses and carnations.

Leaving on the wedding trip to Fort Erie where they will reside, the bride donned a tailored pantsuit of navy blue wool gabardine, navy wet look accessories and velour hat with a corsage of purple shade roses.

MR. AND MRS. LESLIE McLAREN

Melrose Area Couple Celebrate Golden Wedding Anniversary

More than 200 friends and neighbors extended congratulations on Sunday to Mr. and Mrs. Leslie McLaren, 4th concession of Tyendinaga township, as they received guests on their golden wedding anniversary.

The couple are life residents of the community with Mr. McLaren having been born in the family farm home. Mrs. McLaren is the former Olive Badgley of nearby Melrose.

Among the many congratulatory messages received were those from Governor General Michener, Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau, Ontario Premier John Robarts, Hastings M.P. Lee Grills and Ontario Liberal Leader Robert Nixon.

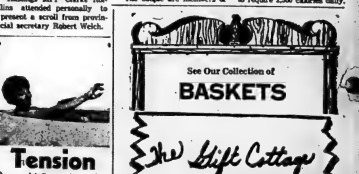
Hastings MPP Clarke Rollins attended personally to present a scroll from provincial secretary Robert Welch.

Keenly interested in municipal affairs, Mr. McLaren served 16 years on his township council, was reeve for seven years and was county warden in 1957. He comes naturally by his interest in municipal affairs. His father, the late Peter McLaren, served on council for many years and was warden of the county.

He still retains his interest in municipal affairs and is the township representative on the Moira River Conservation Authority.

He was president of the former Bronk Cheese Factory for 14 years. Both are members of the Shannonville Fair Board.

Officially retired from the farm which is now operated by his son, Mr. McLaren still keeps active doing light jobs.



The couple are members of Melrose United Church where Mr. McLaren is a past elder. Mrs. McLaren is active in the UCW and in the WMS.

A keen sports enthusiast, Mr. McLaren was co-sponsor of the Melrose team in the South Hastings Baseball League when it was organized 49 years ago. He is an ardent hunter and with only a few exceptions has gone deer hunting every year since he was 15.

Mr. and Mrs. McLaren have two sons, Roy operating the family farm, and Gordon of West Lake. A daughter, Mrs. Raymond (Ruth) Clarke, lives at RR1, Shannonville.

Negro Employee Irked by Queries

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am black. I am employed in an office where most of the employees are white. The question I want to ask is simple this: Why is it that, even though the black person performs the same services and is paid the same salary as the white person, he gets called a boy, girl, stenographer, bitch, if he knows a good maid or a reliable janitor.

This has happened to me so often I am fed up. The last person same to me that question was told to call up an employment agency or place an ad in the paper. The white employee looked puzzled when I responded to his manner. I know for a fact she did not ask any of the white employees to put her on a reliable janitor. Will you please explain this? — NO WATERMELON, THANKS.

DEAR N.W.T.: The old time stereotype of the Negro was that of a servant. Negroes were uneducated and excluded by intention for hundreds of years — brought here as slaves and kept ignorant. They had to take menial jobs since they were ill-equipped to do anything else. Today Negroes are Supreme Court Justices, mayors of cities, college presidents and journalists.

The next time someone asks you if you know a good maid or a reliable janitor tell them, "No — but if you need a Negro physician who specializes in dermatology there's a superb one in Chicago."

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am only 17 but am more of a woman than my mother and most of her friends. I have also had more of life and more what I want and when I want it going. Right now I'm in a messy situation and I need your advice.

Last year I had a part-time job in an office. I fell in love with a man who worked there also. He had me he was separated from his wife, which was a lie. I know now he lied because he was afraid I would stop seeing him if I knew he was living at home. By the time I learned the truth I had already given him my heart, my body and my mind.

His wife found out about me (I think I know who tipped her off) and she packed up their two children and moved back to their hometown. The following week he got himself transferred to the same city and they echoed everything she said.

I have sent him telegrams and letters but he doesn't answer. When I telephone his office I am told he is "out of town." I called his home last week because I was desperate to hear his voice. He said, "I can't talk now," and hung up on me.

If I could only speak to him I am sure we could work everything out. I would be willing to wait as long as it takes for him to be free. I would rather have one hour with him than a lifetime with anyone else. What should I do next? — SCORNFUL.

DEAR SCORN: Take the hint and leave him alone. If you need professional help to get back on the track of rationality (you sound temporarily derailed), get it. Family Service has excellent counseling. Call for an appointment.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Help! Quick! S.O.S. Did I do the right thing? A former neighbor telephoned this morning and said she had heard my husband and I were giving a party and she was sure her invitation was lost in the mail because so many mutual friends had already received theirs. I was so flabbergasted by surprise I replied, "Yes, you were on the list, by all means come."

Now I am annoyed with myself because they were not on the list and she outsmarted me. What could I have said under the circumstances? — HOSTESS WITH A CROWDED TABLE.

DEAR HOSTESS: You could and should have said, "No, you weren't on the list, but we hope to have you another time."

Boots Convention

WENTBRIDGE England (CP) — Jean Barber, wife of the chancellor of the exchequer, put her foot in it at a party at her Yorkshire home. Everyone chatted happily until Mrs. Anthony Barber sat down — under her long evening dress peeped a pair of garden boots which she had put on by mistake. She laughed and said: "I am rather absent - minded. I remember getting into a lift once and asking for a pound of coffee."

Successful Living

Loud Talk Often the Noise of Self-Doubter

By DORIS CLARK

Quaker saying: "Whenever a man differs with you or criticizes you, try to view him by every look, by your demeanor and by your actions, that you have him."

Isn't this something like what Christ meant when he said we should turn the other cheek? Or the thought we express in saying that we should keep cash of five on an unfriendly head?

It does work magic. Who hasn't seen an angry, frustrated person melt into jelly through some unexpectedly gentle response?

When you consider that loud talk is often the noise of a self - doubter blowing off steam in an effort to blame someone else, it becomes clear that kindness, acceptance, praise, might well restore his confidence, and with it good humor.

Try it the next time somebody snaps at you.

* * *

Dear Doris: I am a young man who has been refused an operator's license because of my slight handicap, epilepsy. I haven't had a serious attack for several years. Yet I have a close friend who suffered two slight heart attacks recently, and still keeps his license.

Now I realize how much this person likes to drive a car and to suspend this right I would be to take everything away from him. However, his doctor has prescribed a pill he must take if he is ever driving and feels an attack coming on. Or, he has been advised to pull over to the side of the road and wait for the seizure to pass.

Why is one person allowed to drive a car and another person's operating rights are taken away? Whenever I do have a slight attack I am always severely beboshed.

Why couldn't someone like me be allowed to operate a car with the same restrictions as, "Pull over to the side of the road if you feel an attack coming on!"? — Waiting and Wondering.

* * *

Dear Waiting: You've got a good argument. Yet the fact remains that many epileptics have no warning at all before an attack occurs on — and that's your problem. It would be almost impossible for the police to discriminate properly between epileptics who should be allowed to drive, with restrictions; and those who shouldn't.

Certainly persons who are heart - attack - prone should have restrictions placed on their driving.

Dear Doris: Can you give me any ideas about games and decorations for a Halloween party I'm having? It's for boys and girls ages 15 to 18. — Sally.

Dear Sally: My two best hints, "Hallowe'en — a Night That's Meant For Fun", and "Throwing a Hallowe'en Frolic" have a heap of ideas for you. Even throw - in some happy thoughts about what to serve. Don't forget to elect a clean-up squad before you give everybody. Makes getting permission for the next bash easy.

(Note to Readers: If you want some ideas for your own October 31st party, write in for above leaflets, in care of this newspaper, enclosing 15 cents and a large stamped, self - addressed envelope.)

Kitchen Tested Recipes

An Ideal Recipe for Pumpkin Pie

By MARY MOORE

Both schools of thought on the subject of pumpkin versus mince pie for Thanksgiving dinner were satisfied with today's idea: A layer of mincemeat was spread on the bottom of the unbaked pie shell and then the reduced amount of pumpkin filling was poured over and the pie was baked. All of my tasters who came to an advance test Thanksgiving dinner gave this layered pie their vigorous end of approval. But later my brother said "Make me a pumpkin pie with just that pumpkin filling in it." So today I am giving you two pies for Thanksgiving dinner.

LAYERED MINCE — PUMPKIN PIE

PASTRY:

1¼ cups sifted but not sifted pastry flour
½ tsp. salt
⅓ cup shortening
2 tbsps. butter
1 tbsp. cold water

FILLING:

1 cup mincemeat
1 cup canned pumpkin
2 eggs
¼ cup granulated sugar
1 cup milk
½ tsp. cinnamon
½ tsp. nutmeg
½ tsp. ginger
½ tsp. salt

To make Pastry cut shortening and butter into flour and salt until size of peas. Divide in water, tossing with fork. Shape into ball between palms and roll out on well-floured board with well-floured rolling pin to fit deep 9" pie plate with high fluted edge. Spread mincemeat evenly over bottom. Mix together pumpkin filling ingredients in order given and pour over mincemeat. You may have too much so bake the pie, adding surplus at centre when pie is half baked, in a 425 deg. Fahr. at centre of oven for 10 and then reduce heat to 325 deg. Fahr. until nearly set at centre — about 1 hr. in all. Filling sets more at centre as it cools.

PERFECT PUMPKIN PIE

Use same quantities as above but multiply filling ingredients by 1½ times — except use a whole 14-oz. can pumpkin:

FILLING:

One 14-oz. can pumpkin
3 eggs
¾ cup sugar
1½ cups milk
½ tsp. (slightly rounded) cinnamon
½ tsp. (slightly rounded) nutmeg
½ tsp. (slightly rounded) ginger
½ tsp. (slightly rounded) salt

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "Here comes a little airplane — right into the hangar. That's the way — open your mouth so the plane can fly in. That's a good boy. Just a few more bites and we'll be through."

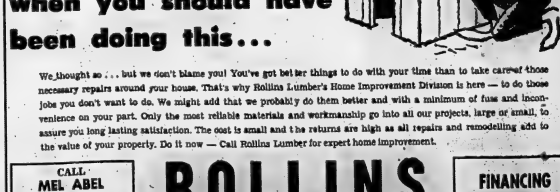
A child should eat because he is hungry and enjoys the food. If he is healthy, let him decide how much he wants to eat and when he wants to stop eating.

Mother: "If I coax or play games at mealtime, Johnny will eat a little more, but I don't think he really wants the food or enjoys it. When he hires his head away, I guess he means he's no longer hungry."

Banker Berates Liberation 'Bit'

FORT BENNING, Ga. (AP) — "Women should get in there and work and quit fooling around with this women's liberation thing," says Joy H. Burnham, vice-president and banker of the National Bank of Fort Benning.

"Most who are fooling around with liberation and that sort of thing are mostly those who can't hold down a job anyway."



Mrs. Burnham, a banker for 25 years and chairman of the women bankers of the Georgia Bankers Association was addressing the fifth annual conference of bank women sponsored by the association.

Bob Hope and Jack Paar Produce Only Fair Fare

NEW YORK (AP) — Bob Hope returned to the television wars for another season Monday night and may have alienated the entire women's lib movement. With the help of a large crew of female assistants he undertook to demonstrate what might happen if the ladies really took over.

It was good humored, but not wildly funny or witty, and pretty obvious. There was Hope in frilly apron working in his kitchen and mourning bygone masculine supremacy. In flashbacks we saw him riding in a careering taxi piloted by cigar-smoking Totie Fields; running into Zsa Zsa Gabor of Los Angeles Rams Joyce Brothers was president; Irene Ryan and Minnie Pearl were the Huntley-Brinkley of the day.

There was a spoof of Bonanza with Ingemar Cocca, Joanne Worley and Kaye Ballard as the Cartwright girls, Phyllis Diller over Hope's sponsor, show and some of his lines. The most amusing sketch had Hope in a form-revealing pink satin bunny suit resisting advances by a trio of travelling saleswomen.

Hope's opening monologue is usually the high point of his hour. This time he limited himself to a few mild cracks about plane hijacking and some references to Vice-President Agnew's use of long and complicated words.

The program was followed on NBC by The Jack Paar Diary, a filmed potpourri of the comedian's impressions and observations in travels around Europe. It was part feature story, part believe-it-or-not, but all based on individual reactions to the off-beat.

There was a segment on a Dutch auto school that teaches drivers to skid safely; an English artist who paints pictures by driving his car over canvas and wet paint. Jack demonstrated how to get out of an automobile that has fallen into deep water.

At the conclusion we received an informal lecture on why the British drive on the left—a hangover from horse days to keep the right hand free for unsaddling—and even learned about the Italian tax on cigarette lighters.

Somehow Paar mixed it all together with surprisingly good results, although since retirement from active TV participation, Jack seems to have acquired a slight case of the manor air when he talks to the television fans.

Marcus Welby, M.D. on ABC was the most popular program seen on the week starting Sept. 21, a new Nielsen report says. It covered the seven days in which ABC launched its fall schedule. Second was CBS's broadcast of the film feature, The Dirty Dozen. Here's Lucy on CBS was third, followed by Gunsmoke, Bonanza and The Flip Wilson Show, the only new program to reach the top 28 list.

Hawks Should Prove Class Of NHL Western Division

Chicago Black Hawks

It's logical to assume that a team that won the East Division championship last year should be able to take the Western title this year. Even if veteran stars such as Bobby and Dennis Hull, Stan Mikita, Pit Martin and Eric Nesterenko fall victim to inexplicable slumps, there are a few youngsters around to provide fresh momentum.

The Hawk rookies last season—goalie Tony Esposito, forwards Cliff Koroll and Gerry Pinder and defenceman Keith Magnuson and Paul Schmyr—provided Reay with pleasant surprises. With veteran Pat Stapleton returning to join Magnusson, Schmyr, Bill White and Doug Mohns, the Hawks again have a strong defence.

St. Louis Blues

The Blues may benefit from Arbour's move behind the bench, but they'll miss his steady influence behind the blueline. With the exception of Arbour and Barc Plager, the St. Louis defence was never noted for finesse and goalies Glenn Hall and Ernie Wakely rasy be called upon for even more outstanding performances.

The Blues lost high-scoring centre Phil Goyette to Buffalo, but remain strong at that position with veterans Red Berenson, Frank St. Marseille and Terry Crisp and newcomer Christian Bordeleau from Montreal. Veterans Ab McDonald, Larry Keenan, Gary Sabourin and Tim Ecclestion anchor the wings with several newcomers fighting for third-string positions.

Pittsburgh Penguins

The loss of Michele Briere, victim of an off-season car accident, leaves a big hole at centre and Red Kelly is looking to Rick Kessell to fill it. Kessell spent most of last season with the Baltimore farm club.

"I believe that if he performs like Briere did last year, he could make it," Kelly said.

Another hole he has to fill is that created by Pratt, the tough young defenceman drafted by Buffalo. And goaltending remains a weakness unless Al Smith matures enough to take over from the aging Les Binkley.

Elsewhere, the lineup should be unchanged with Ron Schock, Jean Pronovost and Dean Prentice among the leading forwards.

Minnesota North Stars

Gordon may be fortunate in taking over what could prove to be one of the most-improved of the expansion-division teams. The Stars last season squeaked into playoffs where they forced St. Louis to six games before losing the divisional semi-final.

The off-season acquisition of defencemen Ted Harris and winger Bobby Rousseau from Montreal and Murray Oliver from Toronto adds experience to a core of established players led by Bill Goldsworthy, Tom Williams, Danny O'Shea, Danny Grant and Jean-Paul Parise. The leadership qualities acquired late last season when they picked up a slimmed-down, veteran Gump Worsley were a definite bonus, along with his goaltending ability. Veteran Cesare Maniago and Gilles Gilbert provide depth in goal.

Philadelphia Flyers

From a first-place finish in the first year of expansion the Flyers have gone steadily downhill, finishing third in 1968 and fifth last season.

And with no major trades or purchases performed in the off-season, coach Shabbo has to work with much the same personnel in his attempt to put the team back in the playoff picture.

The Flyers appear to have chosen wisely in the amateur draft as demonstrated by the performance of rookie Bobby Clarke last season. They are hoping for a similar performance this year from Bill Clement, a tenacious checker last season with Ottawa 67s of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series.

Los Angeles Kings

The Kings have earned the unfortunate reputation as a club which trades players away only to have them emerge as stars. Defenceman Dale Rolfe, traded to Detroit, and Bill White, sent to Chicago, are two examples. Gilles Marotte and Matt Ravlich, the players acquired in return, were seldom heard from again.

The theory has been advanced that the losing attitude at Los Angeles stifles the players. Regardless of what personnel he has to work with, Leon Rolfe may be one of the prime problems Regan has to overcome.

Oakland Seals

More attention has been focused recently on Charles O. Finley, Seals' new owner, than on the men who will have to wear the colored skates. Aside from Finley, the Seals are much the same club that made it to the playoffs the last two seasons only to be knocked out in the first round.

A small improvement over last season should form a stronger supporting cast for the fire power performers Ron Ellis, Marry Howell, Ted Hampson, Earl Ingarfield, Carol Vadnais and Bill Amond. And the newcomers are Ernie Hicke, Bob Stewart, Gary Croteau and Ron Garvelon, all of whom performed in the minors last year. With Plante gone to Vancouver, the question is who will back up goalie Gary Smith?

Following is a list of the teams in order of their likely finish this season, with last season's placings bracketed:

East: Boston (second); New York (fourth); Montreal (fifth); Detroit (third); Buffalo; Toronto (sixth); Vancouver.

West: Chicago (first in East); Minnesota (third); St. Louis (first); Pittsburgh (second); Philadelphia (fifth); Oakland (fourth); Los Angeles (sixth).

British Teen-Ager Burns Up 400 Metres

LONDON (CP) — A 17-year-old teen-ager has been undergoing an identity crisis in full view of the British public.

Hardly a day goes by without a newspaper story on Marilyn Neaville, the world record-holder at 400 metres, who was torn between running for England, where she has lived for the last 10 years, or her native Jamaica.

She chose to run for the Caribbean country in the Edinburgh Commonwealth Games in July. By setting the only world track record at the Games, the gold medallist was the centre of attention for reporters.

However Miss Neufville only reluctantly appeared at a news conference and said "Marilyn is not speaking."

Her behavior resulted in an uproar of criticism.

But Walter Bartleman in the London Evening Standard remarked:

"A girl of 17 who can baulk, bother, and battle a battery of clamouring sports reporters almost to the point of distraction without a pat of her bespectacled eyes, half-closed in sheer boredom, is both an extraordinary and very exceptional youngster."

A couple of days after the news conference, the tall sprinter apologized, saying her only excuse was the problem of finding out who I really am and where I belong."

In mid-August Miss Neufville, after much soul-searching, decided to run for Jamaica in the 1972 Olympic Games in Munich.

She explained: "Emotionally I'm a Jamaican."

As a result of a ruling Aug. 31 at a meeting of the International Amateur Athletic Federation in Stockholm, she will only have to wait one year, rather than three, before representing her native country.

Cliff Temple, in a recent issue of The Sunday Telegraph, took a close look at the troubled athlete. He wrote:

"From the cheerful, gagging club girl, her mood has changed under pressure of each world-class performance. Not only has she been realising what she has achieve in athletics, but also the significance of being a record athlete defeating white opponents. And perhaps she has seen too much significance in it."

Why Some Boys Are More Likely to Succeed

The ability to handle money and to keep accurate records is essential in any endeavor. Thrift often pay off handsomely, too.

Learning about money matters early in life is an important benefit any young man receives from a newspaper route. For he must collect from his customers every week or every month. He must keep books and account for every penny he takes in. And he's encouraged to save regularly a part of his profits.

Small wonder that so many of Canada's men of achievement once were newspaperboys.

Apartment buildings line north side of Progress Ave. in West Park Village, although with no direct access to a major traffic artery, planners say housing pattern leaves much to be desired.

Area south of Progress Ave. along railway tracks is zoned light manufacturing, now said to be unacceptable. The study recommends rezoning to allow limited density apartment construction.

New house construction in Phase 2 of West Park Village is progressing north into a still completely undeveloped area along the northern extension of Village Drive. New streets have been laid out and are under construction. Underground wiring as in Phase 1 of the development will not be extended into the new section because of the high cost.

Future of West Park Area Up to Planners and Council

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

A long range development plan for what, depending on the city's growth, could one day be one of the area's fastest growing residential districts, has been unveiled by the Belleville and Suburban Planning Board.

It is the West Park Village Community Study for the city's northwest sector and adjoining Sidney township area.

The study, prepared by Assistant City Planner Frank Stockmans, envisages an eventual population of more than 12,000 persons for the 576-acre tract extending west from Sidney Street and north of the CN double tracks.

The proposed community would take in all of the present West Park Village and extend for almost a mile into Sidney township as far as Lot 33 and Potter's Creek.

The study is suggested by the planning board as the basis of the city's official plan for that part of the area now within the city limits.

The plan was before council early last week for adoption but was referred to the city traffic committee and the park and recreation committees for study.

This week the traffic committee agreed in principle with the proposed major road pattern of the plan, subject to completion of the city's official plan layout.

But Mr. Stockmans would be the first to admit that the community, as envisioned, is not likely to be developed in the near future.

He notes in his report that full urban services for the area west of the present built up section (West Park Village) are an impossibility for some time to come.

Accordingly the development proposals suggested are very preliminary, reflecting as they do present day thinking and knowledge.

Mr. Stockmans says the proposals should be reviewed in the light of standards and changed economic conditions in force at the time when development is a real possibility.

But regardless of the actual time of development, planners felt that a general plan of the area was necessary so that purchasers and developers might have confidence that the development of the area will proceed along orderly well guided lines.

The proposed community lies south of the city's northwest industrial area and the proposed industrial area which extends westward into Sidney township.

The division between the West Park Village Community and the industrial parks is generally the east - west HEPC power transmission line just north of the Tracey Street extension.

The community would be served by two main east-west roadways — extensions of College and Tracey Streets.

Plans call for the Tracey Street extension to swing south to intersect the College Street just west of the present city limits.

Here planners propose a "neighborhood" community and shopping centre with churches, high school, recreation facilities, parks and other land uses.

"In the physical design it will be proposed that the community be self - supporting insofar as schools, parks and other neighborhood facilities are concerned," the report reads.

North - south access to the proposed residential area would be provided through an extension of Avondale Road crossing the CN double tracks by way of a grade separation.

Zoning in the over - all area would provide for approximately 3,500 residential units, made up of 2,100 single family residences, 350 multi - family residences and 880 apartment units.

However, due to servicing problems, the immediate potential of the area would be limited to about 927 dwelling units in the three categories, providing accommodation for an estimated 3,232 persons.

The fact that a new shopping plaza (the Quinte Mall) development is to be erected within easy reach at Highways 401 and 14 and the possibility that two other major retail centres will be constructed in the Belleville area is the reason for only a "neighborhood sized" commercial area being recommended for the community.

Also it is expected that the downtown central business area will continue to draw people from the proposed West Park Village Community.

It is proposed that the "neighborhood centre" be not larger than three acres.

The study anticipates Sidney Street functioning as the major north - south collector road connecting Highway 2 in the south with Highway 14 in the north.

However, the right - of - way width varying from 40 to 66 feet where it abuts the community would be insufficient as a major collector road and the report recommends it be developed with a four-lane pavement.

It is recommended that an 86-foot road allowance be acquired.

College Street would be extended west through the community to Walbridge-Loyalist Road.

The extension of Avondale Road into the community by way of a grade separation over the CN double tracks is said most desirable and is suggested almost as important as Walbridge Road or Sidney St.

Sewer services to the Sidney township area outside the present city limits could be taken under consideration by the area services board recently approved by Municipal Affairs Minister Darcy McKeough.

It is not anticipated that water supply would be a problem for the time being owing to the limited development that can now take place.

For the proposed over - all plan, mixed housing development would be encouraged with various types of housing to be provided to meet the anticipated demands of future population.

Phase two of the original West Park Village development inside the city limits is now under way.

New roadways are being laid out and single family residences again in the $20,000 range and up are underway by Chas. W. Lambert Ltd. Construction and by Maurice H. Rollins Construction.

Housing construction is generally in the $20,000 range and up.

At the south along the north side of Progress Ave. zoning is for apartment structures and close to a dozen structures most of them 12-plexes, have been erected. South of Progress Ave. is zoned as light industry.

But planners in their report say the existing housing pattern leaves much to be desired as apartments on Progress Ave. have been built in an area without adequate access to major traffic routes.

Park area has been provided in the Progress Ave. area and also at the north beyond Cascade Blvd. where the zoning is for parks and school purposes.

North of the park area, multiple family residential zoning extends to the hydro line.

For the proposed over - all plan, mixed housing development would be encouraged with various types of housing to be provided to meet the anticipated demands of future population.

Phase two of the original West Park Village development inside the city limits is now under way.

New roadways are being laid out and single family residences again in the $20,000 range and up are underway by Chas. W. Lambert Ltd. Construction and by Maurice H. Rollins Construction.

With the new development, new street names are appearing north of College Street along the Village Drive extension.

The still unfamiliar names are Cascade Blvd., Oxton Road, Eden Cres., Lexington Cres., Ervine Crescent and Stavebank Road.

North of Cascade Blvd. is zoned for park and school use with multi - family zoning just below the hydro line.

But already Almo Developments has an application in for rezoning to allow construction of 11 apartments of 18 units each on a block where planners have zoned park use.

The Belleville and Suburban Planning Board has recommended the rezoning application be refused.

However, members of city council are not going completely along with the planning board recommendation.

When the recommendation came before council last week it drew criticism from Aldermen Arthur Keegan who claimed the housing needs of low and medium income families were not being considered.

The alderman said the city was in danger of being "overplanned and underdeveloped."

Council referred the board recommendation to refuse the Almo Developments rezoning application, back to the planning board for reconsideration.

These dwellings are an example of the type of housing which generally has been constructed in West Park Village with homes in the $20,000 range and up. Area is considered a model community and has underground wiring freeing streets of unsightly poles and transmission lines.

Focus on Pollution At Loyalist College

FOCUS take 1 ma indeet on

Concern over environmental pollution will be focused at Loyalist College Oct. 17 as the college and Quinte Labor Council sponsor a seminar on the subject.

The Loyalist event will be one of 20 held the same day in the province at all community colleges.

The theme of the local seminar is: pollution — an institutions are going out to municipalities, citizens' groups, service groups, churches and all other vice organizations, labor associations in the Quinte region. Individual citizens who share the same concern are invited to contact the college and obtain a registration form.

The seminar is considered not only a forum for discussion and information, but also a vehicle for organizing local citizens' committees and anti-pollution groups in the Quinte region on a permanent basis.

Guest speaker is Norman Pearson, chairman of the centre for resources development University of Guelph.

Registration begins at 9 a.m., Oct. 17, followed by introductory. presentations by discussion leaders, and the keynote address.,

Discussion groups convene in the morning and afternoon and the last item on the program is organization of local groups. Full cafeteria service will be available for lunch.

Among the specific topics to be discussed are the effects of pollution on municipal planning, recreation and tourism, rural living and modern agricultural practices. Industrial waste treatment, waste disposal and recycling of wastes will also be considered.

With clearing completed on the multi-acre property, heavy earthmoving equipment has now been moved in for site preparation at the area Cambridge Leaseholds Ltd. enclosed shopping mall at North Front Street and Highway 401.

General contractors for the multi-million dollar plaza is Eastern Construction Company Ltd. of Toronto and Windsor, a subsidiary of Cambridge Leaseholds.

Following site leveling now under way by huge earthmoving equipment, foundation work for the new plaza will commence.

This is expected to be started within the next three weeks. Construction work on the plaza buildings will continue throughout the winter.

Liquor Plebiscite Set for Picton

PICTON (Staff) — Town council has passed a bylaw authorizing a liquor plebiscite in conjunction with the upcoming municipal elections on December 7.

A request for the bylaw was forwarded to council by the Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce following their regular meeting yesterday.

Voters will answer yes or no to two questions pertaining to the sale of liquor in Picton. The first asks if the voter favors the sale of liquor under a dining lounge license for consumption with meals on licensed premises. The second question on the ballot seeks the voter's opinion of liquor sold under a lounge license for consumption on licensed premises.

Bernard Hepburn, reeve of Picton and a Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce director reminded council that a liquor plebiscite paid for by, "interested parties" was conducted here in 1965 with the town voting to remain dry. The cost of a second plebiscite, if it is held in connection with municipal elections, is absorbed by election expenses. Six out of seven town councillors attending last night's meeting favored the bylaw. Mayor H. J. McFarland told members of the press that he wished to state he would not support the bylaw if he had a vote, although he is the owner of a Picton hotel. "I would have voted against it," he emphasized.

Councillors were told by Mr. Hepburn that Ameliasburg plans a liquor plebiscite and unconfirmed reports indicate that Hallowell township also is seeking a liquor vote.

Fugitive Arrested

An escaper from Beaver Creek Correctional Institution near Gravenhurst was apprehended in Belleville last night by Constables William Chard and Ian Knox of the Picton detachment of the OPP assisted by detective Lyle Davis of Belleville police department.

Robert Meader, 25, who escaped from custody last August with fellow inmate Donald Taggart, was arrested at a Ritchie Ave. residence and will be returned to Kingston penitentiary.

Donald Taggart, arrested near Wellington approximately 10 days ago, is in Prince Edward County jail awaiting trial on another charge.

Picton Elections On December 7

PICTON (Staff) — Town council has passed a bylaw calling for municipal elections in Picton to be held Dec. 7.

Voters will nominate candidates for the offices of mayor, reeve, deputy reeve, councillors, public utilities commissioners, Prince Edward Board or Education public school trustees and Prince Edward Board of Education separate school trustees on Nov. 23 at Queen Elizabeth School. Elected candidates will serve a two-year term.

Council last night also voted in favor of a liquor plebescite to be held in conjunction with the Dec. election of municipal officials.

Eagleson Calls for Halt to 'Name Drain' of NHL Players

MONTREAL (CP) — The National Hockey League and the NHL Players' Association have combined efforts to stop the use of hockey stars' pictures or names as product endorsements without consent.

The latest such gimmick to come to the attention of NHL president Clarence Campbell and Toronto lawyer Allan Eagleson, executive secretary of the players' group, is a facsimile of a United States $10 bill with the picture of Bobby Orr, Boston Bruins' all-star defence-man, replacing the face of Alexander Hamilton.

"They are selling all kinds of souvenirs with Orr's picture and name on them," Campbell said in an interview Monday. "Eagleson was in Boston last week-end looking into the matter."

Eagleson, also personal advisor to Orr, moved on to New York Monday afternoon for further talks.

The endorsement of products by NHL players has become big business over the last few years and both Campbell and Eagleson mention figures in the neighborhood of $500,000 annually as benefits to the players.

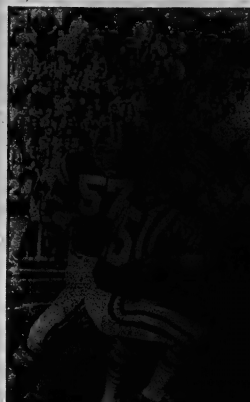
The league has set up its own services division in New York to handle products and endorsements, while the players' group has a similar setup in the same city, the Licensing Corporation of America.

Orr is one of a half-dozen stars who have their own private deals with sponsors to advertise their products. Others are Jean Beliveau of Montreal Canadiens, Stan Mikita and Bobby Hull of Chicago Black Hawks, Gordie Howe of Detroit Red Wings, Rod Gilbert of New York Rangers and Orr's teammate Derek Sanderson.

Campbell said it is not possible to estimate what these individuals earn on their own.

Both he and Eagleson agree that legislation is necessary to halt what Campbell calls "the invasion of privacy."

At its annual meeting in Halifax last month, the Canadian Bar Association passed a resolution calling for the provinces to pass legislation, similar to that now in effect in British Columbia, "to define the right of privacy" for all citizens and give them the right to sue for violations.



B.C. is the only province which currently has such legislation.

Recently a series of legal actions brought here by Beliveau, team-mate Henri Richard, Howe, Frank Mahovlich of Detroit, Toronto Maple Leafs' Dave Keon and goalie Glenn Hall of St. Louis Blues against Canada Wide Feature Service, Ralph Clark Stone and Simon Cigar Co., were settled out of court.

The actions were taken before Quebec courts as a result of an advertising campaign late in 1967 when Simon Cigar Co. included in cigar packages sets of coasters for drinking glasses bearing photographs of the players. Photographs of some of the players also appeared on the outside of cigar boxes.

The players claimed in the legal actions that the use of their photographs without their consent was an invasion of their privacy and an infringement of their exclusive right to make use of their names, photographs and reputations for advertising purposes.

By the terms of settlement, each of the six players was paid an undisclosed sum of money by the defendants, Canada Wide Feature Service and Ralph Clark Stone. Simon Cigar Co. did not participate in the settlement, since it was uneware that the players had not given their consent to the campaign. As a result, the action against the cigar company was discontinued.

Can Orioles Make 'Red Machine' Blue After Three Game Sweep of Twins?

BALTIMORE (AP) — The biggest machine in baseball this weekend won't necessarily be red.

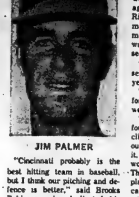
Baltimore Orioles qualified Monday as a formidable World Series match for Cincinnati's slugging Reds by thrashing Minnesota Twins 6-1 to complete a methodical three-game sweep of the American League championship playoffs.

"We want the choice out this year," said Orioles sparkplug Frank Robinson, for whom the series, opening Saturday at Cincinnati's new Riverfront Stadium, will make a second homecoming of sorts. The former Reds' star was dealt to the Orioles five years ago.

It was back there for the all-star game this summer and it was a lot of fun," he recalled.

Robinson spoke of the Orioles' readiness after they proved it convincingly at Memorial Stadium behind the 12-strikeout pitching of right-hander Jim Palmer, one of their trio of 20-game winning Orioles' aces.

Palmer, who also won the finale of last year's three-game Twins sweep, is the first playoff of American League division champions, scattered seven hits, and possibly earned a series opening start against the National League champion Reds.



Cincinnati capped a three-game sweep of the National League playoffs Monday with a 2-1 victory over Pittsburgh Pirates.

The Orioles rolled to 108 victories—tops in the majors, won their last 11 regular season games, then smacked the Twins 18-4 and 11-3 at Minnesota last weekend before closing out the set at home.

"Sure, we've won 14 in a row," he said.

"But they don't count now. It's not the winning streak I like, it's the type of people we have on this ball club. If we had lost 14 in a row I'd still think this team can beat Cincinnati."

JIM PALMER

"Cincinnati probably is the best hitting team in baseball, but I think our pitching and defence is better," said Brooks Robinson, who duplicated his 1969 playoff spree against the Twins by cracking seven hits in the series.

Baltimore's pitching and defence was too much for Minnesota. The Twins committed two errors in each game while the Orioles played errorless ball all the way. And Minnesota pitchers were raked for 36 hits and six home runs, two of them by Dave Johnson, in the one-sided series.

"I think we're going into the series better prepared this year," Frank Robinson said.

"It wasn't that we weren't up for the Mets a year ago. We just weren't ready for them.

"Some of us took three or four days off in a row after we clinched our division. It affected our timing. But we profitted by it, and this year we've been working right along to be ready. The regulars wanted to keep playing, and asked to play, because we want to be sharp."

"All last winter," Palmer added, "people kept telling me about how we lost to the Mets in the series.

"Now we're all looking forward to being back in it . . .

Anderson Turns Screws To Eliminate Pirates

CINCINNATI (AP) — Not too many years ago Sparky Anderson was screwing legs into tables in a furniture factory, his baseball career apparently over.

Now he's manager of the National League champion Cincinnati Reds preparing for Saturday's opening of the World Series against American League champion Baltimore Orioles.

Anderson recalled those lean days Monday as he stood dripping with champagne in the Cincinnati dressing room after his Reds had defeated Pittsburgh Pirates 3-2 for a three-game sweep of the National League playoffs.

The Reds took the payoff game on a play that characterizes their manager's philosophy of the game—aggressiveness and the willingness to gamble.

The score was tied 2-2 in the eighth at Cincinnati's Riverfront Stadium. Ty Cline was on second and Pete Rose on first. Bobby Tolan lashed a single to left and Cline rounded third just beating Willie Stargell's throw to the plate with what turned out to be the winning run.

"We try to play aggressive baseball," said Anderson. "Sure we've had guys thrown out at the plate, but that's the chance you take," observed the guy who six years ago was fired by Toronto Maple Leafs in the International League and turned to work in the furniture factory.

Anderson, 36, youngest manager in the major leagues, took a moment from explaining his strategy in the deciding game against Eastern Division champion Pittsburgh to announce Gary Nolan as the Reds' first-game pitcher against Baltimore Monday.

Nolan won 18 games during the regular season and the first of the playoff. He'll probably be opposed by Orioles' Jim Palmer.

Cline, whose pinch triple three-run rally in the 10th inning of the playoff opener, was called upon in the eighth inning Monday with two out and the bases empty.

Cline said he made up his mind to try for home as soon as he saw Tolan's hit to left.

"As I rounded third I slipped and lost my balance completely," he related. "I lost Alex completely," he said, referring to third base coach Alex Grammas, who was waving and shouting for Cline to keep going to the plate.

"I didn't hear him either," Cline said. "But I knew he would want me to try and score."

Cline said that as he neared the plate he saw Pirates' catcher Manny Sanguillen go toward first. "I tried for the third base edge of the plate," he went on.

Stargell said Tolan's single wasn't as hard as he thought it was. "If it had been hit sharper I wouldn't have had to hurry," said the Pittsburgh left fielder, who has a good throwing arm.

"The throw had good enough stuff on it, but it tailed at the last second."

Sanguillen had to go to his right to get the throw and then dive back to his left. He just missed the tag and k meant Cincinnati's first National League pennant since 1961.

There were a number of dramatic moments in the hard-fought game. Pittsburgh manager Danny Murtaugh had a tough decision when he lifted right-hander Bob Moose in favor of reliever Joe Gibbon with left-hand hitting Tolan coming up in the critical eighth.

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Cincinnati Reds are 11-10 favorites to beat Baltimore Orioles in the World Series and 11-10 to take the first game, according to Jimmy Snyder, Las Vegas oddsmaker. Snyder called it a "toss-up series" and gave Cincinnati the edge only because the Reds play the first two games of the best-of-seven series at home. Starting Saturday. "This is probably the closest series odds in history," he said.

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Heavyweight boxing contender, Jerry Quarry of Bellflower, Calif., and his trainer Teddy Bentham have been suspended again by the California Athletic Commission. The suspension, announced Monday, was for failure to pay fines assessed as the result of a Quarry fight in New York. Quarry is scheduled out Mac Foster of Fresno, Calif. Quarry's next fight is slated for Oct. 26 in Atlanta against Muhammed Ali. Originally, the Olympic Auditorium promotion group in Los Angeles had charged a contract had been signed for the Quarry-Foster fight to be held in Los Angeles. During the controversy over the Los Angeles-New York site disagreement, both Quarry and Foster were temporarily suspended. After a hearing, both fighters were reinstated but fined because they fought while still under the temporary suspension. Foster and his manager paid their assessments, but Quarry has not paid his $1,000 fine nor Bentham his $100, the commission said.

Murtaugh Keeps Mum

CINCINNATI (AP) — Now that it's over for Pittsburgh Pirates, is it over for manager Danny Murtaugh too? Murtaugh's still joking, but he's not talking about his plans for next year.

Murtaugh managed the Pirates in 1960 when they won the pennant and that year the World Series, too.

When he had heart problems, he retired but returned as interim manager in 1967. The director Dave Sim a clean bill of health this year and general manager Joe L. Brown welcomed back the 53-year-old Irishman with open arms.

Now it's 1970. The Pirates took the National League East Division championship, but were knocked out of the World Series by Cincinnati Reds in three straight games, the last one Monday.

"It can go two ways," said Brown, who often has said Murtaugh is his manager as long as he wants it. "If it's 'no,' then it's 'no'. If it's 'yes,' we want him."

Clay Makes TV Circuit

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Cassius Clay's return to the boxing ring Monday, Oct. 26 at Atlanta, Ga., against Jerry Quarry will be seen on closed-circuit television in at least 10 Canadian cities.

Early Eye Telecast Ltd., the company arranging Canadian facilities for telecasting the 15-round heavyweight fight, said today locations have already been confirmed at Victoria, Vancouver, Calgary, Edmonton, Winnipeg, London, Hull, Que., Toronto, Montreal and Quebec City.

A spokesman said the fight may also be shown at Regina, Saskatoon, Hamilton, St. John, N.B., Halifax and Sydney, N.S.

Clay, 29, undefeated with 23 knockouts in 29 professional fights, was convicted in 1967 of draft evasion and sentenced to five years in prison.

His appeal against the conviction is still before the courts.

Quarry, rushed No. 1 behind champion Joe Frazier by the World Boxing Association, scored a sixth-round knockout June 17 over highly-rated Mac Foster. The 30-year-old from Bellflower, Calif., has had 45 fights, won 37, lost four and drawn four.

Two of his losses were by knockouts, including one by George Chuvalo of Toronto, the Canadian heavyweight champ.

No Oriole Dynasty Despite Second Title

BALTIMORE (AP) — It's World Series time, when every new baseball winner boasts of starting a dynasty.

But to Harry Dalton, who has helped mold Baltimore Orioles into an American League power, to speak of "starting" a dynasty is a bit absurd.

"You can't anticipate a dynasty," Dalton said after the Orioles won a second straight pennant Monday and their third in five seasons. "You can only recognize dynasties after they happen."

Going one step farther, he said: "I think a team has to win three years in a row before it can talk about even the possibility of a dynasty."

By whipping Minnesota Twins 6-1 Monday to complete a three-game sweep of the league playoffs, however, the Orioles put together consecutive titles in the American League for the first time since the New York Yankees ended a string of five straight in 1964.

"To have a chance for a dynasty," Dalton said, "a team must have a constant supply of talent throughout its system, have good fortune, be free of crippling injuries and have solid managing and coaching to make the best use of the talent."

Dalton noted, however, that the talent is supplied "by scouts in the field—fellows the public never heard of—who invest money in teen-aged prospects who wind up four or five years later in five major leagues.

"Those men are the ones who really make dynasties," said the 42-year-old Dalton, who has been with the Orioles almost 17 years since joining the old St. Louis Browns as an assistant farm director in 1953.

Soon after he took over his present post in 1965, Dalton completed the deal begun by his predecessor, Lee MacPhail, and brought outfielder Frank Robinson to the Orioles. Two winters ago, he nabbed pitcher Mike Cuellar in another trade.

Robinson was named the league's most valuable player in his first season and started Baltimore's pennant streak in 1966. Cuellar won 23 games last year and was named co-winner of the Cy Young pitching award, and added 24 victories this year.

Umpires Meet Kuhn To Settle Contracts Before Series Starts

CINCINNATI (AP) — Major league umpires, who worked baseball's playoffs under temporary settlement of their contract dispute with management, will try to hammer out a final agreement Wednesday in New York.

Umpire Harry Wendelstedt said Monday umpire representatives will meet in commissioner Bowie Kuhn's office to clear up the contract prior to the World Series, which starts here Saturday.

Under terms of the temporary settlement, the umpires will receive $3,000 for working the National and American League playoff games and $7,000 for the series. Umpires have asked for $5,000 and $10,000.

"But we still have them by the necks," said Wendelstedt, "They're not going to buy us."

Baseball has agreed to work the second playoff game only after last-minute negotiations with the owners and league officials.

Problems, Problems..

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Boston Bruins, defending National Hockey League champions, have had problems winning their pre-season exhibition games.

Vancouver Canucks are having problems signing players.

And Pittsburgh Penguins have financial problems.

The Bruins won only their third game in the exhibition schedule Monday night, a 5-3 decision over Montreal Canadiens at Halifax before 8,200 fans — largest hockey crowd there since the early 1950s.

Vancouver's Ted Taylor returned to his farm at Oak Lake, Man., when he decided a contract offered him by Canuck general manager Bud Poile did not befit an NHL player.

The Canucks' haven't seen Lasse Oksanen of Finland since Poile offered him a two-way contract Saturday, which meant he could be farmed out at any time.

Oksanen had previously advised the Canucks he wouldn't remain in Canada unless he plays in the NHL.

The Penguins are faced with a $4.6 million suit launched Monday by the Mellon Bank for a reported arrears payment debt on a demand note signed by the club's owners, a partnership of nine Detroit businessmen.

A lawyer for the bank said the debt amounts to nearly $64,000 in interest. Immediate effect of the suit on the Penguins is not known, but a club spokesman said sale of the franchise has not been ruled out.

Al Hairfat, Phil Esposito's two goals sparked the Bruins who have lost four and tied two in exhibition play. Fred Stanfield, Johnny Bucyk and Garnet Bailey added the other Boston goals while Marc Tardif, Guy Lapointe and Mickey Redmond replied for Montreal.

Bruins took a 4-0 lead before the Montrealers could get untracked and narrow the gap to 4-3. Esposito's second goal into an open net gave them an insurance marker.

Before leaving Vancouver, Taylor, a left winger, said the Canucks' offer "was pretty well the same as what I made last year with the Western League Canucks, including bonuses."

"But I feel that I know what I can do for a National League team and that I'm worth a lot more."

"When I'm talking contract with a player I deal in basic salaries . . . not fringe benefits," replied Poile. "The offer I made to Ted would have represented a 36-per-cent increase for him over last year."

The Penguin franchise was purchased by the Detroit syndicate in March, 1968. The club spokesman said sale of the club would require full approval of the NHL board of governors who will "meet Wednesday to take up the question of the Mellon suit."

Mellon lawyer Robert Engel said Monday the bank has tried since July 17 to work out an agreement with the club for payment of the loan.

Human Athletes Show No Drug 'Horse Sense'

TORONTO (CP) — The drugs human athletes take to improve their performance would get a race horse disqualified, a Toronto doctor said Monday.

Dr. Andrew I. Malcolm, a psychiatrist, told the Ontario chapter of the College of Family Physicians of Canada that only horse racing and European bicycle racing have rules forbidding the use of drugs.

If the urine of players in the National Football League was examined "you'd be sure to find Butazolidin or something at some time," he said.

Butazolidin, a drug given for arthritis, bursitis and similar conditions, was found in the urine of 1968 Kentucky Derby-winner Dancer's Image and the horse was disqualified.

Getting His 'Kicks'

MONTREAL (CP) — Conglomerate careers are nothing new to George Springate.

While most people are happy to settle for a single career during a working lifetime, Springate wants his estimated 40 working years divided into four 10-year careers—not necessarily all related.

Today he's on phase two of his long-range plan in the dual capacity of place-kicker for Montreal Alouettes of the Eastern Football Conference and, more important to him, Liberal member of the Quebec national assembly for the Montreal riding of Ste. Anne.

At 32, Springate is a former McGill University footballer, police sergeant and lawyer. He carried 195 pounds on a burly six-foot frame.

In his four games since joining the Als he has contributed 28 points—11 of them in last Sunday's 24-17 win in Toronto against the Argonauts.

"I want four 10-year careers in my life," Springate said Thursday. "I'm not worried about security."

From 1959 to 1969 Springate attended Sir George Williams and McGill Universities, emerging with three degrees—one in psychology and two in law. From 1959 to 1969, while getting his degrees, he worked full time as a member of the Montreal police department and still managed to play football for McGill for three of his four years there.

"I used to sleep from 3 to 8 a.m. in those days," George said. "I don't get much more now."

"I always said I won't marry before I'm 30," Springate said. "I'm never home and if I'd married at 23 or 24, I'd have been divorced by now."

Asked to compare his first 10-year career with the one he now has undertaken, Springate said is his current schedule is tougher.

"Before I had to pass at school and please one boss, the police department," he said. "Now I have 27,000 bosses in my constituency, join the ball club and everybody in the grandstand to satisfy."

His place-kicking job with the Als came by chance when the club fell into difficulties counting field goals and converts. However, his political career was planned.

"I expect to serve two terms, or from the time I'm 32 until I'm 42," Springate said. "Forty to 50—who knows?

"In that span there already are some interesting propositions," he added. "I always said I'd like to own or manage a football club—not coaching."

The fourth decade he claims is a little too far off to predict anything concrete.

Springate's football salary is not known, but one-third of what he makes returns to his constituency in the form of scholarships for needy pupils there, with the school principals picking the candidates.

How has his football career jibed with his political life?

"I've only received one complaint," Springate said. "That was from an elderly lady who thought I should pay less attention to the kids in the riding and more to the older people there."

He said that "publicity-wise" the joint undertaking has added plenty of pressure to his already crowded life "but I'm used to that."

Dodgers Hope to Beef Up Batting by Adding Allen

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Los Angeles Dodgers traded Ted Sizmore, baseball's National rookie-of-the-year in 1969, and catcher Bob Stinson to St. Louis Cardinals Monday for heavy-hitting Richie Allen.

The trade was announced by vice presidents Al Campanis of the Dodgers and Bing Devine of the Cardinals.

Sizemore, an infielder, batted .266 this year in 96 games. He missed several games with a pulled thigh muscle suffered in the spring and a sprained wrist late in the season.

Sizemore, 24, was converted from a minor league infielder. Stinson is a switch hitting catcher. He batted .238 for the Dodgers' Spokane club in the Pacific Coast League the past season. He played in four games with the Dodgers.

Allen was rookie-of-the-year in 1964 with Philadelphia Phillies. Both he and Sizemore ended up the 1970 season on the sidelines—Allen with a pulled hamstring muscle suffered Aug. 14 and Sizemore with his injured wrist.

Allen's last start was Sept. 8 in Philadelphia when he hit a home run.

The slugger ran into a series of controversies with the Philadelphia baseball fans and the club's management before he was traded him to the Cardinals after the 1969 season. At St. Louis, he batted .279 with 34 home runs and 101 runs batted in.

The Dodgers in recent years had not had a batter with 100 RBI until this season when Wes Parker batted in 111.

The Dodgers hit only 97 home runs as a team during the past season, lowest in the major leagues. The pair-other major league team with less than 100 was Kansas City with 97.

Allen, who broke into major league baseball as a third baseman, played mainly at first base for the Cardinals.

Lions Roar Back

DETROIT (AP) — "I thought maybe they'd box us off the field but they stayed with us," smiled Detroit Lions quarterback Bill Munson.

And in response to the confidence from the capacity crowd of 56,218—plus a national television audience—the Lions put on a second half show for the viewers by overcoming a 7-0 deficit to rout Chicago Bears 28-14 Monday night.

The victory gave Detroit sole possession of first in the Central Division of the National Football Conference with a 3-0 record. Chicago, Green Bay and Minnesota are all 2-1.

Munson, who completed 13 of 19 passes for 229 yards and a touchdown, indicated luck was a partial reason for the second half spurt.

The Bears continually adjusted their defence after Detroit broke its huddle to come to the line of scrimmage.

Detroit's running game got bogged down to just 18 yards in the first half before only 72 gaining on six completions. There was brief hoking of Munson and company until the final two quarters when things opened up and the Lions nailed Chicago for a 21-point third quarter. They ended up with 250 yards total offense.

Chicago bounced back from the 21-7 third quarter score with a 69-yard touchdown pass from Jack Concannon to Dick Gordon on the first play of the fourth quarter to put the Bears back in the game. But a key interception by Lion cornerback Dick LeBeau ruined Chicago and set up Detroit's final insurance touchdown.

Minor Hockey Booming

For one city group, at least, the new arena couldn't be coming at a more opportune time.

The Belleville Minor Hockey Association has been swamped with registrations as 1115 boys have already signed up for minor hockey. The number represents an increase of 225 players over last season.

In addition requests are still being received for late registration. The policy concerning these late requests will be to place the names on a waiting list until, hopefully, they can be fitted into the schedule.

The large number of registrations in peewee and bantams may create the necessity for the teams to compete only once every two weeks at the start of the year. Officials are hoping, however that upon completion of the new arena, the peewees and bantams can play twice a week to make up for lost ice time.

Adams Tops Umps For Cleo Colling Award

Don Adams came out as the top man in a tough league when he was awarded the Cleo Colling award as umpire-of - the - year in the Belleville and District Umpires Association.

The association also named its executive for the coming year at a weekend meeting.

Maurice Huddleston will take over as president with Cleo Colling as Honorary President. Ron Guest will be the vice - president with J. C. McBride looking after the duties of secretary..

Executive members will include Don Gavey, Don Adams and Keith Bertrim.

Mo-Hawks Boost Firepower As Ferguson, Plane Join Team

The Belleville Mo-Hawks have added two kinds of firepower for tonight's return exhibition engagement with the Kingston Aces, in the form of wingers Al Ferguson and Ralph Plane.

AL FERGUSON

Ferguson was the trigger man on Belleville's top line last season, combining with centre George Godson, already under contract and hard working Lorne O'Donnell, as yet still unsigned. The burly right wingers' bonsing shot and puck artistry around the net were good for 23 goals last season, tops on the club.

Plane, the Mo-Hawks captain, supplies the other kind of "firepower" after required, with his role as team policeman. In addition, the hard-working leftwinger developed into a sound hockey player last year, counting nine goals and seven assists during the year and adding five tallies in the playoffs, to rank third in the post season Mo-Hawk scoring.

He made his presence known in Sunday's 3-3 loss to the Aces, picking up nine minutes in penalties and handing out some solid checks in his 20-minute stint, replacing Les Colligan on a line with Wayne and John McConnell.

Goalies Bob Moon and Colin MacFee will both get another chance to show their stuff with last year's standout Steve Rees still unsigned. The Belleville team did have a Rees in the lineup Sunday, however, with younger brother Mike battling for a spot on the Mo-Hawk defence.

RALPH PLANE

While Jones wasn't handing out many bouquets for Sunday's narrow loss to the Aces he did admit that he was, "fairly pleased with showing considering the amount of practice time we've had and the fact we we're playing on the big ice surface."

Tonight's contest is slated to get under way at 8 p.m. at the Belleville Memorial Arena.

Parsons Take Double In Trenton Cup Win

Parsons proved to be double trouble to their Bay of Quinte Soccer Association opponents by adding the Trenton Challenge Cup to the League Cup which they already captured.

They stopped CFB Trenton to the tune of 4-1 to receive their latest ward.

After Trenton had opened the scoring Don Fletcher collected the first Parson goal on a hard 25-yard drive.

Kevin Kirby gave his team the lead heading in a fine pass from Dennis Jones to ons the first half scoring.

In the second half Reid Mallory cashed in a rebound from Kirby's shot and added another marker to close out the scoring.

The winners meet Quinte Transport Saturday at Zwick's Island in the final game of the Belleville Charity Cup competition.

MEET THE 1971 CARS FROM CHRYSLER

at your Dodge and Plymouth dealer's today!

1970—it's been great! Chrysler's share of new car sales highest in 14 years! To top it off, exciting new cars for 1971. All quality-engineered for value. You be the judge. Check their styling. Try the comfort. Drive them. That's how we want you to meet our new 1971 cars.

For 1971, the cars from Chrysler have more to offer: more of the styling you like, more of the performance you prefer, more of the dependability and value you want. When you're seen these new cars in person, you'll agree: it's '71 and Chrysler steps up the action!

Building on success.

1970 was one of the best years in Chrysler's history. Chrysler's share of domestic new car sales rose to a 14 year high! In the luxury car class, for the sixth straight year, more people in Canada bought Chryslers than any other luxury car. Obviously Chrysler models have what most luxury car buyers are looking for. In the compact car class, Chrysler-built cars also led the field. Plymouth Valiant was the best-selling compact car in Canada. And the combined sales of Valiant and Dodge Dart accounted for over 40% of all Canadian compact car sales.

Competing where it shows.

Chrysler has a long-standing reputation for engineering excellence and we're not afraid to put it on the line: the starting line. Dodge and Plymouth are both active in open competition in NASCAR-sanctioned racing. And when you want to find out how good your engineering is, that's the place to find out. From the amount of silverware the Dodge Daytona and the Plymouth Superbird have collected, Chrysler engineering is still top-dog.

On drag-strips throughout North America, Chrysler-built cars and Chrysler-powered cars are also consistent winners.

Chrysler Engineering

Over the years, Chrysler's Extra Care in Engineering has developed some major automotive firsts, like super-strong unibody construction, Slant-Six engines, extra-stable torsion bar suspension and Seven-Stage rust-proofing. Last year Torsion-Quiet ride was added to the list.

This year, all Chrysler-built full-size and luxury cars, including station wagons, have a Torsion-Quiet ride, as standard equipment. It's a combination of a rattle-free unibody, torsion bars, and a sound-insulation system that isolates annoying road noise from the car's interior and you. You have to drive one to appreciate the dramatic difference.

Another development this year: regular fuel engines. Almost all of Chrysler's '71 engines have been modified to use regular grade gasoline—and that includes the large displacement V8's, too. It adds up to a nice saving for you, over the course of a year. The only premium fuel engines in '71 are 3 high performance optional engines that are meant primarily for competition.

This year, Chrysler engineering has also added a part-throttle kick-down feature for V8's as well as Six's with TorqueFlite transmission. It gives you extra acceleration in city driving by downshifting from drive to 2nd when the accelerator is partially depressed. It saves gas, for you don't have to 'floor it' to shift down to the lower gear.

There is also a brand-new engine for '71. It's a 360 cu. in. V8 that's optional on all full-size Plymouth and Dodge cars. It's a slow-revving, over-square design that is smooth, quiet and delivers plenty of low-speed torque. All our engines have been modified to reduce exhaust emissions still further.

Chrysler's Extra Care in Engineering is also exemplified in the over 30 safety features that are standard on every car built by Chrysler in North America.

What's the action for '71?

There's plenty of it. Exciting things have happened to all our car lines, especially to the new Dodge Charger/Coronet & Plymouth Satellite models. For them, there's a brand-new design concept that gives more individuality to sedan and hardtop styling. But you'll catch the excitement yourself, the moment you step into a Dodge or Plymouth dealer's showroom.

Now, please accept our invitation.

Take a trip down to your local Dodge or Plymouth dealer's today. Take a good, long look at the new 1971 models. Luxury cars, full-size cars, mid-sized cars, compacts and sports cars. Whatever size, shape, style, power or colour you're looking for, Dodge & Plymouth dealers have it.

Ask lots of questions. Take a test drive or two. That's what dealerships are for, to let you meet our products face to face. When you do, you'll agree that the 1971 cars from Chrysler have more to offer . . . more of the value you're looking for.

U.S. Senate Is Investigating Organized 'Urban Guerrillas'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Senate opened an investigation today into so-called organized "urban guerrillas" whose 300 assaults on policemen in the last year are blamed for the deaths of 20 officers in the United States.

Senator James O. Eastland (Dem. Miss.), chairman of the judiciary committee, said his internal securities subcommittee would hear policemen from more than a dozen cities in four days of testimony on proposed new laws to protect policemen.

One of the officers, Patrolman James Sledge of Omaha, Neb., was wounded Aug. 14 in a dynamite explosion when a fleeing officer opened a booby-trapped suitcase. His partner was killed in the incident.

The subcommittee is considering several proposed measures to curb attacks on police.

One of them, sponsored by Eastland, would make travelling across state lines to assault, kill, or injure a policeman, or to incite or teach others to do it, a federal crime.

The proposed legislation would authorize a $50,000 reward for information leading to the conviction of a person accused of killing a policeman.

A second section of the Eastland bill would strengthen the 1968 Smith Act, making the attempted overthrow of the government a federal crime.

Other bills would bar interstate flight to avoid prosecution for the killing of a fireman or policeman and authorize use of FBI agents in such cases.

Eastland asserted that "deliberate attacks" on policemen are "too widespread, the incidents too numerous, the tactics too similar to suggest separate and isolated acts of violence.

"These instances of deadly violence—hitting into an ominous pattern—are part of a wave of guerrilla warfare."

Conservatives Hope To Curtail Strikes

LONDON (CP) — A tough new plan for reforming labor relations in strike-weary Britain was announced Monday by the Conservative government and is likely to provoke a major political battle in the months ahead.

The blueprint, designed as a basis for discussion leading to legislation late this year, calls for a ban on the union "closed shop," a cooling-off period of up to 60 days to dispute liable to disrupt national life and establishment of a high-level labor relations court empowered to order payment of compensation by persons it finds guilty of "unfair industrial action."

The legislation is due for introduction in December, which may prove to be a time when the British public is close to total exasperation on the subject of strikes.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Blood in Urine Requires Checking

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: About two weeks ago I passed blood during urination. Then, again, two days later. None since. I've had no pain and seem to be in excellent health. I am 64 years old.

My wife tells me I ought to see our doctor. I say it would be a waste of time and money. I feel the last time it hasn't recurred mean that it was just an unimportant experience? I'm not one for making big things out of little ones. I'll appreciate (so will my wife) your opinion. — Mr. T.

Comment: I must answer by saying: Blood in the urine may be an important sign; it may not! (Ox and ox association.) Yet, this is the only way I can reply, not being on the scene and not knowing more about you.

Like pain, I think most of us should consider bleeding as a warning by nature that there's trouble somewhere. It may be minor, major — or nothing significant at all. But the answer should not be left dangling. No ifs, ands or buts. What's important is to proceed as if the verdict is guilty until proved otherwise.

Innocent bleeding is not uncommon. I have known of patients with an enlarged prostate who passed blood in the urine once or twice and were never bothered again. Some have had a small kidney stone which came down the passageway into the bladder, irritated the ureter, and caused temporary bleeding which never recurred.

But there are more serious causes. Therefore, I believe your wife is right in suggesting you take the problem to your doctor to solve. He may send you to a urologist for further study: a cystoscopic examination, X rays and other tests. Is the trouble in the prostate? Is there a stone or growth in the bladder? Any trouble in the kidneys themselves? A blood disorder? Before you can call yours an unimportant experience, these questions must be answered.

For Mrs. M.: "Pseudocyesis" is the term for false pregnancy. It often occurs in women who have longed to have a baby. Sometimes in those who fear pregnancy.

They may complain of nausea and vomiting, think they "feel life," and say that their breasts seem fuller than usual. (All symptoms found in pregnancy.) I recall a few patients who had rapidly growing uterine tumors that resembled pregnancy. With modern diagnostic methods, the doctor can surely differentiate false from real pregnancy.

* * *

For Mrs. F.: In some cases women become irregular after stopping the pill. However, if their menstrual periods were regular before they began to take it, it is usual for their previous, normal cycles to recur. In fact, some women become more regular, even though they have a past history of irregular menstrual periods before taking the pill.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I've read somewhere that if you take a 20 minute nap you lose three hours sleep that night. An old doctor told me that when you get to be past 50 you should nap.

But now I'm afraid to do it. I'm 79, live alone, and have nobody to care for me. I love to nap. So far it hasn't interfered with my sleeping at night. What would you do? — Mrs. M.

Comment: As an advocate of napping, the great revitalizer, I say keep it up. Napping doesn't rob us of sleep at night. Incidentally, I'd like to add to the good advice your doctor gave you. Napping is a habit I suggest for those under 50 as well as those over. Too many of us overlook it. I consider napping as nature's unadulterated tonic.

Sydney J. Harris Says

We Judge People by Looks

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

In re-reading Darwin's fascinating "Autobiography" the other evening, I ran across a passage that deserves some special comment.

Darwin was relating how Capt. Fitzroy almost refused to let him join the expedition of the Beagle because he disliked the shape of Darwin's nose.

"He doubted," wrote the great scientist, "whether anyone with my nose could possess sufficient energy and determination for the voyage."

It is worth reflecting that the whole course of scientific discovery might have been altered if Capt. Fitzroy's prejudice had won out.

One of the least attractive habits of the human race is that of judging people by the way they look. All of us, no matter how "objective" we may pretend to be, still carry within us the primitive belief that you can read a man's character in his features.

It seems to me that quite the contrary is closer true — that the way a person looks at an early age determines much of his personality, and not the other way around.

If a child is born and grows up with what is popularly known as a "shifty" look, the chances are at least even that he will develop a devious personality — not because it is an inherent trait, but because he is responding in a suspicious attitude on the part of the people who come in contact with him.

We all tend to become, in some measure, what others think of us. This is particularly true in our formative years. Lately, penologists have become aware of this psychological fact, and in some cases "brutal-looking" young criminals are given plastic surgery as part of their rehabilitation.

Physical appearances influence juvenile behavior and character to a disturbing degree. Children who are taunted because of defects or peculiarities are likely to live out their resentments in anti-social conduct.

If Napoleon had been three inches taller (or had been taught to accept his stature), he might not have felt compelled to strut his way to dictatorship.

I am convinced that some redheads develop tempers because they are expected to have them; just as some people with odd noses develop odd personalities. Character does not exist in a vacuum, and much of what we think of "is-born" is the unfortunate result of bad interpersonal relations at an early age. Luckily for us, Darwin was too old to be influenced.

Jean Dixon's Horoscope

For October 7

Your birthday today: You can thrive in the rich environment of change and improvement that characterizes the coming year. There is plenty of significant work to do, many people to meet. Your rewards now come more promptly and directly. Emotional ties deepen as you share vivid experiences. Today's natives are rather alert individuals, most of them with interest in diets, health-care programs, physical exercises.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Picture the most optimistic situation; then go out to help make it come true. A full day of hard work produces more than expected. Celebrate with a social evening.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Listen and learn; self-improvement plans promise progress in areas that are now apparent. Pursue sentimental interests; share today's revelations.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Get busy with the most important matters. Ready co-operation is available for the larger ventures. The evening is for review of past plans and new beginnings.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Creative and intellectual activities now have stronger effect. Reach out for gentler relations, and irritations. Many of the productive day and a sparkling evening.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Your views encounter disagreement in your career; you can increase your earning capacity by directed effort. By all means ignore rumors and gossip. Meditate for intuitive guidance.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): The tide turns and life is somewhat smoother today. Make a peace all around, cater to the well as others. Romantic interests encounter a moment of fascination.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Confidential work comes to a crisis or perhaps a payoff point. You can bring together both sides of a divided family or group. Consider how to improve your resources.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Attend first to the necessities of relatives or others dependent on you. Then your own affairs, if sound, fall directly into place after profitable work.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Correct recent errors or get up promptly and do not rest until you have done what you can to rectify them. Pursue romantic relationships while heartedly this evening.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Your concern and serenity should by now have brought conditions into better balance. Seek activities where you will need reservations or co-operation. Evening promises some surprises.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Complete any neglected tasks. Old problems yield to review under changing conditions. You can arrange certain things without public notice which make your life more comfort able.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): General co-operation is available. Take care to stay within your budget on spending. Get in touch with friends and relatives, exchange notes, but not details of personal plans.

Announce New Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids...and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very exciting improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

Among those case histories were a variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. Relief was obtained in cases of long standing, and not unimportant of all, results were so thorough that this improvement was maintained over a period of many months.

The new ingredient with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered as one of the important ingredients in new Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H relieves pain and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a principal cause of hemorrhoidal complications.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

Eggs and Moonlighting Bubble in House Stew

OTTAWA (CP) — The parliamentary stew bubbled back into action Monday, with ingredients that included chickens and eggs, leftover legislation and a moonlighting MP.

The Commons resumed sitting after a 161-day recess, prepared to finish up the last three days of the current session in preparation for the new session which begins Thursday.

Prime Minister Trudeau announced that byelections will be held Monday, Nov. 16, to fill vacancies in the constituencies of Lisgar, in Manitoba, and Frontenac and Labelle in Quebec.

Russell C. Honey (L—Northumberland - Durham) was elected deputy speaker.

John B. Morison (L—Halton Wentworth) was challenged by Lorne Greene (PC—South Western Ont.) for "conflict of interest" because he took a job as community development consultant for the Newfoundland government this summer.

Mr. Morison maintained he had taken the job to become a better chairman of the Commons regional development committee, and Speaker Lucien Lamoureux reserved a decision on Mr. Greene's charge.

Jack Horner (PC—Crowfoot) and a host of fellow members of the Commons agriculture committee, asked when Agriculture Minister H. A. Olson and Minister R. A. Gham would let provincial chicken-and-egg war through legislation and take the issue to the Supreme Court of Canada.

Mr. Olson indicated he still considers Bill C-197, which would set up national agricultural marketing agencies and which is still in committee and dead at least for this session, the answer to the marketing woe which has seen air provinces erect barriers to each other's produce.

Defence Minister Donald Macdonald told members that the news media had been incorrect for most of the summer in saying some of the 115 CF-5 jet planes now being delivered by Canadair Ltd. of Montreal, to the federal government had been mothballed.

The government, he said, will take delivery on all the planes and decide after tests what their role will be.

He admitted, however, that some of the planes are in storage.

Prime Minister Trudeau reiterated the pledge of former prime minister Lester B. Pearson that veteran public servants would not be prejudiced for their bilingual capabilities by federal bilingualism policy.

Dennis Urges Teachers to Attach Selves to Change

KINGSTON (CP) — Lloyd Dennis, co-author of the Hall-Dennis report on education in Ontario, told 139 student-teachers Monday that they should attach themselves to evolutionary change.

He told students at the Arthur College of Education: "The showers, but not too abrasive or you will set the combs back 20 years."

He urged them to adapt to modern teaching methods.

Mr. Dennis, now director of education for the counties of Leeds and Grenville, told the students they should steer away from the idea that learning takes place only in the classroom.

"Be sure to involve the parents. We have tended to say to parents: 'You can beget children but you are not to involve yourselves in anything that has to do with their school education.' This is all wrong."

Mr. Dennis said money should be spent on teacher education ahead of more money for teaching some of the 115 CF-5 jet planes now being delivered by Canadair Ltd. of Montreal, to the federal government had been mothballed.

'Disenfranchised' Cottage Owners Lose Interest

TORONTO (CP) — Cottage owners have been "disenfranchised" at resort areas for so many years that they have lost interest in local governments in those areas, the committee on election laws was told Monday.

Wesley Scott of Toronto, head of the Long Point Ratepayers' Association in Norfolk County, said that "cottagers as a group are disinterested . . . only when the cottager has a chance to accomplish something will he make an effort."

He said cottage owners are satisfied with the local council at Long Point, but some persons want to turn the area into "a board of trade."

It was impossible to organize buses to bring cottagers to vote in municipal elections because they come from so many municipalities—London, Chatham, Simcoe, Woodstock, Hamilton and St. Thomas.

His association unanimously asked for "mail-in" ballots.

W. E. Scobie of the Cameron Lake Cottagers' Association in the Kawartha Lakes area, said cottagers carry a major portion of the tax burden and should have a say in how their money is spent. He suggested a vote by proxy.

Beverly Robinson of Toronto, a vice-president of the Federation of Ontario Cottagers' Associations representing about 100 cottage groups, asked for mandatory advance polls to be held on a Saturday before the local election. He also requested a period of three to four weeks between nominations and elections so cottage associations could advise their members, and for municipal elections to be held in the summer instead of December.

Committee chairman Edward Dunlop, Progressive Conservative MPP for York-Forest Hill, said the mail-in ballot could be subject to abuses.

He also said the request for elections during the summer is "not crazy" because it would involve a massive upheaval in changing the fiscal year for local governments."

But he said, "in any recommendation brought forward, a mandatory advance poll will be provided for."

The committee, set up in 1968, has studied changes in provincial voting laws and corruption in election results, and is working on municipal election reform and will later tackle the financing of election campaigns.

'Speed Freaks' Volunteering For Hard Cure

TORONTO (CP) — Speed freaks desperate to quit are volunteering for a program that paralyzes their speech and breathing the moment they get high, a psychiatrist told the Ontario Chapter of the College of Family Physicians of Canada Monday.

Dr. Lionel Solursh, assistant professor of psychiatry at the University of Toronto, said the treatment program that started six weeks ago "is a reasonably terrifying experience" and those who seek it are highly motivated to get off the drug.

He said an injection of anectine is timed to coincide with the "rush" from the amphetamine, the sensation induced by speed which Dr. Solursh said has been described as "a total body orgasm."

An anesthetist must take over the patient's breathing artificially during the three to five minutes before he can sit up, move his arms, breathe and speak.

Dr. Solursh said drug-users willing to undergo this treatment are similar to dead-end alcoholics who are willing to undergo similar frightening negative conditioning.

He told the family doctors the first principle of diagnosis is to develop a realistic attitude toward drug use. Use of non-medical, mind-affecting drugs should be regarded mainly as a social phenomenon causing concern only when damage to the individual or his environment results.

He said doctors would be hard-pressed to undertake treatment of all users, considering that 80 per cent of the population over 15 years of age drinks alcohol and 13 per cent of senior medical students smoke marijuana monthly or more often.

The psychiatrist said doctors must expect drug use to be common and usually not harmful although—ill effects are less rare than some think.

'Food - - We Ruin It'

TORONTO (CP) — The practice of supplier payoffs is small in the frozen food business but it is growing in most parts of Canada, James O'Rourke of London, Ont., said Monday.

The vice-president of the Canadian Restaurant Association told the Canadian Frozen Food Industry convention that companies now engaged in payoffs should stop and those not doing it should try to stamp it out.

He said in an interview later that only a few companies are involved in the practice but it may have given up "thousands of dollars in sales because they refused" to give payoffs.

He said the bribes go to institutional food buyers and chefs who are responsible for purchases.

Mr. O'Rourke, vice-president of Beaver Food Service Associates Ltd., gave no figures but said "it is almost impossible to get into the institution" without bribing the buyer.

Earlier in his address he said better standards are needed in handling and distribution of frozen food.

He said the food processors "pack it, the distributors deteriorate it, we almost ruin it, and the customer gives us a big buck for it."

He said frozen vegetables served in restaurants have been so bad that people now order salads "because we can't get away with ruining them."

Processors "should make a package so that the end-user cannot ruin it."

He said this could be done by making up institutional packs so the food service operator could thaw just what he wanted, rather than leaving thawed and partly-used packages to deteriorate.

Devices Developed To Kill Hijackers

TORONTO (CP) — Top-secret devices capable of stopping out and killing aircraft hijackers have been developed in the United States, the president of the Canadian Air Line Pilots Association said Monday night.

Charles H. Simpson of Montreal told a businessmen's club pilots are prepared to use the devices installed because hijacking is acknowledged by most countries as a capital offence.

He did not elaborate on the nature of the devices.

Describing methods to prevent air piracy, he said most major U.S. air terminals were being equipped with magnetometers capable of detecting concealed arms, but his association was told less than a month ago the federal government has no plans to install the devices in Canadian terminals.

Mr. Simpson said some airlines are installing bulletproof cockpits and the U.S. government plans to spend $29 million a year to place 2,500 armed guards aboard commercial aircraft.

"It has also been suggested from time to time that flight crews be armed," he said. "We have opposed this because of our concern at the possibility of shoot-outs at 35,000 feet. The risk of the pilot being killed would be particularly frightening to the passengers."

Government Powerless To Help FLQ Victim

Captive's Fate Is Not Known

OTTAWA (CP) — The government sat powerless today as the terrorist deadline on the life of James Richard Cross came and went.

A government spokesman said nothing could be done unless the administration got some further word from the terrorists specifying their demands.

No word came to the special operations centre here as the 9 a.m. deadline passed.

A hand-printed message in French purporting to be from the Front de Liberation Quebecois was found in a bus station locker here early today after a tip from the Quebec police.

The message referred to five special conditions for the release of Cross, British trade commissioner in Montreal abducted Monday morning.

But the message did not list the five conditions. Seven conditions were listed in the original ransom demands.

The government spokesman said it still could not be determined at 9 a.m. whether the message was authentic.

He said the government could not reply to the purported five conditions unless it knew what they were.

But no further word came from the terrorists.

Officials who had spent a sleepless night on watch in the operations centre remained on duty, hoping for some further message from the terrorists.

Prime Minister Trudeau arrived at his office looking drawn.

He repeated to reporters his stand: That a small minority could not be allowed to rule the majority.

The government, with Quebec's concurrence, Tuesday night accepted the original ransom demands but invited the abductors to negotiate.

The kidnappers threatened to kill the 49-year-old diplomat.

Mr. Cross was snatched from his Montreal home Monday morning and the kidnappers gave the government until 8:30 a.m. EDT today to meet their ransom demands or "we will do away with him."

The threat was left in the entrance hall of Montreal radio station CKAC about two hours after External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp told a hushed House of Commons the government would not give in to the demands of the kidnappers.

Premier Robert Bourassa of Quebec and British officials in London later concurred in the decision and said they had been consulted beforehand.

Mr. Sharp emphasized for the kidnappers that despite the rejection the government felt there still was room for negotiations and it later was made known an operations room in his department would be manned around the clock to take advantage of any developments.

"It may be there are conditions we could meet.

"And it is important we find out whether Mr. Cross is safe and well and whether there is a basis on which he might be delivered in a healthy condition to his family."

The note left at CKAC said

Waiting

Britain Waits News of Fate Of Its Envoy

LONDON (CP) — Prime Minister Heath and other British officials waited uneasily today for news from Canada about the fate of James Cross, kidnapped trade commissioner.

Heath, now attending the Conservative party conference in the seaside resort of Blackpool, kept in touch with the Montreal situation through a senior cabinet minister, Geoffrey Rippon, who is staying in London as chief Ulster man with Canadian representatives here.

Reports from Blackpool reiterate that the British are backing Ottawa in its rejection of the three demands made by the Front de Liberation Quebecois for the safe return of Cross.

But although the British are said to consider the demands outrageous, there is a continuing sense of shock and even horror in London circles about what has happened in Montreal.

The Guardian, using a cat-and-mouse metaphor, today described the 49-year-old Cross as "the unfortunate mouse caught in this Canadian domestic quarrel."

The newspaper poses the question: why he and other "prominent foreign diplomats" in Canada were not protected against the recent discovery of an extremist plot to abduct a United States diplomat in Montreal.

In Montreal, Robert Lemieux, a lawyer who has defended a large number of terrorists on charges involving such activities as placing bombs, told a news conference Tuesday he had "no doubts" the commissioner would be "executed if kidnappers' demands are not met."

He also said the federal government was playing a "dangerous cat-and-mouse game" with Mr. Cross' life. The external affairs minister should have suggested ways for the abductors to establish communications leading to the diplomat's safe release.

Strain Shown By PM

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian cabinets have frequently and knowingly taken decisions that sent thousands of men to their deaths.

But these wartime decisions were no more agonizing than that now faced by the Trudeau government and involving the possible death of one man.

Pollution Curbs Urged

PCs' Battle Plan Is Drafted

OTTAWA — The Progressive Conservative Party yesterday proposed the creation of a federal department of resources and environment management to combat pollution on a national scale.

The Conservatives said that the government should set up an environmental council to define problems of pollution control, in much the same way that the Economic Council of Canada handles economic matters.

The proposals were two of 12 contained in the report of the party's task force on pollution, set up three months ago by Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield, and headed by Gordon Aiken (Parry Sound-Muskoka) and John A. Fraser, a Vancouver lawyer.

Among other recommendations were proposals to empower the federal Government to seize control of any ship which is in danger of dumping a hazardous cargo into Canadian waters, the creation of a corps of pollution control officers trained and partly financed by the federal Government and the regulation of all drilling and transportation of oil by a "broad-based pollution control authority."

The report said the Conservatives would amend the Canada Water Act, establish national water purity standards and limit polluters' rights to dump effluent in exchange for paying a fee to clean up the affected water courses.

The report urges pollution control equipment be defined as part of a firm's production process, in order to qualify for sales tax, tariff and other tax exemptions, and provide for an extended income tax write-off for such equipment.

Robbers Escape By Boat

ALEXANDRIA BAY, N.Y. (AP) — U.S. and Canadian police pressed their search today for two shotgun-wielding robbers who robbed more than $116,000 from a bank in this Thousand Islands village, then made their getaway by motorboat on the St. Lawrence River.

The masked robbers left five employees locked in a vault at the branch office of the Marine Midland Trust Co. of Northern New York.

The stolen, blue steel white boat used by the robbers was found on the U.S. shore about an hour after the holdup and close to the village.

Quebec Faces No-holds-barred Medicare Battle

QUEBEC (CP) — The Quebec government has made some last minute concessions in the smouldering medical care dispute as Premier Robert Bourassa's deadline of Nov. 1 for implementation of the program approaches.

However, indications Tuesday were that if the medicare plan is put into effect following a special session of the national assembly Monday, a no-holds-barred battle will break out between the province's 4,000 medical specialists and the Liberal government.

Mr. Bourassa's latest attempt to approach agreement is the proposal to accept "some of modifications or "improvements" in the plan—was described later by the federation as "not significant."

The plan now stipulates that patients patronizing doctors who have opted out must pay the bill without remuneration from the Health Insurance Board which will administer the plan.

A proposed modification to this section—one of Mr. Bourassa's concessions—would allow doctors to opt out but still restrict them to the government fee scale. Opted-out specialists would charge the patient directly, instead of filing for payment from the Insurance Board.

The patient would make the claim.

The specialists want to exceed the plan's fee scale, which they consider too low.

Premier Bourassa said Tuesday he is willing to negotiate the fee scale with the specialists, but only after implementation of the plan.

The third point of contention may have been eliminated by a decision to clarify the section of the medicare act dealing with control of doctors' qualifications.

Health Minister Claude Castonguay has said that Quebec College of Physicians and Surgeons will continue to be the sole body empowered to rule on medical qualifications.

A separate government-appointed council will rule only on payment disputes.

Nixon Tonight Unveils Southeast Asia Policy

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon will make what he terms a major statement on Southeast Asia tonight in a speech dovetailing with a new U.S. proposal to be offered at the Vietnam peace talks Thursday.

There was speculation Nixon might propose a ceasefire, or a Geneva-type multi-nation conference on Southeast Asia, or special talks on prisoners-of-war or a combination of various items aimed at breaking the lengthening deadlock at Paris.

There was talk, too, that Nixon might unveil a speedup in U.S. troop withdrawals beyond the timetable he set last April. At that time he announced another 150,000 men would be brought home from Vietnam by next May, including 50,000 by Oct. 15.

The administration has been expected to make a move on the Vietnam peace front before next month's elections. Nixon, however, told reporters Tuesday: "We do not consider this to be a propaganda gimmick. We are not saying it simply for the record.

"The statement is one that has been prepared only after very thorough consideration of all the issues that are involved in our negotiating position.

"It is a statement that has been discussed with the government of Vietnam, the government of Cambodia, and the government of Laos, and has the approval of those governments.

Wanna listen to Nixon and find out what we are doing at New Year's?

U.S. Is Backing Out Of Mideast Peace Talks

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Hope for a negotiated settlement of the Middle East conflict has slumped to the lowest point since the end of last year.

The already sagging hopes suffered two more blows Tuesday:

—The United States backed out of the deputy-ambassador level of Big Four peace talks in New York, saying it is pointless to go on until Egypt rectifies violations of the Suez canal ceasefire by removing newly-installed Soviet anti-aircraft missiles.

—Egyptian Foreign Minister Mahmoud Riad said that, while Egypt is willing to extend the 90-day ceasefire past the Nov. 5 deadline, it will not remove missiles from the Suez.

The American statement, delivered by Deputy Ambassador Christopher Phillips to surprised fellow deputies in New York, put the whole Big Four Middle East peace effort in question.

U.S. sources quoted him as saying that the alleged Egyptian violations have raised doubts whether there is a sincere desire for peace and have created an obstacle to the negotiations under Gunnar Jarring.

They said that as long as there is no rectification of the situation, "we see no possibility of bridging the gap that still separates the Big Four powers on certain important points."

Strain Shows

meet their demands for treasure and freedom for colleagues in prison? If yes, who would be next?

Or should it let the terrorists do their worst to abducted James Richard Cross to prove authority cannot be blackmailed?

What is one man's life worth?

Do governments really play God?

These were the kinds of questions Prime Minister Trudeau and his senior ministers pondered for hours Tuesday before announcing that the demands of the kidnappers would not be met.

The strain showed in the prime minister's face.

Solicitor-General George McIlraith, the minister responsible for the RCMP, looked as if he had not slept since the Monday morning abduction of the British official in Montreal.

In June last year, the St. Jean Baptiste Society in Sherbrooke, Que., cancelled a festival at which Mr. Trudeau was to appear after a bomb damaged its headquarters.

Mr. Trudeau at that time deplored that "a small group which chooses to throw bombs" has the power to change the decisions of elected officials.

He added:

"What I find serious in this affair is that the authorities and the population let such a state of affairs happen and that a decision taken by legitimate authorities will be vetoed by a small group of persons which chose to throw bombs. . . .

"If the choice of decisions affecting affairs is left to minorities, we won't have democracy but an armed garrison."

LUSAKA, Zambia (AP) — A four-ton hippopotamus lumbered into a Zambian village bar, tore up the place and sent one regular to the hospital with serious injuries, police said. The villagers retaliated by beating the animal to death and slicing it up into hippo steaks, a local delicacy.

Sewer Job Will Slow Bay Bridge Traffic

Motorists driving to and from Prince Edward county will be running into a traffic bottleneck for the next three days as Lightfoot Construction installs a storm sewer across the north approach to the CPR - Bay Bridge Road overpass.

The sewer installation is part of Lightfoot's contract for the reconstruction of West Dundas Street. The sewer is being installed along the south side of Dundas at its intersection with the railway overpass.

Police Chief Douglas Crosbie said that during the installations, traffic will be limited to two lanes. A police officer will be on duty to direct traffic.

Morning rush hour traffic will be limited to the two lanes, but it is hoped the excavation can be filled in for the busy evening rush period.

Authority Will Contribute

The city parking authority will pay up to $8,000 toward the cost of installing traffic lights on Front Street at the entrance to the municipal parking lot behind downtown stores.

This was agreed at a meeting yesterday of the parking authority and a letter to this effect was directed forward to the city council traffic and light committee.

Last spring there was complaints that motorists using the riverside parking facility were having difficulty in getting out due to the volume of traffic and a trial period of traffic direction was set up.

Following the last period, authority members reported a distinct improvement in egress from the parking lot and a traffic light was recommended.

However, no action was taken by the traffic committee and yesterday decision was made to make a formal request for the traffic light.

Despite rumor to the contrary, there will be no change made in the extent of the Don Har parking lot opposite the McCarthy Theatre.

The report was that one leg of the lot running along the river would be phased out and downtown merchants voiced alarm at any decrease in parking space.

Roger Porter, president of the Downtown Merchants' Association, will be present at the next meeting of the Authority when answers to the parking lot request and other questions will be given.

Women's Sales and Ad Club Holds Charter Night Meeting

The powers bestowed on the new federal ministry of corporate and consumer affairs pose a threat to the free enterprise system, a leading Canadian advertising executive charged last night.

"Threats of a curb on advertising, made by federal minister Ron Basford, are 'mischievous and ill - advised' and will "slow down or destroy the economy," Keith Garrett, president of the Federation of Canadian Sales and Advertising Clubs told a Belleville group.

He was guest speaker at the charter night meeting of the newly - formed Belleville Women's Sales and Advertising Club.

Mr. Garrett zeroed in on the famous White Paper, with its threat to eliminate or drastically reduce expense accounts and the warning of the minister of corporate and consumer affairs that the government might step in to control "excessive advertising", "high pressure advertising" and "pollution and overkill, in print, radio and television.

The terms used by the minister are undefinable, said Mr. Garrett. Excessive and high pressure advertising are matters governed by personal taste and preferences.

"Why should I resent advertising not directed at me?" he asked, in reference to the large sums spent in women's cosmetic and clothing ads.

He agreed with Mr. Basford's statement that housewives are paying many millions more than they have to each year because of detergent advertising.

"This is probably true," said Mr. Garrot. "The government could decree manufacture of only one detergent. But did the minister stop to consider the production line that would close down in that case, the number of jobs that would be eliminated and the resulting chaotic effect on the economy?"

Canadian advertising is not excessive — it is not keeping up with the pace, he contended.

Amount of advertising has increased 7.5 per cent over the last 10 years, the rates have increased by 7.2 per cent, but the gross national product has risen by 8.9 per cent, he told the group.

"Maybe United States advertising material is responsible for Mr. Basford's complaints," suggested the speaker. "He is not bothering to find out about the amount of American overflow advertising in Canada."

He mentioned the 3.5 million American magazines that come into Canada each year and the amount of prime time (7 to 11 p.m.) television watched by bandanna living near the American border.

"Every night of the week, 27 per cent of Vancouver people watch United States television; in Toronto 37 per cent tune in and in Buffalo, 58 per cent. In each hour of American television, 16 minutes are devoted to advertising, with 20 messages being broadcast.

"In contrast, 10 minutes of commercial messages an hour is the maximum broadcast on Canadian TV and most stations limit themselves to eight minutes an hour. In addition, 35 to 40 per cent of all TV commercials seen on Canadian TV are made in the United States," Mr. Garrett said.

Through the Federation of Canadian Sales and Advertising Clubs, the industry has a strong voice that "will not be stifled."

"The new corporate affairs minister is expressing his own personal opinion. The industry can provide accurate information if he cares to listen," said Mr. Garrett. "If he will not listen, his boss will. The communications industry created Trudeaumania, to sweep him into power, and it can be just as effective in reverse."

Over 60 charter members of the new Belleville Women's Sales and Advertising Club attended the dinner at Club Canara. The group was augmented by visitors from the Peterborough, Hamilton, Toronto, Kingston and Montreal clubs.

Executives of the club are: Jane Ann McCaw, president; Carolyn Enerson, vice-president and Federation director;

MRS. FRANK WILSON (Delora)

Funeral services for Mrs. Edith Wilson were conducted on Monday, Oct. 5 at the Cassidy Funeral Home, Marmora with Rev. John Fesers officiating.

Mrs. Wilson died at Deloro Nursing Home on Friday, Oct. 2 in her 85th year.

Born and educated in Lancashire, England, Mrs. Wilson resided in Toronto until moving to the nursery home two years ago.

She is survived by son Jack, daughters Mrs. Bertha Sillis and Mrs. Jack (Eileen) Sangster, all of Toronto. Also surviving are grandchildren Norman Wilson and Mrs. Dale McTaggart, of Marmora, Bob and David Anderson, Gordon, Judy and Lynn Wilson, all of Toronto. Her husband, Frank Wilson, predeceased her.

Bearers were Dale McTaggart, Peter Beare, Norman Wilson, Bob Anderson, David Anderson and Gordon Wilson.

Interment was at Mount Nebo Cemetery.

CECIL L. LENT

Funeral services for Cecil L. Lent, a former resident of Belleville, was held recently in Toronto.

Interment services in Belleville Cemetery were performed by Rev. Leslie Dean of Tabernacle United Church.

Bearers were nephews Owen and Elton Lent, Douglas McBride, W. E. Woolfe, M. Simpson and George Wanscott.

No Change In Zoning

TRENTON (Staff) — The Trenton and Suburban Planning Board said on Tuesday to another application for a zoning change for the third phase of Westmount Park subdivision.

Mr. Ian Weaver, who is developing the housing estate with Wall Sider, a local contractor, had asked that the single family (R2) zoning of the area off Parkside Drive be revised to permit apartment blocks (R7).

But Mr. Weaver agreed revision to approximately 150 apartment units.

A consulting firm, Project Planners, was contacted by the town to research the proposal. A letter was received last week from the consultants stating that the zoning change would be inadvisable.

Principal objection of the consultants was that it would greatly increase traffic flow in the subdivision. Entrance to the development area will be along Parkside Drive and McGill street.

The planning board considered the possibility of providing a second access road to the new area but decided against it.

This would have seen a road built from Dufferin St. through Hanna Park, to phase three of the subdivision.

Demands

Mr. Cross was well and that a letter from him to his wife had been mailed in Montreal to her.

In his Commons statement, Mr. Sharp said the kidnappers made seven demands:

—Police investigation was to be stopped.

—Wide press and television publicity was to be given to the so-called political manifesto of the FLQ.

—Over 20 prisoners are to be released."

—Facilities for their transportation to Cuba or Algeria are to be arranged.

—The C-5 Lapalme Inc. mail truck drivers, whose jobs were lost when Lapalme lost its mail contract last winter, were to be rehired on terms and conditions set out by their union before breakdown of negotiations.

—Ransom of $500,000 in gold.

—Public disclosure of an informer in the FLQ.

—Safe conduct.

"Clearly these are unreasonable demands and their authors could hardly have expected them to be accepted.

"I need hardly say that this set of demands will not be met.

"I continue, however, to hope that some basis can be found for Mr. Cross's safe return.

"Should I hope the abductors will find a way to establish communication to achieve this."

Mr. Sharp spent much of Monday struggling with the problem with Prime Minister Trudeau and Solicitor-General George McIlraith.

Mr. Sharp said authorities are dealing with the case "on the basis that we have the double responsibility to do our best to safeguard Mr. Cross and at the same time to preserve the rule of law in this country."

In an interview, he said the deal proposed in the FLQ communique "is not possible."

"The Canadian people would not support turning over to these blackmailers the . . . government of the country."

However, he emphasized that the government wants to get in touch.

"What this statement is designed to achieve is the opening of communications."

Prime Minister Trudeau told the Commons he is giving the case his closest personal attention and Quebec and Ottawa are co-operating closely.

Mr. Sharp said he has told British Prime Minister Edward Heath and Mrs. Cross Canada will do "everything possible" to get Mr. Cross back safely.

However, this didn't include giving in to the FLQ demands.

He denied that Canada has recalled its ambassador to Cuba and said relations with Cuba are good.

A Cuban embassy spokesman, asked about the FLQ's involvement of Cuba in the kidnapping, said:

"We don't have any comment to make—for the moment."

Algerian officials also had no comment though a spokesman said neither the government nor anyone else had talked to them about the kidnapping.

A major difficulty for authorities was the lack of precision in the FLQ communique.

Commons reaction to the kidnapping was grim.

Liberal Gaston (PC—Charlevois) asked whether the death penalty for kidnapping will be reinstated.

Mr. Trudeau said this can be discussed after the Cross case is over.

Old Phonograph Gets Workout

Amelisburg's museum will be kept open over the Thanksgiving weekend for the convenience of visitors, climaxing a successful year of activity. Rated high among local museums by Mrs. Pauline Hall, museum adviser with the historical branch of the department of public records and archives, the museum was praised for its "authentic look." Adding to that look is the sound of an old Edison phonograph, played by the curator for visitors.

Museum Termed 'Outstanding'

AMELIASBURG (Special)—The township's historical museum is rated high among the 200 similar government supervised undertakings in the province.

Mrs. Pauline Hall, museum adviser with the historical branch of the department of public records and archives on a visit to the municipality's showcase yesterday termed the museum "outstanding for the size of the community". She said she was impressed in particular with the mineral collection with its black light, which made it "a very exciting display". She said she liked the addition of the log cabin and the five guinea hens wandering about the grounds giving the place more of an authentic look.

The attendance for the year — 1,151 — can be increased by posting signs at highway posts to attract more out of the area tourists according to Mrs. Hall.

Officially the museum closes on Sunday but it will be kept open over the Thanksgiving holiday for the convenience of the public.

Mr. J. E. "Ted" Pordham, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Pordham, Elmwood Drive received his B.Sc. degree from the University of Guelph on Oct. 2. Mr. Pordham has accepted a position with the Napanee District Secondary School.

Dynamite Turning Up

TRENTON (Staff) — Thirty sticks of dynamite were taken from a Byron Street shed owned by Carr's Electric Monday and one by one they are being found throughout Middleton Park.

Knowledge that the dynamite was missing came yesterday when two youngsters took a few sticks to Broadacr Primary School for "show and tell" — they had found the explosives in a field.

Three more sticks were discovered by Middleton Park children yesterday afternoon and a dozen more were found last night.

A Trenton police spokesman said today that a lock had been forced open at the north end construction shed and that the suspected culprits are elementary school students.

Military Police at CFB Trenton are investigating the incident in conjunction with town police.

Television Scene

An observer in the current issue of TV Weekly suggests that in the United States virtually no one does any deep thinking about television. This is true, he adds, whether they are consumers or contributors.

Elsewhere in the article he notes: "It is not necessary at all to have a program that is good as long as people, both the viewing public and people within the industry, think it is good."

The same is true of course of Canada and Canadian audiences, and one has only to suffer through a presentation like the Bob Hope Special on Monday night, originating in the United States but viewed over home networks too, to realize the truth of the TV Weekly writer's observation.

Hope was funny as ever in his opening monologue, spearing Spiro and his boss with devastating accuracy, but in his succeeding spoof on Women's Lib, aided and abetted by the likes of Martha Raye, Virginia Graham, Zsa Zsa Gabor, and other lesser notables of the entertainment world, he was frequently vulgar.

The Carol Burnett show which followed was a shade more sophisticated and its comic impact more effective. Comedienne Joan Rivers had a go at the Women's Lib thing and we have seen worse, while Miss Burnett and partner Harvey Korman were in top form in the man-wife situation pieces.

Then there is Tommy Hunter over CBC and Glen Campbell playing Glen Campbell; featured in both these shows recently was up-and-coming Canadian singer Anne Murray. And of course there is the Jones boy and Humperdinck — but where do we find anything that could refute the statement that most television fare is not for thinkers?

Well maybe it is not all that bad. There are documentaries like last night's program on master spy Kim Philby and NBC's news magazine recreating the earthquake in Peru last May and taking a look at a portion of Willard Van Dyke's film, The City. This has to do with pollution, overcrowding and other ills of the American city 30 years ago. Such is life, there is no new thing under the sun.

Then there was a repeat recently of that thoughtful film of an Irishman of 39, jobless but not altogether friendless in the big city of Montreal, The Luck of Ginger Coffey, and it was followed by an interesting little presentation about a young girl who dreams of being a top model. She comes home to the poor section of town where she lives with her doting mother and unsympathetic father and says to him: "A man's reach should always exceed his grasp," and she has to explain to him that that refers also to herself, in effect to all mankind. That means you should never settle for less," she says, and a simple little documentary of 15 minutes or so suddenly becomes alive and meaningful.

The drug scene is also getting a thorough working over — and who knows it may save some kid from a fate worse than death.

In passing, a word about the CBC's late-night news. It seems to be more balanced, less hysterical, less anti-American than for some time past. Warren Davis evidently has quit his 11 p.m. spot on The National, and now it is mainly George Finnigan, and occasionally Lloyd Robertson, who appears less bolsterous and more mature than of late. We hear less of Vietnam, for example, because for one thing the fighting there has tapered off somewhat; (and there is even less furore about it on the home front, as an article elsewhere on this page points out).

And Cambodia' . . . well where is Cambodia? Or Biafra? In short the CBC news might now be said to be "telling it like it is," quietly and without any evident bias.

Autumnal Bite

September's ending and October's beginning this year presented a harsh and dismal aspect not in keeping with the usual mellowness of this period. The threatening clouds, the sudden upsurge of wind and wild beating of rain and hail may have been exciting in a way, but we were glad it was no more than that, and certainly relieved that it did not turn into another Sudbury.

Not that that sort of thing is unknown here. Ten years or even a couple of years ago had such an experience, or violence like the Sudbury storm, but disturbing and damaging enough all the same. And a similar mini-storm caused a fair bit of damage in Westport, northwest of Brockville, a year or two ago.

Things have calmed down anyway and October appears promising enough, with fall heading towards its climax. The flowers still bloom in the gardens and there is still activity at the Market. Pumpkins herald the approach of Halloween, and fruit and vegetables are still plentiful.

New Peace Proposals?

Nixon Wants to Defuse Vietnam War Still Further

By PETER BUCKLEY

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Nixon seems faced with strongly conflicting pressures as he examines the possibility of a new American initiative in the Vietnam peace negotiations, currently paralyzed in Paris.

The president, who has just completed a flag-showing trip to Europe, has scheduled a meeting this week with both Republican and Democratic congressional leaders to brief them on his travels and particularly on his meeting in Ireland with David K. E. Bruce, the chief American negotiator at the Paris talks.

Nixon is also understood to be considering a televised report to the country—either a set speech or a news conference—about his trip and the negotiations.

Either occasion would give him a chance to refute new United States proposals on Vietnam. And it seems certain that the first word on such proposals would come from the president and not from his Paris negotiators.

The conflict has to do with realities.

On the one hand, it could help the peace-making image of both the president and the Republican party if Nixon were seen to be making an effort to get the negotiations moving again. Even some minor concession could be made to appear sufficiently dramatic to aid the Republican cause in the Nov. 3 U.S. congressional elections.

Weighing against this is the difficulty of devising any meaningful shift in U.S. policy which would not be rejected out of hand by the North Vietnamese, the South Vietnamese—or, conceivably, both of them.

President Nguyen Van Thieu of South Vietnam has already predicted that the Paris talks will fail. He and his controversial vice-president, Nguyen Cao Ky, have consistently laid down conditions for an end to the war which are as patently unacceptable as Thieu and Ky themselves are in the eyes of the North Vietnamese and the Viet Cong.

Washington's policy may not be dictated in Saigon, but neither are the South Vietnamese leaders' views ignored here.

If Nixon decides the time is appropriate for a fresh approach in Paris, the opportunity has already been made for him. The Communist negotiators presented a new variation on their past demands Sept. 17, two days after the announcement of Nixon's visit to Europe and his planned consultations with Bruce.

The U.S. has yet to reply to that proposal. In the opinion of the Paris talks a reply is indicated, but the option remains of simply dismissing the latest Communist proposal as containing nothing new.

In the end, the U.S. president might be tempted by a quiet refusal to take the new Communist suggestion seriously.

One of the most astonishing aspects of recent American political life is the manner in which the Nixon administration has succeeded in defusing Vietnam as a passionate concern of the American people.

Surveys and public-opinion polls continue to suggest that the great majority of Americans are sick of the war and want the United States out of Southeast Asia. But the tempest of feeling has subsided drastically since the fiery summer of 1968, before Nixon's election.

The president and the Republicans can still capitalize on the piece of U.S. troop withdrawals from South Vietnam to bolster their position in next month's elections.

The Paris talks have long seemed too far away and too unpredictable to many voters. Any U.S. initiative at this point might divert attention from the hopeful image about Vietnam created by the president and his political colleagues.

Oktoberfest and the Liquor Laws

Beer Ruling 'Nitpicking Nonsense'

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I was appalled to read the ruling of the new Chairman of the Liquor Licence Board of Ontario in which the use of the word "Beer" on a poster is classified "verboten". It went on to say that the picture of a girl carrying steins of beer, also on the poster, was prohibited, too.

All of this was in connection with the Kitchener-Waterloo Oktoberfest, a commendable annual event that is developing into one of the Province's prime tourist attractions. Also stamped "forbidden" by the Chairman was the sale of beer in tents during this festival.

Contrast this with the rest of our permissive society which winks at pot smoking during rock festivals, allows nudie magazines and movies—and shows a happy little family group smoking hash on the cover of a National Magazine.

The real culprit, however, is not Chief Mackey, who just recently inherited Chairmanship of the LLBO. Like the good policeman that he is, the Chief is simply following the letter of the law. The blame lies with the Ontario Government who use the LLBO as a decoy to take the blows for the rules and regulations which are made in the legislature and the cabinet. Unpopular and silly little liquor laws are quite properly the responsibility of the Ontario Government.

If everyone, who takes an occasional glass of beer, remembers this at the next election the results would be quite remarkable — and this sort of nitpicking nonsense would quickly disappear from the statute books.

TODAY IN HISTORY

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Oct. 7, 1970 . . .

An American revolutionary force under George Washington was routed at Chadds Ford, Pa., 193 years ago today—in 1777—by the British American Regiment, now the Queen's York Regiment, one of Canada's oldest military units. The regiment was organized before the revolution by Robert Rogers—famed for his Rogers' Rangers—but later was moved to Toronto by Lt.-Col. John Graves Simcoe, first lieutenant-governor of Upper Canada, who organized them as the Rangers.

1838—The United Nations General Assembly gave moral approval to the occupation of all Korea by United Nations troops.

1938—Germany extended $60 million in credits to Turkey for the purchase of war materials.

1910—A Rainy River forest fire, swept by a tornado, took 42 lives.

A Member of the 'Now' Generation Says His Piece

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I read with interest and concern the letter submitted by C. Boisvert (Intelligencer, Sept. 28.). Her view (I'm only presuming that C. Boisvert is a she) is synonymous, I think, with the views of many Belleville adults. As a member of today's youth—drug oriented, hedonistic and sexually permissive society, I must reply.

Her letter begins with the usual hackneyed statements — that there are no moral principles left in the system; that many of today's youth have no sense of responsibility. Why this obsession with morality? The new generation does openly what the previous generation did stealthily and with guilty feelings. There's so much to do in life. One just can't sit back and become neurotic about the future, about responsibility.

Everyone wants to live a useful, happy, successful life, but many young adults, myself included, have no desire to achieve what others would regard as success. Success has many meanings. Youth today are challenging the fundamental premises on which their elders have based their lives. And since many parents see their kids as extensions of their own egos and try to instill in them certain values that they held dear — there has to be a confrontation and in many cases — a communication gap.

Every advance in civilization has been denounced as unnatural while it was recent. You can con—ith all you want about th— r hair, music, and life — r of the day. Think about th— r values, they're little drop-in centre; about the language, the drug use, and the social and political attitudes of high school and college students. Realize that it will do no good. If you are a mature, intelligent adult, you will not be threatened by the strange, new culture that exists today.

Some adults complain that their kids can't find themselves; they don't appear interested in the future; they live only for today. This is untrue, but what is so terribly wrong in living one day at a time, following the 'yesterday's dead and tomorrow's blind' philosophy? Why shouldn't you wake up each morning and consider it as the first day of the rest of your life?

The major portion of C. Boisvert's letter, however, concerned man's spiritual needs. She stated that the spiritual need is most important as the foundation of a well-grounded life. I do not want to go into any philosophical, theological arguments — they are too lengthy and numerous. But since she based her view solely on that much mis-understood word called "faith", I would like to present the other side.

No intellectual argument moves people to believe in God. Most believe simply because they have been conditioned to do so from infancy. One has only to read Bertrand Russell to discover certain valid facts that cannot be dismissed by believer or non-believer. The more intense the religion of any period of history, the greater has been the cruelty, and the worse the state of affairs. Christianity has always been the religion of persecution, unlike Buddhism or other religions.

Many teens are turned off by the church but not because it is considered the "in" thing to do. Many realize, as Russell did that to the church, the object of morals is not to make people happy. Masters and Johnson say that Orthodox religion is the greatest cause of "almost every form of human sexual problem".

C. Boisvert states that "our nations are falling apart because of spiritual slackness". I believe, unequivocally, that even if everyone in the United States went to church and there was no such entity as Communism, that the U.S. would still figure out a way to fall apart — for that is the destiny of any vert states that belief in Living Christ has rescued many a dope addict and alcoholic. But the addict himself who makes up his mind to kick the habit and does so. If he believes that it was God who helped him through, that is his prerogative. A majority of people need some kind of a crutch to get through life in one form or another — be drug excess, alcohol or Christ. A majority of people are not intelligent enough to make their own decisions and find it necessary to consult a psychiatrist, write to Ann Landers, or drop in their home and beg' help from a Person whose word and deed is ascribed for only in our Sacred Bible which we'll after said Person was dead.

I did not intend to write this letter sound like an Agnostic's Guide but there is so much to the field of religion that people are too lazy or too afraid to find out about. I don't know why? Such an important part of one's life should have a more substantial basis than hearsay and myth.

In conclusion, as long as there are parents, and as long as parents continue to have children, parents will continue to worry about them. But whether any need to worry about youth in general. Now or fifty years hence. I'll let Joseph Dorbert close for me — "Today's youth needs models more than they need critics". Right on Belleville parents.

Peace.

PAUL NARAS.

Peer Opposes Legal Curb On Reporting

GLENEAGLES, Scotland (CP) — Lord Shawcross, former British attorney-general, said Tuesday that proposed British legislation to restrict press intrusion on individual privacy would create more mischief than any public interest would warrant.

Lord Shawcross, a former Labor politician who later headed a royal commission on the press and now is a director of Lord Thomson's Times Newspapers, addressed the conference of the Commonwealth Press Union.

In the keynote speech during a discussion on press freedom and individual rights, he criticized a proposal by Justice, an association of British lawyers, for legislation to make it an offence to stage an "unwarranted" invasion on an individual's privacy.

The law of libel already imposed excessive restrictions on this freedom. Further restrictions would far outweigh benefits to individuals and the administration of such a law was bound to be arbitrary.

Shawcross said there must be occasions when invasion of privacy is justified. It was the duty and right of the press to expose such things as wrongdoing and publish them. The borderline of unjustified invasion of privacy would be extremely hard to define in law.

It was feeble for the press to have voluntary self-restraint.

"Any attempt to legislate along the suggested lines would result in a public disadvantage. The alternative is for the press to see that the highest standards of behavior are maintained.

"But the public is entitled to be told the truth after honest editorial consideration. That's what newspapers are all about."

Later in a discussion on parliament and the press, Sir Thomas Blackburn, former chairman of Beaverbrook Newspapers, said it is the duty of the press to oppose and delay objectionable government policies in the interest of seeking the public get a fair deal.

"It is also our duty to see that legislation does not erode freedom of expression," he said.

T. E. Nichols, publisher of the Hamilton Spectator, told the meeting that Canada has been getting "creeping forms of tutelage of the press" from government.

Apart from a senatorial investigation and the federal government's creation of Information Canada, there was a "very ingenious assault" on advertising. In this process, Consumer Affairs Minister Ron Basford had stated recently that the greatest pollution in Canada was excessive advertising and that his department was considering curbs on it.

Replying to this, Nichols said: "The free press was nothing until advertising made it so."

But he added that perhaps it should be remembered that this was where the press was most vulnerable.

Defence Insanity Plea Not Fought by Crown

COBOURG, Ont. (CP) — The defence attorney at the non-capital murder trial of Randy Clay Dawson 18, admitted Tuesday that his client, aged 15 at the time, used force "to stop the breath of ..... Gail Ruth Mohns, thus causing death."

In a signed statement, defence attorney Terrence Kelly admitted evidence of the Crown. He said he would try to prove the youth is insane.

Crown attorney Geoffrey Bonnycastle said Dawson could be defended on the basis of insanity; apparently he was suffering from a "disease of the mind."

Dawson is charged with the strangulation of Miss Mohns, 19 whose body was found April 24 at her parents' farm in Darlington Township.

Mr. Kelly sought to establish Dawson's insanity by calling on two psychiatrists, a police inspector and the youth's father to describe the accused's mental state.

Their testimony was not challenged by Mr. Bonnycastle.

Dr. Stanley Hrsb, a forensic scientist from the Clark Institute, Toronto described Dawson's personality as one of "fleetness, immaturity and shy." He said the youth's lack of emotional reaction was like an "ice cap on a volcano."

Dawson had been referred to the institute for a 30-day examination May 27.

Dr. Claude McKnight, chief of the institute's forensic services division, testified that Dawson could have killed without making any qualitative judgment.

The defence and the Crown concluded their summaries Tuesday. Mr. Justice Abraham Lieff of the Ontario Supreme Court was to address the jury today.

Beer Bad, Girl OK

TORONTO (CP) — Public morals were not at stake when a ban was placed on the outdoor poster display of a buxom girl in low-neck blouse advertising "Canada's great beer festival," Provincial Secretary Robert Welch said.

Mr. Welch said the poster, advertising the Oktoberfest in Kitchener this week, violated a section of the Liquor Control Act which prohibits outdoor advertising of alcoholic beverages.

Prices Body Will Continue

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal police and incomes commission may appear on its last legs, but chairman John Young says it won't lie down.

He is supported by government leaders and the persistence of reported hints that if business and labor won't go along with voluntary pay and price restraint, the government might make them compulsory.

With his 1970 price-restraint program running down and his pay-curbs formula ragged from repeated violations, Dr. Young nevertheless made clear in an interview he isn't finished yet. The commission mandate runs to Dec. 31, 1972.

Finance Minister E. J. Benson says the same thing. He gave Dr. Young and his 15-month-old agency the government's renewed blessing in a speech last weekend.

Prime Minister Trudeau has been denouncing "big business and big labor" in weekend speeches for foot-dragging in the campaign for pay and price stability, leaving unspoken the implied threat that compulsion would work where co-operation fails.

Mr. Benson's public pledge of "the strong support of the federal government" coincides with an attempt by the commission to renew a voluntary price-restraint program in co-operation with business leaders who express disenchantment privately.

Dr. Young says the commission also will persist with efforts to exert balancing pressure on pay increases, although labor leaders have rebuffed him repeatedly.

He meets privately Thursday in Montreal with leaders of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, the Canadian Manufacturers Association and the Canadian Retail Council to seek approval for extension or meaningful replacement of the price-restraint formula agreed to last February and expiring Dec. 31.

The Montreal meeting will follow announcement today of the commission's critical verdict on four settlements granted employees of the Loblaws, Steinbergs and Dominion Stores grocery chains that this year exceed the proposed general maximum of six per cent.

That statement could provide a marginal support for Dr. Young's efforts to counter the business argument: No crackdown on pay increases, no extension of price restraint programs.

One businessman, close to preliminary talks preceding the Montreal meeting, says chances are extremely remote for agreement on an extended prices program.

Tire Stud Debate Sparks Meeting

MONTREAL (CP) — The ease for and against studded tires stole the limelight Tuesday at the annual convention of the Canadian Good Roads Association.

The issue was debated between Ontario highway researchers and manufacturers of tire studs as the convention entered its second day.

Ontario announced a ban on studded tires last month when studies showed they were responsible for excessive damage to paved roads.

The ban, effective April 30, 1971, will also apply to out-of-province vehicles travelling on Ontario highways.

Ontario's case was presented by a technical paper written by Peter Smith, head of the research and transportation systems branch of the Ontario department of highways.

Mr. Smith used color slides to illustrate wear on paved and concrete roads caused by studded tires. In some instances, roads were completely worn to the earth base under the pavement.

"We get no measurable wear on such roads in the summer when non-studded tires are used," he told delegates.

In a summary of the research paper, Mr. Smith admitted that studded tires greatly increased stopping distances on glare ice.

However on sanded winter roads or wet and dry pavement, studded tires stopped a vehicle within about the same distance as those equipped with unstudded snow tires or normal summer tires.

"So the question is: How much glare ice exists in Ontario?"

Research indicated that icy or freezing rain conditions occur about one day out of every 100 during Ontario winters.

Therefore, the paper concluded that the damage done to pavement roads far outweighed the advantages provided by the studs.

Tony Baldock, vice-president of the Tire Stud Manufacturers Institute, asked whether the government researchers had been able to isolate wear caused by studs and that caused by normal traffic, salt and sand abrasion and snow tires.

Mr. Smith said studies conducted three years ago before the introduction of tire studs revealed little surface wear on certain highways during the winter.

Always Let Him Know You Enjoyed Yourself

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: I am 37, divorced, and employed as a secretary. Another employee in the same company has singled me out at office functions and has also taken me out a couple of times.

We had a dance last month. When I was in his company I found him moody and it made me very nervous. I am still upset about it and afraid I might make a pest of myself. In fact, I find that with someone I care about, I am always putting up a barrier to let on that I don't care when I really do.

How can I graciously let him know that I like him without him thinking I am out to hook him, or even chasing him (which probably indirectly I am — chasing, that is)? — Muddled Up.

Dear Muddled: Perhaps there is a bit of "once bitten, twice shy" in your feelings. Doubtless you have been hurt in the past and now you have your defences up. To let on you care would leave you once more vulnerable.

Yet men have feelings too, and you are going to have to forgive your doubts by being kind and friendly to him. When he asks you out be sure you let him know you enjoyed yourself, without being over - demonstrative.

Keep relaxed. If the modern turns out to be part of his personality either accept it or write him off. Just don't let your anxiety show through!

• • •

Dear Doris: Friends of ours are celebrating their 25th anniversary. Last night she said she wasn't planning on wearing a hat, and her sister-in-law told her it was a must. This is to be a come - and - go with buffet supper for relatives. Does she really have to wear a hat?

Also, does the couple have to stand up and shake hands when people come up to them? — Silver Wedding.

Dear Silver: There's not the same accent on hats that used to be. It's optional in your friend's case, and if she is having the reception at home a hat seems almost silly.

It would be courteous for the couple to rise to shake hands — unless there is some medical reason they would find this too tiring. It is different with couples who are 50 years married and just haven't got the same get-up-and-go that they used to have. They remain seated.

Confidential to Husband Missing: Your own Family Service or Salvation Army may be able to help in the hunt. But your husband can hardly help with your son's education if the rumors are true. You just can't squeeze blood from a stone — which means that even if he is in debt the courts are helpless to collect from a jobless alcoholic.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "Betsy reached up and got ahold of the handle of a pan on the stove. Fortunately, the water wasn't boiling hot. I didn't realize she could reach so high."

The handle of a pan sticking out from the stove is tempting to a curious small child, and a little pull can overbalance the pan and spill the contents on a child's face.

Always turn handles of pots and pans around, backward or sideways, out of reach of small children. Even a tiny tot can reach higher than you might think.

THE SNUGGLERS

When the snow flurries start to fly you'll cause a flurry of excitement in one of these sumptuous fun furs. Snuggle into the luxurious warmth of genuine raccoon or muskrat and button out the cold Winter air. All styles are single breasted and are available in sizes 10 to 14.

And here's another warming idea . . . you can charge it on your Walker's Option Charge.

STYLE 1 — MUSKRAT $260

STYLE 2 — RACCOON $250

STYLE 3 — MUSKRAT slightly fitted with black belt $260

Ask Judy . . .

Q. How can I avoid getting a cold this Winter?

A. Take one fun fur, mix well with accessories, and wear as often as needed.

City Secretary Delegates Enjoy Area Convention

Seven members of the Gemma Mu Chapter were among the 18 Sigma Phi Sorority delegates from Belleville who attended Provincial Post "JW", the Southwestern Ontario Area convention held on Oct. 2, 3 and 4 in Kitchener-Waterloo. Among Gemma Mu members who attended were Patti Eshoca, publicity chairman; Evelyn Bailey, service chairman; Lorna Smith, treasurer; Mary Ellen Rowland, recording secretary; Marg Sherry, president; Marg Anderson, past-president and Anne Gray, member.

Convention activities started with a "hoBraw" (beer party) held in the Grand Ballroom of the Inn of the Black Walnut where most of the convention delegates were staying. Guests were welcomed by Jules Rauchtuns, this year's Mr. Oktoberfest. A long-along led by Mr. Rauchtuns was followed by an entertainment by some local German dancers. The buffet included some local delicacies such as sauerkraut, oktoberfest sausage and pig's tails. Skits were presented by the delegates from London and Toronto as both cities were bidding to hold the 1973 convention.

On Saturday some of the members enjoyed a tour of the Kitchener market before the convention forums began at 9 a.m. Speakers at the forums included Donald L. Willcox, director of promotions and public relations, Central Ontario Television Ltd., Jack Ross, executive vice-president of Beta Sigma Phi and Dr. J. W. Zonecko, director of research and administration, University of Waterloo.

Guest speaker at the luncheon that followed was Edna Staebler, author of "Food that Really Schmecks" and "Sauerkraut and Enterprise". Each one received an autographed copy of the latter book and Mrs. Staebler was made an honorary member of Beta Sigma Phi.

A punch party, dinner and a trip to Stratford to see "The School for Scandal," by Richard Sheridan were enjoyed by all. On Sunday morning a flea market was held at the Inn of the Black Walnut where delegates had a chance to buy and sell treasures before attending the farewell luncheon. Guest speaker at this luncheon was Mrs. Henry Krug, international honorary member of the sorority.

To bring the weekend to a close the 500 sorority sisters took part in a closing ritual and by the light of 500 candles took leave of each other until they meet in Brantford for the 1971 convention.

RENEFACTOR DIES

TORONTO (CP) — William Dawson, a prominent who donated $5,000 to the Hospital for Sick Children last winter, died recently. A search of the man's room also revealed $3,000 hidden in dresser drawn and under newspapers.

Nobles – Long

MR. AND MRS. THOMAS NOBLES –

St. Peter's Church, Trenton was the scene of the Sept. 26 wedding of Barbara Ann Long, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Long of Trenton and Thomas Robert Nobles, son of Mr. and Mrs. Mack Nobles of Belleville. Rev. Father W. J. Grainger conducted the ceremony and Mrs. Marie Ross provided music for the occasion.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father wore a full up the aisle in a floor - length empire style gown of white crystalline with the bodice of alencon lace. The gown featured a satin underlay encrusted with seed pearls and had full bishop sleeves. A matching train trimmed with alencon lace fell from the empire waistline. A crystalline rose with crystal stamens topped her hair and was held in place by a four tiered scalloped silk illusion veil. She carried a cascade of Woburn Abbey roses and stephanotis.

Matron of honor Mrs. Marilyn Bourgoin, the bride's sister wore an emerald green empire style gown of peau de soie with a matching headpiece and accessories and carried a bouquet of orange carnations. The bridesmaids Miss Karen Willman and Miss Donna Bourgoin were costumes similar in that of the matron of honor but in orange ice.

The best man was Ron Painter and the ushers were Paul Nobles, brother of the bridegroom and Sterling Belch.

Chapter 55 Ontario Eastern Star Conducts Installation Ceremony

On Friday evening the colorful ceremony of installation of officers of Belleville Chapter No. 55, Order of the Eastern Star took place in the Masonic Temple on Victoria Ave. Members of the Order filled the auditorium for the event, coming from many other Chapters, including Welland, St. Catharines, Ottawa, Brighton, Napanee, Port Hope, Cobourg, Colborne, Brighton, Warkworth, Campbellford, Trenton, Picton, Wellington, Ameliasburg, Madoc, Marmora, Havelock, Peterborough, Bancroft, Tweed and Minerva Chapter, Belleville.

Among the distinguished guests were Mr. Earl McKeever, Past Grand Patron of the Grand Chapter of Ontario; Mrs. Verna Young, Grand Electa of the Grand Chapter; Mrs. Mary Bedford, District Deputy Grand Matron of District No. 12; Mr. George Jackson P.P. and Grand Representative of British Columbia; Mrs. Wynne Tomlinson P.M. and Grand Representative of the State of Colorado; Roy Brickman P.P. and Grand Representative of the State of Indiana. Also 15 Past District Deputy Grand Matrons; many presiding Worthy Matrons and Worthy Patrons from other chapters; and a large number of Past Matrons and Past Patrons. All were welcomed by the Worthy Matron Mrs. Marjorie Gray and the Worthy Patron Mr. Robert Jones.

After the business of the Chapter had been conducted, the retiring Worthy Matron and Worthy Patron bade Fraternal farewell to their officers, thanking them for their co-operation and friendship throughout the year. They were presented with gifts from their officers by the Worthy Matron and Worthy Patron elect.

After a brief recess the new officers took their places for the ceremony of installation.

The East was beautifully decorated for the occasion with ferns and potted chrysanthemums in white and United blue, the Worthy Matron's colors.

The floral ceremony was done by Mrs. Myrtle Cross P.M., during which girls of small stature marched in the Star Point colors, and a silver chain with a small silver anchor, was presented to each Star Point officer.

Officers installed for the ensuing year were: Worthy Matron, Mrs. Dorothy Jones; Worthy Patron, Mr. Rex Chaplin; Associate Matron, Miss Jenna Stephenson; Associate Patron, Mr. Keith Elliott; secretary, Mrs. Wynne Tomlinson, P.M.; treasurer, Mrs. Pearl Johnston, P.M.; Conductress, Mrs. Laura Simpson; Associate Conductress, Mrs. Ivy Loveless; chaplain, Mrs. Dianne Plumpton; Marshal, Mrs. Florence Boughner; organist, Mrs. Cleta Elliott; Adah, Mrs. Nancy Jones; Ruth, Mrs. Evelyn Elliott; Esther, Mrs. Phyllis Smith; Marsha, Mrs. Bessie Hart; Electa, Mrs. Janet Hamilton; warder, Mrs. Ann Cashen, and sentinel, Harold Bassier.

During the ceremony Mrs. Florence Maddocks of Welland Chapter sang two solos. The chapter choir, under the direction of Sister Beverley Shaw, also sang two numbers; also during the installation and again during the signing of the Bible by the Immediate Past Matron and Patron.

The Past Matron's jewel was presented to Mrs. Marjorie Gray by her husband Earl Gray, PP, and the Past Patron's jewel was presented to Robert Jones by his daughter Mrs. Linda Keenan, and pinned on by his daughter, Mrs. Nancy Whitehead.

The newly installed Worthy Matron and Worthy Patron each addressed those present, stating how happy they were to have attained this high office, and thanked all who had assisted them along the way; saying they would fulfill their duties to the best of their ability, and always maintain the high ideals of the Order. They introduced the members of their families present, and said how pleased they were to have them with them on this memorable occasion.

Brief addresses were also given by the Installing Matron, the Installing Patron; the Past Grand Patron; Grand Electa; the District Deputy Grand Matron.

A social hour was enjoyed at the close, and a lunch prepared by the special lunch committee and served by the new officers.

A Thanksgiving Treat

Does your family prefer the white meat of the turkey? OR is a whole turkey too large for your family? Today Mary Moore gives the detailed recipe for stuffing and roasting a double breast of turkey for your Thanksgiving dinner.

Double Turkey Breasts for Small Family

By MARY MOORE

Sometimes you can buy the double breast of a turkey for 69 cents or 79 cents per pound. This pleases those who only like white meat no end. Another section of our society which likes the "breast only" idea are the two-and-three people families. Even a small whole bird is too big for their subsequent menus.

When I needed a double turkey breast to pretest for Thanksgiving I had to order it from the butcher and he obligingly cut up a 12-lb. bird. The breasts weighed four and one-third pounds and the bones, these was left in to give it the appearance of a small whole bird. This special order cost 89 cents per lb. but at that it was comparatively inexpensive. The butcher left on all of the skin from the neck so I filled the breast cavity with turkey stuffing and brought the neck skin up and over it and fastened it with skewers. There was one uncovered space inside the base of the breast bone so we crumpled up a ball of foil and crammed it into the opening to hold the stuffing in.

STUFFED DOUBLE TURKEY BREAST

. One 4 or 5 lb. double turkey breast (centre breast bone left in)

STUFFING:
3 tbsps. butter
1 tbsp. chopped onion ½ chives
½ to 1 tsp. savory
¼ tsp. salt
6 slices bread broken into crumbs (or crumbled in blender)
1-3 cup toasted slivered almonds (optional)

To make Stuffing melt butter and add onion or chives, savory, and salt and saute gently until onion is limp but not brown. Stir in bread crumbs and almonds if used. With skin side down on counter fill inside breast cavity with stuffing and stretch loose neck skin up and over stuffing. Secure it with skewers. If it does not cover entire amount of stuffing stop up the gap with a wad of foil. Transfer bird, skin side up to rack in roaster. Dry skin well and butter it. Cover with tent of foil and roast at 325 deg. Fahr. for 3½ hrs. Remove foil during last half hour. These amounts are for an average-sized double breast and served eight people very generously.

Senior Citizens Enjoy Bus Trip

STIRLING — Last Tuesday, 25 members of the Stirling Senior Citizens' Club and six non members travelled by chartered bus to Algonquin Park.

The first stop was at the home of Clarke Rollins MPP and Mrs. Rollins, at L'Amable where they were served a tasty luncheon in the spacious recreation room.

From there they travelled to Algonquin Park where they viewed the wonderful panorama of colors as this tree foliage was most striking. Later in the afternoon the group stopped to eat refreshments from their own box lunches.

Next stop was at the Dorset lookout tower which revealed a picture of beauty including shimmering lakes, Buttermilk Falls and other interesting points which made the trip a most memorable event.

On the return home, supper was enjoyed at a restaurant in Peterborough and then home by way of Marmora.

A vote of thanks was given the driver Franklin Smith and a special good-bye to Alice Sjoquist who was returning home to Kamloops, B.C. the next day. She had spent four months in the Stirling area.

Couple Mark 65th Anniversary

Two of Stirling's senior residents, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Belshaw, 77 Front Street, recently celebrated the 65th anniversary of their marriage.

The anniversary was celebrated at the home of Mrs. Belshaw's niece and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Striker of Frankford.

The couple, residents of the village for the past 62 years, were married at St. John's Anglican Church back in 1905.

Mr. Belshaw is a retired lumber merchant and is past president of the Stirling Horticultural Society. Until recently both have been active in church affairs.

Mrs. Belshaw, the former Gertrude Marrow, comes from River Valley. "A married couple must work and pull together," she says.

The couple received a plaque from Ontario Premier John P. Robarts. On their 60th anniversary they received a telegram of congratulations from Queen Elizabeth.

Mr. Belshaw is the present president of the Stirling Horticultural Society.

Ann Landers

Unhappy Daughter Indulges in Food

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My wife has thrown up her hands in disgust. I, a father, am writing to ask you for help with our 21-year-old daughter. The girl is 4'10" and weighs 140 pounds. As you can imagine, she looks like a tub of lard.

A thyroid problem has been ruled out by two physicians. They both said the girl eats too much, and she eats the wrong things. She has been on pills, diets and tried every gimmick in the world — except to stop stuffing her face.

ANN LANDERS

Of course she has no boyfriends. Who wants to be seen with a bowling ball? She is mad at the world and says the most fun she has is eating and she will not give it up. Since I also reads your column religiously we hope you will print this letter. She admires you a lot, Ann. Maybe you can knock some sense into her head. — FATSO'S POP, JACKSONVILLE, FLA.

DEAR JACKSON: "Sense" cannot be knocked into anybody's head. But your letter gives me some good clues as to why the girl overeats.

What she needs is complete silence from you on this subject, and some professional counseling. You have an unhappy daughter who has turned to food for comfort and satisfaction. And she's going to get fatter and fatter unless she gets some outside help.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Your unsympathetic approach to people who are married to snorers bothers me. Obviously your husband doesn't snore. You are lucky. The letter that really ticked me off was the one from the Hoosick, Kansas, girl who was afraid of marriage because she recalled the sleepless nights caused by her stepfather.

My heart ached when I read her words, "He shook the house." You can't realize what this means unless you've experienced it as I have.

My husband has been snoring in two octaves and three languages for the past 45 years. Our neighbors on both sides have heard him and commented on it. One night next to a fog horn like that can seem like a week. When a snorer turns over and stops snoring, you know your relief is temporary — that the snoring will start again soon. It's just like waiting for the other shoe to drop.

I love my husband very much but those nights when I drag my pillow and blanket to the sofa, my love wears pretty thin. I often wonder why HE never offers to sleep on the sofa so I can have the comfortable bed. It isn't only the snoring that bothers me, it's his lack of consideration. Comment, please. — DETROIT READER.

DEAR D.: You are obviously an authority on this subject and I can add nothing except my thanks for your candor. If misery loves company, be assured you are not alone. Not a day passes that I don't hear from someone who has this problem. Buenos noches and sweet dreams — when you can get 'em, Honey.

* * *

DEAR ANN: My husband started traveling for the company three years ago. I have repeatedly asked him to leave an itinerary so I can reach him in an emergency but he never does. True, he calls me often, but still I needed to find him last week and had to call his boss at 2.00 a.m. (My mother-in-law had a heart attack). It was embarrassing.

Today I asked him again and he said a woman who trusts her husband does not need to know where he is every minute. What do you think? — NO CHECKER.

DEAR NO: Every woman whose husband travels should know where she can reach him at all times. A man who has nothing to hide should have no qualms about giving her the information.

Consumers' Gas to Fight New Curbs on Lake Erie Oil Output

OTTAWA (CP) — Consumers' Gas Co. of Toronto said Tuesday it would fight new restrictions on oil production in Lake Erie and demand financial compensation if the Ontario government tries to enforce a ban.

"We will take all steps available to us to obtain this right to produce," said Harold Townsend, the company's production superintendent, in a speech at the annual convention of the Ontario Petroleum Institute.

Atlas Oil and Gas Co. of Vancouver and Chatham has challenged restrictions imposed on Lake Erie wells near Point Pelee.

Reacting angrily to restrictions announced at the conference Monday, Mr. Townsend said the company could not support a ban on oil production and exploration in the lake "without due process of law or financial reimbursement."

If the right to produce was withdrawn, "compensation is due the Consumers' Gas Co. for the ten oil fields discovered to date and the 38 million barrels of oil estimated to exist under the lands we lease in Lake Erie."

Mr. Townsend departed from the original text of his speech in angry protest against what he termed "crucifying restrictions" announced at the conference Monday by Ontario Mines Minister Allan Lawrence.

Mr. Lawrence said the government had decided to accept in principle restrictions recommended last spring by the International Joint Commission, the Canada-U.S. regulatory agency for border waterways.

The restrictions include a prohibition in Lake Erie on production of oil or of gas with "appreciable amounts" of oil liquids. All wells capable of producing oil should be plugged, the IJC said.

Further, the restrictions ban all drilling in the western end of Lake Erie or drilling elsewhere to the lake if there is a chance of hitting oil or wet gas.

Mr. Townsend accused the Ontario government of bending to pressure generated in newspapers and broadcasting about the alleged pollution threat of the oil and gas industry.

He said his company is willing to go along with suspension of oil production until it is satisfied safe and economical, but not with requirements to plug and abandon wells nor bans on restrictions on the ground that there were no adequate federal emergency provisions for dealing with oil spills.

The IJC recommended the restrictions on the ground that exploration

Brantford Company Is Warned

BRANTFORD (CP) — Harding Carpets Ltd. was threatened with court action Tuesday if it does not control pollution from its plant which residents say causes respiratory problems.

Harding was told in a letter from Hamilton lawyer Thomas A. Beckett, acting on behalf of people who live near the plant, that it has no legal rights to discharge effluents and wastes from its rug-dying operations.

The letter arrived as 50 McMaster University students set up picket lines at the plant in support of the residents.

Mr. Beckett's letter said George Kerr, minister of energy and resources management, has been asked what pollutants are being emitted by Harding operations but Mr. Kerr has indicated his department does not disclose such information.

A spokesman for the student pickets, members of McMaster's National Survival Day Committee, said the group learned Saturday that a chemical was found in the air around the plant.

The spokesman said the discovery was made by scientists engaged to do research in preparation for court action.

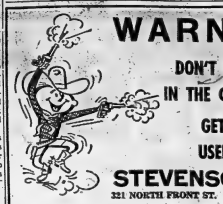
A Harding spokesman said the firm has been told by the air management branch of energy and resources management that the chemical is non-toxic.

He said the firm called tenders in 3 weeks for installation of anti-pollution equipment.

Pollution Barrier To Trade

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States may have to impose border taxes on imports or subsidize exports to pay for the added costs of reducing pollution if no international agreement can be reached, a commerce department official said Tuesday.

Harold C. Passer, assistant secretary of commerce for economic affairs, said international pollution standards would be the best way to equalize the costs of pollution control.



He spoke to a meeting of the National Association of Manufacturers and the Canadian Manufacturers' Association in Charlottesville, Va. The text of his speech was made available here.

Passer suggested that an international convention be convened to set standards, but cautioned that virtually unanimous agreement, at least among the major industrial nations, would be necessary if the standards were to be effective.

"If an international agreement on pollution standards cannot be reached, the U.S. may find it necessary to levy border taxes on imports and rebates on exports to reflect the added production costs of pollution standards," he said.

DOPE-FIEND MONKEY

CHICAGO (AP) — Police who raided a near North Side apartment looking for drugs wound up with a monkey on their back. A quantity of drugs was found in the apartment, officers said, but the only inhabitant appeared to be a monkey. The police license brought the monkey back to the station, where they notified the animal care section.

"I think I'll wait outside — I always get the feeling that florists, like furriers and jewelers are the natural enemies of man."

U.S. Tariff Body Backs Two Duty Exemptions

WASHINGTON (CP) — The United States tariff commission reported to president Nixon Tuesday that two controversial customs duty exemptions which benefit Canadian and other foreign manufacturers should be left in effect, he allowed to stand despite protests from organized American labor and despite surging imports.

The Canadian embassy here declined to comment officially on the report but on official described it as an "encouraging development in relations between Canada and the U.S. in the trade sector."

However, a spokesman for the powerful AFL-CIO, which has pressed for repeal of the exemptions, said the labor organization will continue its fight in Congress, where it has found support in the past from both labor-oriented and protectionist representatives and senators.

Approximately $340 million worth of goods entered the U.S. from Canada under the terms of the two exemptions in 1969, out of a total from all countries of $1,942 million.

Canada was the second largest exporter under the exemptions, after West Germany, but may have been the chief beneficiary since its exports generally contained larger proportions of exempt material than the German exports.

There was no immediate comment from either the tariff commission or the White House on what action, if any, the president now is likely to take.

Of the two exemptions, the more important allows components parts made in the U.S. to be sent abroad for assembly or incorporation into larger units. These can be re-imported to the U.S. without customs charges on the U.S.-made portion. The total value of imports under this section in 1969 was $1,640 million.

For Canada, this exemption involves such items as industrial tractors, civilian aircraft, air conditioners, office machines and a wide range of other goods valued in 1969 at $743 million, on which $6 million in duty was saved.

The second exemption covers articles made from base metals which are partially processed outside the U.S. and returned there for further processing. Of a total of $194 million in imports from all countries under this section last year, Canada accounted for $97 million, of which $53 million was duty free. Canada's share involved mainly transportation equipment, industrial machinery and processed aluminum.

In Ottawa, a trade department source expressed delight with the tariff commission's report, but added there had been little government concern about the report would recommend any policy change.

He said formal representations had been made by Canada to the U.S. government to retain the duty exemptions.

Low Foreign Aid Assailed

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian government has dealt a severe body blow to the cause of international development by rejecting the report of the Pearson commission, Prof. Gerald Helleiner of the University of Toronto political economy department charged Tuesday.

Prof. Helleiner told a subcommittee of the Commons external affairs committee that Canada "didn't get anywhere" in meeting a commitment made years ago to devote one per cent of its gross national product to foreign aid.

Neither was it proceeding energetically enough to meet the goal of .7 per cent of GNP in official government aid, as recommended for donor countries in the report of a World Bank commission headed by former prime minister Lester Pearson.

The only promise made in the government's policy statement on development aid earlier this year was that Canada would increase official aid next year by $60 million to about $355 million.

The resulting total would represent at the most only .61 per cent of GNP.

NEW PATRIARCH

Duke Makes Blanket Denial of Most Allegations at Inquiry

TORONTO (CP) — George Clinton Duke made a blanket denial Tuesday of most of the previous evidence at a judicial inquiry, contradicting testimony that he had traffic tickets fixed, that he held a gun at a woman's head, that he fired machine-gun bullets over Lake Ontario and that he beat his wife.

"Preposterous" and "stupid" was how he described allegations that he had gone out of his way to cultivate senior provincial police officers or that he had any improper relationship with John Papalia, Donald (Red) LeBarre or Daniel Gabarini, alleged to be men of known criminal activity.

The allegations against him were based on "some rumors, blackyard-fence gossip and agitation," the Oakville, Ont., businessman told the inquiry.

"What have I done to earn it? Drunk some whisky? Driven a little fast?"

In his denials he clashed with inquiry counsel J. J. Robinette, who at one point asked him "what kind of a fool" he was.

Before the millionaire took the stand, the courtroom heard a sharp exchange between two OPP officers over their previous conflicting testimony regarding the circumstances around withdrawal of a careless driving charge against him.

Staff Supt. A. M. Rodger again denied testimony of Inspector J. H. Jones that the superintendent had instructed him to have the charge withdrawn because of insufficient evidence.

Insp. Jones glared across the room at his former commanding officer and repeatedly accused him of ordering the charge withdrawn.

Mr. Duke, tall and white-haired, has sat at the need for the inquiry, which resulted after Dr. Morton Shulman, New Democratic Party member of the legislature for Toronto High Park, alleged he was associating with senior OPP officers and men of known criminal activity.

"I believe this inquiry has cost the government a great deal of money," he said. "It has cost me my reputation. It has cost my corporation thirdreds of thousands of dollars in business."

He was the 99th witness before the hearing, conducted by Mr. Justice Campbell Grant of the Ontario Supreme Court.

He denied that:

—He had ever approached senior OPP personnel to intercede on his behalf on impaired-driving charges or speeding tickets.

—He had ever worn an OPP tie clip, allegedly given to him by OPP Commissioner Eric Silk or that he had flashed it to impress policemen who hailed him for traffic offences.

—He had ever held a gun to Hamilton fashion designer Elizabeth Citera's head as she alleged, although he was convicted of threatening her.

—He had ever shot bursts of machine-gun fire over Lake Ontario as a neighbor, G. R. Craddock has alleged, but had fired four or five blanks to test recoil action" on some guns.

Mr. Duke said he saw nothing abnormal in inviting OPP officials to his displays of his firm's lawn equipment or to social gatherings at his home, because they were potential buyers.

"I also invited representatives from most provincial departments and some from Quebec."

He said he pleaded guilty to the threatening charge in family court at Milton, Ont., although he was innocent, because he did not want his 40-year-old criminal record to come to light.

Another witness, Brian McLoughlin, a chartered accountant engaged by the inquiry, said he had investigated the books of Duke Lawn Equipment Ltd. and its subsidiary, Power Turf Equipment Ltd., and found no evidence of any unusual injections of capital.

Staff Supt. Kenneth Grice, head of the OPP's special services division, testified he conducted an extensive investigation of Mr. Duke's background. He checked RCMP and OPP records as well as those of the Hamilton, Burlington and Oakville police and consulting agencies in the U.S.

He found no evidence of criminal association with Mr. Papalia, Mr. LeBarre, Mr. Gasbarrini, the Mafia or any known criminal organization.

Mr. Duke, who holds 79 registrations for guns, denied that he drove around his estate in a golf cart with a machine-gun in it. He described the gun as a field gun and not a machine-gun as alleged by Mr. Craddock.

Sgt. Reinhardt entered as evidence a picture of the golf cart with Mr. Duke sitting in it and another man looking on. Mr. Duke described the other man as "a customer." To observers the weapon on the cart in the photo appeared to be a Danish Madsen light machine-gun.

Mr. Duke described the converted golf cart as "grandpa's tank." "My three-year-old grandson likes tanks and guns so I fixed up the golf cart so we could take a picture of him. It wasn't fixed and couldn't be fired unless it was bolted down."

HELL AND HAZARD by Henry Reyn.

This is the story of William Crockford, the father of modern bookmaking. By 1828 he had opened gambling halls all over London, culminating in Crockford's Club, where members were the cream of society and half the aristocracy of England were beggared, while Crockford amassed a personal fortune. An interesting account of the gambling scene in pre-Victorian London.

HIGHLY IRREGULAR by Bruce Hilton

At the time of the crisis in Biafra when relief flights were stalled for one reason or another, an Anglican pilot named Nicholas Tate's got the idea of by-passing normal channels to get food to the starving people. Two months later two wee surplus planes and six young men took off for Africa. Bruce Hilton's Highly Irregular is the story of what happened to the men and the mission.

Mr. Allen has given us an "in depth" picture of Spain. His desire to probe beneath the surface, combined with a gift for anecdote, has resulted in a lively and evocative portrayal of the country, which the guide books can never convey.

MEN WITHOUT MACHINES by Cottie Burland

Only in the 19th century has the study of man become systematized into new scientific disciplines, one of which is anthropology. This book is an excellent introduction to the culture of primitive societies, ranging from the Aborigines of Australia to the Maya of Central America. Sponsored by the American Museum of Natural History, it is lavishly illustrated and interestingly written.

COUNTERFEIT NAZI by Saul Friedlander

The "counterfeit spy" was Kurt Gerstein, a member of the German SS who was involved in the administration of camp. However, a man of deep religious convictions and haunted by feelings of guilt, he tried to inform the outside world of the Nazi atrocities and when no action was taken, he committed small acts of sabotage. This study of Gerstein illustrates the dilemma of many individual Germans.

WELLINGTON: THE YEARS OF THE SWORD by Elizabeth Longford

An excellent and well rounded biography of Arthur Wellesley, Duke Wellington. Lady LOongford is a descendant of Wellington's wife and she has researched both the family papers and the National Archives. The result is a picture of both the man and the military genius.

AGONY AT EASTER by Thomas M. Caffey

On Easter Monday, 1916, a few pikes, old rifles and homemade grenades launched an invasion of Dublin's General Post Office. Although the rebellion lasted only a week, out of the defeat of the rebels came a resurgence of Irish Nationalism and eventual independence. Mr. Coffey tells the story from the viewpoint of the Post Office during its week of siege, an hour-by-hour account which reads almost like a novel.

Co-ordination Lacking Medical Care Varies

TORONTO (CP) — The quality of medical care varies across Ontario because of a lack of co-ordination among segments of health services, provincial Health Minister Thomas Wells said Tuesday.

Individual health professions must recognize the benefits of a team approach, Mr. Wells told the Ontario chapter of the College of Family Physicians.

"What is needed is more co-ordination between family physicians, hospital facilities, and all different health professionals and agencies . . . so that the complete health resources of the community are known, are available to, and are used by, everyone."

Mr. Wells urged the training of nursing practitioners to ease the work load of doctors. He said nurses, trained to broaden their skills in dealing with patients, could handle patients with minor complaints in the atmosphere of a medical clinic, leaving doctors time to concentrate on more serious cases.

He said demonstration projects of nursing practitioners are under way at Toronto Western and Kingston hospitals.

Many doctors reject the plan because they fear lack of patient acceptance, Mr. Wells said. A section of the Ontario Medical Act, which says only doctors may give certain treatment, is another reason physicians do not like the proposal, Mr. Wells said.

But health legislation can be changed and, in Ontario, it is always under review, he said.

Animal Lovers Protest

Legislature Has Stormy Start

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario legislature, amid protests from picketing animal lovers outside, got off to a stormy start Tuesday after its summer recess, with issues ranging from tax relief to labor relations.

Among the issues was a program announced by Provincial Secretary Robert Welch on tax-relief measures for farmers and pensioners, at a cost of at least $37 million.

Outside, two groups were conducting demonstrations. About 120 students from Laurentian University, Sudbury, carried placards asking Education Minister William Davis to mediate a dispute between the university's senate and board of governors which has resulted in the senate calling a week-long recess of classes. Mr. Davis later met with the students.

In the other demonstration, about 30 women protested pending legislation to force animal shelters to give up unwanted animals for research.

The bill received royal assent last year but has not yet been proclaimed.

The tax program, heard by opposition members as election bait, also includes grants for municipal transit systems and a new tax system for the region of York and Peel County.

Treasurer Charles MacNaughton, outlining the program, said the tax relief to pensioners would cost about $27 million and a 25-per-cent relief to farmers would cost another $10 million. He said he will introduce supplementary estimates soon to provide for the cost.

Mr. MacNaughton said the government proposes an immediate four-point program: reduction of property tax paid by pensioners; tax relief for farmers; grants to some municipalities to provide public transit systems; and a new system of taxation for the reassessed region of York and Peel County.

He said the first payment in supplemental tax relief to pensioners who receive the federal guaranteed-income supplement would be made by the end of this year.

He said those paid the shelter allowance will be able to apply to their income, whether they live in their own home or a single room. Mr. MacLean said payment would be $360 to a household of husband and wife where both receive the federal benefit.

In other business:

— a bill to abolish Labor Stephen Lewis, newly-elected leader of the New Democratic Party, argued that proposed amendments to the Labor Relations Act were "a piece of deliberate class legislation." He said the bill deprives more than 300,000 workers earning $1.80 to $1.90 an hour of access to proper collective bargaining.

—Trade Minister Stanley Haskell said a $21,000 survey by his department will not be made public until the government has finished studying it.

Davis to Make Sale Difficult

TORONTO (CP) — Education Minister William Davis said Tuesday he will "meet infinities" to prevent the sale of the textbook division of W. J. Gage Ltd. of Toronto to a United States firm.

Mr. Davis said in an interview he would not prohibit the sale and that textbooks are bought by individual boards of education. But he indicated he could issue curriculum guidelines that would make it difficult for U.S. publishers to sell textbooks to Ontario schools.

Bob Cobbledick and Fruit of His Labor

Farmers Could Save By Direct Seeding

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON (Staff) — The Prince Edward County branch of the Ontario department of agriculture has taken "the direct approach" in experiments conducted recently for the future economic benefit of local tomato growers.

Robert Cobbledick, fruit and vegetable specialist for Prince Edward, experimented with the direct seeding of tomatoes. In the fields of eight county growers this spring.

For his project he selected four tomato varieties, Sub-Arctic Delight, Fireball, Heinz 1706 and Campbell's 28. Seeds were planted between May 21 and 25 in productive tomato fields. At each farm site 100 feet of space was allotted for an experimental patch, half of this ground lying under plastic mulch. This "mulch" is actually sheets of black paper coated with polythylene which absorbs heat, promoting faster growth. Moisture is conserved by the use of this mulch and weed growth prevented. The remaining 50 feet of soil was seeded directly without mulch.

Mr. Cobbledick explained that by contrasting the yield of plants grown in plastic mulch with that of plants grown directly from the soil he could determine the significance of the mulch to his project's success. He added that plastic mulch is "rather expensive" and at this time is likely to prove impractical.

Several types of soil were chosen for the experiment, among them pure sand, loam, sandy loam and clay. Irrigation was not used by any of the growers whose land was seeded for the experiments.

To get his project off the ground Mr. Cobbledick planted a limited quantity of vernalized seed, encouraging faster growth. He noted that vernalized seed is soaked in aerated water containing fertilizer until germination is about to begin. The seed is then dried and when planted germinates in the soil within two days. Seeds which have not been soaked require up to four days for germination to take place.

The direct seeding experiments were hampered by dry weather at the time of planting. Mr. Cobbledick observed that seeds were spaced one foot apart — a distance resulting in twice the plant density normally obtained by using transplants. He noted that satisfactory crops were "intended" since the plants were grown in soil fertilized for half the obtained plant population.

Although Mr. Cobbledick has not tabulated the final results of his experiments with direct seeding, he feels that this method eventually can offer Prince Edward tomato growers substantial savings. He remarked that growers now pay approximately $20 for a plant population of 4,000 per acre. If direct seeding can be successfully implemented, the cost of seed would be less than $75 per acre. Mr. Cobbledick said that seeds would be sown with expectations of a plant population of 20,000.

He suggested that local growers could use transplants for a percentage of their tomato crop, relying on direct seeding for the balance.

Plants grown by direct seeding in Mr. Cobbledick's experiments were ready for their first picking during the first week of September. Earlier seeding possibly could have led to picking in the month of August.

If Prince Edward County tomato growers eventually turn to direct seeding for a percentage of their acreage, Mr. Cobbledick predicts a marked reduction in their input costs. He reported that farmers now must pay approximately $125 an acre using transplants. Direct seeding conceivably could pare this figure to $100.

Next year Mr. Cobbledick hopes to grow two quarter-acre experimental patches of direct seeded tomatoes using a hydro-seeder borrowed from the University of Guelph for planting. This seeder presses a ½" deep groove in the soil, then washes about five seeds into the groove at one foot intervals. Vermiculite, an inert water - holding substance resembling chipped styrofoam, then fills the groove.

Direct seeding is one of several topics Mr. Cobbledick expects to discuss at an open meeting in Belleville this winter. He plans to talk with Hastings and Prince Edward farmers concerning a wide range of farm problems and new methods of farming.

Monument To Be Cleaned

The veterans' monument at the city's Memorial Park honoring fallen heroes of two world wars is to receive a facelifting before Remembrance Day ceremonies.

William Campbell, of the Campbell Monument Company on Bridge Street, has volunteered to clean the monument at no cost to the city or parks board. Board members at their last meeting accepted the offer and in giving approval complimented Mr. Campbell for his interest in the city.

Cleaning of the monument to erase the grime of the elements will be carried out on October 24 — well before Memorial Day ceremonies.

An acid solution, sprayed on with water pressure, will be used to clean the stonework.

Approval Sought For Subdivision

TRENTON (Staff) — Preliminary plans were revealed last night for a new subdivision to be built in the Kidd-Byron St. area.

The Trenton and Suburban Planning Board examined the proposed development before sending it to Toronto for Ontario Municipal Board approval.

Developers of the subdivision are Thomas Fleming, Stan Klemencic and Austin Scott, all of Trenton.

Negotiations between the town and the developers for a subdividers' agreement will begin shortly, while OMB sanction of the draft plan is being sought.

Mr. Fleming told the planning board that purchase prices for the bulk of new homes in the subdivision would be under $20,000.

Subdividers still have certain properties to acquire before the scheme can get under way. They propose to begin construction next spring.

Time Limit Can Be Frustrating For Manpower Retraining Students

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

What price equality?

If all men (and women) were created equal in fact, as well as by declaration of idealists, there would be happier people at Loyalist.

This fact emerges from a study of the plight of several of the brighter students in the Manpower Retraining classes at Loyalist College here.

An all-out push to climb to the top of the academic ladder apparently doesn't always pay off — and leaves some with the rungs sawn off beneath them.

Take the case of the young woman with a grade 8 education, who began academic upgrading last January with grade 12 her goal.

Theoretically it's impossible — in the 52 weeks of retraining she is allowed she can compete only three grades of high school. But by furious application she got all her subjects in grades 9 to 12, except mathematics. She could have had, and her grade 12 certificate, if allowed to stay on course until the end of this January. However, she has been informed that she must go off course Oct. 30.

The culprit in her case, and many others in the retraining program, is not officious bureaucracy, but an act of the Canadian government often aspirations of Manpower at variance with the hopes and trainees.

The government permits a qualified candidate to take 52 weeks of retraining to upgrade his academic qualifications. This training is purchased by the local Manpower office from Loyalist College in 16-week segments. In each 16-week period the trainee can complete one grade of schooling.

Since the three segments account for only 48 weeks, the trainee may have his training period extended by four weeks if the extra time will allow him to complete his grade. But after that comes the chop.

There is a way around the regulation, but at a price.

By paying $2 a week tuition to Loyalist, the student may remain until he accomplishes his goal. But his living allowance from Manpower is cut off, and he must find a source of supporting himself until the course is completed.

In the case of the young housewife mentioned earlier, this solution is impossible.

She and her husband need their combined income to keep their household operating. He cannot afford to assume the costs of her transportation and babysitters for their two young children — the expense on her retraining allowance went to pay.

Manpower allowances, ranging from a minimum of $42 a week for a trainee without dependents to a maximum of $88 a week to one with four or more dependents, is tax free.

But out of this sum, the trainee is expected to pay for his own hospitalization and medical insurance and there are no Canada Pension deductions.

The trainee in question will leave Loyalist at the end of the month with her grade 10 diploma and most of the requirements for grades 11 and 12 completed.

"But what kind of job can I get with grade 10?" she asked. "With just a little more time I could have grade 12 and be of some use to an employer."

The Manpower act, designed to help the unemployed get ahead through academic upgrading, can operate in effect, to penalize the bright and ambitious.

This trainee, again like so many others at Loyalist, is a victim of herself, and an act of self-discovery.

She originally signed to complete grade 8 and take a one - month keypunch operator course in Toronto to fit her for a factory job.

But after she reached Loyalist she discovered a potential in herself for study and learning that she had never suspected before.

This is a common occurrence, says the retraining division's principal, M. B. Moran.

"Many of our people, who have been told in public schools that they are stupid, find out here that they are smarter than they thought. And we have teachers who are experts at motivating students," he says.

So many trainees, originally after one or two years of upgrading, decide to forge ahead to capture the magic key that opens the door to most job opportunities — a grade 12 diploma.

And those who started out with only grade 8 or less don't quite make it. They are cut off allowances with only a few weeks to go to completion of grade 12.

The result is bitterness and frustration all around — on the part of Manpower as well as its trainees.

What the students don't realize is that they are victims of the game of keeping up with the Joneses — in this case, the neighbors over the southern boundary.

The legislation setting up the Manpower retraining scheme was the outcome of an Economic Council of Canada report five or six years ago.

The council found that the average Canadian worker was three academic grades behind his American counterpart, and this in its opinion, was one reason for the low or productivity of Canadian industries.

In an effort to bring up the standard of living of the whole population by three grades, the Manpower retraining scheme was started and the 52 - week limit set.

The government's not interested in giving every marginal or unemployable worker that magic grade 12 diploma — only in raising his academic achievement by three grades, regardless of where he started.

Manpower counsellor here are amazed at the number of people in the working force with less than a grade 8 education.

Many who apply for retraining are functional illiterates, and they learn to read and write on the course.

The act setting up the scheme specifies that the purpose of academic upgrading is to give a student the qualifications he needs for admission to a skill training (or trades) course. Most of these require only grade 10. Manpower can purchase only one year of skill or trades training for a student, and this must lead to a certificate or diploma. The department cannot, for instance, buy the first year of a three-year Loyalist technical course for a Manpower student.

Nor can the department buy grade 13 or university training for a student.

Although no one will admit it officially, the Manpower people used to interpret the law more by the spirit than by the letter. Some leeway was given the student with only a short time to go to finish grade 12. But with unemployment rising steadily and

Cottage Subdivision Decision Is Pending

AMELIASBURG (Special) — The results of an on-site inspection at the proposed cottage subdivision development at Massassaga Point south of Belleville yesterday will be made public in the coming week.

Yesterday a delegation comprising representatives from the department of municipal affairs community planning branch, the OWRC, Prince Edward County Health and conservation authorities and township council and planning board toured shorefront properties with George Prue, a principal of Lakeland Properties, which has made application to develop 280 lots at the location.

The proposed subdivision includes 16 lots already approved on a plan for former owner Carmen Coon. Lakeland Properties is going ahead with development of the smaller holdings.

Following discussions with the developer and other agencies involved, senior planner G. M. Farrow reported he would study all the presentations and come up with a decision next week.

Afterward a township official said he understood there would be a suggestion for modification to the scale of the proposed development that might be acceptable to everyone.

Any approval by the community planning branch of the department of municipal affairs still has to obtain the sanction of the other agencies involved before development can proceed.

'A Calamity for Belleville'

From the pages of history comes the above quote, made at the time of the Hotel Quinte fire on Jan. 4, 1907. An Intelligencer reporter the day after termed the fire "the worst calamity that has befallen Belleville for many years — if not in its entire history." This never-before-published photograph was taken the morning following the fire. The picture was loaned by W. G. Rowland who believes it was taken by his mother. The fire, which caused damage estimated at the time to be $100,000, left the building gutted and the annex slightly damaged. Firemen worked from 9:48 p.m., when the alarm was reported, through the night, returning in the morning as fresh flames erupted. Fire fighters can be seen here as they pour water into the smoking ruins. The fire, attributed to faulty electric wiring, brought about only minor personal injuries.

Reds May Find Baltimore Draws Power from White House

BALTIMORE (AP) — Baltimore Orioles could be at a disadvantage playing World Series games on Cincinnati's artificial turf, but the Reds may face a stiffer challenge when they encounter Baltimore's infamous hitting background.

Ever since the Orioles returned to the major leagues in 1954, batters have complained about the white boxes which form the chief backdrop in centre field.

Gripes don't come only from the opposition. The Orioles complain, too.

Trees planted beyond the fence haven't grown high enough, and there has been talk about erecting a fence just to provide the proper dark background.

At an Orioles' stockholders' meeting, a minor stockholder took note of the constant complaints and suggested that the club offer to foot the bill for painting the boxes across the street a different color.

"The Reds are going to be shocked when they see the ball come out of those white houses," said Baltimore manager Earl Weaver.

"It may take them two games to see the ball. That's a fact."

Even Minnesota Twins, who play at least six games in Memorial Stadium every year, complained after Jim Palmer held them to seven hits and struck out 12 in Baltimore's 6-1 American League pennant clincher on Monday.

"This has always been a bad ball park for me to hit in," said Harmon Killebrew.

As for the Cincinnati Astroturf, Weaver contends it "won't be a factor at all."

"In fact," he said, "our field is more unpredictable.

"Green on top of dirt differs from day to day because of the amount of moisture in the air or on the ground. The infield might be fast or slow depending on Mother Nature. On Astrotorf, after you field a few grounders you know exactly what the ball is going to do."

Baltimore outfielder Frank Robinson, who played in the all-star game at Cincinnati, said both infielders and outfielders have to play deeper on the Astroturf because the ball travels faster.

Second baseman Dave Johnson said he thought the artificial surface in Cincinnati was deeper than in other parks, providing a softer bounce.

"I think the big adjustment is deciding how far to play back," he said. "But after practising there Friday, we shouldn't have any trouble."

The Orioles have three infielders who were given "Golden Glove" awards after being voted the best in the American League at their positions last season—Johnson, shortstop Mark Belanger and third baseman Brooks Robinson.

First baseman Boog Powell failed to win and completes an Oriole infield sweep. But, Johnson pointed out: "Booger had 131 runs batted in this year."

Palmer's Even Dozen Earns Him Opener

BALTIMORE (AP) — Jim Palmer, who struck out 13 while hurling Baltimore Orioles' American League pennant-clinching victory, was named today as Baltimore's starting pitcher in the first game of the World Series.

"Palmer's last performance has nothing to do with it," said Orioles' manager Earl Weaver as he named the right-handed to pitch Saturday in Cincinnati.

"He's just the best bet to go against the Reds, who have all that right-handed power down the middle."

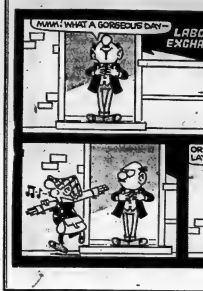
Cincinnati's home run hitters, Johnny Bench, Tony Perez and Lee May, are right-handed batters. Pete Rose is a switch hitter, and left-handed swinging Bob Tolan hit .335 against left-handed pitchers.

Baltimore southpaws Mike Cuellar and Dave McNally started the first two playoff games against Minnesota Twins, with Palmer saved for the finale of the three-game sweep.

Anderson Sees Series As Throwback to 50's

CINCINNATI (AP) — Sparky Anderson sees the Baltimore-Cincinnati World Series showdown as a throwback to the classic duels the old Brooklyn Dodgers and New York Yankees waged in the 1950s.

"This is the series people have been waiting for five years," the Cincinnati Reds' manager said Tuesday.



"It's like the Yankees against the Dodgers," the first rookie National League pennant-winning pilot in 34 years said. "There has been so much publicity on both the Orioles and us."

Anderson, fired six years ago by Toronto Maple Leafs of the International League, refused to forecast a Reds' triumph in the series starting Saturday in Riverfront Stadium.

Howsam Hopes Orioles Can't Cross Generation Gap

CINCINNATI (AP) — Bob Howsam, Cincinnati reds' general manager, in his three years has put together two youngest team in the National League, and the best.

Of the 25 World Series eligibles against Baltimore Orioles, only four Reds are 30 or older. The oldest regulars, both only 28 are right fielder Pete Rose and second baseman Tommy Helms.

The pitchers are so young it must cause rival managers many sleepless nights.

Don Gullet is 19, Milt Wilcox 20, opening World Series starter Gary Nolan 22, Wayne Granger and Jim Merritt 26 and Jim McGlothlin 27.

Tony Cloninger, at 30, is the only pitcher of the 10-man mound staff past his 20s.

When Howsam left St. Louis Cardinals, came here he said: "I want people to say, 'There are three kinds of baseball players—good baseball players, major league baseball players and Cincinnati baseball players.'

"I want people to say, 'That's something special. That is the best.'".

He's nearing his goal with a heeled-up scouting staff—from seven to 17 now—and young playing talent, nurtured by patient Reds' manager Sparky Anderugh Pirates in the National League playoffs with kids like Gullet and Wilcox prompted Pirates manager Danny Murtagh to say:

"My confidence in kids goes so far, that the guy Anderson is a mad man."

The Reds are using seven No. 1 or No. 2 draft choices. Left fielder Bernie Carbo and pitcher Mel Behney, Gullet and Nolan were top picks and the Reds tapped catcher John Bench. infielder Darrell Chaney and Wilcox as second-round selections since the draft started in 1965.

Anderson has a ready answer for why he trusts the youngsters in critical situations.

"I've always been with kids. I understand them. I've been in their corner since spring training. That's the thing with these kids. They know you have faith in them."

Drabowsky Has Hunch

BALTIMORE (AP) — Myron (Moe) Drabowsky, the Polish-born refugee from Kansas City, has a hunch about the World Series.

"I think the Birds are going to do it," said the 35-year-old relief pitcher of Baltimore Orioles. "I'm just happy to be in it again."

Drabowsky, a hero of Baltimore's four-game World Series sweep over Los Angeles Dodgers in 1966, was at home in Chicago last year while the Orioles were meeting New York Mets.

Moe had just finished his first season with Kansas City Royals, and with no October games to play he turned to his avocation—drinking —for relaxation.

On the first day of the 1969 World Series in Baltimore, a plane circled Memorial Stadium trailing a banner for the benefit of the Orioles' bullpen crew: "Good Luck Birds. Beware of Moe."

you have to be careful he-

The Kansas City and Baltimore bullpens had been feuding all year—kissing fire-works at each other, painting the opposition's bullpen roof and putting goldfish in the water tank. Moe was the Royals' ringleader, with Eddie Watt and Pete Richert heading the Baltimore retaliatory measures.

On the second day of the 1969 series, Drabowsky had a seven-foot black snake delivered to the stadium by the Baltimore zoo.

"I wanted a 12-foot boa constrictor," Moe said, "but had to settle for the black snake.

"I think all it did, though, was scare Yogi Berra, coach of the Mets."

"I don't have any pranks ready for the Cincinnati Reds," Moe said.

"When you're in the series, you have to be careful because they might backfire. Of course, we still have time to come up with something."

Drabowsky came up with something special for the Dodgers in 1966, allowing one hit and striking out 11 in 8 2-3 innings of relief to win the first game and start the sweep.

Eaton Joining Stock Car Circles

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — George Eaton, young Canadian Grand Prix driver, sat down for the first time in a racing stock car Wednesday, and he liked what he saw.

Eaton, 24, will drive in Sunday's National 500—a $147,721 event that has drawn more than 70 entries. Without the benefit of previous experience in the 4,000 pound, high-powered machines, he'll compete against the South's best drivers, many of whom cut their teeth between a set of roll bars.

Eaton who drives for the BRM team on the Formula 1 Grand Prix and Canadian-American Challenge Cup circuits, has been assigned a 1970 Dodge for his first venture into stock car racing.

But his initiation to the big machines came when he was invited to "try his size" in Pete Hamilton's Plymouth. Hamilton, at $137,000 the leading money winner this year, gave the Canadian some pointers about locking himself in the cockpit and about the car itself.

"That's the ignition over there," Hamilton said—"and that's the oil cooler back there.

"That thing in front of you is the steering wheel. And that's the clutch, and that's the brake. That little pedal there is the accelerator. You don't want to mash it too hard when I'm coming up in back of you because I'll want to get around you."

It was all in fun, of course. Eaton, of Toronto and heir to a department store fortune, took it good naturedly.

"They (the drivers) are friendly and helpful. I'd heard about them many times, but this is the first time I've been around them. They're a great crowd."

Eaton won't be a candidate for one of the 12 upfront starting positions that are to be decided in today's initial qualifying session. His car, being prepared by NASCAR veteran Nell Castles, was not expected to arrive at the track until late in the day.

But several of the circuit's top drivers got in practice runs Tuesday, with at least six turning in speeds over the 1.5-mile trioval at 153 miles an hour.

Thirty two drivers drew starting times for their qualifying effort, beginning at 1 p.m. Those who fail to make the lineup, limited to the fastest 44 cars, will have other chances Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Eaton said he hopes to be in the field by Friday. So do most of the other 69 entries.

Ferguson Calling It Quits

MONTREAL (CP) — John Ferguson, Montreal Canadiens' left winger, said today he has decided to retire from hockey.

Ferguson, a regular with the National Hockey League club since the 1963-64 season, said his decision was not a sudden one.

"I thought about it for most of the summer," Ferguson said. "I have no beef with hockey or the Canadiens, general manager Sam Pollock or the owners, but I know where I'm going."

Ferguson, 33, currently is a partner in a prosperous sweater manufacturing firm here.

Pollock, in New York for today's meeting of the NHL's board of governors, said in a telephone interview he was aware of Ferguson's decision and will meet with the Vancouver native Thursday.

Ferguson said it is not likely he will change his mind.

"I decided a long time ago that when I can't give 110 per cent to hockey, it's time to give up," Ferguson, a fierce competitor, said.

His decision was prompted by a desire to devote more time to his business interests here and to his wife and young family.

Ferguson has four children, three daughters and one son, ranging in age from 1 to 12.

Ferguson's career has been plagued with injuries and suspensions over the last few seasons. He had a cast removed from his right arm Tuesday. The case was placed there one week ago because of bursitis.

More Mo-Hawk Berths Filled Following 7-1 Romp Over Aces

By MAURICE SWITZER
Sports Editor

It hasn't been all that long since Belleville Mo-Hawks had the scoring edge over Kingston Aces — only last spring, to be exact.

But it's been some time that the Mo-Hawks have had the skating step on their perennial senior hockey rivals that they did in a 7-1 exhibition win at the Memorial -Arena Tuesday night.

After the teams felt each other out for the first five minutes, the Mo-Hawks banged in a couple of point-shot goals a minute apart and outhustled the Aces the rest of the route.

Billy Armour and Greg Marchen did the first period scoring damage: newcomers Les Colligan and Dave Milne made it 4-0 by the end of 40 minutes, and Ray Summers, Wayne Brown and Colligan again accounted for third - period Mo-Hawk goals.

A blooping off - speed slap by Pat Driscoll midway through the third was the only Kingston shot to fool Bob Moon, who played the last two periods in the Belleville net.

Rookie Callum MacPhee played the first period in goal, and was to have split duties with Moon, but coach Dave Jones called the Maritime lit-tercollegiate all-star after he complained of a bad cold.

MacPhee was one of the four new signings announced by head manager Robert Temple and there was a hint the club is not counting on the services of holdout goalkeeper Steve Reza, a spectator at the game.

One Reza will play for the Mo-Hawks, however. Defenceman Milne signed for the upcoming season, as did forwards Ray Johnston and Rick O'Donnell.

Johnston joined the Mo - Hawks in mid - season last year, and the rugged 20-year-old picked up eight goals, seven assists, and plenty of elbow room in 25 games.

O'Donnell, a Trenton native, was in the St. Catharines Junior A organization before leaving to further his education.

RAY JOHNSTON

The O'Donnell the Mo - Hawks are still without — Lorne — has still not come to terms with the club and coach Jones admits his absence would be a tough one to swallow when the 49 - game schedule opens here Friday night with Owen Sound Crescents.

"I'd hoped to play Lorne on the left wing with Doug (Senior, who was expected to play with the Mo-Hawks today) and Al (Ferguson)", said Jones. "But he'll have to play on our terms."

O'Donnell was selected by his teammates as the most valuable Mo-Hawk last winter after picking up 28 goals in 49 regular season and playoff games. The hard - working winger also performed powerplay and penalty - killing service.

Today's addition of defenceman Lionel Bolly brought to 12 the number of signed players, not counting Jones who will play only sparingly, if at all this winter.

"We're going to carry five defencemen, 11 or 12 forwards, and two goalies, to start," added Jones. Bolly's signing rounded out the blueline corps, with Lou Kazowski, Bob Wilson, Greg Marchen and Mike Reza already in the fold.

Ralph Plaice, Al Ferguson, Rick O'Donnell, George Godson, Doug Senior and Dave McConnell are the definite forward starters to date.

Jones said tonight's 19.15 Memorial Arena workout and Friday's 9 p.m. season's opener, coach Jones and general manager Temple have to decide how to fill the remaining five or six forward positions.

Those who bear watching are Les Colligan, a rugged Plaice - type performer who scored a pair of pretty goals Tuesday; sophomore centre Ray Summers, who last night got his second goal of the two - game exhibition series with Kingston; Billy Armour, who skated effectively up front and on the blueline, scored the first Mo-Hawk goal on a wicked point shot; Number Dave Milne, a bustling winger who looks better than someone who has been playing high league hockey around Campbellford; veteran Wayne Brown, still hoping to keep up with the senior A crowd; and who cashed in a neat Doug Senior drop - pass in last night's win, centre Bill Wilkinson, a Madoc high school hockey who played collegs hockey in New York State last winter.

Rookie John McConnell is also given a good chance at making the Mo-Hawk roster by Jones. McConnell, 20, was sidelined last night by a sprained ankle picked up in Sunday's 2-2 tie to the Aces in Kingston. McConnell scored in that game, his first in senior A company after graduating from Belleville Junior B ranks.

General manager Temple said he also expects to get a look at a couple of Quebec prospects sometime this week-end between Friday night's home opener with Owen Sound and Sunday's road trip to Oshville.

Leafs Look Like Repeat Patsies in Eastern Division

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto Maple Leafs were patsies for the National Hockey League's East Division losers last year, finishing sixth in the final standings.

With the emergence of two expansion teams in the division this year, the Leafs were expected to show some semblance of a first-division club.

Not so, if the NHL's pre season exhibition schedule is any barometer of the club's stability.

Toronto went through last year's 18-game exhibition season with one victory and seven losses. They're well on the way to equalling that record following a 4-1 loss to Vancouver Canucks Tuesday night.

The Leafs, after nine outings, have one victory and six losses and conceivably could wind up with the worst won-loss record on the pro-season schedule after facing a revamped Los Angeles Kings club at Victoria tonight.

Vancouver, who officially opens the 1970-71 NHL season Friday night at home against the Kings, completed their exhibition outings with three victories, four losses and three ties.

Buffalo, the other new entry this season and another East Division opponent for Toronto, played nine exhibition games, winning one and tying three.

In the only other game Tuesday night, St. Louis Blues continued their dominance of Minnesota North Stars with a home ice 4-3 victory.

At Vancouver, captain Orland Kurtenbach, drafted by the Canucks for his leadership on ice as well as his over-all ability, played a strong two-way game against his former team, scoring twice and checking tenaciously.

The 7,527 fans saw the Canucks jump into a 4-0 lead before Mike Walton finished the scoring for Toronto in the second period, beating Vancouver goalie Charlie Hodge cleanly with a shot from the point.

Ed Hatoum and Denny Johnson were the other Vancouver marksmen beating Jacques Plante who played the entire game in the Toronto goal.

George 'Gardiner, Hodge and Dunc Wilson shared Vancouver's goaltending chores.

Rookies George Morrison and Christian Bordeleau scored two each for St. Louis as the Blues, West Division champions last year, improved their exhibition record to three wins, five losses and two ties. The North Stars won four and lost four of 10 games.

Other games on tap tonight has Philadelphia Flyers entertaining Oakland Seals and Boston Bruins at home to New York Rangers.

Claude Ruel, Montreal's coach said Tuesday night he's still unsure of the lineup he'll ice when the Canadiens open their schedule at Philadelphia Sunday.

Still doubtful starters were winger John Ferguson and defenceman Jacques Laperriere.

Plenty at Stake Tonight As Als Venture Into Calgary

CALGARY (CP) — Two Canadian Football League records and the Western Conference rushing lead will be on the line tonight when Calgary Stampeders battle Montreal Alouettes in an interlocking game.

Calgary place-kicker Larry Robinson will be seeking the CFL field goal and convert records, while team-mate Hugh McKinnis, rookie fullback, tries to recapture the rushing lead from Jim Evenson of British Columbia Lions.

McKinnis, with 231 yards, needs 53 yards to pass Evenson who has 783, two more than George Reed of Saskatchewan Roughriders.

Robinson, a 10-year veteran who holds sixth place in the WFC scoring race with 53 points, needs five converts and three field goals to set the records.

"I never thought I was that close until I read a newspaper article last week," the 29-year-old native of Calgary said in an interview.

Don Sutherin, formerly of Hamilton Tiger-Cats, Ottawa Rough Riders and released recently by Calgary Argonauts, has both records—279 converts and 114 field goals.

Robinson, however, appears to be more interested in breaking the CFL points record, now held by Tommy-Joe Coffey of Hamilton. Coffey has 817 points in 11 seasons, while Robinson has 715 including 286 converts.

LARRY ROBINSON

112 field goals, 71 singles and seven touchdowns.

"If I'm lucky I should be able to play five more years, or at [illegible] so. I'm the closest to Coffey's record, I [illegible] my career with the most points in the CFL."

Robinson's first target in the points race is B.C. coach Jackie Parker who collected 750 in a 13-year playing career with Toronto, Edmonton Eskimos and B.C.

A regular safety who started with Stampeders as a flanker, Robinson was named WFC rookie of the year in 1961 and all-star defensive back in the West in 1965.

He won the CFL's top scorer in 1964 with 106 points and in 1965 with 85 points.

Robinson, who missed the first game in his career in the first league contest this season against Winnipeg Blue Bombers, says "I'm pretty sure we're going to make the playoffs."

All this stage, however, the Stampeders are not sure of anylead from Jim Evenson of Brit-would give them sole possession of second with Edmonton, the team they meet in a Thanksgiving Day game Monday. The Lions, also in the thick of the playoff race, have 19 points.

Meanwhile, the Alouettes, hoping to even the East-West interlocking record at nine wins for each conference, need a victory to tighten their grip on first place in the Eastern Football Conference. Montreal has 12 points, two more than Toronto and Hamilton.

The Calgary-Montreal clash will be televised on the CTV national network starting at 11 p.m. est.

Even Butkus' Karate Chop Not Enough to Stop Lions

And when the Bears are on national television as was the case in Monday night's 20-14 loss to Detroit Lions, the cameras had a habit of following Butkus.

One camera shot showed Butkus apparently dealing Detroit back Alex Karras a karate chop. A slowed replay seemed to prove it.

But it wasn't so. All Butkus was trying to do was jerk the ball out of Taylor's hands.

"I tried to strip the ball out of their hands a couple of times," said Butkus, "and the fans thought I was doing something else."

"People get a little excited."

Taylor agreed. "I never felt a thing," he said.

"But I heard the boos. I know he was just going after the football. I fumbled three times the last time I played Against the Bears and he was grabbin' for the ball."

"Butkus is a good football player but he's no rougher or tougher than any of the other Bears," added Taylor. "None of the Lions are afraid of Butkus, that's for sure."

Butkus plays with such savagery and dedication that he seems to want to intimidate the opposition.

"If I can intimidate anyone, I will," said Butkus. "It's all part of the game."

It seems that Butkus has been doing nothing but playing the game.

The 27-year-old native Chicagoan first started making headlines at Chicago Vocational high school playing fullback on coach on offence and linebacker on defence and was selected to the all-state team.

Butkus played his college football at the University of Illinois where he became an all-American in 1963 and 1964.

In the 1965 National Football League draft, the Bears had two first-round choices and used both well. They selected Butkus and running back Gale Sayers of Kansas.

Neither has any time to be coming superstars on the pro scene.

Butkus has played in the Pro Bowl five times and has been named all-NFL linebacker four times.

Wings Fly Into First

HAMILTON (CP) — Right winger Rick Kehoe scored two goals and led Hamilton Red Wings to a 3-1 Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series win over Kitchener Rangers before 1,300 fans Tuesday night.

It was the Wings' second-consecutive victory and put them in first place with four points. Rangers are winless after two starts.

Kehoe, in his second year at Hamilton, scored his goals in the first period.

Left winger Tom Williams, Kehoe's linemate, registered the clincher at 5:37 of the final period.

Referee Bruce McFadden assessed 20 penalties, 11 to Kitchener, including a second-period misconduct to Hamilton's Bob Neely and fighting majors to Neely and Peter Tkanic of Kitchener later in the same period.

Gravelle Turns Trick

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Smiths Falls Bears dumped Brockville Braves 6-2 in Central Junior A Hockey action Tuesday night, led by left winger John Gravelle, who scored three goals.

In another game, Hull Volants and Ottawa Rangers played to a 4-4 tie.

At Smiths Falls, Dan O'Neil, Steve Hull and Bob Grier scored the other goals for the Bears. Alan Duncan scored both Brockville goals.

The teams split four major penalties while the Bears received two of three minor ducts. The Bears outshot the Braves 36-22.

At Ottawa, Dan Cowley, Bill Potter, Ian McDonell and Bob McNabb got the Rangers goals. For Hull, Dan Moreau scored twice, John Coburn and Claude St. Cyr, the others.

Rangers outshot the Volants 33-32.

Questions and Answers On Highway Travel

Ontario Motor League
Eastern Ontario Club

QUESTION: We would like to spend Thanksgiving in Canada and in the Adirondacks, in New York state, to view the beautiful leaves. Is this a good time to go and if so please give us a good route?

ANSWER: All areas of New York State show the brilliant spectacle of the changing autumn leaves at this time of year. Wherever you go you will find masses of delightful and colorful beauty. Days are pleasant and warm, the air is clear and autumn nights are crisp. It is a time for leisurely rides through a forest setting of burnished red and bright yellow against an evergreen background. Now is the time to follow the old routes instead of the expressways, to really see the country. The foliage change normally begins in Northern New York State and the Adirondack Mountains in late September or early October and reaches other areas two to three weeks later.

A good scenic route is: Interstate 81 to Watertown, N.Y., route 3 to Lake Placid, No. 86 to Wilmington, here you can drive 8 miles up the scenic Memorial Highway to almost the top of Whiteface Mountain, a height of 4,867 feet. Here you'll find a restaurant and parking area and get a marvelous view of the countryside. You'll also find Santa's workshop near here, just off route 86 where you'll find live reindeer and animals, puppet theatre, and craft demonstrations. Continue on route 86 east to Jay and then south on route 9N where you'll find the Land of Makebelieve. This is an Early American Village with antiques, trains, and sidewheel paddleboats. Continue on 9N south to Keene and then take No. 73 and 9 to Lake George. This beautiful little lake surrounded by mountains is one of New York State's most popular summer resort areas. It is a little too crowded in the summer but this time of year you'll be able to enjoy the scenery without the crowds. Lake Placid and Lake George are good places to stay overnight. After Labor Day the rates are much lower in the motels and hotels. From here go north on route 28 to route 8, take this west to route 12 and 12 north to Watertown and 81 home. This should give you a lovely, long weekend in the exhilarating mountain air.

QUESTION: When does Upper Canada Village close?

ANSWER: Upper Canada village is open from May 15 to Oct. 15. Its hours are from 9:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m.

QUESTION: I collect my car from the parking lot and find someone has damaged it to the tune of $300. Will my insurance company pay, and how will the claim affect future premiums?

ANSWER: Such claims are paid under the collision section of your policy, subject to the deductible clause. They usually don't affect future premiums because most insurance companies consider these accidents as hit-and-run. Comprehen also pay claims if someone damages your car while it is legally parked in an apartment house lot, a driveway, or on a street. But be sure to report the matter to police within 24 hours. The adjuster will have to be convinced of your story, of course but hearers have found the majority of claimants are fair and honest.

QUESTION: I sideswipe a light pole and an acquaintance riding in my car is badly hurt. He dockles to sue me for $50,000, loss of income, over and above the $2,000 medical expense benefit provided in my policy. Can he do this and am I covered?

ANSWER: Your passenger can take you to court and collect under tort law, if he proves gross or ordinary negligence. Your insurance company must defend the case, and coverage depends on your policy. Ontario, British Columbia and the Yukon require drivers to carry $50,000 minimum liability insurance for such claims. All other provinces and the Northwest Territories insist on a minimum of $35,000, but the majority of insurance buyers play safe and buy coverage of at least $100,000. Medical expense payments are always absorbed into the judgment figure in liability awards.

Law to Make Firms Reveal Finances Is Near Approval

OTTAWA (CP) — Legislation to make many foreign-owned companies disclose for the first time details of their Canadian operations moved to the final stage Tuesday as the Commons acceded to Senate modifications.

The Senate amendments were approved 158 to 28 despite New Democratic Party protests that the changes represented a "corporate veto from the other place (the Senate)."

The legislation, a set of amendments to the Canada Corporations Act, now requires only royal assent to become law.

The Commons also looked at legislation providing wholesale revision of the Canada Grains Act as it moved to clear up odds and ends of business before the session is prorogued today. A new session is to open with the speech from the throne Thursday.

The corporation act change, originally approved last June by the Commons, is the first legislation put forward by the government in response to recommendations in the 1968 report on foreign ownership by Professor Melville Watkins of the University of Toronto. Mr. Watkins is now a leader of the nationalistic NDP Waffle group.

Corporate Affairs Minister Ron Basford said in an interview he hopes provincial governments will enact similar legislation to apply to corporations in their own jurisdictions. "If the provinces don't move we will have to consider other ways of improving and getting uniform corporate disclosure in Canada," he said.

The federal legislation applies to all corporations within its jurisdiction which have assets of more than $5 million or sales of more than $10 million.

The corporations will be required to disclose their financial situation in several statements available to the public and the government will have greater powers to inquire into their affairs. The restrictive trade practices commission also will be empowered to investigate suspected fraud or mismanagement.

Mr. Basford told the House that the 30 amendments from the Senate did not weaken the governed bill.

NDP finance critic Max Saltsman (Waterloo) maintained, however, that "in every place where it was possible to strike a blow against disclosure, the other place has done so."

Abuse of Drugs by Montrealers Said to Be Major Death Cause

MONTREAL (CP) — Drug abuse in Montreal is on its way to becoming a leading cause of death and a major public health issue.

That's the word from Dr. Sidney Lecker, who for several years has been closely involved in the city's drug problems.

He feels frustration because no progress are being set up that might be able to stop this trend.

Dr. Lecker, 33, on staff of Montreal General Hospital, discussed drug abuse in Canada's largest city in an interview.

"If we look at New York and Los Angeles, usually a few years ahead of us (Montreal), we see that the drug problem in both cities has only become worse.

"In New York heroin abuse is the leading cause of death of people between the ages of 15 and 35. In Los Angeles barbiturates are the second leading cause of death in the teen-age group.

"We always follow these two cities and if we keep going as we are that's what we are headed for."

Dr. Lecker described as "very conservative" estimates that "a few thousand adolescents in Montreal use amphetamines," a group of drugs commonly known as speed that can be taken orally or by injection.

He is the father of two girls, 12 and 7, and one boy, 9, and has been working with youth and drugs since 1966. In 1968 he helped start the Youth Clinic in downtown Montreal and has been associated with the clinic ever since.

He said that last year in Montreal only one heroin addict came to the clinic. However, in the first three months of 1970 the clinic saw about 40 heroin addicts.

"Since that time I've been told that the clinic sees an average of five to 10 a month. It may be higher than that. I don't see them so I wouldn't know the exact count.

"The youngest amphetamine user I've ever known is 12 years old.

"For heroin I don't know but I don't think it has got to the stage, as it has in New York, where heroin users can be found in elementary schools."

A spokesman for the RCMP's narcotics department said that to his knowledge there are about 110 heroin addicts in Montreal.

John Owen of the Youth Clinic confirmed Dr. Lecker's figure of an average of five to 10 a month and said that although this is small he feels the use of heroin is growing.

Dr. Lecker said he has visited New York and Los Angeles to study their drug problems and found that others had to become terrible before any kind of treatment programs were set up.

"And in Montreal we don't yet see under way any major programs, any major input of funds or any major commitments on the part of the government to start immediately any program for rehabilitation and prevention.

"There are some starting off but like any other government ours needs a great deal of pressure from the population before anything gets done.

"If the population starts putting pressure on the government for drug programs, which are a priority, then they'll get them.

"And we shouldn't wait too long before these drug programs are set up, because once the drug problem gets overwhelming or reaches epidemic proportions then no kind of program that you establish can have any success."

Young people who go to the Youth Clinic—for medical reasons among others—usually do so because their local initial treatment or reprisals, those who operate the clinic feel.

There are four full-time YMCA-trained workers, between 20 and 22 years old. The administrator is Georges Beaudry, in his early 30s and a one-time member of the drug crowd.

With the massive influx of travelling students from across North America, business at the clinic boomed.

When it first began functioning the clinic was supported by private donations. Now it is financed by the YMCA which allocates $25,000 of its yearly budget to operate the clinic.

However, due to the summer boom and an increase in transient youths, the Youth Clinic staff has found it hard to make ends meet.

The centre, they say, suffers from a lack of staff, space, time and money.

High on Dr. Lecker's list of priorities is the training of doctors to deal with drug users.

"We found that you can't look at drugs as the only problem. You have to look at a person's whole life, not only his emotional and social life but also his growth and development.

"It's important to look at drugs in the context of a person's own individual development."

Dr. Lecker said the LeDain report on the non-medical use of drugs is a "very significant advance in thinking."

"It's time we said about drug addicts what has been said about homosexuals—that a person who has a habit which hurts himself and no one else should not be treated as a criminal.

"Their habit hurts others because they are forced to steal. We make them get drugs from organized crime and prices are high so they have to start stealing.

"They ultimately become criminals because society has made them criminals."

The LeDain commission, headed by Gerald LeDain, dean of Osgoode Hall law school, recommended that drug addicts should not be treated as criminals, never be jailed and that the maximum fine should be $100.

"We say that drug addicts should be given an alternative to being treated as criminals, which means that they can be enough to take away the penalties if society doesn't have any rehabilitation program for them," Dr. Lecker said.

"It's a criminal offence in itself to stick a child who uses drugs in jail—and it shouldn't happen."

He contended that adolescents are not the only ones on drugs.

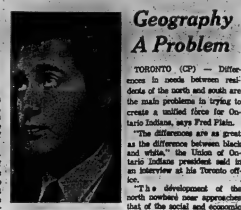
"There is probably an equal number of professionals who use amphetamines daily.

"They start taking them to lose weight but they know damn well that these amphetamines are pep pills. These pills cheer them up and make them high. . . ."

Dr. Lecker said the best way parents can deal with what he termed a major middle-class problem is to have an excellent relationship with their children.

He's not worried about his own children taking drugs, but if ever they should he is banking on the relationship he has with them to take care of the problem.

"The only guarantee a parent can have is the quality of the relationship that you have with your children. I try to make my children feel that there's nothing so bad in the world that you can't tell your own father and mother."



Dr. Lecker wants schools to wake up.

"With drugs becoming such a galloping problem, you haven't got time to fool around. . . .

"The young psychiatrist hasn't been getting any salary for his work with youth and drugs, and doesn't expect any. He's also been the most voluntarily because "It's a need, so you do it."

However, he added candidly, "I would be very receptive if they wanted to pay me."

A MAJOR PUBLIC HEALTH ISSUE — Dr. Sidney Lecker of Montreal General Hospital says drug abuse in Montreal is becoming a major public health issue and a leading cause of death. Dr. Lecker says he feels frustration because no programs are being set up to stop the trend.

Geography A Problem

TORONTO (CP) — Differences in needs between residents of the north and south are the main problems in trying to create a unified force for Ontario Indians, says Fred Plain.

The chairman says no great as the difference between black and white," the Union of Ontario Indians president said in an interview at his Toronto office.

"The development of the north nowhere near approaches that of the social and economic development of the Indian reserves in the south."

The UOI, with government approval, is planning for eventual control of services and funds now provided by government.

"The ultimate goal is a complete takeover of such things as economic development," Mr. Plain said.

Among the main difficulty in Northern Ontario is lack of knowledge of existing legislation. There is no money people in the north know what the Indian Act says or even what it means. . . .

"What we are doing now is—when asked by the Indians—to get a legal interpretation from our own advisers, and then translate it into Cree syllabics or language and kind of talk that they can understand."

Godfather Roles Prized by Stars

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Who's going to play in The Godfather?

The question was raised at a news conference Paramount held last week to introduce the man who is going to direct the movie version of the best - selling novel. He is Francis Ford Copola, a bright young director of Italian extraction.

"Almost every top star in pictures has come to us wanting any one of the roles in The Godfather," reported Paramount production boss Robert Evans. "Money is no object with them; they simply want to be in the picture.

Added Copola: "Our philosophy of casting is this: We will cast irrespective of standom. We want actors who are right for the roles. It's entirely likely that they will be names."

"But they will be Italians," assured Evans, "We aren't going to cast the picture with 'Hollywood' Italians."

This seemed to be a reference to Paramount's The Brotherhood, another Mafia tale which fetled to light up the box office. It starred Kirk Douglas.

"I thought Kirk was terrific in the picture," said Evans. Himself a former actor and hence sensitive to implied criticism.

"The problem with The Brotherhood was that it didn't have the characters or the power of The Godfather. It was a bit too cerebral for audiences."

One Italian - American who will not appear in The Godfather is Frank Sinatra.

One character in the book is an on-the-skids crooner who makes a comeback with an Oscar - winning role reluctantly given him by a tough studio boss. Sinatra won an Oscar in From Here to Eternity.

Author Puzo tells of dining one night with his producer, Albert S. Ruddy. Two booths away, Sinatra was seated with some friends. A mutual friend thought it would be a dandy idea to introduce Puzo to Sinatra. It wasn't.

Puzo says Sinatra exploded:

"You should be ashamed for writing that . . ."

Puzo said later: "I know it was a bad idea, but I got hooked into going over to his table. I just walked away

UNEXPECTED CASTING

In one of the most unexpected casting moves in London in years, film director Ken Russel has signed Spike Milligan, the wacky English comedian, for a featured dramatic role in The Devils, which starts filming for Warner Bros. Aug. 17.

Airport Studies Complete

OTTAWA (CP) — Transport Minister Don Jamieson told the Commons Tuesday that detailed studies have been completed on a site for a new Toronto airport.

In reply to questions from Marvin Howe (PC—Wellington-Grey) Mr. Jamieson said the formidable quantity of data collected in the studies are being processed into a report.

When the report was completed, in a week or 10 days, the federal and Ontario governments would meet to decide on how to encourage "the maximum public participation" in a final decision.

Cancer Patients Talk Again

Toronto Doctor Builds Artificial Voice Boxes

TORONTO (CP) — A Toronto surgeon says he has restored the speech of 15 Ontario victims of throat cancer by using skin from their shoulders to build new vocal boxes.

Dr. Simon McGrail, chief of the otolaryngology department at Wellesley Hospital, said Tuesday the new voice box or larynx permits the patient to speak in an almost normal voice.

Previously throat cancer patients, who had their voice boxes removed, had to learn to talk by swallowing air and "burping" words by forcing air from their stomachs. Many patients find it difficult or impossible to master such a method of speech.

The larynx, Dr. McGrail said, is a two-inch long cylinder through which air passes en route to the windpipe directly below.

Dr. McGrail said in an interview that his method involves the connecting of a tube made of the patient's skin to the lungs.

The reason we can talk is because our lungs are connected to our throats," he said. "The exhaled air from the lungs causing the vibrations we use to make sounds."

He said when he inserts the tube that restores this link and most patients "have pretty good voices three to four weeks later."

Dr. McGrail said he developed the operation 15 months ago with Dr. David Oldfield of Kingston, formerly a student doctor at Wellesley hospital.

The two doctors were to describe the operation to the Academy of Ophthalmology and Otolaryngology in Las Vegas, Nev.

Dr. McGrail said a skin flap is raised from the patient's shoulder leaving it attached at the breast bone so it can be fed by its own blood vessels.

The skin flap is shaped into a tube about as big around as a man's index finger with the skin turned inside out.

"We turn this sausage up into the neck," said Dr. McGrail.

The top end is left open and inserted into the throat. Halfway down the tube, an opened is cut and a windpipe is inserted.

Dr. McGrail said the eight-hour operation produces a slightly guttural voice, but one close to the patient's natural voice.

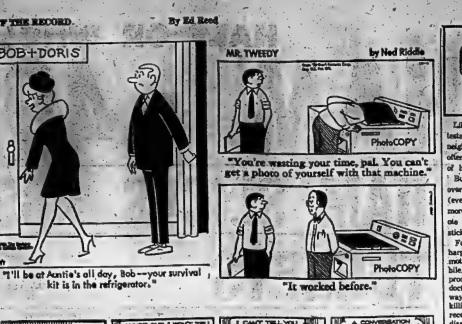
He said he has attempted the operation only on men so far, because throat cancer is less common in women.

One problem with the new tube is that food and saliva can run down into the lungs. Normal people have a one-way valve called the epiglottis, which prevents this.

He said patients can cope with this during meals by holding a finger pressed against their throats to shut off the speaking tube. To overcome the saliva drain, Dr. McGrail said he has fashioned a valve in the lower end of the implanted tube.

Market Scales Need Repair

PICTON (Staff) — Town councillors handled a weighty problem last night when it was reported the scales used for weighing loads of hay on the market square are inaccurate. Councillor James Bird noted that the scales have been weighing incorrectly for the past two or three weeks and will require repairs estimated at $500 to $600.



Mayor McFarland showed immediate concern over the material possibly weighed incorrectly since the scales have become inaccurate, but was promptly assured by fire chief Leonard Tripp that the scales still weigh "very, very closely" and were not condemned at the last inspection but slated for repairs. Still interested in the scale's inaccuracy the mayor requested a copy of the last certificate of inspection issued. Mr. Bird told council that the necessary repairs to the sensitivity of the weighing mechanism will take approximately one week. Since the market scale is the only available one in Picton it was agreed that it should be returned to proper working order as soon as possible.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Like a barking dog that tests the patience of placid neighbors, so a columnist often disturbs the equanimity of his kindly readers.

But if you're dedicated, to overcoming menacing dangers (even though you make no more headway than Don Quixote smacking windmills) you stick to your purpose.

For example, whenever I harp on the dangers of the motorcycle, or the automobile, or self - treatment, and procrastination in visiting the doctor, or scores of other ways in which we go about killing ourselves, I'm bound to receive a letter or two from disgruntled readers who say, "You've said that before."

I suppose that's true. But what has been read by some, may have been missed by many others. Therefore, the occasional repetition.

Consider "rheumatism." I have often written here that this is a "waste - basket term." Even though some specialist friends who practice rheumatology tell me they still use it, I believe it should be discontinued.

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I'm steadily wrecked with pains in my joints and muscles and bones. Although I'm only 42, I feel like an 80 - year - old. I ask my doctor what's the trouble. All he says is, "You've got rheumatism." Now what's that? Isn't there some more specific reason why I suffer so? — Mrs. M.

Comment: There's the rub — also the nub. What is rheumatism?

It's more scientific and practical (for your own good) for the doctor to say you suffer from a rheumatic illness.

It's not just a matter of semantics. When your doctor says "rheumatism" you have the right and need to pin him down. What kind of rheumatic disease do I have? Is it osteoarthritis, the most common type—with degenerative joint changes most people have in varying degrees after 50? Is it rheumatoid arthritis? This can occur at any age, is most common in women and is part of a generalized, systemic infection. If you have it, better see the doctor regularly to prevent deformity. Treatment may require cortisone and other special remedies. Just taking aspirin won't help.

Suppose your "rheumatism" is due to gouty arthritis? Aspirin by the bucketful will not dull the sharp pains in the red, hot, swollen joint. Only specific medication like colchicine, Butazolidin, Probenemid, etc., will control the acute attacks and prevent frequent recurrences.

And how about the scores of varying rheumatic complaints that are tied in with other systemic diseases? Each requires specific treatment if you hope to improve.

So I repeat: calling a disease "rheumatism" isn't sufficient. Besides, I think it is a "lazy diagnosis."

If you have considering aches and pains, Mrs. M., you deserve to know the identity of the real culprit. Suppose it isn't arthritis? It may be due to bursitis, myositis, neuritis. Each requires specialized treatment.

I admit that aspirin is one of the first — and comforting miracle drugs. But there's no sense in wasting it as ammunition. You have to see the target. You have to know the true diagnosis. Otherwise you are using the wrong ammunition.

If your doctor dismisses you with the diagnosis of "rheumatism" ask him for the specific diagnosis. If he can't come up with it, then I think it makes good sense to ask for consultation.

Alarming Readers Columnist's Duty

Sydney J. Harris Says

Some Can't Make Money

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

More nonsense has been written on the subject of money than on any other subject in the world, except love. Whilst, in company with the best philosophers, I am ignorant about love, I have studied the subject of money and think I understand it pretty well.

The reason some people can make money and others can't has absolutely nothing to do with the virtues and vices ascribed to them. A man who knows how to get rich is not brilliant, forceful, courageous or superior in any way to his fellow men; neither is he crafty, dishonest, depraved or in any way inferior.

The ability to make money is an isolated talent, like being able to wiggle your ears, and deserves no more praise or blame than that. Some persons are naturally gifted at turning one penny into two; others are remarkably consistent in losing the first penny.

It is ridiculous either to revere or despise the rich. All the platitudes on the subject are worthless: perseverance and honest toil will not make you rich, and dishonesty is as likely to land you in prison as in a penthouse.

There is only one axiom I am reasonably sure of: If you want money hard enough, if you want it more than anything else in the world, and to the exclusion of everything else in the world, you will get it. The price you pay will be high but the fanatic is willing.

The only thing the moneymakers have in common is the intense desire for money as an end in itself. They are dedicated to a cause, and when this dedication is combined with the peculiar talent for acquisition of material things, success is sure to be theirs.

It is as futile for people like me to try to get rich as it is for an armless man to paint a picture. Misery and frustration await those whose ambition exceeds their abilities. The only sensible procedure is to dedicate ourselves to other values and find happiness in them.

The earlier in life we learn this lesson the more contented we will be. Lacking the concentrated sense of purpose (which is more or a curse than a blessing), we can free ourselves to concentrate on the pursuit of truth, beauty, love and friendship and the other consolations of human life.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For October 9

Your birthday today: This is the year of changing habits toward a more meaningful life. You have the chance to lay down burdens which are not really yours; declutter your home and working space. What you can leave behind but don't hang on with increasing inconvenience. Emotional ties thin out a bit, quietly. Today's natives have a strong sense of rhythm, usually some special political talents.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Careful fresh money is the only problem of this rather variable day. Don't try to keep up with others — there will always be somebody around who spends more than you do.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Ideas to improve your career come from various people. Be sure you get the fresh viewpoint straight, as your mate and associates won't go along until later.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): You scatter energy over a wide range of activity. Your money is restless and will evaporate readily in any sort of bargain shopping area or hobby shop.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Mental pursuits demand much of your time. Try to get your workweek rounded up nicely first. Find or give a good party this evening.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Apply consistent effort to improving your status in the world. Your earnings now should increase somewhat, in proportion to the extra effort you have put in.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 23): Try more new methods along with the changes you have already achieved in your work. The temptation is to overinvest in equipment and supplies.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 — Oct. 22): You are almost certain to appear odd or at least different today. There is nothing for it but to simply be yourself and enjoy it to the fullest.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Ambition leads you forward, perhaps faster than your resources ought to stretch. Home matters offer much satisfaction, the incentive to improve conditions.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Friends provide helpful conditions — make full use of them. Take care with what you say in public places. Also remember your friends take to their friends.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Friends expect far too much of you now, and your status interferes with your perspective. It is time to try new financial possibilities.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Be ready to revise plans that involve estimates of future business. Original work brings fresh opportunity, perhaps controversy. Distant people suddenly seem much more involved.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Quietly press forward with normal routines. Avoid involvement in matters which must be kept secret. Add a little to your savings account.

Big International Parley On Vietnam Nixon Aim

Indochina Ceasefire Is Sought by U.S.

WASHINGTON (CP) — In a five-point proposal to end the war in Indochina, President Nixon has called for a standstill ceasefire in all of Indochina and a big new international conference to negotiate peace for Southeast Asia.

"Our side is ready to stand-still and cease firing," Nixon told a television and radio audience in a speech from the White House Wednesday night.

Under his ceasefire plan, all armed forces in South Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia would remain in positions they now hold and stop shooting. He proposed that the ceasefire be supervised by an international force of observers.

Hanoi and the Viet Cong promptly brushed off Nixon's proposal shortly before the Paris peace talks resumed today.

Nixon administration officials said the U.S. is prepared to be flexible in negotiations and discuss North Vietnamese and Viet Cong propositions already on the table in Paris as well as his own.

Here in summary are the five points of the plan:

1. All armed forces in Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos should stop shooting and stand still in positions they now hold. This ceasefire should be supervised by international observers and be effective for all forms of warfare. Neither side should build up its strength after the guns fall silent.

2. An Indochina peace conference should be organized to include Laos and Cambodia as well as the two Vietnams and other unspecified nations, presumably Russia and China among them. Administration officials said the key to setting up such a conference was agreement by North Viet Nam. Meanwhile the peace talks at Paris should continue.

3. The United States is "ready to negotiate an agreed timetable for complete withdrawals of troops as part of an over-all settlement." Nixon made it clear his announced program of American troop removals would continue in any case at previously announced rates.

4. The United States wants a political settlement for South Vietnam to "reflect the will of the South Vietnamese people" and at the same time "reflect the existing relationship of political forces"—evidently meaning Communists as well as non-Communists would share in power. The South Vietnamese must "determine for themselves the kind of government they want."

5. Arrangements should be made for "the immediate and unconditional release of all prisoners-of-war held by both sides." Nixon said all journalists and other civilians also should be released at once.

Saying that South Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia all supported his initiative, Nixon declared "the time has come for the government of North Vietnam to join its neighbors in a proposal to quit making war and start making peace."

He did not refer directly to the Viet Cong's eight-point peace plan put forward in Paris May 31.

This said that if all American troops were withdrawn by June 30, 1971, the Viet Cong would refrain from attacking the departing soldiers. It also offered discussions on release of prisoners in return for an American declaration of intent to withdraw.

On the withdrawal issue, Nixon offered to negotiate "an agreed timetable" for complete U.S. troop withdrawals from South Vietnam without specifying removal of North Vietnamese forces as a condition. But aides said Nixon was talking about a schedule for removing North Vietnamese as well as U.S. and allied forces.

U.S. officials said Nixon had not previously accepted this principle.

Hanoi Assails Plan

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A five-point Indochina peace plan announced by President Nixon was condemned today by Hanoi and the Viet Cong. But they did not reject it outright.

Speaking at the Paris peace talks today, their leading delegates described the plan as an effort to regalize U.S. aggression in Vietnam, fool world opinion and win the U.S. congressional elections in November.

The comments, made by Chief Hanoi negotiator Xuan Thuy and Mrs. Nguyen Thi Binh of the Viet Cong, followed public backing by the South Vietnamese government, although there were doubts in Saigon over the plan, and varied reactions elsewhere including rejection of the plan by a U.S. anti-war group.

Mrs. Binh said basic issues have to be settled first before Nixon's proposal for a standstill ceasefire is possible.

Wilson found overwhelming support among Republicans, and from several Democrats, in the U.S. congress. Both hawks and doves described the plan as "bold . . . forthright . . . fair . . . comprehensive."

Senator J. William Fulbright, a dove and chairman of the Senate foreign relations committee, said the U.S. support of the current Saigon government—Nixon reiterated that support again in his latest speech—is a bar to any Vietnam settlement.

Senator John Sherman Cooper (Rep. Ky.) called Nixon's proposals "comprehensive and fair."

Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, another persistent critic of Nixon's war policy, said of the president's proposal: "I will do my very best to support it."

Throne Speech

'On Threshold Of Greatness'

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — The Trudeau government today promised more protection for the consumer, more attention to urban problems, more social and income security legislation, more anti-pollution measures and more white papers.

The package of promises, interspersed with such phrases as "we stand on the threshold of greatness," was contained in the speech from the throne read by Governor-General Michener at the opening of the third session of Canada's 28th Parliament.

The speech, a general outline of government policy, said there will be sweeping changes in unemployment insurance and a revised legal framework for labor-management relations.

A new set of labor standards for industries under federal jurisdiction would be introduced.

The government vowed to reintroduce legislation that died in the session that ended Wednesday to establish national marketing boards for farm products.

It would also "continue to introduce measures designed to improve the market potential for agricultural produce" and to assist in the adjustment to changes in the farm industry.

The speech maintained that the vitality of the economy and government policies are slowly but effectively countering inflation and unemployment.

But unemployment was still "distressingly" high.

Canadians should exercise restraint in costs and strive to improve productivity.

The government was weighing the increasing concern of Canadians about the extent of foreign ownership in the economy. Legislation dealing with one aspect —the uranium industry—would be introduced.

Legislation to help put the textile industry on a competitive footing would also be brought in.

The government undertook to appoint a minister of state for urban affairs and housing and to create a new department of environmental protection.

A minister of state would be responsible for policy and planning and would not be saddled with the day-to-day operations of a department.

PM Names Senators From Foes

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau filled eight of the 18 vacant seats in the 102-seat Senate Wednesday and in the process established a precedent by appointing members of the so-called splinter parties, including former Alberta premier Ernest Manning.

This appointment, along with that of Eugene Forsey and Hiram Thevenc Casgrain, marks the first time that members of the Social Credit and New Democratic parties have been appointed to the $15,000-a-year seats in the upper house.

The other five appointees:

Gildas L. Molgat, 43, former Liberal leader in Manitoba; William C. McNamara, 66, who retired earlier this week as chief commissioner of the Canadian wheat board; Paul C. Lafond, 61, of Hull, Que., former executive secretary of the Liberal Federation of Canada; Mrs. Ann Elizabeth Hedy Hastih, 46, of Nanaimo, B.C., past president of the B.C. Women's Liberal Association, and Edward M. Lawson, 41, a prominent Vancouver labor leader.

Each of the new members can decide whether to sit in the Senate as a member of a particular party or as an independent.

Mme. Casgrain was leader of the CCF party in Quebec from 1951 until 1957.

But she will have a short term in the Senate, since she will be 75 next July 10 and will be forced to resign.

Deadline Passes

Authorities Get No Word From FLQ

MONTREAL (CP) — Today's noon deadline for meeting ransom conditions for the release of kidnapped British diplomat James Richard Cross passed without any announced contact from the abductors.

A spokesman in the office of Quebec Justice Minister Jerome Choquette said:

"I can't say that there have been any developments this morning."

Montreal police also said they had nothing new to report although tight security since Monday has virtually frozen police release of any information on the case.

Mr. Choquette's office said the justice minister would call a news conference if he had anything to announce.

External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp publicly appealed to the kidnappers Wednesday night to name a mediator but there was no apparent reaction from the terrorist Front de Liberation du Quebec.

In his statement at a news conference, Mr. Sharp said the government would arrange for the broadcast by the CBC of an FLQ manifesto, provided it got assurances that "without the imposition of unacceptable conditions, Mr. Cross will be delivered safe and sound."

Quinte Secondary School student Bonnie DeMille believes in carrying her coonskin to football games, rather than wearing it. The senior Saints did some "skinning" of their own as they piled on 22 points in the second half to hand the Trenton Tigers a 26-5 loss yesterday. Quinte juniors made it a clean sweep by unleashing a strong passing attack in their 22-12 win. (For stories, see Page 13.)

Quebec Doctors Start Strike

MONTREAL (CP) — About three-quarters of Quebec's 4,000 medical specialists went on strike today to show their opposition to the province's proposed medical care plan.

A spokesman for the Quebec Federation of Medical Specialists said about 1,000 members will stay on the job in hospitals and offices to "will do all in our their power to provide emergency service" in a limited number of hospitals.

Hospitals were admitting only emergency cases, and the federation spokesman said "a certain number of specialists are at their posts to deal with the situation."

Dr. Gerard Hamel, president of the Quebec Federation of General Practitioners, said there are no immediate plans for the province's 2,200 family doctors to join the walkout. The federation executive was to discuss the situation later today.

The medical specialists' federation said in a statement that it is ready to resume negotiations with the government if it need fit "to reconsider in a transigent position and bring (the medical care plan) into line with those of the other provinces of Canada."

It said Health Minister Claude Castonguay "bears full responsibility for the present crisis."

Last-minute talks here Wednesday night broke off after a three-hour session in which no progress was made toward settling the three main issues in dispute in the medical care legislation, which Premier Robert Bourassa has said will be implemented Nov. 1.

In Quebec, a spokesman for the health minister said today that the government will not hesitate to call an emergency session of the legislature to force doctors back to work if public health is endangered.

A special session has already been called for Monday to discuss modifications to the medical care plan which were offered Tuesday as last-minute concessions in the dispute, but which were rejected flatly by the specialists Wednesday night.

At issue in the Health Insurance Act, passed July 17, are the clauses dealing with restrictions of payment for "opted-out" doctors, control of professional qualifications and fee rates for services.

"On the most pressing issue —opting out—the government had no new proposal at today's (Wednesday's) meeting," the federation said.

The medical care legislation, unique in Canada in its approach to withdrawal, states that patients patronizing doctors not participating in the plan will not have their bills paid by medicare.

The proposed government modification that would allow the payment of opted-out doctors' bills but restrict their fee to the medicare scale, was described by federation president Dr. Raymond Robillard as "an intellectual exercise."

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: A mixture of rain and snow will hover over northwestern Ontario today. In the south, a warm southerly flow is expected to continue both today and Friday. Temperatures will remain 10 to 15 degrees above normal over most regions. An increasing supply of moisture will bring some shower activity into southern Ontario later today. Friday, with the moist flow continuing, a few thunderstorms are expected but should be confined mainly to the southwest.

Rev. and Mrs. Gentle Say Goodbye

Departing Minister Honored at Dinner

"We will look back with fond memories for we leave behind our children, age family in many respects . . . you have honored us by this gathering."

The speaker last night was Reverend Stanley Gentle of St. Columba Presbyterian Church. The occasion was a farewell dinner given the Gentles by the congregation in the church hall.

During Aug. he received an invitation to become the assistant minister at Knox Presbyterian Church in St. Catharines, a church with five times his present congregation.

This invitation came shortly after the return of the Gentles from a holiday in Britain. Rev. Gentle received another invitation in Sept. after declining the first offer and after meeting with St. Catharines businessmen, accepted the call.

"It was a difficult decision to make but I couldn't turn down the invitation after the businessmen expressed such a need."

The Gentles came to Belleville in Jan. 1967 from Hespeler, near Galt, where he had served from 1961 both in the Andrew's Church and as part-time chaplain of the old training school for girls in Galt.

But Rev. Gentle has not always been a minister. In fact he didn't go to university to study for the ministry.

Born in Hamilton, he served overseas for four years as a navigator in the RCAF, returning to Canada following service, graduating from the University of Western Ontario with an honors degree in business administration in 1949.

From graduation until turning to the ministry, Rev. Gentle worked in the accounting department in the Hamilton offices of the Steel Company of Canada.

Entering Knox College in 1952, he was ordained in 1955, entering church extension (the development of a new congregation) at Wexford Church, Scarborough.

Prior to his posting to Hespeler, Rev. Gentle served as assistant secretary for the national stewardship and budget committee in Toronto headquarters.

Previously serving a rural or suburban congregation, the new posting presents a complete change. Knox Church in St. Catharines is situated right in the downtown district, close to city hall.

Assisting Rev. Dr. J. K. Ross Thomson, Rev. Gentle will begin serving this congregation, which comes from as far away as Niagara-on-the Lake, and Welland, teaching Christian education.

While in Belleville, the Gentles became involved in many community organizations.

As well as regular visits to the hospital and old people's homes, Rev. Gentle served as the Army, Navy and Air-Force padre, served on the Mayor's Committee on Youth, was actively on call with Lifeline and was the moderator of the Presbytery of Kingston, which serves the boundaries of the Quinte region.

Mrs. Gentle also became heavily involved in the community, serving as second vice-president on the YDN board, worked with the Central Volunteer Bureau, helping with pre-nursery children in the schools, Active with church organizations, she also belonged to various local clubs.

The couple will leave Belleville on Oct. 20 to take up their new position.

"Moving gives me a chance to know more friends."

This statement personifies the interest this man has in the community and the people. Evidence of this fact was shown by the large turnout for the farewell dinner and the high regard the people in the hall showed for their minister and friend.

One of the last statements he made last night, was a repetition of one previously made.

"It was a difficult decision to make . . ."

Christian School Supporters Seeking Financial Equality

Supporters of the Belleville District Christian School have embarked on a campaign to obtain tax support for their educational system.

As one of the 46 member schools of the Ontario Alliance of Christian Schools, it is joining with others across the province in petition the provincial government for financial equality with the public school system.

The petition is the latest step in a long campaign that began some years ago with presentation of briefs to the legislature and personal contact with all MPPs.

The 46 schools are now private, fee-paying institutions, supported by the parents of the children who attend them. They receive no part of the educational property tax levy or provincial grants given to the public and separate school systems.

In their campaign to seek some share of the tax dollar, the Christian school supporters are gathering 100,000 signatures for a petition to be presented to Premier John Roberts and Education Minister William Davis.

The local committee for educational equality believes every citizen in a democratic country should have the freedom to choose the school system he wants for his children and to direct his tax dollars in support of that system.

"The provincial government's "monopoly" on public education is contrary, the committee says, to the United National Declaration of Rights which declares that "parents have a prior right to choose the kind of education that shall be given to their children".

As an example of the legislation it is seeking, the committee cites the situation in Alberta, where $100 a pupil is annually granted to Christian schools.

With its petition, the committee hopes to reach people who, although they do not support Christian schools, believe that citizens have a democratic right to choose and operate educational systems they consider best for their children.

To this end, they are asking for an opportunity to explain their position to local church congregations after regular morning services.

The Ontario committee is working closely with separate school supporters, who are currently asking for extension of tax support to the last three grades of high school, and with Jewish congregations, some of whom operate Hebrew schools.

The Belleville school now has an enrolment of 85 students, taught by three regular full-time and two regular part-time teachers.

Each family pays a fee of $600 a year to send its children, and fund raising activities throughout the year augment the budget, set at $29,100 for 1978-79.

The per pupil cost is $340 this year, about $100 less than the per pupil cost for elementary school pupils in the public system.

The committee argues that its schools are a saving to the people of Ontario because the government does not have to provide education for the 8,000 pupils now being educated in Christian schools across the province. It asks that municipality levied school tax dollars "follow the child" to the school of its parent's choice.

Those wishing to sign the petition in support of financial equality in Ontario education can do so at the office of A. Van Reeuwyk Insurance at 409 Dundas St. West in Belleville, or by telephoning Peter Schaafsma at 962-8546 or John A. Metboon at 393-8821 in Trenton.

Police to the Rescue

Belleville police Detective Sgt. Bob Begbie and Constable Sam Morgan, secretary of the Belleville Police Association, show Mrs. Mildred Weymark how to operate the new tape recorder the police association donated in response to her plea. Mrs. Weymark, 178 Herchimer, is chairman for the homes for special care for the Quinte Branch of the Canadian Mental Health Association. Her public plea was for a tape recorder to help entertain former patients of the Ontario Hospital at Kingston. The patients, being accommodated in nursing homes throughout the Quinte area, have been active in square dancing organized by the MHA. Sgt. Begbie expressed thanks to Jerry O'Connor of O'Connor's Jewel Box for donating the engraved plate attached to the recorder.

Most TNT Is Found

TRENTON (Staff) — Most of the dynamite removed from the shed at Carr's gravel pit on Byron St. has been found.

Eight sticks were discovered yesterday in fields north of Middleton Park. At most, four or five sticks are still missing, a military police spokesman said today.

The exact amount of dynamite missing is unknown.

WINTER CARE FOR ROSES

IN THIS AREA ROSES MUST BE COVERED OVER IN WINTER

Do not cover too soon. The sap runs in roses until late November, or until the first snow growing.

Simply mound earth well up on the bush to a height of 8 - 10 inches, then trim the long stems.

Next April the earth should be taken away and the stems pruned down to about 6-8 inches.

DIG A GRAVE FOR YOUR TREE ROSES

Choose a spot in your vegetable garden and excavate a trench large enough to bury the whole tree, top, stem and all the roots. Dig at least 18" deep.

Late in November, dig the tree rose completely out of the ground, preserving as much of a root ball as possible. Bury the whole bush in the grave, cover with peat moss, then mound up with earth.

Dig up and re-plant next April as white tone the branches may be pruned.

Sod Turned for Arena Planned to Serve Young

Yesterday was sod turning day at the new $300,000 community arena with an ice surface of 200 by 85 feet. The new cement block building is scheduled for completion in four months and will serve a morning sports program for Centennial High School, Mackenzie Bowell School, OSD, and Sir John A. Macdonald. Other schools included but not as close as the four will be Loyalist College, Albert College, Our Lady of Fatima, and Queen Mary. Plans for the arena site include eventual construction of ball diamonds, soccer pitches, and track and field facilities. Present for the sod turning were Clair Rupnow, principal of Sir John A. Macdonald primary school and students from grades one to four, Lorne Williams and Cliff Belch of the Recreation and Parks Board, Hugh Sutherland, president of the Minor Sports Association, Tom Cavenaugh, president of the Minor Hockey Association, Alderman Robin Jeffries, Earl Hurst, and Dave Coates of the Quinte Action Committee and working on the site, George Seams, superintendent, Carr-Brunt Construction and closer operator Alan Lightfoot.

Some Cities Criticized For Welfare Policies

The National Welfare Council today at Ottawa called for a federal enquiry into provincial welfare programs but doubt is expressed locally that any of the council's criticisms are justified in Hastings county.

The council, set up last January by Health Minister John Munro to advise on welfare matters, has pressed for a national information program to tell potential welfare cases of their rights to assistance.

The resolution delivered almost unprecedented criticism from a federal advisory agency against provincial and municipal actions, claiming that certain categories of persons in need are being excluded from receiving assistance under programs covered by the Canada Assistance Plan.

Among the complaints believed made at a closed meeting 10 days ago was that special rules and requirements are being written into many welfare programs to exclude from assistance unemployed men under 30 years of age.

Other complaints listed were against the Metro Council action in Toronto which recently voted 14 to 9 against providing further funds for special welfare needs such as hearing aids, dentures and eye glasses and a three-day limitation on assistance given to transients in British Columbia.

County Welfare Administrator Reginald Tucker said today that in Hastings there was no distinction made between single and married persons seeking welfare assistance.

Confirmation of this is the fact that currently there are 84 single employable persons receiving welfare in the county and also 147 single unemployable persons.

But Mr. Tucker said the Metro Toronto Council was completely within its rights in voting against provision of further funds for special welfare needs.

Such special assistance is "permissive," according to Mr. Tucker and due to lack of funds for this particular phase of welfare is also being cut back in Hastings.

Funds for such assistance in Hastings were exhausted last month and the board has directed that for the balance of the year such special assistance be limited to school children and "exceptional" cases.

Eye glasses, dentures and support garments are included in the special assistance.

The local board also limits assistance given in transients.

Mr. Tucker said the definition of a transient was taken to mean a person with no permanent fixed address.

"Like other municipalities we have had many transients passing through here this year," Mr. Tucker said.

Here the local authorities accommodation for one night with meals and, within reason, a transportation allowance.

But Mr. Tucker doubted that potential welfare recipients needed a special information program to advise them of their rights to assistance.

"People here are well aware of their rights," the welfare administrator said.

This, he said, was indicated by the increasing number of persons on welfare, although it was admitted that tougher economic conditions were bearing on the increased welfare load.

"We could keep welfare costs down, Mr. Tucker said, "but we are here to provide a service."

The policy is that no person in need is turned away but even with a lenient viewpoint, some persons requesting assistance must be considered ineligible.

But in Ontario, people who have been refused welfare assistance have the right to appeal.

To hear such appeals, boards of review have been set up and any person who feels he has been unjustly refused aid can get his case before the review board.

When applicants are refused aid, their right to appeal be made known to them.

The Ontario Department of Social and Family Services in its last monthly statistical report (for the month of April) lists Hastings county as having among the lowest increases in the number of general welfare assistance recipients of the 47 municipalities reporting.

The percentage increase for Hastings for April as compared to April 1969 is given as 6.9 per cent with 1.9 per cent of the total population of 39,- 910 on welfare.

Some municipalities in the province report the number of welfare recipients having increased by as much as 164 per cent over a year ago. Only four municipalities reported a decrease.

The number in Hastings (including Belleville and Trenton) receiving general welfare assistance in April was given as 1,715 as compared to 1,604 a year ago.

Since April the number of recipients has increased due to economic conditions and other factors but Mr. Tucker said the actual percentage increase had not been worked out.

Total welfare costs were up not only because of the greater number of people receiving assistance, but also due to the fact that allowances for many items were increased at the beginning of the year.

Catholic Ratepayers Wire Minister

By LENNY WILLIAMSON,
Staff Reporter

Charging "board incompetence, disguised in secrecy," separate school ratepayers here have telegrashed Education Minister William Davis, demanding his intervention in the issue of the suspension of superintendent F. B. Allore.

In a telegram sent to the minister this morning, the ratepayers' group said that a second delegation was unable to "obtain any explanation whatsoever for removal of Mr. Fred Allore as superintendent".

About 35 ratepayers attended an executive meeting of the Hastings Prince Edward Separate School Board last night and repeated questions they originally posed Sept. 23.

Although the questions concerned reduced provisions for special education and the status of department of education grants revelation of the nature of the charges against the suspended superintendent was implied in the queries, said Mrs. Douglas Boyle this morning.

Mrs. Boyle, a leader of the ratepayers' group, said this morning that separate school supporters want to know the nature of the board's charges against Mr. Allore, and will ask this question directly at the next regular meeting Oct. 28.

Mr. Allore, superintendent with the board since it was formed Jan. 1, 1969, was suspended last May 8, but the board never made public the reason for its action.

At the last board meeting, chairman E. J. Buckley told the ratepayers that the superintendent's salary (about $300 a week) had been paid until Sept. 1.

Terming the issue "highly emotionally charged", Mr. Buckley said the facts about the suspension could be made public, "but it is not in Mr. Allore's interest to publish the facts; a man's whole career is at stake".

The board's monthly executive meeting is a caucus session, closed to press and public. However, the ratepayers' delegation discovered that, by provincial legislation, an "executive meeting" is open to the public.

After the delegation insisted that it be received and heard, Mrs. Boyle said trustees voted to open the meeting. The delegation's spokesmen repeated the questions they had raised two weeks ago and received answers.

Vice-chairman Ben Kroeze of Trenton presided in the absence of the chairman.

The trustees again refused to answer any questions, prompting the ratepayers to this morning's action in telegraphing Mr. Davis and demanding his intervention.

The text of the telegram read:

"The Prince Edward and school board:

"A demand delegation of ratepayers is ill unable to obtain any explanation whatsoever for removal of Mr Fred Allore as superintendent.

"Chairman Buckley elevet from meeting board refuses to answer questions posed by ratepayers.

"Ratepayers now demand action from your office in this deteriorating situation. Quality education for Catholic children is in jeopardy in the Belleville area.

"Board incompetence, disguised in secrecy, demands intervention from your office to protect children, schools, and teachers and to defend the rights of ratepayers."

This morning Mr. Buckley told The Intelligencer that the minister of education had withheld a decision on the suspension of Mr. Allore, pending the result of negotiations between the board and the superintendent.

The negotiations have broken down, and the minister has informed us that he will now make a decision at an early opportunity," Mr. Buckley said.

Although school boards in Ontario may suspend a chief executive, official termination of his employment depends upon confirmation from the department of education.

What happens if you ask your son, your brother-in-law, or your next door neighbour to be your executor?

Carrying out your wishes under your Will is the culmination of your life's work, ambitions, frustrations, and achievements.

Too often we've seen the problems of having relatives, friends, and business associates act as executors. For example, being brutal but realistic, chances are one or two of them are your own age so you can't count on continuity of the executorship (as you could with a corporate executor). Again, relatives tend to be too close to the situation — it's difficult (even embarrassing) to be completely objective. Finally, estate taxation is a very complicated subject for someone not completely familiar with ever changing taxation situations in major countries.

We suggest you name us your executor. The foundation of our business is, and always has been, handling estates. You're assured of continuity and objectivity. We have the special knowledge and expertise in investment management and taxation you need. And we have offices right across Canada and overseas, so your wife and other beneficiaries can establish themselves comfortably and without worry wherever they please.

If, on the other hand, having a large corporation looking after your family affairs seems a little too impersonal, remember, we at Royal Trust have wives and children, too.

Well Donel

What would we do without the teenagers? There are times, to coin an old saying, when there is no living with them (and of course the same is true of adults) but as we say, we want them around just the same.

Monday's big city-wide push for the United Appeal saw some 600 students from city schools canvassing for this vital community cause. It was a fine effort by the young people and the city and the United Appeal member agencies are in their debt.

This is not the first time by any means that the kids have got out and pulled their weight for the community. Christmas is not far away and we may expect further efforts in this vein, just as in the past, on behalf of citizens in need and community services.

As long as we have effort and dedication of this nature, on the part of youth, we need have no fear of the future.

Another example of community awareness was the initiative of a city barber shop in donating to the Appeal its proceeds for the day on Wednesday. It was a novel way too of soliciting additional funds from citizens who might otherwise find it difficult to increase their givings.

Well done, everyone who is working for the Appeal. Keep it up.

Will Boost Industry

Prince Edward County's industrial prospects remain uncertain. Two plants have been closed of late, and this has been a factor in cancellation of plans for expansion at Kente school in Ameliasburg township. Moreover, a final decision has yet to be made with regard to the proposed kraft paper mill, an enterprise which is also surrounded by controversy because of the threat of pollution.

Be that as it may, the county is not planning to stand still. The appointment of William Duggan, a Mississauga executive, as industrial commissioner, is proof of this.

For too long Prince Edward has had to rely principally on tourism. Then came the closing of the army camp and more recently Quinte Milk products in Wellington and the canning plant at Northport, developments which made it all the more obvious that other industries besides tourism must be encouraged.

Mr. Duggan's duties, significantly, will embrace both these factors as well as maintaining liaison with existing industries. He will be taking up his duties at a time when an end-of-season quiet envelops the county. Beaches and camp grounds are deserted and to the visitor from outside the tranquility and absence of any other activity to fill the void comes as a surprise.

Nobody wants to see the county run riot on this industrial front, but just how much is undesirable so too is the opposite extreme. Prince Edward could have half-a-dozen new industries and still remain one of the last bastions of unspoiled beauty in Canada.

Having said that, we should add a further warning on the pollution factor. We refer to Tuesday night's television documentary on methyl mercury poisoning. University of Rochester medical school scientists are trying to come up with means of early detection of this problem — infection which can work its way gradually into the system, show no apparent symptoms until years have elapsed, and ultimately can cause irreparable brain damage.

Co-operating with them is a middle-aged woman victim of mercury poisoning (contracted six years ago who made a partial recovery. Shown too were members of a New Mexico family who contracted the disease from hogs which had been affected; the most seriously ill patient lay groaning in bed, evidently beyond any hope of recovery, appalling human proof of what pollution can do. Also depicted were members of an Indian tribe at White Dog, Ontario, near the Minnesota border. "Water people," as their chief described them, they live in an area scientists believe is heavily polluted. The fish ,the chief says, are filled with mercury, yet this is their staple food and they cannot afford not to eat it.

And the source of the contamination? According to thedocumentary, it is waste from paper mills. If true there is no excuse for the strictest form of pollution controls in any such plant in Prince Edward, here it is. Even crystal lakes in remote parts of Canada, we were informed, are polluted. Methyl mercury mercury-over, is continuing to work itself into food generally and the program indicated we may expect this for a hundred years or more.

Hence the vital importance of the University of Rochester research and all other initiatives in the fight against pollution and for the maintenance of human wealth.

Ottawa Is Home...So Constituencies Neglected

Ivory Tower Mentality Grips Younger MPs Says Veteran

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — A quiet old Liberal pro, who was winning federal elections when some of his party's noisy young MP activists were trying for their first class presidencies in early public school days, worried that they are becoming too technocratic.

They see themselves stamped in the magic mould of Pierre Elliott Trudeau.

And they forget, or, suggests the old Grit pol, gloomily, perhaps never knew two basic facts of political life:

1. There can be only one genuine PET — or, for that matter, any dynamically dominating leader — in the mint original of the Great Man himself, and that anything else no matter how carefully copied has to be counterfeit.

Mackenzie King and John Diefenbaker who, like Pierre Trudeau, ruled at their peak of power as political kings, proved that.

2. What was magic for one winning party leader last election may not be so marvellous for either him or his disciples in the next.

Louis St. Laurent, and Lester Pearson, who, unlike Pierre Trudeau, presided, in their administrations, as chairmen of the board of directors, showed that.

Pierre Trudeau senses this.

So he was trendy in his first campaign caper, kissing and kidding all the way to the polls.

And then, in power, he smoothly assumed the role of the technocratic political scientist, lecturing public press and Parliament as would a professor his university undergrads.

He gave them all scholarly discourses on what was good for them, and good for the country, even if it was not always good for the Liberal party's popularity — like those stiff doses of high interest, tight money, and heavy unemployment to cure inflation.

It starts to seem like good economic medication.

But if anyone appeared inclined to "yes, but" him, he scorned them as a prof might a backward pupil.

He advised a carping press it was "crummy," informed grumbling MP backbenchers they were "nobodies," branded unco - operating labor as "greedy" and told off an increasingly skeptical public that if they did not "like it, then lump it."

So what should impressionable and snobbishly bright young freshmen Liberal MPs think but that this was the way this political thing is done?

Increasingly they are assuming a technocratic superiority.

Politics for them is more a study within the academe to be thoughtfully pursued in the sequestered corridors of power, and less a profession to be laboriously practised out in the clamoring crowds of constituents.

Result, sorrows the old Liberal veteran of more than 30 successful years of politicking, has been that instead of spending every spare day of their three-month recess at work back home among the voters, they have been putting in time here on the Hill with each other.

They have been compiled — he hears it is more like pre-compiled — with Commons committees, task forces, study groups, think-tanks, language courses, and even (yes, hush) baskets.

And a lot of them have been neglecting, if not actively forgetting their constituencies, whom, for any practical politician less than two years away from the next election, "it is at" the vote that will, or might not, bring them back to Parliament in the Spring or Fall of 1972.

It is back there at home where the action is and so many of those MPs are not.

Some of them have been getting so out of touch they have pulled up old roots in hometown, putting down new shoots in Ottawa.

Ottawa has become home to them, and what used to be home is that place where they and their families do not live any more and are not all that anxious to visit, except when in peril of their political lives they must periodically and briefly pay a call.

Some of them, laments the Liberal warhorse, are such strangers back in what used to be the old home town that the lawyers among them have not kept up with the law, and when among the local benchers, the engineers have lost track of what problems are in the air, and their wives will not find a familiar face when they canvass those coffee clatches in the need campaign.

They have become so removed from the realities that in clamoring for higher parliamentary pay, they are still advising that if they do not get that $25,000 to $30,000 with more fringe benefits, then they will not contest the next election.

Some of them seem to think they did the folks a favor last time by accepting their votes, and do not mind saying that it may be too much to ask of them next time, unless everybody smarten up and realize that like the political prima donnas they do not seem to realize they are.

NDP Convention Anomaly

The Intelligencer,

Editor,

As an interested observer at the Ontario NDP convention, I was puzzled.

Stephan Lewis was elected over Walter Pitman by 1,188 to 642, a margin of 546 votes. If we believe the press and the union leader interviewed on television at the convention, Lewis got at least 80 per cent or 750 of the 930 union votes. The NDP regular party members preferred Pitman by about 641 to 438.

Lewis won on a radical, socialist, anti-American platform denouncing foreign capital economy and the domination of Canada by international US corporations, yet his margin of victory came from the Canadian locals of international American unions.

If the government is under the thumb of US corporations and the NDP is under the thumb of US unions, who speaks for the ordinary citizens of Ontario?

Quinte's Talented Citizens

Editor,

The Intelligencer,

We, sir, are fortunate to live in the Belleville and Quinte district. Ability abounds: we have it on all skins — sports, politics, medicine, nursing and many others.

The district has also produced one of Canada's outstanding pacers, (R. Yankee Wann) which is rated well with the world's best.

And in last night's paper a reader speaks well (Oct. 5 issue re "A Respectful Gesture") of our district.

We should be proud to be a part of it all.

Henri Christophe, second Negro emperor of Haiti, shot himself 150 years ago today—in 1820—with a silver bullet and the country became a republic. Christophe was the last survivor of three leaders of Haiti's revolt against the French. Toussaint l'Ouverture died in a French prison, captured by trickery, and Jean-Jacques Dessalines, first emperor, was assassinated. Haiti had prospered during Christophe's 14 years of rule, but his regime was cruel and repressive.

Canada's Initiative

Fight Against Coastal Pollution Must Be World-Wide

The Globe and Mail

With the new Arctic legislation, Canada has at least a fighting chance to prevent pollution of her Arctic waters. In her non-Arctic coastal waters she has almost no chance at all.

International law is of no help. Existing conventions give nations the power to impose penalties on ships discharging oil, but they give no right to demand that preventive measures be taken. Nor do they apply in cases where oil is discharged because of an accident, which is what everyone fears most.

Last November, 40 nations met in Brussels and approved a new convention that would impose much tougher penalties and would apply to all kinds of discharges, accidental or otherwise. But still it gave no power to demand preventive measures.

However, even this limited international protection is not available to Canada. She voted against the convention because it didn't go far enough and the convention protects only signatory states. In any event, it has not yet been ratified by all the countries that did support it.

Our domestic law is in just as sad a state. It consists of a pathetic little section in the Canada Shipping Act which allows the federal Government to remove and sell wrecks likely to pollute Canadian waters, endanger waterfowl or fish or damage coastal property. The section, which came into effect last July, was stripped of the only teeth it had when the Government capitulated to arguments of the shipping industry and removed a clause that would have made ship operators wholly responsible for pollution caused by their ships.

So it can only be with the greatest enthusiasm that Canadians can't greet the events of the past few weeks. First there was the announcement by Transport Minister Donald Jamieson that he would introduce legislation that would take a tough line on prevention as well as cure. And then there was the report of the federal task force which urged that Canada call an international conference to prepare strict rules for safety and pollution control at sea.

First things must come first, however. As with the Arctic legislation, we can't wait for international accord in this vital area — we've tried unsuccessfully to get it for almost 17 years. So Mr. Jamieson should bring in his legislation as soon as possible.

At the same time, we should continue to press for international rules. We have a particularly important obligation in this case because Canada has taken new and significant initiatives in this area while other nations have been groping for solutions.

A Growing Friendship

The Callow children, Glen (10) left and Susan (11), brother and sister can claim the most popular pets in the village of Amelissburg. Their pair of rabbits became noticed by everyone when they occupied a special house built for them at the front of the Callow residence on the main street with their names THUMPER and FRIEND painted on it.

Urban Affairs Likely

OTTAWA (CP) — The government announced its decision today to designate formally a minister in charge of urban affairs and housing to cope with "increasing pressure of urban living."

The speech from the throne opening the new parliamentary session described the new post as designed to "foster co-ordination of the activities of all levels of government and to contribute to sound urban growth and development."

Planning for the new department is already well advanced under the direction of Robert Andras, at present minister without portfolio in charge of housing.

One important function would be to ensure that programs administered by other federal departments which reach into Canadian cities do not conflict with each other or with provincial goals.

Last winter the government refused to consider establishment in the Commons of a standing committee on urban affairs after it was suggested that such a step was unnecessary and would come close to impinging on provincial jurisdiction in the field.

The speech from the throne outlined some of the pressures that pushed the government to the decision. By the end of the century, it said, an estimated 80 per cent of Canadians will live in a few large cities.

Reorganization Planned

Scientific Resources to Undergo Study

OTTAWA (CP) — Major reorganizations of the National Research Council and of the Science Council of Canada and also of cabinet formulation of science policy are in prospect for 1971.

The throne speech at the opening of a new parliamentary session today gave the first hints of this.

The government promised a program "to gather and focus" diverse and competitive scientific resources of the country.

Informants said action will await two major studies—the Senate committee of science policy and an internal examination of government structures relating to science. The internal study is said to be going on within the cabinet's science secretariat.

The Senate committee, headed by Senator Maurice Lamontagne, a former Liberal cabinet minister, is expected to make its report by the end of the year.

The government's scientific affairs are dealt with by a cabinet committee which meets weekly under Treasury Board President C. M. Drury.

A Lamontagne committee recommendation is expected to be that one cabinet minister be designated as responsible for all science policy matters.

Meanwhile, the Science Council of Canada, headed by Dr. O. M. Solandt, has been examining its role as an adviser on national science policy and direction.

Council members have made no secret of their concern that neither the government nor the public generally has paid sufficient attention to recommendations on national goals and other matters.

At the same time, there has been concern within the government that the council is too big and unwieldy. It now has 24 members plus four or five associate members.

Its role has been entirely advisory and investigative and informants indicated there is no immediate plan to change that.

The National Research Council fills multiple functions, providing advice, supporting research in universities and industry and operating extensive research laboratories of its own.

In the wake of studies, including one by the science council, NRC has reorganized internally to beef up its encouragement of industrial research.

Informants said that all federal legislation with respect to science and scientific activities may be written into one act of Parliament. No decision has been made pending the Lamontagne committee report and that of the special study commissioned for the cabinet committee.

Informants said next spring would be the earliest time at which legislation could be placed before Parliament.

Canada on Verge of Greatness

Most likely first appointee is Robert Andras, minister without portfolio responsible for housing. He is expected to speak in the Commons next week on details of government plans to tackle urban problems.

The throne speech said the consumer "requires protection in a number of respects."

Measures would be introduced to protect Canadians more adequately from the results of combines, mergers and unfair trade practices, to regulate the labelling and packaging of consumer goods and to protect further credit users.

These measures are understood to include changes in the Interest, small loans, bankruptcy and combines investigation acts.

The government again promised tax reform legislation, likely to be presented to Parliament next March or April.

The wealth of Canada must be for all Canadians, the speech said, "and not just for those fortunate enough to be shielded by the protective apparatus of giant corporations, alert professional organizations or powerful labor unions."

White papers on income security, defence, communications, citizenship and immigration will appear.

The speech said income security legislation will be introduced but was vague about its nature.

The reason is understood to be that the cabinet has not made up its mind on this problem, apart from a decision not to introduce a cradle-to-grave guaranteed annual income.

The speech said the government will present bills to combat ocean and air pollution. The former is designed to prevent oil spills along the sea coasts.

Like last year's, the speech contained a reference to the Queen—in fact, several.

It said the Queen, Prince Philip and Princess Anne will attend British Columbia's centennial celebrations in early May.

The speech, which bore Prime Minister Trudeau's unmistakable stamp, said the 1970s are a new age, not an much because of changed circumstances but because of changed values and attitudes.

"It is an age frequented by violence as desperate men seek ill-defined goals an age of frustration as gentle men question impalsively old assumptions."

The "life-support systems of the biosphere" might collapse unless man began again to live in harmony instead of in competition with his environment.

"A society which is not inspired by love and compassion is not worthy of the name," the speech said.

The government obviously finds the issue of non-medical use of drugs a tricky one to handle.

It said the Le Dain commission report on drugs "will require careful study and discussion" but did not promise any legislation.

No Canadian problem is insoluable, the speech said.

"An economy that is in need of adjustment; a society beset by a variety of tensions; an environment that has been abused and degraded; an international community that is under intense pressures—these are problems that demand our urgent attention."

Anti-pollution Activities Under One Department

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government plans to organize its anti-pollution activities under a single new department which also will be responsible for renewable resources.

The throne speech at today's opening of a new parliamentary session referred to a pressing need to co-ordinate and consolidate efforts in an effective fashion.

"There will be proposed the establishment of a department to be concerned with the environment and the husbanding of those renewable resources that are a part of and dependent upon it, with a mandate for the protection of the biosphere."

Legislation to baitle ocean pollution and air pollution also were forecast.

The speech says the threat of environmental pollution must be met quickly and determinedly. Action was required in many forms.

Informants said that all the legislation dealing with water and air pollution, fisheries, forests and, possibly, agriculture will come under the proposed department of resources and the environment.

Inquiry Will Consider Contempt Proceedings

TORONTO (CP) — The case of newspaper man Gerald McAuliffe goes before a judicial inquiry today to determine whether he should be cited for contempt for not telling the names of police officers who gave him confidential information.

If he is cited he could go to jail until he purges his contempt.

There was a suggestion in an inquiry exchange Wednesday that the case of Dr. Morton Shulman, New Democratic Party member of the legislature for Toronto High Park, may also be heard today.

Like Mr. McAuliffe, Dr. Shulman has refused to disclose the source of information which led him to allege improper relationships by businessman George Clinton Duke with senior provincial police officers and with persons of known criminal activity.

The allegations, made in a speech to a legislature committee June 4, sparked the inquiry conducted by Mr. Justice Campbell Grant of the Ontario Supreme Court.

Mr. McAuliffe, head of the Burlington, Ont., bureau of the Hamilton Spectator, also refused to identify his sources of evidence three weeks ago.

John Weir, counsel for the OPP, argued that the "names of police officials should be made public. He said it was essential to the morale and reputation of the forces involved that the informants be identified and cross-questioned by counsel.

Mr. McAuliffe said earlier he felt bound by a promise to his informants not to reveal their names.

He told Mr. Weir that five of his informants were policemen and three of the five gave him information that could be classed as confidential under the Ontario Police Act.

Mr. Justice Grant accepted a recommendation from Inquiry counsel J. J. Robinette to postpone a ruling in Mr. McAuliffe's case until the inquiry has heard evidence from two other Hamilton Spectator reporters.

Mr. Justice Grant rejected an application by Dr. Shulman to enlarge the scope of the inquiry to include other areas of OPP operations.

Mr. Robinette said Dr. Shulman's additional allegations, covering such matters as organized bookmaking, smuggling of narcotics and the presence of United States criminals in Ontario involved possible inefficiency but no impropriety on the part of the OPP.

John Bowlby, counsel for the Burlington police department, said Mr. McAuliffe was fundamentally impugning the honesty of the Burlington and provincial forces by saying that Mr. Duke, an Oakville, Ont., millionaire, had received "kid-glove treatment" from them.

"No man should be allowed to impeach the integrity of the Burlington police department or any police department," he said.

Nurses' Views On Sex Change

TORONTO (CP)—A study of sexual attitudes among nurses shows today's 18-year-old girls are more sexually active with fewer guilt feelings than girls of the same age five years ago, faculty doctors were told Wednesday.

Dr. Edgar S. Cross told the Ontario chapter of the College of Family Physicians the 1970 study showed half the girls thought sexual intercourse for couples who are not engaged is permissible while in 1965 none thought so.

About 500 nurses have participated in the study since 1965.

Between 1965 and 1967, 24 per cent of girls said they had had sexual intercourse but the percentage rose to 36 by 1970 for the 18-year age group.

Nurses 21 years of age in their third year of training between 1965 and 1967 revealed 50 per cent had had sexual intercourse. If the trend continues, Dr. Cross said, 70 per cent of girls entering nursing this year may be expected to have had sexual intercourse by the spring of their third year.

Dr. Cross, of the University of Toronto department of medicine, said the changes have come about because young people do not equate morality with virginity.

However, he pointed out that there was a 50 per cent increase in pregnancies among unmarried girls between 15 and 24 years of age from 1955 to 1968.

He said the teen-age girl thinks contraception is unromantic and "we have to convince her that contraception comes first and romance second."

Dr. Cross said doctors are no longer home-bound to ask parental permission to put a young girl on the pill if the alternative is unwanted pregnancy.

In another address, Dr. William Goldberg of Hamilton said tiredness is the most common complaint doctors hear, but it should not be dismissed lightly.

He said fatigue is a real, not an imagined, symptom and can be just as disabling to the patient if it is caused by boredom or depression as by a weak heart valve."

Eggs Controlled

EDMONTON (CP) — Alberta entered the chicken-and-egg war Wednesday by allowing poultry marketing boards to limit the selling of poultry products from outside the province.

Agriculture Minister H. A. Russ said, "We believe in free interprovincial trade, but we can't sacrifice Alberta producers for someone dumping products here."

New Provincial Court of Appeal Is Proposed for Ontario

TORONTO (CP) — Legislation aimed at reducing the workloads of the province's clogged courtrooms was introduced in the legislature Wednesday by Attorney-General Arthur Wishart.

The legislation, which would create a new provincial appeal court, would also give county and district court judges—to be known as local judges of the High Court—jurisdiction in divorce cases.

Composed of amendments to the Judicature Act and five companion bills, the legislation seeks to implement many of the recommendations contained in former Chief Justice J.C. McRuer's inquiry into civil rights.

Mr. Wishart said one of the benefits of creating the new court is that it would shift the workload of the existing court structure and more than double the number of judges empowered to hear divorce actions.

Central element in the legislation is creation of a new court — the Divisional Court—to supplement the Supreme Court and the High Court of Justice.

"The Divisional Court would sit at strategic points across the province—Toronto, Ottawa, London, Sudbury, Sault Ste. Marie and Thunder Bay—and would be presided over by three high court judges.

It would be empowered to hear all appeals under any statute now referred to the High Court or the Court of Appeals except appeals in criminal cases or other cases under federal jurisdiction.

The authority would extend over appeals from decisions of surrogate courts, division courts or administrative tribunals such as the Ontario Municipal Board.

Mr. Wishart told a news conference that creating the high-court division would provide trial judges with experience in hearing appeals, create a body of judges expert in administrative law and the work load on the appeal court will be lessened without interfering with its jurisdiction.

He said there may be a constitutional barrier in allowing county court judges to hear divorce cases. If there is a doubt, the province will test the legislation by taking a divorce action to court.

The bill also increased the monetary jurisdiction of county and district courts from $3,000 to $7,500. At present any civil case involving costs or damages higher than $3,000 must be referred to the Supreme Court.

Tax Withholding Continues

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — The Ontario Federation of Agriculture and the National Farmers Union will continue to encourage farmers to withhold portions of their property taxes this fall despite the government's offer of a 25 per cent rebate, organization officials say.

Provincial Secretary Robert Welch told the Ontario legislature Tuesday the province will pay the special rebate to farmers before the end of the year.

Gordon Hill of Varna, OFA president, said the campaign to withhold taxes is still on but OFA directors will meet later this week to discuss the government rebate. A poll of the membership will be held.

Edward Morden of Guelph said in an interview the offer of the rebate falls far short of what farmers are attempting to accomplish: tax paid on a person's ability to pay rather than on property.

Hubert Keirle of Addison, Ont., a district director of the NFU, said the campaign was aimed at complete removal of taxes from farm property.

Lewis Asked To Ask About Seized Leaflets

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Young New Democrats asked provincial NDP leader Stephen Lewis Wednesday to raise in the legislature an incident in which police confiscated leaflets distributed by an Ottawa students organization.

"We want to know about the seizure of the leaflets," said Terry Campbell, vice-president, organization, of the OYND. "Whether it's legal and if it's not legal what can be done about it."

OSHAWA (CP) — Ontario Liberal Leader Robert Nixon proposed Wednesday night that the provincial government set up a takeover review board to look at mergers and acquisitions of public and private companies.

He said the board could examine changes in corporate structure and ownership to ensure that they are in he public interest. Such a board would look into the proposed sale of the textbook division of W. J. Gage Ltd. of Toronto to Scott, Foresman and Co. of Illinois.

Meribeth McIntosh models plaid slacks with a turtle neck sweater, a suede vest and a fringed matching shoulder bag, showing a casual style that's definitely 'in' at the fashion show sponsored by the St. Joseph's C.W.I. and held at the St. Joseph's Public School auditorium on Wednesday night. Mrs. Helena Clarke, (right), president of the St. Joseph's C.W.I., chats with four of the models who took part in the fashion show. The models are (from left to right) Peggy McCutcheon, Johanna Bateman, Mary Teresa Truaisch and Chris Bateman.

'Wear Your Own Thing' Is Theme Of CWL Sponsored Fashion Show

FASHION SHOW
By SUSAN KORAH
Women's Reporter

Wear what you like, the styles and lengths that suit you best — that was the recurring theme of "Operation Fall — In 'W', the fashion show held on Wednesday evening in the auditorium of St. Joseph's Public School under the auspices of the St. Joseph's CWL.

With fashions provided by McIntosh Bros., the outstanding part of the program was the showing of some glamorous 'at home' styles which demonstrated the sheer pleasure of lounging away one's leisure in a glorious kaleidoscope of color. Among the numerous outfits modelled in this section Mrs. Arlene Dempsey's slender pantdress of amel knitted fabric caught the eye. The tailored top was buttoned from the neckline to the midriff. The culotte was a whirl of accordion pleats. In sophisticated black the dress was enlivened with a gay sash at the midriff.

Mrs. Marilyn Marta appeared in a regal sweep of softness in deep purple brushed arnel nylon rocksma with a silver scroll trim reminding one of the night sky lit by a myriad stars. An empire style wrap of black lace over turquoise taffeta by Judy Gail Inc. was modelled by Mrs. Pat Burrowes. Peggy McCutcheon caused a minor sensation when she whipped off the quilted pants of her two-piece lounge suit in rayon acetate, showing that the 'teddy shirt' top can well hold its own as a mini. A colorful caftan of soft, flowing arnel jersey was modelled by Mrs. Dianne Loupelle.

In the section called "If It Suits You" Meribeth McIntosh showed her disdain of the mini - mini controversy by wearing her own thing — a sleeveless pant - top which she treated as a swish little skimmer. With matching slacks as a standby in case she changed her mind, this outfit of 100 per cent textured knit fortrel.

Mrs. Dianne Loupelle and Mrs. Margaret Doyle swung into the social whirl in white pantsuits with metallic abstract surfaces and flared pants. Dianne's basic featured a V neckline and Mrs. Doyle's had an exotic far Eastern look with Nehru - type collar. Commentator Sheila Nash pointed out that pantsuits provide a great compromise for a woman who wants a new look but is not yet ready for the midi. She also remarked that with so many belted, sashed and cinched outfits the waist is definitely back. A message of unadorned beauty and simplicity as the keynote of elegance was conveyed by Pat Burrowes in her floor length gown of royal purple jaringly slashed at the sides.

The winter wrap - ups shown included ponchos, some of them fringed and hooded. The vest look in coats and accessories, the military look and coats of leather and suede made their appearance. Cheryl Chambers showed that the midi can look great on a little girl as well as on a mature woman. Her adjustable 7ex midi coat had velvet trims on the collar and pocket flaps. Chris and Johanna Bateman modelled snow suits of nylon shell silicone - treated for water resistance.

The dresser at this show also indicated that in the fashion industry this is the year that anything goes. The mini with its variations will still be in but the midi with its variations will also be seen. A number of casual wear outfits were also shown.

A feature of special interest to the show was "window shopping" with the stage decor simulating store windows with live models in statuesque poses. A dance routine choreographed by Peggy McCutcheon and performed by Peggy and Mary Teresa Truaisch was enjoyed by all. Slides which gave the audience a comprehensive view of all the latest trends in the fashion world were also shown.

The show which was organized by Sheila Nash of McIntosh Bros. was convened by Mrs. Helena Clarke, president of St. Joseph's C.W.I. Hair styles of the models were by the French Salon and the jewelry was provided by Doug Jones Jewellers. Draws for several prizes took place during the intermission.

Mr. and Mrs. Everett Fitzgibbon, 72 Lavinia Street have returned home after a three weeks' visit in England.

MR. AND MRS. GRAEME ROBERT FOX

Fox – Brooker

Captain Edward Gurney officiated at the recent wedding ceremony in the Salvation Army Citadel, Belleville, when Edith Alberta Joanne Brooker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Brooker, Trenton became the bride of Graeme Herbert Fox, son of Mrs. Lelia Fox, Belleville and the late Mr. Herbert W. Fox. Mrs. E. Curnew was organist and played accompaniment for the Belleville Citadel male quartet consisting of Jack Hatfield, Robert Lessels, Alan Austin and Kenneth Lessels.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor length gown in A-line style of peau de broche with trunk lace panel accented at top with small cowl collar and done - quarter scoop sleeves lined with lace. An inverted pleat flowed from the empire back to form a full train. She wore a pearl tiara caught to a floor length veil. She carried a bouquet of pink sweetheart roses, white mums, dalsies and stephanotis. Mrs. Judy Lessels, sister of the bride wore an A-line short sleeved dress of peach crystal sheer with cowl collar. She carried a bouquet of white mums and peach sweetheart roses and wore similar flowers in her hair. The bridesmaids Mrs. Shirley Brooker, sister - in - law of the bride and Mrs. Linda Solder were dressed identically to the matron of honor but carried bouquets of yellow dalsies. The flower girl Miss Liane Burtt, niece of the bridegroom was dressed in white crystal sheer dress matching the bride's and carried a basket of assorted flowers. She wore a band of peach sweetheart roses in her hair.

Dr. Ross Burtt, brother - in - law of the bridegroom was groomsman, while the ushers were Leonard Brooker, brother of the bride and Douglas Solder, Junior cousin. was David Burtt, nephew of the bridegroom and ring-bearer was Robbie Howes.

A wedding-reception was held in the Citadel where the bride's mother received the guests wearing a gold and beige silk brocade dress with brown accessories and a corsage of Woburn Abbey roses. The bridegroom's mother assisted wearing a princess line dress of teal blue silk worsted with matching coat and hat, beige accessories and a corsage of pink sweetheart roses.

For the wedding trip to the eastern United States, the bride chose a gold long sleeved wool worsted suit with brown accessories and a corsage of gardenias and Woburn Abbey roses.

The couple will reside in Belleville.

Sensitivity Groups, Good or Bad?

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have confidence in you. I'm sure if you don't know the answer you'll get it from someone who does. Question: What about these Sensitivity Groups? Are they on the level? Do they do anybody any good? Can they be harmful? These groups seem to be springing up all over the country. My husband is interested, but I have serious doubts about such intimacy. Our friends who have become involved are full of raves. But these friends are too far out for my taste and I wonder where these group experiences will lead them. Please deal with the subject in your column. — ZORBA.

DEAR Z: Most Sensitivity Groups do a lot of good — for the guy who is running them. He gets rich. This is not to say they are all phony. The early "T" Groups were legitimate. They helped inhibited people who needed to learn to shed their hang-ups and open up to others. In the past year, however, a staggering number of charlatans have gotten into the act. They saw a good thing and wanted part of the action.

Unfortunately, anyone can set himself up as a "T" leader, run an ad in the paper and rent a hotel room for the "meeting." These fakes prey on lonely people, sick people — anybody who has the price.

I am highly suspicious of most "T" groups since I do not believe in instant honesty, instant truthfulness or instant recovery from life-long anxieties and complex problems. My psychiatric consultants tell me they are seeing a disconcerting number of people who have broken down emotionally because they could not tolerate the intimacy, exposure and brutal bearing of the soul demanded by The Group. The word from here is nix, unless the group leader is a person of impeccable reputation with a long-time record of integrity and competence.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Don't tell me to ask my pediatrician. I'm ashamed to admit I don't know the answer. It's a simple question — but it's driving me nuts.

I have an 11-month-old baby. I would like to start frying his breakfast eggs in butter — along with my husband's and mine. My Mother says No — it will hurt his stomach. Yet when we go to her house she gives the baby chunks of bread with globs of butter. I'd like to know the difference between eating eggs fried in butter and eating globs of butter on bread. — BACK BURNER.

DEAR BACK: Butter is butter — whether you fry eggs in it or put globs of it on bread. If the child has a normal digestive system, butter won't hurt him. If he is too chubby you should cut down on all fat — butter included.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm always surprised when I read letters from women who form romantic attachments to their doctors. My doctor is a very attractive man but I view him as someone who performs a service for me — like the electrician or the cop on the corner. My women friends consider their doctors a cross between Sir Gallahad, Houdini, and Elliott Gould. What turns them on? Is something wrong with me, or them? — NO FITTY PAT.

DEAR PAT: To many women the doctor is a symbol of healing, help and hope. He is gentle, supportive, kind and all-knowing, patient controlled and responsive to her needs — unless, of course, he happens to be her husband, in which case he is never around when she needs him and pays attention to everyone but her and the kids.

A Poem on Guess Why the Bridesmaid Wept

By DORIS CLARK

ENIGMA

The age-old vows were spoken,
The marriage knot was tied,
The bride dabbed at tears
With her kerchief.
Her mother was misty-eyed.
The bridesmaid (no was tearful;
Queried a gentleman guest,
"Why weep? It isn't your wedding."

"That's the reason," she confessed.

— Mable Jenkin.

Dear Doris: I noticed an enquiry about Esperanto. We have a small group of aspiring Esperantists here in St. Catharines, started off by Dr. John Mayer of Brock University. We meet in each other's homes every couple of weeks from September to June to practise speaking Esperanto.

Information and study material can be obtained by writing to Kanada Esperanto Asociation, National Offices, 63 Sparks Street, Ottawa 4, Ontario.

If the person enquiring is local perhaps he or she would be interested in our group. — Keyword: Hope.

Dear Hope: It's a great idea. The World Federalists, who are promoting the objective of world government, are all for developing a world-wide language with no political or national connections.

Surely it is one route to world understandings. I like the thought that members of Esperanto Clubs can visit any country and locate people they can talk to. Kindred spirits, too.

The enquirer lives in Vancouver. I've passed on your message.

Dear Doris: A mother with small children is faced with the problem of half a dozen cookies and hot chocolate barely tasted by her children whom the hostess has served along with coffee.

Does the mother: (a) leave the half - eaten cookies on her plate? (b) eat them herself? (c) or?

I have a good friend with four small children who, against my objections cleans up on all her children's leftovers and then complains about having to serve as their garbage disposal. Very unnerving! — Susie.

Dear Susie: The mother feels an implied insult to the hostess' cooking, when children are loave food on their plates. But cleaning up after them is not an acceptable apology.

Far better would be a whispered consultation ahead of time urging the hostess to make the children's servings small. To form her activity "garbage disposal" insists everybody — herself included. Leftovers should, of course, be, left on plates, be they those of children or adults.

Vegetables for Thanksgiving

By MARY MOORE

Chilled Melon Crescents with Chopped Ginger
Roast Stuffed Turkey (see Wednesday)
Cranberry Sauce
Rich Turkey Gravy
Mashed Squash or Turnip
Herbed Green and Yellow Beans (see below) OR Savory Peas and Carrots (see below)
Salad Greens with Roquefort Dressing
Layered Mince-Pumpkin Pie (see Tuesday) OR Perfect Pumpkin Pie (see Tuesday)
Peaches Sabayon (see Monday)
Coffee

Most of the major items in our suggested Thanksgiving Dinner Menu have been given here in recipe form this week. But I was pleased particularly with two of the alternate vegetables above and thought you would like the little changes I had wrought.

HERBED GREEN AND YELLOW BEANS

Use equal amounts of fresh green and yellow beans. To be precise I will fix on 2½ cups each measured when washed, topped and cut into ½ or 1" pieces. So you have 5 cups. Cook in boiling salted water to barely cover, covered until barely tender. Drain. Add ¼ to ½ tsp. basil and 1 tbsp. finely chopped chives (or green onion), 2 tbsps. butter, salt and pepper to taste. These are very popular.

SAVORY PEAS AND CARROT DICE

Cook one 11-oz. pkge. fresh frozen peas and carrot dice in ½ cup boiling water with 1 tsp. beef extract (Bovril), 1 tsp. sugar and ¼ tsp. salt for 3 min. or until carrot dice are tender. Drain. Add 2 tbsps. chopped fresh mint and 2 tbsps. butter. This method gives a fresh flavor to these two commonly used vegetables that is both surprising and welcome.

Female Sports Reporter Gets Snarls on First Entering Lions' Den

VANCOUVER (CP) — A female lamb entered the Lions' den Saturday night but instead of being mauled she got the VIP treatment.

An attendant guarding the Empire Stadium press box never before invaded by a female, froze when she Canadian Press reporter flashed a B.C. Lions press pass at him. He mutiered something about the box being "for men only" but let her in. Then he disappeared.

For close to 30 minutes a feeling of triumph prevailed. Several male reporters came into the box, stared at the female reporter for a moment, then sat down.

Then in stormed Pat Slattery, custodian of the press box, followed closely by a red-faced attendant. Slattery, although in charge of the box, is better known to British Columbia readers as cmm's fashion counsitor for the Vancouver Sun.

"Sorry, we don't allow ladies in the press box," he said in an authoritative tone. It would be a precedent, he said.

The reporter assured him she was not a member of the women's liberation movement, and that all she wanted to do was cover the B.C. Lions-Edmonton Eskimos game.

"Well, the other reporters can't really let their hair down with a female around," he explained. "Some of the language can get rough . . . I wouldn't like my wife in here."

After she assured him her ears had probably been assailed by a variety of controversial expressions around the news desk, Slattery seemed to weaken slightly and left. But he returned moments later with Dennis Veitch, general manager of the B.C. Lions.

"Sorry, you can't stay here but we've set up a seat for you in the VIP lounge only 20 feet away," said Veitch diplomatically.

Both Mr. Veitch and Mr. Slattery said the Canadian Football League Writers Association had established the no-females-allowed rule.

But four male reporters said that if asked they would vote to let the female reporter stay.

"Maybe we could let a female into the press box if she is doing actual play coverage," said Al Eaton, public relations man for the Lions. "We'll have to talk to the writers' association."

Edmonton Eskimos downed the B.C. Lions 22-20 in a rough-and-tumble exercise that saw the Lions drop the ball more than once.

Inside the dressing room, Lions coach Jackie Parker was in a huddle with other officials.

"It's kind of hot in there," said Mr. Eaton.

"But Mr. Parker said any time the lady wants to come in for an after-the-game story she's welcome along with all the other male reporters."

Criticism of Super-markets' Wage Settlements Is Called Unfair

MONTREAL (CP) — Mel Dobrin, president of Steinbergs Ltd., has described as "inaccurate, misleading and unfair" criticism of pay settlements in grocery-store chains by the federal prices and incomes commission.

A statement issued Wednesday by the commission said pay settlements for employees of Steinbergs Ltd., Dominion Stores Ltd. and Loblaws Groceterias Co. were excessive, unjustified and inflationary.

Mr. Dobrin released the text of a telegram sent Wednesday to commission chairman John Young, asking that the commission issue a second statement "making the facts clear."

The telegram said in part: "The extent of the settlement was made known to you in advance of the signing of the collective agreements and your commission was given both verbal and written assurances that Steinbergs would do everything possible to avoid increasing prices as a result of such wage increases.

"Your representatives have met regularly with members of our organization and have been kept informed concerning our prices and operating margin. You therefore must be aware that at no time . . . has Steinbergs Ltd. increased its prices directly or indirectly as a result of these negotiated increases."

The commission's statement said that customers would 'in the end have to pay for increases averaging about 11.5 per cent annually—almost twice the commission's recommended six-per-cent guideline.

"Stop talking like my husband! It's none of your business what I want the money for!"

Governor-General Host At Parliamentary Ball

OTTAWA (CP) — External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp didn't attend the parliamentary ball at Government House Wednesday night.

He was busy at a news conference calling on the kidnappers of British diplomat James Cross to name a negotiator for talks with federal authorities about the kidnap victim's release.

But despite the uneasy atmosphere over the capital, many other members of Parliament, senators and senior civil servants tried to forget their cares by kicking up their heels at formal ball, traditionally held the evening before the opening of a new session.

Prime Minister Trudeau was one of the approximately 500 guests at the ball held by Governor-General and Mrs. Michener at their stately state mansion, Rideau Hall.

He didn't bring a date and after moving through the receiving line behind Energy Minister J. J. Greene and Mrs. Greene, he jokingly asked nearby reporters what they were writing about the women guests.

Asked for his opinion, he only said: "I'm going to have a good look at them."

After chatting for a while at the rear of the pale blue and gold ballroom, he had his first dance of the evening with a thrilled teenager, 17-year-old Ruth Benjamin, daughter of Les Benjamin, the New Democrat member for Regina-Lake Centre.

Despite the gaiety, the spectre of abduction was in the background, and more than one MP remarked that security at the event seemed tighter than usual. An informant said, however, that security was normal with the exception of two plain-clothes police among the crowd.

Queen Will Visit B.C. in '71

VICTORIA (CP) — Premier W. A. C. Bennett confirmed today that Queen Elizabeth, Prince Philip and Princess Anne will visit British Columbia next year during centennial '71 celebrations.

The royal party will arrive May 3 and leave May 12. Premier Bennett said their itinerary had not been confirmed but he hoped they would be able to visit all parts of the province.

He expressed disappointment that Prince Charles would not be able to accompany the royal party.

Bandit Admits Crimes

VICTORIA (CP) — Barthard Bateman, 19, pleaded guilty in provincial court Wednesday to charges of armed robbery, kidnapping and causing bodily harm with intent to wound two policemen in a city bank robbery and land and sea chase Sept. 24.

He was remanded by Judge William Ostler to Oct. 15 for a probation officer's report and psychiatric examination.

Bateman, alias Rory Shayne and Barkhard Gerygrue, first pleaded guilty to robbing at gunpoint a downtown branch of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce. He then pleaded guilty to two counts of causing bodily harm with intent to wound two Victoria police detectives who were shot during the holdup.

He also pleaded guilty to kidnapping William Lashaw, 17, when he forced the latter to help him escape.

Way Found To Carry Cable ETV

MONTREAL (CP) — Israel Switzer, a leading cable television expert, said Wednesday a method has been found that could take some of the heat out of a growing controversy in Toronto concerning ways of carrying a new educational TV channel on fully-used cable systems.

Mr. Switzer, chief engineer from Maclean-Hunter Cable TV Co. Ltd., told a public hearing of the Canadian Radio-Television Commission a mechanical device will make it possible for some systems to carry the educational channel without dropping others.

A dispute now is raging about what channels presently carried by the Toronto systems will be dropped, completely or partially, to carry the new channel sponsored by the Ontario government.

Government Pats Itself on Back for Controlling Inflation

OTTAWA (CP) — The Trudeau government ended its second full parliamentary session Wednesday with a toast, a warning and an exhortation.

The toast—giving credit to the government for success in controlling inflation—and the warning—that the success is threatened by rising prices—were neatly balanced in a closing speech from the throne read to senators and MPs in the Senate chamber by Chief Justice Gerald Fauteux.

The exhortation that "our immense task has only begun" at the end of the speech pointed directly to the new session of Parliament to begin today.

There will be, however, less formal and more pressing links between the second and third sessions of the 28th Parliament.

Chief among them is the anxiety surrounding the fate of British trade commissioner James Richard Cross.

For most of the last day of the session concern for the safety of the kidnapped diplomat was an unspoken fear as opposition party leaders appeared to be satisfied with a briefing received Tuesday evening about the government's efforts to deal with the crisis.

The only exception was a flurry sparring match during the question period between former Conservative leader John Diefenbaker and Mr. Trudeau.

Mr. Diefenbaker implied the government has failed to do all in its power to recover Mr. Cross and wanted to know what response would be made to the reported offer of a $50,000 reward by Toronto businessmen for information leading to his safe return.

Mr. Trudeau said he had nothing useful to add to earlier statements by External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp rejecting ransom demands made by the kidnappers, but offering to negotiate with them.

Also left hanging between the two sessions is a government bill to revise completely the existing Canada Grains Act.

The bill died with the end of the session following the failure of a New Democrat attempt to squeeze it past a Conservative blockade. It could be introduced in the new session.

Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre) proposed that the House sit late and that the session might be extended to get the bill through but Conservative House Leader Gerald Baldwin replied that there were 44 amendments to be considered as well as two objections to its validity.

Meanwhile, there seemed little chance for the compromise proposed by acting government House leader Donald Macdonald. He suggested all parties could agree to introduce the bill into the new session at the present stage of debate, Normally it would have to be re-introduced at the beginning of the legislative mill.

Collegians Boot Way Into Soccer Contention

by Maurice Switzer Sports Editor

BCI seniors booted themselves into contention for the Bay of Quinte senior soccer crown by stopping the defending champions from Moira 3-1 Wednesday.

The Trojans opened the scoring when BCI allowed Joe Clarke to slip through their defence and fire a low shot into the Collegians net. The winners knotted the game before half time however as John Thompson crashed into the Moira goalie after slamming in a rebound.

Thompson came back to tally the winner for BCI early in the second half, slipping past the Moira defence and scoring his second goal.

Late in the contest Peter Hillier gave the Collegians an insurance marker, scoring on a penalty kick.

Bill Lazas played an outstanding game for the Trojans controlling the Moira defensive play. For BCI it was Charles Nesterovski and Peter Hillier, combining with John Thompson as the standouts.

The junior Collegians matched their senior counterparts with a 3-1 victory.

Dave Vanclief opened the scoring for BCI, breaking down the middle and beating the Moira goalie. Brian Kalsor added a second marker before Rick Barrett was able to get the Trojans on the scoresheet.

The winners added a final goal to give them their 3-1 margin.

Saints March Over Trenton

By ALAN TEEWORTH

"The defence played the whole game, and the offence half a game," stated Quinte coach Rick Locke after the toughest match of the season to date for the defending Bay of Quinte champion Senior Saints.

However one half was all the Saints needed to file away their third win in as many starts, beating Trenton 28-5.

The Saints piled up 22 points in the final half, after holding a slim 6-5 margin over the first two periods.

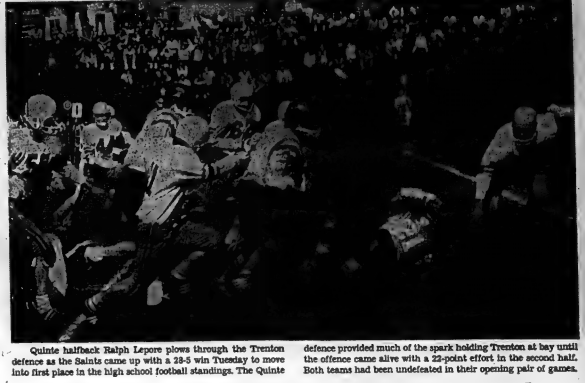
Trenton opened a 3-0 lead as Gary Keech booted a seven-yaqi field goal after the Quinte defence had held off a charge by the Trenton squad.

On the next play from the Quinte 47-yard line the Saints started a seven - play series for their first major, terminating with a 17 - yard run - dirt pass from Rick Meagher to fullback Rick Graham. The convert was missed.

Paul Hall wisely conceded 2 points after a strong Tiger defence had contained the Saints deep in their own zone.

After the defensive - minded first half Quinte burst out for their "half a game," coming up with three touchdowns and a pair of two - point converts.

Paul Hall picked up his first of two consecutive majors on a two - yard dive. On his second, after a 50 - yard drive involving Paul 'Sadie' McQuaid and Trenton's Jim Ransom, which touched both endzones. Hall again dove over from the three. Rick Meagher and Rick Gonhan added two point conversions.



Quinte completed the scoring on a disheartened Trenton squad when Ralph Lepore caught a pass on the Tigers' 19 - yard line to set up the score. Rick Gonhan picked up his second touchdown on a four-yard plunge, with Terry Meagher booting the convert.

The balance of the two teams was an outstanding factor as both squads had equal chances to score. On many occasions such usual ground - gainers as Quinte's Paul Hall and the Tigers' Dan Dow were caught for losses, some very costly, by crushing defensive players.

Quinte's Rick Meagher and Trenton quarterback Dan Darrell split their offensive movements between the air and ground attacks, and both went to a wide variety of receivers.

In the junior match, Quinte followed suit with their older counterparts, coming up with a 22-13 victory.

Glen Lessard paced the winners with a pair of touchdowns. Quarterback Bruce Nickle threw to Tom Marsh for the other major. George Hymers picked up 4 points on two conversions.

Quinte halfback Ralph Lepore plows through the Trenton defence as the Saints came up with a 28-5 win Tuesday to move into first place in the high school football standings. The Quinte defence provided much of the spark holding Trenton at bay until the offence came alive with a 22-point effort in the second half. Both teams had been undefeated in their opening pair of games.

Defences Postpone Fullback Battle

By ERIC EMERSON
Staff Sportswriter

The high school football battle between Quinte and Trenton seniors was also expected to be a battle of fullbacks. Quinte heavyweight Paul Hall had slammed across for six touchdowns in his team's opening pair of wins, while Tiger workhorse Dan Dow had counted five majors, as well as rushing for over 200 yards in last week's 30-0 win over Moira.

The fullback battle, however, was replaced by a defensive stalemate in the Saints 28-5 victory.

Hall managed to come up with a pair of second - half touchdowns, bringing the former BCI star's total to eight, but Dow along with the remainder of the Trenton offence, failed to cross the Saint goal line.

Perhaps the biggest stumbling block in front of an offensive squad that put up 28 points in its first two games was Saint inside linebacker Wayne Harrison.

Harrison was credited with seven tackles in the first half alone and was almost always in the centre of action in a standout defensive squad that allowed only a field goal on the first series of downs.

The five-foot-ten, 180-pound linebacker admitted that the defence was particularly keying on Dow, as they "held" the Trenton star to just over 100 yards rushing in 23 carries.

Harrison, "He's a good runner. Coach Rick Locke agreed. "Our defence kept us in there. Harrison played a strong game and so did the Whalen boys, particularly Steve. He kept them from getting around his end all game." Concerning Harrison, he added, "He's a tough player. He played a good game today, but he always seems to give you a good game."

The Saint defensive team has now allowed only nine points in three league games to date.

"We generally had the linebacker in the wide side of the field watching Dow," said ner but I think that we held him pretty well. You'd have to say that it was an all around team effort."

Now that the smoke has cleared, a word about minor hockey registration.

And the word is "neglect."

That's what minor hockey president Tom Cavanagh said most parents have been giving as their excuse for failing to register their sons for winter recreation.

Outside of death, there just wasn't a good reason parents couldn't have had their boy or boys enrolled sometime during the week-long period set aside by minor hockey.

And yet, Cavanagh estimates, from personal telephone experience after the week-long registration was closed off, there are still 50 to 75 city boys who should have been registered and weren't.

"We just couldn't make it any easier," said the somewhat harried organizer. "We increased the registration period from a Friday night and Saturday morning to a whole week; we advertised all over the place . . . and still there were people who didn't manage to register their have."

The reason most apologetic parents gave? "Their own neglect is what most of them told me," said Cavanagh.

As it was, three of every four boys brought in his own signed registration form and $5 fee, the minor hockey president estimated. There was no reason, except perhaps, in the case of smaller tykes or novices, that any parent not inclined to exercise couldn't have sent junior down to the rink with his signed form.

"All the boys needed was a parent's signature and five dollars," Cavanagh reminded.

It's hard to believe many of those parsplegic parents2 are the same ones who walked thirty miles around the Bay to raise $20,000 for a new arena.

A registration jump of over 200 has emphasized the need for that second ice surface, for which ground was broken on Harder Drive Wednesday afternoon.

As it stands, the 1,200 boys involved in Belleville minor hockey will be literally bursting the Memorial Arena at its 50-year-old seams.

More than 60 house league teams will be crammed into a maze of hours of allotted weekly ice time. It would have been 74 had not city recreation planners wangled the extra three hours by shifting some of the older-age participants into late-hour weeknight time slots.

Had the delinquent registrants been allowed in, this would have meant cutting up the existing time even more.

There are already suspicions that some boys in house league hockey will only be playing alternate weeks instead of the traditional weekly format.

The increased number of participants will either require that, or the placing of as many players on each team that a boy's weekly house league outing could consist of about two shifts.

Bearing the already-crammed conditions in mind, minor hockey organizers were faced with the problem of what to do about those who were not registered for minor hockey but say they want to play.

On the one hand, they and/or their parents weren't interested enough to carry out the simple task of registration, but on the other, it seems to go against the grain of public recreation programming to slam the door on anybody's fingers.

Here's where the Cavanagh compromise comes in.

The minor hockey president suggested having a special registration period this week, abutting off at the Pinnacle St. Recreation Centre at 4 p.m. Friday.

Boys who, for some reason or other, were not included in the original week-long registration may submit their names at the rec centre to be put on a waiting list.

No fee will be accepted until a boy is actually placed on a team.

Vacancies will be created by the terms of a new coaching manual drafted this year by minor hockey's seven-member executive. A provision states that any house league player who misses three games in succession without a legitimate excuse will lose his place on the team and fall back in the waiting list.

The provision has the added benefit of preventing over-zealous house league coaches from stacking their teams by discouraging lesser-talented players in turn out. The new waiting list scheme will always have someone to fill the breech.

All-star teams will be handled differently. Any boy now on the waiting list may try out for an all-star squad and if he makes the grade, he is forgiven his transgressions.

But this won't involve many boys. The best players are usually the most interested ones, and few of them ever miss registrations.

Umps Still Have Last Word

NEW YORK (AP) — Major league umpires won a new, four-year contract Wednesday after a day of hard-nosed bargaining that paved the way for a trouble-free World Series.

"I'm glad we can get back to bats and balls now," said Joe Cronin, the American League president, after the settlement providing umpires with $1,450 a man for playoff work and $7,500 for the series the first two years and $4,000 and $8,000 the last two.

Baseball management also threw in a $500 raise to $1,000 for working an all-star game and some improvements in medical care. The contract is retroactive to the 1970 season and covers 1973.

The contract eliminated the possibility of a series strike by the Major League Umpires Association.

The umpires and their lawyer, Jack Reynolds, were asking for $5,000 and $10,000 for the playoffs and World Series. They were paid $2,500 and $6,500 under the old agreement.

Meeting with the umpires were baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn, Cronin and National League president Charles (Chub) Feeney, and their lawyer.

The umpires association had been negotiating with management since August and when they were not able to agree on a contract, the umpires struck the opening games of the playoffs Saturday in Pittsburgh and Minneapolis.

Retired and part-time umpires and minor leaguers were called in during the emergency to plug the gap.

But minor league umpires gained support of local unions, who refused to cross their picket lines the second day, and secured a temporary working agreement Sunday. Baseball agreed to fork out $3,000 and $7,000 and set Wednesday as a date for further talks.

Woodbine Winner Skips Page, Does Chore

TORONTO (CP) — Flor De Sombra won the featured $4,700 seventh race at Woodbine on Wednesday leading Page Me Doll and Grande Chore to the finish line.

The winner finished the 1 1-16-mile race in 1:50 3-5 and paid $34.70, $9.90 and $6.40.

Young Trubadour paid $17.30, $13.00 and $10.50 across the board and Bronze Sulian paid $22.20, $9.70 and $5.20.

The first of two exactors before the crowd of 7,021 was made up of Doc's Image and Early Frost in the fifth paying $28.60.

The second, made up of Flor De Sombra and Page Me Doll in the seventh, paid $199.90.

Wild Tiger, in the fifth race, was disqualified and placed from first to fourth position for interfering with Chris Rogers riding Menn Mar. Menn Mar was placed third because of the change.

Frosty Heads Field for Featured Purse

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Frosty Delight won the featured $2,400 mile pace at Windsor Raceway Wednesday night, leading Tobono Raider and El Pegasus to the finish line.

The winner finished the seventh race in 2:05 1-5.

Frosty Delight and Tobono Raider combined for an exactor payoff of $65.10.

The daily-double combination of Gerend Earl and Wee Lady Gee paid $55.80.

The fourth-race exactor of Trumpete and Track Hawk paid $15.70.

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Billy Blue Miche, a six-year-old gelding owned and reined by Lesi McFadden of Dresden, won the featured $1,000 ninth race Wednesday at Western Fair Raceway in 2:06 3-5, the fastest mile pace of the night.

The horse paid $4.00, $2.60 and $2.70 across the board. Second in the seven-horse field was Lee Unko and third Philbrick Atom.

Clean Bill of Health For Off-track Bets

TORONTO (CP) — An investigation by the Jockey Club Ltd. into off-track betting did not contain enough evidence to lay any charges, Attorney-General Arthur Wishart said in the legislature Wednesday.

He was referring to a report the Jockey Club released last month that said the club had proof bets being placed at off-track shops were not being relayed to the track.

The Criminal Code permits off-track betting if no commission is paid to the messenger.

The attorney-general told George Ben (L—Humber) the Jockey Club had not laid any charges against off-track shops as a result of its allegations.

TORONTO (CP) — The Metro Toronto Police Commission has served the Jockey Club Ltd. with a writ that seeks to have off-track betting shop messengers enter Jockey Clud tracks without harassment.

"We are seeking an interlocutory injunction to prevent the Jockey Club and its employees from harassing, watching and beserting our employees," Brenda Canavan, one of five owners of the messenger service, said Tuesday.

Mrs. Canavan said the Ontario Supreme Court is scheduled to hear the writ Oct. 14.

The writ was served to John T. Mooney, the club's executive vice-president, who would make no comment.

The Jockey Club began barring the off-track messengers from its tracks Sept. 25 after the club conducted an investigation which it said showed money bet at the off-track shops was not being relayed to the tracks.

Hanovers Expensive

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — John Hayes of Oshawa has paid $40,000 for a son of Bret Hanover, harness racing's fastest pacer. The $40,000 was the top price bid at Tuesday's Tattersalls yearling sale. The colt, Shawn Anpoleon, was purchased from the consignment of Futurity Hill Farm of Lexington.

Pappas Picks Baltimore... And He's Seen Both Sides

BALTIMORE (AP) — Milt Pappas, who has pitched for both teams, picks Baltimore Orioles over Cincinnati Reds in the World Series opening Saturday in Cincinnati.

"I pick the Orioles in five games," was the prediction of Pappas, the only National League pitcher to hurl a shutout over the powerful Reds this season.

"The Orioles and Reds have the same kind of teams—good power, great defence and speed," Pappas said. "If the Orioles have an edge going into the series, it's with their starting pitchers.

"It's true what everybody says about Cincinnati's hitting, but I think the Baltimore pitchers have a better shot against the Reds than Cincinnati pitchers do against the Orioles."

MILT PAPPAS

"After the Reds use Gary Nolan," said Pappas, who started the season with Atlanta Braves and finished with Chicago Cubs, "I think they'll have to start going to their bullpen.

"If you get good pitching against Cincinnati, you can win your share, and I believe the Orioles can get it."

Palmer, who pitched the final game of Baltimore's three-game American League playoff sweep over Minnesota Twins Monday, got the starting job from manager Earl Weaver in the first game because of Cincinnati's predominantly right-handed hitting power.

That means Cuellar will have seven days rest by the time he starts Sunday and McNally eight by next Tuesday.

The four-day layoff after winning the pennant by scoring 27 runs on 36 hits comes at an inopportune time for the Orioles.

"It may not hurt us," Robinson said, "but it can't help us."

The Orioles, who leave for Cincinnati Friday morning, have not lost since Sept. 18. They won their final 11 games of the regular season and then added three more in the playoffs.

No Easy Way to Pitch to Orioles

CINCINNATI (AP) — Jim McGlothlin, Cincinnati Reds right-hander, jokingly figures the odds are 10 to 1 against him beating Baltimore Orioles in the second game of the World Series.

Because of McGlothlin's previous experience facing the Orioles, Reds manager Sparky Anderson looked him for the second game start Sunday in Riverfront Stadium.

"You try to pitch them one way," he said, "and they've got another 10 ways to beat you.

"It seems like I faced them more than any other club when I was with the (California) Angels. I guess that's because they are so tough. They beat me in my first big league starts in 1965, 2-0 and 4-0."

McGlothlin, who came to the Reds in a trade for Alex Johnson, posted a 5-5 record against Baltimore in his five seasons with California.

Despite knee and head injuries that kept him out of action for nearly a month, McGlothlin posted a 14-10 record and a 3.58 earned run average with the Reds. He had been 8-16 in 1969 with the Angels.

Exhibitions Over, NHL Gets Down to Brass Tacks Friday

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

The National Hockey League, its exhibition schedule ended, opens a new season Friday night with one of its newest teams providing the opposition and one of its most colorful players hanging up his skates.

Three pre-season games Wednesday night ended the 126-game exhibition schedule. But Friday night in Vancouver the Canucks, one of the two new entries in the league this season, open the regular 546-game schedule that will end six months later.

The Canucks will entertain Los Angeles Kings in the only game that night. They will also play in Vancouver Sunday night against Toronto Maple Leafs and then travel to St. Louis for a game the following night against the Blues.

But Sunday night, when Montreal Canadiens open their schedule with a game against the Flyers in Philadelphia, they will be without John Ferguson, their combative left winger who through his rugged play has become known as the policeman of the Canadiens.

Ferguson, 32, announced his retirement from the game Wednesday, saying he can no longer give 100 per cent to hockey. He said he will devote his full time to a Montreal clothing firm.

In the exhibition games, Boston Bruins, Stanley Cup champions, rallied to defeat New York Rangers 8-6 for their fourth victory in 10 games, Philadelphia beat Oakland Seals 5-1 and Toronto and Los Angeles played to a 2-2 tie.

The Bruins overcame a four-goal performance by Jean Ratelle of New York to defeat the Rangers. Ken Hodge scored three goals for Boston, his third going into an empty net. Fred Stanfield, Don Marcotte, John Bucyk, Rick Smith and Reg Leach got the other Boston goals.

Bob Nevin got the other goals for the Rangers who ended the exhibition schedule with five wins, three losses and a tie.

Bob Kelley, 19, scored two goals for Philadelphia against Oakland and Serge Bernier got the other. Gary Croteau replied for the Seals.

Meanwhile, Tom Johnson, Boston's new coach, says he expects another exciting finish in NHL's East Division this season.

"I think it will be much the same as last year," Johnson said Wednesday night when asked to assess this season's East Division race.

The 1968-69 season produced one of the wildest finishes in history, going down to the final day before Chicago Black Hawks edged Boston for first place with Detroit Red Wings and New York grabbing the other two playoff spots and Montreal missing out for the first time in years.

New Plan Tried For Tie-breaking

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Hockey League will try a new way of breaking end-of-season ties this year, eliminating last year's controversial goal-scoring system.

The NHL board of governors ruled Wednesday that ties in the standings at the end of the regulation schedule would be settled by giving the advantage to the team with the greatest number of victories.

If clubs have won the same number of games, the board ruled, the tie will be broken by the highest number of points earned among the competing teams in their own games over the season.

Should the tie still exist, it then would be broken by the team with the best record in its own division.

Some criticism arose last year of the system which broke ties with the team that had the most goals over the seasons New York Rangers squeezed into a playoff berth on the last day by scoring nine goals against Detroit Red Wings, who already had won a playoff berth.

Teams Polled On "Dressers"

NEW YORK (CP) — The National Hockey League's board of governors said Wednesday night it would conduct a poll of team officials on the possible increase of the number of players eligible for an NHL game.

The league said it would conduct the poll "no later than Friday" to determine whether owners favor increasing the number of players permitted to dress for a game to 17 plus two goaltenders from 16 and two goalies.

To other business, the NHL settled its indemnification dispute with the Western and American hockey leagues over the annexation of the Vancouver and Buffalo territories. The AHL will receive $750,000 from Buffalo Sabres and the WHL will get the same amount from Vancouver Canucks, said NHL president Clarence Campbell.

The league also increased its draft claiming price to $40,000 from $30,000 but kept its waiver price at $30,000.

The league also announced that financially-plagued Pittsburgh Penguins would remain in Pittsburgh despite reports that the team might be transferred elsewhere.

Campbell said it was reasonable to infer that the club will remain in Pittsburgh indefinitely. He said the league had made "financial and other considerations" to help the Penguins continue operations.

ANDY CAPP

Ruel Has Replacement Task

MONTREAL (CP) — For most of the summer, John Ferguson was thinking of retiring as an active player in the National Hockey League.

Today, Claude Ruel, coach of Montreal Canadiens, is faced with the task of finding a replacement for the hard-rock left winger who finally made it official Wednesday.

"Fergy talked of quitting a couple of times last year after he was so disappointed about that suspension for hitting Gary Sabourin," said Ruel.

"He's been one of my big leaders and I hope he changes his mind. He had a good camp before he was hurt and this comes as a real shock to me now."

The No. 1 candidate for Ferguson's vacant left wing spot is Larry Pleau, the youngster from Boston who played last season with Montreal Voyageurs, the Canadiens' American Hockey League affiliate.

"Larry is like a rover," said Ruel. "Besides centre he can play both sides and I'm going to give him a chance at left wing the next couple of days."

Originally it was thought that Jacques Lemaire would take over Ferguson's spot but Ruel said after Wednesday's practice Lemaire will play centre against Philadelphia in the Canadiens league opener Sunday night.

Jacques had the best day he's had since training camp started," said Ruel. "He was flying and we need speed up the middle."

Meanwhile, most of Ferguson's team-mates expressed surprise over the retirement announcement.

Ralph Backstrom said:

"I don't know what to think. Fergy told me he was thinking about it after he was hurt, but I didn't give it too much thought.

"I thought he was just depressed because after all, training camp isn't the happiest time of the year for players.

Defensive Snow-job Provides Stamp Margin

CALGARY (CP) — Calgary Stampeders, cashing in on alert reactions from halfback Ron Stewart and tackle Fred Jamen, won a battle of defences Wednesday night for an 11-4 win over Montreal Alouettes in a Canadian Football League game.

Stewart, with one of Calgary's three interceptions, combined with James for the biggest defensive play of the interlocking contest, watched by 18,870 fans in a driving snowstorm.

They stymied Montreal quarterback Sonny Wade on a third-down gamble from the Calgary 15, throwing him for a three-yard loss and enabling the Stampeders to take over the ball late in the fourth quarter. Calgary was leading 10-4 at the time.

"If Montreal was going to roll out a guard would give me the inside and go for my legs," said James in an interview. "I waited until the guard made the first move, then I shot and grabbed Wade's legs and hung on."

James, in his fourth year with Calgary, became a regular starter on defence after veteran tackle Granville Liggon suffered a groin injury more than a month ago. Liggins has been placed on the injured reserved list.

The victory gave Calgary sole possession of second place in the Western Football Conference with 14 points, two ahead of Edmonton Eskimos, and six behind Saskatchewan Roughriders. British Columbia Lions, still in the playoff battle, have 10 points and a game in hand on both Calgary and Edmonton.

The Alouettes, who lost both games of their Western swing including a 29-19 setback last Sunday to Saskatchewan, remained in first place in the Eastern Football Conference. They have 12 points, two more than Toronto Argonauts and Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

Most of the scoring came in the third quarter with a 25-yard touchdown pass to Dave Cranmer from quarterback Jerry Keeling accounting for the winning points.

Larry Robinson added the remaining points with a 40-yard field goal, a single and a convert. His field goal gave him a career total of 113, one behind the CFL record held by Don Sutherin, recently released by the Argonauts.

George Springate, with a 30-yard field goal, and Wade's 12-yard single off the crossbar accounted for Montreal's scoring.

Among Calgary's other defensive stars were tackle John Helton, ends Dick Sidorenan and Craig Kokenar, and middle linebacker Wayne Harris.

The Stampeders lost Keeling early in the fourth quarter when he was hit by a Montreal defender during an option play. But the 35-year veteran said he only suffered a rib separation and would play Monday against the Eskimos in Edmonton.

Leading rusher was Montreal's Moses Denson who collected 110 yards on six carries. Rookie fullback Hugh McKinnis of Calgary got 98 yards on 14 carries to take over the WFC lead with 836 yards, 47 ahead of Jim Evenson of the Lions.

Montreal had 18 first downs to 16 by Calgary and had a net offence of 326 yards, including 190 rushing, while the Stampeders' total was 274.

Gig Peres and Frank Andruski picked off passes thrown by Tony Passander, Montreal's backup quarterback, and Al Phaneuf intercepted his eighth pass of the season for the Alouettes.

Canadians Warily Watching U. S. Trade Bill

WASHINGTON (CP) — Canadian trade experts are watching with keen interest the progress through Congress of a sweeping U.S. trade bill that includes a number of provisions opposed by Ottawa.

At present, however, the betting is that the bill—first major overhaul of trade legislation in eight years—will be sidelined if not trampled to death by the rush toward a mid-October adjournment.

If so, the new Congress can be expected to take up the matter again soon in the new year.

From the Canadian view, one of the worst aspects of the legislation drafted by the powerful House ways and means committee under chairman Wilbur Mills (Dem., Ark.) is that it would tie President Nixon's hands on oil import policy.

The move would not only perpetuate the quotas—Canada's now is held to 395,000 barrels a day—but remove from the president the option he previously enjoyed to substitute a less onerous system of tariffs if the need warrants.

A cabinet-level committee had advised him last February to go to the tariff system, but Mr. August he rejected this recommendation. Critics charge that quotas on cheaper foreign oil cost U.S. consumers more than $5,000 million annually.

Aside from Canadian opposition to the generally protectionist tone of the bill, Ottawa is particularly concerned also over the proposed creation of DISC —Domestic International Sales Corporations.

The DISC arrangement would provide special tax concessions aimed at encouraging the location of plants and employment in the U.S. rather than abroad.

In practice, a company would be entitled to a deferral of tax on income so long as it remained a qualified DISC—that is, with more than 95-per-cent of its gross receipts coming from qualified export sales and related activities. Distributions when made to the shareholders of such a firm would be taxed on normal income.

No one has attempted in public to estimate the potential harmful effect on Canada. But trade officials have made clear to U.S. officials their distaste for the scheme.

In addition to quotas on shoes and textiles, the legislation would give Nixon authority he neither sought nor wants in the form of limiting imports on all other goods under certain conditions.

As for the 1965 U.S.-Canada auto agreement, the committee said it expects that "urgent attention will be given in the attainment of the agreement's objectives."

What they mean is that conditions built into the pact to tilt it in Canada's favor during the transitional period should now be eliminated.

The Canadians don't agree but the committee says if this is not done, "consideration should be given to the president's exercising his authority to terminate the agreement."

The absence of forthright guidance from the White House —President Nixon favors some provisions, opposes others—strengthened the hand of those who preferred not to take a stand on such a potentially hot issue before the elections.

The bill has been made the first item of House business in the reconvened Congress. If it fails there, it will die and the new Congress meeting in mid-January will have to start from scratch.

In general, the bill gets its main support among Southern legislators and representatives of other areas hit by unemployment blamed on imports of cheap foreign shoes, textiles and the like.

Critics include a band of 4,000 economists who recently signed a report saying the bill was the most dangerous legislation since the Smoot-Hawley Tariff Act of 1930, which they charge reduced foreign trade, deepened the great Depression and even sowed the seeds of the Second World War.

Paradoxically, the bill comes at a time when U.S. exports are increasing sharply.

More Canadian Beef to U.S.

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — Meat imports to the United States this year will be higher than expected in order to accommodate increased shipments from Canada, Agriculture Secretary Clifford Hardin announced Wednesday.

Canada will be the only country among the 13 major beef exporters in the U.S. to benefit from the 20 million pounds which will be allowed in.

Agriculture department officials admitted the big rise in Canadian exports is due in part to the higher prices prevailing in the U.S. As a result, Canada is turning to Australian and New Zealand beef to meets its requirements while exporting domestic production to the U.S.

Who needs it?

People who have better things to carry than car payments.

People who like this idea but hate the way it looks.

People who want a lot of room on the inside, not on the outside. That's who.

Nobel Prize Awarded Banned Russian Author

STOCKHOLM (Reuters) — The 1970 Nobel Prize for literature today was awarded to Soviet novelist Alexander Solzhenitsyn.

The Swedish Academy of Letters said it had made the award to the 52-year-old writer, called the "Dostoyevsky of our time," for "the ethical force with which he has pursued the indispensable traditions of Russian Literature."

Solzhenitsyn's works are banned in his homeland.

The prize is worth 400,000 crowns (about $77,000.)

Lawyer Charges Testimony Rigged

VANCOUVER (CP) — Officers aboard the Soviet freighter Sergey Yesenin were accused Wednesday of collusion to produce "beautifully dovetailed" testimony before a federal inquiry investigating the collision of their vessel and the British Columbia ferry Queen of Victoria.

John Bird, representing the B.C. Ferry Authority, made the accusation in his closing address to the commission of inquiry into the Aug. 3 collision in Active Pass which claimed three lives.

"The fair log," e said, "was not written up until after the ship reached Vancouver and only then after there had been a meeting between the captain, officers and all concerned."

After reviewing photographic evidence and calculations made by photographic analysts, Mr. Bird said the Sergey Yesenin could have been in mid-channel, but he was of the opinion it was on the wrong side of the pass for a westbound vessel.

Similar charges were levied Tuesday against the captain and officers of the ferry by David Brander Smith, counsel for the master of the Soviet vessel.

Warning Label Is Recommended

TORONTO (CP) — A coroner's jury recommended Wednesday that all drugs issued by addiction centres be administered under supervision and that a warning be printed on the bottles stating the drugs could be fatal.

The recommendations were made at an inquest in the death of Kathleen Spray, 34, who was found dead in a rooming house Aug. 24.

The jury ruled she died of a self-administered overdose of methadone, a drug used to help heroin addicts.

Edward Milligan, director of the narcotic addiction research unit of the Ontario Drug and Alcoholic Research Foundation, said the dose was prescribed for a woman heroin-addict who reported that the bottle containing the drug was stolen.

Vancouver Hopes to End Stanley Cup Wait

VANCOUVER (CP) — Friday night, they'll roll out the red carpet at the Pacific Coliseum for Fred (Cyclone) Taylor, who helped this city to its first Stanley Cup 55 years ago, and Vancouver Canucks will start their quest for National Hockey League glory they put a 25 million dollar downpayment on last June.

However, a lot has changed since the Vancouver Millionaires routed Ottawa Senators in three straight games in 1915 to win hockey's most coveted trophy.

Long gone are the days of Joe Patrick and his nose Frank and Lester who came out of the woods at British Columbia's Kootenay Country with $340,000, created the Pacific Coast Hockey League and who had the audacity to challenge the Eastern power centre at its own game.

It cost the Canucks $6 million just to get a franchise and 20 players, $4 million more than in 1967 when Clarence Campbell injected sulfur, was spawned by the NHL when it doubled its size to 12 teams.

That's $300,000 a man—the price the NHL paid in 1926 for the entire PCHL and 70 skaters, enough to form Chicago Black Hawks, New York Rangers and Detroit Cougars and convert Boston Bruins from a doormat into one of the league's strongest clubs.

The Canucks go into the NHL long on aggressiveness, short on proven goal-scoring and with more fans than any first-year team in league history. With more than 12,000 season-ticket holders, they can expect to play to better than 80 per cent capacity audiences at the 15,533-seat coliseum.

Vancouver got 18 forwards and defencemen and two goaltenders from the two existing clubs in last June's draft—worth a total of 36 big-league goals. Its top amateur selection, Dale Tallon, a 19-year-old Toronto junior, was reportedly signed for $70,000 including a bonus even before he laced on his skates.

Inflation and labor woes don't make Canucks general manager Bud Poile overly optimistic about his club's chances in the stacked Eastern Division.

Against Boston, Detroit, Montreal Canadiens, Toronto Maple Leafs and New York, a playoff position would be a miracle, and Taylor, an octogenarian member of the Hockey Hall of Fame, hopes he doesn't have to wait too long to see one.

"If you go on our pre-season record of 10 games, which is quite a lot, we had three wins and three ties, so it looks as if we drafted pretty well," says Poile.

"The problem I have is that I still have 25 guys in camp and with so many guys of equal calibre, it's added to the confusion.

"The attitude of the guys is tremendous and our signing problem s haven't disrupted things. Our goaltenders, Charlie Hodge, George Gardner and Dunc Wilson have had good camps; I think I'll be a one-goalie and keep all three, instead of trying to figure out which one should go."

Poile has the same problem on defence, where the biggest surprises have been Tallon and Jim Hargreaves, their second-round amateur pick. He has eight blueline candidates but can carry only six.

"It's just numbers," he said. "Another sleepless night trying to decide who to keep."

The key to Vancouver's success is defensive-hitting, a specialty of coach Hal Laycoe in his years with Portland's Buckaroos of the Western Hockey League, because the Canucks don't have the firepower.

"If our goals against average is under three we've got a chance at a playoff spot," said Poile.

"Otherwise, we'll finish sixth."

Poile had in ice his team today, there would be a lot of empty seats on the players' bench. So far, only 15 players have signed their 1970-71 contracts.

A tough left winger, Ted Taylor, who had his best professional season ever last year with 36 goals and 35 assists when the Canucks topped off their Western Hockey League title in a walk, quit training camp this week when he and Poile couldn't get together on salary.

Defencemen Gary Doak, formerly with Boston and the Canucks' first choice in the NHL draft, and Orland Kurtenbach, picked up from Toronto, are still unsigned.

Ironcliffe Howie Young, a defencman-forward Vancouver acquired when he refused Chicago's demotion to Portland and the WHL, and veteran minor league Les Lunde are also balking. Poile asked NHL president Clarence Campbell for advice Tuesday on the wage dispute, but got arbitration.

Doak already has locked up a spot on right defence, which leaves Young, Hargreaves and Darryl Sly, late of Minnesota North Stars, scrambling for the remaining two positions.

Tallon, Quinn, Marc Reaume, a WHL mainstay with Vancouver, and Barry Wilkins are in a four-way battle for the three left defence jobs.

Thirty-seven-year-old Hodge, a former Vezina Trophy winner cut loose by Oakland Seals, and the Canucks' own George Gardner, 28, appear to have the one-two netminding jobs.

But Dunc Wilson, a youngster who worked with Philadelphia Flyers Quebec farm team in 1969-70, has had an impressive camp and could spend the season shuttling between Vancouver and Rochester, their American Hockey League training ground.

Among the 18 skaters the Canucks claimed in the expansion draft, there were a paltry 36 goals.

Centre Ray Cullen, 25, one of eight former Minnesota players in the Vancouver system, was tops with 17 and he was the third choice.

Orland Kurtenbach, a tough centre and policeman, was claimed second from New York and is the leader Laycoe is looking for.

A spinal fusion kept Kurtenbach, 34, out two seasons ago, and he wasn't a regular with the Rangers last year, scoring only four goals.

"Brush Rickey had a theory on expansion teams," says Laycoe.

"His idea was to draft big, young fellows who didn't really have a chance to play.

"I think that we have that kind of team and although Mr. Rickey's theory was designed for baseball, I think it may be even more applicable to hockey.

"I'm strong on team play. In fact, I'm convinced you can be a winner only if you get a bunch of guys playing unselfishly together.

"Any player who gets an individual award gets it only because of his team-mates."

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I developed a swelling of a gland in my neck. Although I had no fever or sore throat I went to our doctor. As he's right on the ball as a diagnostician, he advised me to go to a surgeon to have the gland out so it could be examined in the laboratory. He suspected the possibility of my having Hodgkin's disease, and that's what they found.

Here is my question. They say it's in Stage I. Just what does that mean? My doctor says chances are my case is curable. — Mrs. V.

COMMENT: I have received many letters from readers about their recoveries from Hodgkin's disease since I included a letter in a column from a patient who had Hodgkin's treated many years ago and is now healthy. All were told they were cured.

It's likely that their disease was first diagnosed while in Stage I. This means that only a single site is affected by the disease. And it often responds to treatment by X-ray or cobalt.

Now, Stage 2 means that the disease has spread to two or three other lymphatic regions close by. And in Stage 3, the most serious kind, both radiation by X-ray or cobalt and chemotherapy (special drugs) are combined. Whatever the type, it takes from two to three months for good response to radiation treatment.

I receive one version or another of your daughter. Celiac disease, being chronic, can try anyone's patience. Fortunately, knowing what causes it, we can do more for children than we used to do.

As your doctor has probably told you, it is due to an enzyme deficiency in the intestines which causes sensitivity to gluten in the diet. Your daughter's chronic diarrhea, subnormal weight, inability to take milk, anemia and leg swelling all fit into the diagnostic picture of celiac disease.

Keep on giving her the lactose free, gluten-free diet which her doctor has prescribed and she is likely to improve. However, it remains a serious ailment. The condition of some patients stubbornly resists treatment.

For Mrs. C.: "Trying too hard to have a baby?" In some cases this may be true. I recall a childless couple who had intercourse frequently, hoping that daily "tries" would produce pregnancy. Nevertheless, many months passed without results.

I suggested that they refrain from sexual activity for at least two weeks. About two weeks before her expected period (around ovulation time) they resumed their coitus. She became pregnant.

Was it coincidence? I don't profess to know. But one gynecologist has offered the theory that too frequent intercourse may prevent the sperm in the male from maturing enough in each conception. (Incidentally, all barren males should have a sperm count.) Maybe a rest is what many childless couples who "try too hard" need. At least it's worth trying.

For Mr. G.: I doubt that it's possible for a dentist to make a good-fitting denture for you long-distance — from a photograph. That's even less sensible than fitting yourself with a pair of glasses in a department store.

Hodgkin's Disease Recovery Possible

Sydney J. Harris Says

Child's Joys Not Unbroken

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

When Bernard Shaw exclaimed, "Youth is such a wonderful thing. It's a crime to waste it on children," he was doing more than making a bright epigram. He was expressing a truth that few of us realize.

When we sigh for the carefree days of childhood, and look back upon the fun we had, we forget that we are looking back from a grownup viewpoint. To the child, the days are not so much fun because he does not know anything about the cares and responsibilities of maturity.

What we really mean is that we wish we could be children again, with the adult capacity to appreciate childhood. This is a very different thing from simply being a child again.

I have never been able to sympathize with the people who express such yearnings. My childhood was as happy as any, I suppose, and yet I find more substantial joy in growing older than I did in being young.

To forget, in mists of nostalgia, that childhood is also full of its own terrors and tragedies, that the unimportant things we can laugh at today seemed real and menacing in youth. And this forgetfulness is the reason parents continually misunderstand their children.

A last dig or a broken prom date can be as cataclysmic to a growing child as bankruptcy to a father. The petty humiliations to which a youngster is thoughtlessly subjected can be as stabbing as the most profound of mature emotions—and even more lasting.

As a protective device, man's mind tends to forget pain and remember pleasure; otherwise we could not live with our memories. What we recollect from childhood are the gay moments, but seen only through the prism of adulthood.

In a sense, youth is wasted on children, just as wisdom is wasted on people who are too old to use it effectively. But we can never have the both together, which is why the sentimentalists want when they yearn for a return to childhood. If they were back they would be just as eager to grow up again.

Fiji Gets Home Rule Saturday

SUVA, Fiji (AP) — Fiji, ruled by the British for 96 years, becomes independent Saturday, but it's hard to detect much enthusiasm for the cutoff.

"Interest will become apparent once Prince Charles arrives Friday," a government official says.

"Up to now, people are really less than keen about the prospect of the end of British rule over the 300 islands which comprise Fiji."

The main problem is racial. The country's 230,000 Fijians are outnumbered by 260,000 Indians, the fast-multiplying descendents of laborers brought here from Asia during the last century to work on sugar plantations. There is underlying distrust between the happy-go-lucky Fijians and the industrious Indians.

Jean Dixon's Horoscope

For October 7

Your birthday today: Self-adequacy is your goal in the coming year. It is time you developed your inner potential, and discarded some bad habits. All long-term projects remain intact, but with relatively slow progress. You have the opportunity to serve some cause larger than your own material needs. Social contacts are slow-pace, too, for natives are sensitive, willing to stay with long, difficult jobs. Women born today tend to have much better luck than today's men.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Those who follow have it much easier day than those who lead. Have unrelated side - effects. Steady effort brings added earnings.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Stay near home base — you would miss something important by being away. Channel all energy into the most creative phase of your work. This evening personal concerns are polarized, hard to express.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Continue all due caution with money matters. Make amends, smooth out recent ripples in your relationships. The evening brings a long-missed thought or some sort of homecoming.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Friends are easily managed today; but your male or partner is certain to be a bit tense. Find routines that take you out and keep you out. Evening hours are easier.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Business, money pressures ease up, but emotional stress from loved ones and associates persists. Insight will shew you what to do and how to start.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Some bargains are not within reach — any excessive purchase may outlast your needs. People very near you show a contrary mood, so your patience is essential.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Trade brings little pressure, but a good chance to observe human nature. Think over the experience. There are old friends for reminiscence in the evening.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 — Nov. 21): Diversion, courtesy are important, particularly if you must travel. Old associates tend to be less co-operative. Domestic issues lessen if you express your deeper feelings.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Thoughtless friends cause momentary confusion, but it's a smooth day in which you can improve your way of working. Personal creative endeavor does not well.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Formal manoeuvres claim much of your attention. Personal affairs include emotional stresses, perhaps unwelcome news. Gather old friends about you this evening.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Events nobody planned upset schedules and some unannounced personal hopes. Take the expedient course and go on as if nothing much had happened. Friends require patience.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Continue to be shy about financial experiments. Self-improvement efforts attract support. Invite friends and relatives for reconciliation.

Young Men Who Deliver Headlines Seldom Make Them

Youths with nothing constructive to do in their free time may wind up in trouble, making newspaper headlines with their delinquent behavior.

On the other hand, the young men who deliver our nation's newspapers operate spare-time businesses that give them the satisfaction of serving their communities. They learn the value of property, so they're not likely to destroy it deliberately.

Route management experience also instills integrity, self-reliance and courtesy—qualities that help mold good citizens and successful adults.

Concorde Aloft

The French-British Concorde remains the centre of controversy in Britain. It's not that it doesn't fly beautifully — almost everyone agrees it does. But the continuing cost of developing the plane and potential for sound-barrier destruction on the ground is causing considerable second-thinking.

Youth Not Guilty In Murder Case

COBOURG, Ont. (CP) — Randy Clay Dawson, 16, Wednesday was found not guilty of non-capital murder by reason of insanity in the April 26 strangulation-slaying of Gail Ruth Mohns, 19.

Mr. Justice Abraham Lieff of the Ontario Supreme Court told the jury they should have little trouble in reaching the conclusion that Dawson killed Miss Mohns, and that there was "considerable evidence to indicate the accused was insane."

The youth will remain in county jail pending transfer to an Ontario mental institution.

Miss Mohns's nude body was found by her parents in an upstairs bedroom of their Darlington Township home, just east of Oshawa., when they returned from a church banquet. Dawson lived next door.

One in 10 Policemen Injured in Michigan

DETROIT (CP) — Almost one out of every 10 police officers in Michigan have been injured since January, 1969, while restoring order during civil disorders, Michigan Governor William Milliken told a construction convention.

He cited a state police report which said over 1,200 officers had received injury, a little less than 10 per cent of the state.

To cope with violence, Gov. Milliken said the state will become a charter member of the national bomb data centre formed with the International Association of Chiefs of Police to exchange and pool information on bombings; will set up a computer communication network to improve the safety of police and will set up a civil disorder centre under state police to control mass violence and reduce possible death and injury.

CN to Be Charged For Sub-par Wages

OTTAWA (CP) — Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey told the Commons Wednesday that he has ordered legal action against Canadian National Railways for failure to pay federal minimum wages in its hotel operations across the country.

The federal minimum was raised July 1 to $1.65 from $1.25 but CN has argued that its hotels are governed by provincial legislation.

A discrepancy in the position was publicized last week by the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers which noted that in some provinces the publicly-owned corporation has sought to take advantage of more favorable federal legislation.

Mr. Mackasey said CN hotel workers have traditionally been considered to be within the federal jurisdiction and the new minimum wage law applies to all CN hotels.

Mr. Mackasey later amended his statement and said he was "hopeful this can be settled in a more peaceful manner."

Legal action, he told reporters, has not yet begun and his department is still in the process of attempting to persuade the hotel to comply with federal law.

Alkenbrack Asks About Help To Fish Dealers

OTTAWA (CP) — Fisheries Minister Jack Davis said Wednesday his department will give "favorable consideration" to requests for assistance on behalf of fish dealers affected by mercury contamination in lower Lake Ontario.

He was replying to Douglas Alkenbrack (PC—Prestonac-Lennox and Addington) who said fish dealers in his area suffered losses when stocks of fish were seized because of the alleged contamination.

Mr. Davis noted also that loans are available in certain cases.

Mr. Alkenbrack said loans are of no value in this case.

Nuclear Power Source To Be Tested on Seaway

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada is blinking a way into a new field of nuclear power.

Atomic Energy of Canada scientists and engineers have developed a portable power source that harnesses radiation to produce electricity for such hard-to-get-at installations as navigation aids and Arctic weather posts.

A first model of a nuclear-powered navigation light was packaged here Wednesday to be shipped to Brockville, where over the next two years it will be evaluated by the transport department on the seaway.

That Takes the Cake

Yesterday was cake-making day at the Ontario School for the Deaf, as the building construction and painting classes tackled the assembly of a plywood cake complete with candles. The larger-than-15-foot cake is being assembled for the 100th anniversary celebrations on Oct. 20 by Brent Ansley, Joe Sheahan, Randy Nodden and Bobby Gerow. The candles being attached will be lit electrically during the anniversary of the founding of OSD.

Ontario Adoption Inquiry Would End Religious Bar

By CHRS AYLOTT

TORONTO (CP) — Religious differences should not stand in the way of the permanent adoption of a child, an advisory committee on adoption and foster care says in a report to John Yaremko, Ontario's minister of social and family services.

The five-member committee submitted a 78-page final report to Mr. Yaremko with 22 recommendations for streamlining child placement, citing "urgent matters" that "require immediate action in adoption, foster care and related areas of child welfare". The report was made public today.

The committee, headed by Stanley Mullins, president of Laurentian University in Sudbury, completed a study which produced interim reports in February and May 1968.

On religious qualifications, the committee recommends that "when all reasonable attempts to place an adoptable child in a permanent home with the same denomination have failed, then religious differences between adopters and the adoptable child should not constitute the only reason for refusal of his placement in a permanent home, in cases where every other condition for a successful placement is indicated."

The committee wants the unification of all family law under a family court with "greatly expanded powers" and the organization of regional children's services boards, responsible to the department and concerned with regional needs.

The proposed regional boards would consist of 18 to 24 members, appointed to three-year terms, one-third expiring each year to allow continuity. To start the program, the committee suggests one-third of the appointments should come from existing children's aid societies.

To allow for ideal representation from all communities in the region, appointments to the remaining two-thirds of the proposed board should be made half by the minister of social and family services and half by regional governments.

Other committee suggestions for streamlining adoption procedings:

—The department of social and family services should develop day-care services, promote legislation for foster day-care programs and make funds available to increase day nurseries.

Concerning foster care, the committee recommendations included:

—Amendments to the Child Welfare Act giving foster parents the power to appeal disagreements with children's aid societies.

Shulman Protected

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. Morton Shulman received legislative assurance today that he cannot be held in contempt for a statement he made in the Ontario legislature last June that led to a public inquiry into the Ontario Provincial Police.

For earlier story see Page 5

Deputy Speaker Allan Reuter, replying to a request for the NDP member from Toronto High Park for protection of the legislature, said a member's privilege of immunity is well established in parliamentary tradition.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Temperatures will rise into the 70s today in southern Ontario. A storm centre now moving north along the front out of Iowa will cross Lake Superior tonight. It is expected to trigger an eastward movement of the entire system overnight this will result in the colder air accompanied by showers and thunderstorms moving slowly across Ontario during the weekend.

Mercury Is High In Quinte Fish

By LENNY WILLIAMSON and ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporters

Fish from seven favorite Quinte district angling waters have shown dangerous concentrations of mercury, an Ontario lands and forests department report reveals.

Commercial and sports fishermen have been asked not to market or eat certain fish taken from the Bay of Quinte, Lake Ontario, the Presqu'ile area, the Salmon River and Moira, Skootamatta and St. Peter lakes.

"You have an interesting problem down there," said Ontario's Fisheries Supervisor, Douglas Rosebrough this morning in reference to the Bay of Quinte.

He noted that pickerel, pike, rock bass and yellow perch taken in gill nets in the bay had shown mercury readings of more than .5 parts per million in department tests.

But 13 other species, taken at the same time, showed concentrations of mercury below the danger level. They are smallmouth bass, largemouth bass, whitefish, white perch, eel, suckers, bullheads, smelt, cisco, punkinseeds, blue gills, gizzard shad and alewives.

The four species registering dangerous mercury concentrations "may be movers" speculated Mr. Rosebrough, picking up mercury as they swim through waters with higher than usual concentrations.

The highest mercury levels are turning up in carnivorous fish, he said. These are the species that live on smaller fish and water animals. The plant and plankton eating species appear to pick up less mercury.

Kidnappers Silent

FLQ Manifesto Aired by CBC

MONTREAL (CP) — The fate of kidnapped British diplomat James Cross remained unknown today.

Anxious authorities who granted one concession to the abductors Thursday night said no further word has been received from the terrorist group behind the kidnapping.

Before a Thursday midnight deadline was reached, government officials met a demand of the Front de Liberation du Quebec to have its "political manifesto" broadcast over the French-language radio and television networks of the CBC.

A spokesman for Quebec Justice Minister Jerome Choquette said today "there have been no further developments in the case." Mr. Choquette was keeping himself available at all times for any contact from the FLQ, a terrorist group seeking an independent socialist Quebec.

The only direct word from the 49-year-old British trade commissioner since he was taken at gunpoint from his Montreal home early Monday came in a mailed hand-written note to his wife Tuesday. He said he was being well treated and was receiving medication for his high blood pressure.

Contents of the note were made public Wednesday and a friend of the family confirmed it was in Mr. Cross's handwriting.

But he said the note apparently was dictated by someone else since Mr. Cross, a student of English literature, would not have used some of the words.

Meanwhile, there was growing concern from some quarters about the attitude of government officials toward the ransom demands of the kidnappers.

They have asked for the release of a score of "political prisoners" in Quebec, those terrorists they claim have been imprisoned as a result of political persecution rather than a crime, and a plane to fly them to asylum in a foreign country.

Claude Ryan, publisher of the influential Montreal newspaper Le Devoir, suggests in an editorial today that a "certain number" of jailed terrorists might be released for the sole purpose of saving the life of the British diplomat.

Mr. Ryan, mentioned as a possible mediator between authorities and kidnappers before an FLQ communique Thursday rejected the idea, says careful arrangements would be necessary to bring about a safe exchange of those in jail for Mr. Cross.

Negotiations by exchange of published communiques would be unsatisfactory, he says.

So far, demands by the kidnappers and reaction to them by authorities have been made known by published or broadcast statements.

Some crank calls have also filtered into the case. Police say a phone call to radio station

Israel Has 'Bomb'

LONDON (CP) — The Evening Standard says Israel is believed to have developed nuclear weapons and a striking force of nuclear bombers.

The Beaverbrook newspaper, in a headlined story, says the growing conviction that the Israelis would use this power if faced by defeat is considered in diplomatic circles to be the major factor in Soviet efforts to cool the Middle East situation.

Next Move Up to Reds Says Nixon

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (CP) — President Nixon says he has made some new, flexible peace proposals that open the way for the North Vietnamese to make new proposals in return.

"If they do," he told reporters Thursday, "we can make progress." And, he added: "That is the way we are going to play it."

The president said he hopes Hanoi will take the proposals "as seriously as we intend them." He said he is not discouraged by initial adverse reaction from North Vietnam and the Viet Cong.

Nixon said he is waiting for "the official response from Hanoi" at the public session of the Paris negotiators next week.

"We hope that it would indicate progress," he said.

Nixon said his five-point plan included "some new proposals," including an offer of "total withdrawal of all our forces, something we have never offered before, if we have mutual withdrawal on the other side."

Seven Waters Listed

Fish from seven favorite Quinte district angling waters have shown dangerous concentrations of mercury, an Ontario lands and forests department report reveals.

Commercial and sports fishermen have been asked not to market or eat certain fish taken from the Bay of Quinte, Lake Ontario, the Presqu'ile area, the Salmon River and Moira, Skootamatta and St. Peter lakes.

"You have an interesting problem down there," said Ontario's Fisheries Supervisor, Douglas Rosebrough this morning in reference to the Bay of Quinte.

He noted that pickerel, pike, rock bass and yellow perch taken in gill nets in the bay had shown mercury readings of more than .5 parts per million in department tests.

But 13 other species, taken at the same time, showed concentrations of mercury below the danger level. They are smallmouth bass, largemouth bass, whitefish, white perch, eel, suckers, bullheads, smelt, cisco, punkinseeds, blue gills, gizzard shad and alewives.

The four species registering dangerous mercury concentrations "may be movers" speculated Mr. Rosebrough, picking up mercury as they swim through waters with higher than usual concentrations.

The highest mercury levels are turning up in carnivorous fish, he said. These are the species that live on smaller fish and water animals. The plant and plankton eating species appear to pick up less mercury.

Strike by Quebec Doctors Is Called Waste of Time

MONTREAL (CP) — Health Minister Claude Castonguay says Quebec's medical specialists are wasting their time by striking in protest against terms of the province's medical care insurance legislation.

All specialists' offices were closed Thursday, although about 1,000 of the province's 4,000 specialists stayed in a limited number of hospitals to provide emergency services.

In Quebec City, Health Minister Claude Castonguay said the specialists will gain nothing by striking to press demands for further amendments to the medical plan set to go into operation Nov. 1.

Mr. Castonguay told a news conference the government is ready to let the strike go beyond the proposed opening date as long as the striking doctors continue to provide emergency services.

"However, at the first sign of the public's health being endangered, we will not hesitate to call the national assembly to deal with the matter," he said.

In Montreal, Dr. Gerard Hamel, president of the Quebec Federation of General Practitioners, said there are no immediate plans for the province's 2,200 family doctors to join the walkout.

The medical specialists said in a statement they are ready to resume negotiations with the government if it sees fit "to reconsider its intransigent position and bring the Quebec medical care insurance plan into line with those of the other provinces of Canada."

Montreal hospitals reported that most specialists were absent Thursday although teams of specialists were handling all emergencies and treating all patients still remaining in hospital.

Emergency services have been restricted to 13 hospitals in the city.

A spokesman for the specialists federation said the strike is not yet in full swing "and the impact probably won't be felt until Monday night."

The specialists began withdrawing services on an individual basis last week, cutting attendance in the province's 250 hospitals by about 30 per cent before the general strike began.

Commercial Fishermen Asked Not to Take Contaminated Species

mercury in two ways — through their gills and through their food," said Mr. Rosebrough. "The fresh species of fish absorbs mercury in a different manner and in differing concentrations."

For more than a year, the department of lands and forests has been collecting and testing fish, concentrating on areas of tourist and commercial fishing importance and waters in which a large amount of industrial pollution was suspected.

The results, released yesterday, turned up data that surprised department scientists, Mr. Rosebrough said.

Stoco Lake, where high contamination was expected, showed no fish with mercury concentrations above the 5 parts per million considered dangerous for human consumption. Pickerel, pike, largemouth bass, yellow perch and "sullheads were caught in the lake and tested.

Stootsmatta Lake, whose fish were expected to be free of mercury, produced pickerel and ling (fresh water cod), with concentrations above the human tolerance level. Pike, largemouth bass, yellow perch, whitefish and pikes from the lake are safe to eat.

Lake St. Peter, also suspected to produce mercury - free fish, was found to have lake trout with dangerous concentrations of the element.

Those results, and others of a smaller nature throughout Ontario have forced the department to investigate the possibility of mercury pollution from natural rock formations and the atmosphere, Mr. Rosebrough said.

"We have turned up mercury in fish from northwestern Ontario lakes 300 miles from the nearest human habitation," he reported. "We are collecting 4 mass of data to see if a pattern emerges on which we can base further action."

Pike from the Salmon River showed high mercury concentrations, but the remaining fish are considered safe. No pickerel were caught in the Salmon River samplings.

Moira Lake pickerel, pike, largemouth bass and muskinonge show high mercury levels. Yellow perch and bullhead from the lake are still considered safe.

Lake Ontario, between Brighton and Gananoque, produced pickerel, pike, smallmouth bass and sal with dangerous mercury concentrations. The eastern part of the lake was closed to commercial fishermen earlier in the season. Eleven other species of fish from the lake tested safe, the fisheries supervisor said.

In the Presqu'ile area, an important commercial fishery, pickerel is considered unsafe. But yellow perch, sunfish and bullheads showed low mercury concentrations and are safe for human consumption.

The department sampled 105 lakes and rivers in Ontario in its survey. The interim report was released on the direction of Lands and Forests Minister Rene Brunelle because of the significance of its findings, said Mr. Rosebrough.

No bans will be imposed on sports or commercial fishermen. Commercial fishermen have been asked to stop catching the fish listed as having mercury content higher than .5 parts per million.

Sports fishermen are being asked to "fish for fun" and throw back the listed fish.

Posting signs are being prepared by the department, Mr. Rosebrough said this morning.

"We have closed all the commercial fisheries that we plan to close," he added. "We are trying to keep commercial fishermen in business in new areas or fishing for new species."

The alternative, he suggested, was provincial co-operation with the federal government in restoring provisions for commercial fishermen put out of business by the mercury threat.

Two types of mercury are involved in water pollution, said the supervisor. Fish can pick up both methal mercury, an organic compound, and inorganic, metallic mercury.

In some areas, rock is suspect. A spokesman for the department of lands and forests in Tweed said that climbing rock from Skootamatta Lake, containing rich mercury oxide, had been forwarded for testing and might be a factor in mercury pollution of remote lakes.

O. F. Bradley, secretary manager of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce, felt the report would have a serious effect on the Quinte area tourist industry and particularly on resort areas oriented to fishing.

Many of the resort areas on the bay depend primarily on the fishing attraction and each year accommodate many people from the more populous areas of Ontario and the United States, he said.

He didn't think the Department's suggestion for anglers to "fish for fun" and not eat their catches would sit very well with sports fishermen.

The attraction is to cook and eat the fresh fish."

Bruce Cooper, manager of the Bay of Quinte Fisheries at Ballencliff said that sales for commercial fishing of pickerel, pike, rock bass and yellow perch in the Bay of Quinte would have but little effect on his operation.

He said commercial fishing for pickerel and pike was already restricted in the Bay from Glenora west.

Yellow perch caught in Lake Ontario was purchased by the firm but Mr. Cooper said there was little production and fishermen were "not catching too many."

The species of fish now commercially in the Bay — eels, channel cats, sturgeon and carp — are not listed in the report as having dangerously high mercury content.

Mr. Cooper wondered about the emphasis on mercury in fish.

Apples and other fruit probably had as high a mercury content as fish but nothing was being done about this, he said.

He expected the report could affect the tourist industry, but doubted that many sport fishermen would throw the listed species of fish back as suggested by department officials."

Madoc village reeve Thomas Burnside admitted that he was "greatly disturbed" to learn that fish in Moira Lake had been found to contain high mercury content.

The report listed pickerel, pike, largemouth bass and muskinonge as having high mercury content.

"It certainly will not be the tourist business any good," he said. "It is just another nail in the Moira Lake coffin."

The Madoc reeve was referring to reports of arsenic in the lake water and to complaints of algae.

However, he said he had eaten pickerel from Moira Lake all summer and hadn't suffered any ill effects.

Mr. R. A. Owen, president of the Quinte's Isle Tourist Association, and owner of Belleroi Marina on Big Island in Bay of Quinte, said sport fishing in the area could be a very seriously affected if the reports were true.

"I've got three men from Pittsburgh here right now," said Mr. Owen. "If this is in all fairness, I will have to tell my guests."

Mr. Owen said the report of mercury contamination in game fish could "knocked our socks down."

Catching the fish was only half the fun for sport fishermen, who place a high importance on the pleasures of eating their catch, he noted.

Mr. Owen said the three Pittsburgh men now at his resort came to the Bay of Quinte only to catch pike which are one of the species blacklisted.

At the same time Mr. Owen felt that the Department of Lands and Forests should have specifically defined the area in the Bay of Quinte where the contaminated fish were found.

Previously, he said, the department had listed the waters of the Bay of Quinte as being contaminated generally, when actually only the Lake Ontario area from Amherst Island to Cobourg had been tested.

Group to Sing Here

The Freedom Five, a pop group travelling for Canadian Youth for Christ, will appear in Belleville this weekend. Led by Lloyd Smith of Belleville, Barbara Tschrobe, Elaine Overholt, John Stephenson and Rodney Carlson will perform at secondary schools, churches and the east end plaza, bringing contemporary music on guitars, trombone, trumpet and rock-si-reord.

Match Feature Is Tent City

Agriculture of today, yesterday and tomorrow will be all part of the 1976 International Plowing Match being held October 13-17 three miles west of Lindsay.

In addition to the daily plowing contests there will be displays and demonstrations of the latest in farm machinery.

In contrast there will be daily demonstrations of the operation of antique steam driven farm machinery.

Tent City, where more than 300 exhibitors will set up tents and exhibits, will feature displays of 1977 automobiles, home improvement and building supplies, snowmobiles and home appliances.

For the ladies there will be continuous fashion and cooking shows. Each noon hour there will be a parade with floats, colorful bands and farm equipment.

Government Plan Worries Council

Reeve R. J. Locke said there was concern whether the western townships of Cartwright and Darlington in Durham county might be absorbed by the Oshawa area and the eastern townships by another area.

He said some smaller municipalities with comparatively small indebtedness might be absorbed by larger municipalities heavily in debt resulting in a financial disadvantage to the smaller units which over the years had protected their economy.

Scholarship Winners

Winners of the Carter Scholarship for Hastings county have been announced by the board of education.

For the highest aggregate marks in grade 13 last year, Ronald Chaplin of Belleville Collegiate Institute received a scholarship worth $100.

Ann Dunham of Tweed won the scholarship for the second highest marks and received $80. Barb Price of Centre Hastings Secondary School in Madoc won third prize and $40.

The scholarships are awarded to the three students in each of 25 counties in Ontario who score the highest marks in grade 13. The awards are given under the terms of the will of the late J. I. Carter of Sarnia.

Cambridge Leaseholds Adds Belleville Land

DEVELOPER INDENT EG

Cambridge Leaseholds Ltd., shortly to commence construction of their mold - million - dollar shopping plaza in the North Front Street area, have increased their property holdings in the north Belleville district.

Yesterday, local realtor Douglas Grant reported that Cambridge had completed the purchase of an additional 30 adjoining acres to the west of the property on which their plaza is to be constructed.

The property, purchased from North Belleville Realty, lies on both sides of the Bell Blvd. right of way and extends west to the extension of Lemoine Street. The plaza property totals 23 acres.

Options on the North Belleville Realty Company land parcel were taken out by Cambridge two years ago and were renewed pending the outcome of the re-zoning application to allow the North Front Street plaza.
